Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of (a) sexual and (b) racial intimidation have been registered by inmates of Yarl's Wood Detention Centre in the last 12 months; and what the result has been of investigations into such complaints. [144849]

Mr. Byrne: From January 2006 there are no records of complaints of sexual intimidation. There have been six complaints referred to the Race Relations Liaison Officer, five of which were assessed as not being of a racist nature. The sixth was withdrawn by the detainee and the Race Relations Liaison Officer satisfied himself that this complaint was not of a racist nature and decided not to pursue the matter further.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departments: Languages

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the views of

(a) language teaching staff in her Department and (b) staff in other departments were on the decision to outsource her Department's language teaching operation. [142085]

Mr. Hoon: Language teaching staff are very committed to achieving high standards in their work. They expressed disappointment when told of the decision to outsource the teaching operation. We will be offering them every possible support in managing the transition from the present arrangements. There will be no bar to existing teaching staff providing language training services to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in future, either as an employee or owner of an organisation that successfully tenders for this business.

Language training will continue to be provided for staff from other Government Departments posted into FCO jobs. Those Departments will be offered the opportunity to use the proposed FCO framework agreement to source language training for their own staff who need language skills in the future. Other Departments were not consulted on the FCO's business decision to outsource language training.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account was taken of the job requirements of staff (a) in her Department and (b) in other departments when making the decision to outsource her Department's language teaching operation. [142086]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) language policy review made a number of recommendations to improve the skills of FCO staff who require language skills to do their job. The decision to outsource training will not impact on the operational efficiency of FCO staff or staff from other Government Departments working in the FCO.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the quality of the language teaching available from outside providers compared with that available from the in-house staff in her Department. [142087]

Mr. Hoon: We do not believe that quality of training will be affected. Language teaching suppliers will have performance targets built into their contracts. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Services Review of Language training, which looked at the examination performance of trainees taught by agency-supplied teachers, concluded that examination performance is not automatically enhanced by having full time teachers. 40 per cent. of FCO priority language training is already outsourced.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what factors are taken into account by her Department when calculating the cost of an average hour of language teaching to (a) a single individual and (b) a group in a lesson provided by her Department's language teaching operation. [142088]

Mr. Hoon: When benchmarking the cost of an average hour of language tuition, detailed analysis considered tuition costs, including value added tax and, for group training, classes of four.

Other costs such as accommodation, registration and set up fee and learning resources subscription were not taken into account when comparing the hourly tuition rates.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average cost is of an hour of language teaching to (a) a single individual and (b) a group in a lesson provided by (i) her Department's language teaching operation and (ii) external language providers contracted to her Department. [142089]

Mr. Hoon: The current cost of tuition under the current in-house teaching operation and for external providers contracted by Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Services is:

	Individual	Group
FCO Services	55-65	60-80
FCO Services contracted external providers	41 to 70	47 to 70

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in her Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145975]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not keep statistics on reported cases of work-related stress, nor on sickness absences related to stress.

We attach importance to identifying and tackling causes of stress in the workplace. We published detailed guidance earlier this year for all staff and managers on recognising and dealing with occupational stress. Staff are able to discuss work-related or personal concerns with a trained welfare officer. In addition we provide access for staff both in the UK and overseas to a confidential telephone counselling and advice service.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what new initiatives she has recently discussed with (a) the Government of Israel and (b) EU member states in relation to (i) Israeli activity in the Occupied Palestinian Territories and (ii) Israeli settlement building on the E1 plan and elsewhere in the West Bank. [145990]

Dr. Howells: The UK continues to discuss these issues regularly with the Government of Israel and international partners, including the EU.

The UK consistently makes clear its view that settlements are illegal under international law and that settlement activity is an obstacle to peace. The Roadmap is clear that Israel should freeze all settlement construction including the "natural growth" of existing settlements and dismantle all outposts built since 2001. Our ambassador in Tel Aviv last raised our concerns about settlement activity with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 28 May. We continue to make clear our objection to any settlement activity.

We are concerned by reports of Israeli construction work at El. The continuing process of establishing settlements is encircling East Jerusalem and breaking up Palestinian territorial contiguity throughout the West Bank. These practices fuel Palestinian anger, threaten to cut East Jerusalem off from the West Bank and undermine the prospect for a viable Palestinian state. We continue to call for Israel to meet its Roadmap commitments on settlements.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Domestic Service: Legal Protection

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what legal protection for the rights of domestic workers have been introduced since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [125427]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

In 1998, arrangements for overseas domestic workers in private households were revised to enable them to change employers in the UK if they had suffered abuse or exploitation, as long as they remained in employment as a domestic worker in a private household. This arrangement was subsequently amended to allow domestic workers to change employer regardless of the reason.

A regularisation scheme was also established for those who had left their original employer due to abuse or exploitation. Their stay would be regularised for 12 months in the first instance for those that brought themselves to the attention of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate between 23 July 1998 and 23 October 1999.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Community-based Sentencing

8. Mr. Hendrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress he has made on the development of community-based sentencing as an alternative to prison in Northern Ireland. [144671]

9. Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what alternatives to prison are being developed in Northern Ireland; and what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of those measures. [144672]

14. Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in developing community-based sentencing as an effective alternative to prison in Northern Ireland. [144678]

Maria Eagle: Good progress is being made in developing community-based alternatives to prison—particularly in relation to youth offending where our new system of youth conferencing recently extended across the whole of Northern Ireland. It has enormous potential to divert young people from custody, satisfy the victims of crime that they have a say in the way in which crime is dealt with, and cut re-offending rates significantly.

Social Housing

10. Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will seek discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on increasing the block grant to increase resources available for social housing in Northern Ireland. [144674]

Mr. Hain: Social housing in Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the devolved administration in Northern Ireland, and it is for the Northern Ireland Executive to decide on the allocation of public expenditure between services in Northern Ireland. But the Chancellor has stated housing will be a priority in his new Cabinet.

Terrorist Groups

11. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the security threat posed by each of the Irish terrorist groups proscribed under the Terrorism Act 2000. [144675]

Paul Goggins: The Provisional IRA no longer poses a terrorist threat, and has not done so for some time. However, Dissident Republicans, though few in number and isolated, continue to pose a serious threat to the security situation.

Given the recent statement by the UVF, I have commissioned a review of the status of specified organisations in line with my obligation under the legislation. We have always maintained that we will encourage those who want to work to a positive agenda, and it is vital that the welcome statement is followed through with actions.

Police Service

12. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the likely proportion of Catholic officers in the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each year from 2007-08 to 2010-11. [144676]

Paul Goggins: The percentage of Catholic officers in PSNI has been forecast as follows:

As at 31 March:	Percentage
2008	24.04
2009	26.28
2010	28.29

Police Ombudsman

13. Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what mechanisms are in place by which the Police Ombudsman's office can be held accountable in respect of complaints made against her office. [144677]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Executive of the Office of the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland is responsible for addressing all maladministration complaints made against the Office, and ensures that all such matters are examined within the Office's Satisfaction Policy and Procedures in place. If complainants are still not satisfied with the explanation given by the Chief Executive, the matter can then be raised with the Secretary of State, who will consider the case independently, and with due consideration given of all the evidence that is made available to him.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people under the age of 18 years were cautioned for underage drinking by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [142640]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI have advised the following:

Consuming intoxicating liquor while a minor	Cautions

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146091]

Mr. Hain: The information sought is as follows:

	Number
(a) Involved in assisting European Council negotiations	0
(b) Involved in assisting and advising the European Commission	0
(c) Seconded to the European Commission	0
(d) Involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives	5
(e) Involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives	4
(f) Involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice	2

The staff identified at (d), (e) and (f) do not work full-time on these matters and nor do they have lead responsibility for any of this work. Rather, they are involved on an ad hoc basis, providing advice and Northern Ireland Office input to work for which other Whitehall Departments take the lead.

Departments: Marketing

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which advertising and marketing campaigns were run by his Department in each of the last five years; which external agencies were involved; and what the cost was of each campaign. [144628]

Mr. Hain: The following table provides details of which advertising and marketing campaigns have been run by my Department and its agencies in each of the last five years. Details of external agencies and costs are also provided in the table.

Departments: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of staff in his Department were over 60 years of age in each of the last three years. [145685]

Paul Goggins: The percentage of staff in the Northern Ireland Office aged 60 years or over in the last three years is detailed in the following table.

	Percentage of staff aged 60 or over

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146423]

Paul Goggins: Bonuses are used to reward excellent performance and to drive continuous improvement in the NIO. A new performance management system was introduced in 2002 for the senior civil service. As part of this system, a non-consolidated bonus pot was established which the Cabinet Office has increased incrementally year on year. The information set out in the following table relates to the annual performance bonuses paid to NIO staff at senior civil service level between 2002 (based on the 2001-02 reporting year) and 2007 (based on the 2006-07 reporting year).

	Number of senior civil service staff who received a bonus	Total cost (£)
2002	32	72,215
2004	36	134,100
2005	38	176,800
2006	38	239,842
2007	39	278,650

All of these bonus payments are non-consolidated and non-pensionable and therefore do not have associated future costs for paybill.

Departments: Publications

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many copies of the Northern Ireland Office publication Peacemaking in Northern Ireland: A Model for Conflict Resolution were produced; what the cost was of producing the document; and to whom it was distributed. [145752]

Mr. Hain: 6,000 copies of the publication 'Peacemaking in Northern Ireland: A Model for Conflict Resolution' were produced.

The production cost for the document was £3,950 and it was distributed to a wide range of individuals and organisations locally, nationally and internationally and has been well received.

Departments: Remploy

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) services and (b) products his Department has procured from Remploy in the last 12 months; and at what cost. [143790]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO), excluding its agencies and NDPBs, uses the Ministry of Justice procurement systems and the Office of Government Commerce on line call off procurement services. To date Remploy have not featured in either of those sources. We are aware of the services they offer and subject to our value for money and sustainable development criteria being met would consider a Remploy tender via those procurement channels.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145980]

Paul Goggins: The percentage of working days lost within the Northern Ireland Office due to stress related illness in the last three years is as follows:

	Percentage
2003-04	21.0
2005-06	25.5

These figures have been taken from information supplied by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency.

The Department takes all absences, in particular stress related illness, very seriously and is currently examining any underlying reasons.

Prisoners Release: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prisoners released early on licence in Northern Ireland have had their licences revoked in each of the last three years; and what the reasons were for the revocation in each case. [145751]

Paul Goggins: The power to revoke the licences of prisoners released early under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998 lies with the Sentence Review Commissioners (SRC). The exercise of this power follows the suspension of the licences of those persons by the Secretary of State. The numbers of licence suspensions and revocations in each of the last three years are as follows:

2005	5	—
2007 (as at 22 June)	1	—

All the persons whose licences have been suspended were believed to have become a danger to the public. In addition, four individuals were also believed to have become concerned again in the commission, preparation or instigation of acts of terrorism—the single 2004 suspension, two of the 2005 suspensions and one of the 2006 suspensions. Furthermore, in one of the 2005 suspension cases the individual concerned was believed to have again become a supporter of a specified organisation.

The 2006 revocation decision by the SRC in one of these cases was in confirmation of the belief that that person had become a danger to the public. Determination by the SRC remains outstanding on seven of the other nine cases referred to above. Of the two other cases one licence was reinstated and the other individual died in custody.

Robert McCartney

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in the investigation into the murder of Robert McCartney. [145475]

Paul Goggins: The person charged with the murder of Mr. McCartney remains on remand. A file has been sent to the Public Prosecution Service for consideration.

PSNI advise that this remains an active investigation, with particular emphasis on the need for witnesses to come forward.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many mobile speed traps operated in (a) each constituency and (b) each council area in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [142634]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI have advised that the information is not collated in the format requested. Information is available by district command unit which is co-terminus with council area.

2. Larne DCU had no site in 2004 and 2005.
3. In Down DCU the vehicle was defective from November 2005 to July 2006.
4. In Fermanagh and Omagh DCUs the vehicle was defective from April 2006 to October 2006.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Broadband: Rural Areas

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what correspondence he has had with internet providers about people in rural communities who cannot receive broadband and for whom dial-up connection will be phased out. [140491]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I have had no such correspondence with internet service providers.

There are currently no plans to phase out dial-up internet. The universal service obligation on BT and Kingston to provide telephony and functional internet access remains in place. This means that everyone who has a telephone connection has the potential to access a dial-up internet service. In addition to this, 99.6 per cent. of households are connected to a broadband enabled exchange.

The European Commission plans to review the scope of universal service next year and access to broadband is one of the issues that the Government will ensure is at the centre of the debate.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the merits of providing for Government aid to industries in need of restructuring or short-term financial assistance; and what discussions he has had with the Trades Union Congress on this matter. [143152]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 19 June 2007]: We are spending money to support industry but we only do so where the intervention will be effective in securing a sustainable future for the company. Where there are no such prospects the intervention usually distorts competition, prevents the emergence of new companies and inhibits innovation.

Support for business is available through a range of measures: Selective finance for industry (SFI), DTI business support and the R and D tax credit. Government will consider support where it helps enhance UK competitiveness and productivity.

Support for industry must be compatible with the EU rules on state aid. These increasingly favour aid for small, growth businesses and aid for research, innovation and environmental enhancement, rather than aid for companies in difficulty. The Government support this.

The Secretary of State last met the TUC to discuss state aid and support for industry champions at the TUC conference in September 2006.

Consumer Goods: Labelling

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what regulatory regime governs the display of ingredients on (a) alcoholic, (b) tobacco and (c) cosmetic products; and if he will make a statement. [145992]

Mr. McCartney: The Department of Trade and industry is not responsible for regulations covering alcohol or tobacco products. These are matters for the Department of Health.

As regards cosmetic products, all such products sold in the UK must comply with The Cosmetic Products (Safety) Regulations 2004 (as amended). The regulations implement the requirements of the European Directive on cosmetic products and require that all the cosmetic products supplied to consumers must be safe under normal or reasonably foreseeable conditions of use. They must also be labelled with a list of their ingredients in descending order of weight.

Economic Growth

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what figures his Department records relating to recent (a) investment levels and (b) business growth, broken down by constituency. [139616]

Margaret Hodge: Data on investment levels are not available at constituency level. Data are produced at regional level by the Office for National Statistics and can be found at:

Data on the growth in the number of VAT registered businesses in each of the 640 parliamentary constituencies, can be calculated from data published by the DTI at:

www.dtistats.net/smes/vat

For illustrative purposes this is calculated for Torbay parliamentary constituency. Between the start of 2001 and 2006 the number of VAT registered businesses in Torbay constituency increased by 135, or 6 per cent.

Data on employment and turnover growth in existing businesses are not available at constituency level. They are published by DTI at the regional level and are available at:

www.dtistats.net/smes/sme

Calculated by dividing the change in stock between 2001and 2006 by the 2001 start of year stock.

Iran: Export Credit Guarantees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1492-3W, on Iran: export credit guarantees, when the arrangement that Ministers should be consulted before export credit cover is provided to Iran was made; and if he will make a statement. [145822]

Mr. Darling: On 13 April 2007, I asked ECGD to consult me before any new cover was provided for exports to Iran.

New Businesses: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many new businesses established in Suffolk received Government funding assistance in each of the last five years. [139138]

Margaret Hodge: Unfortunately, departmental and RDA management information systems do not differentiate between new and existing Suffolk businesses in receipt of government funding.

However, data are available for the total number of businesses in receipt of financial support in Suffolk for the five year period ending 31 March 2007 (unless otherwise stated).

(a) 85 businesses were supported via the Business Advice and Support programme. These businesses were provided with support to a maximum of £250.

(b) 7 companies received Regional Selective Assistance (RSA) and Enterprise Grant (now Selective Finance for Investment in England (SFIE).

(c) 18 companies received R and D Grants (formerly SMART awards) between 2003 and 2006.

(d) 299 companies received Small Firms Loans Guarantees.

In addition to which, Business Link and Local Enterprise Agencies provided advice to 2,609 new businesses to help them start-up. And Business Link Suffolk provided European Social Fund backed training to 702 businesses.

Post Offices: Reform

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the departmental annual report for 2006, page 188, J8, how much has been paid in fees to advisers in connection with the proposed restructuring of the post office network, broken down by (a) adviser and (b) category of advice; and what estimate he has made of the final overall expenditure in relation to such advice. [145996]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since December 2005, the Department has used Deloitte and Herbert Smith to provide financial and legal advice respectively relating to POL and the Government's support for the company. The individual fees for these advisers are commercially confidential. The combined final estimate for the cost of this advice is just under £800,000.

Regulations: British Overseas Territories

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will set out how each recommendation of the 1998 Edwards report into the regulation regime in Britain's overseas dependent territories has been implemented. [142481]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

The 1998 Edwards report covered Crown Dependencies (Isle of Man, Jersey, Guernsey) and not Overseas Dependent Territories.

I understand that Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man have implemented the majority of the recommendations made in the Edwards report. More detailed information about implementation of particular recommendations can most easily be obtained through contact with the relevant Crown Dependency.

South East Development Agency: Chelsea Flower Show

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what expenditure the South East England Development Agency has undertaken in relation to the Chelsea Flower Show in each of the last three years. [142384]

Margaret Hodge: The RDA is responsible for decisions on expenditure. In 2007 South East England Development Agency spent £88,000 at Chelsea Flower Show. This expenditure included a garden in the lifelong learning section to showcase new scientific and innovative uses of plants. This was done in partnership with South East agricultural colleges and they received a gold medal for plants with industrial uses. Investment in 2006 was £10,800 which part sponsored two gardens which highlighted the importance of the horticulture sector in industry and sustainable development. They did not invest in the show in 2005.

South East Development Agency: Taxis

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much the South East Development Agency has spent on taxis in the last two years for which figures are available. [142383]

Margaret Hodge: South East England Regional Development Agency (SEEDA) has several company accounts for cars and taxis. The cost for car and taxi services invoiced to them was £62,006 in 2005-06 and £79,026 in 2006-07. The contracts for the larger company accounts are tendered.

In addition, SEEDA staff have claimed for other taxi costs on individual expense claim forms, but accounting information on this is held combined with other travel and accommodation expenses and cannot be supplied due to disproportionate costs of manual disaggregation.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the security situation in Afghanistan. [143180]

Des Browne [holding answer 15 June 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Gordon (Malcolm Bruce) on 18 June, Official Report, columns 1069-1071.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason military personnel have been transported by road from RAF bases in Scotland to Brize Norton for deployment to theatre; and how much rest time they have been granted on arrival in theatre before commencing air patrols. [144779]

Mr. Ingram: The air-bridge to Iraq and Afghanistan operates from RAF Brize Norton. Where possible, military personnel based at Scottish RAF bases are moved to RAF Brize Norton by RAF Air Transport for onward transport to operational theatres. However, in order to make the optimum use of available aircraft this is not always possible, particularly for moves of small numbers of personnel or individuals. Guaranteeing the overseas air programme has to remain the priority.

Personnel on arrival in theatre have a minimum period of rest and acclimatisation of 48 hours prior to assignment to air patrols. This period can be reduced by operational commanders if required and it is assessed that doing so would not increase the risk to flight safety.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel in the (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Royal Air Force were living in substitute single service accommodation in each year since 1997. [135415]

Derek Twigg: Since 1997, the number of service personnel living in Substitute Single Service Accommodation (SSSA) in Great Britain is provided in the following table:

Financial year	Army	Navy	RAF
2006-07	2,536	1,426	906
2005-06	2,120	1,332	865
2004-05	2,006	1,328	816
2003-04	1,841	1,393	687
2002-03	1,683	1,523	587
2001-02	1,606	1,442	455
2000-01	1,382	1,281	385
1999-2000	1,048	1,573	372
1998-99	933	1,508	310
1996-97	26	100	7

In financial year 1996-97, this Department commenced a new contract with a specialist rented property locator, to provide SSSA across Great Britain. The number of personnel living in SSSA is low for this period, as the contract commenced near the end of the financial year.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether families are allowed to view Ministry of Defence accommodation before occupying it. [141842]

Derek Twigg: The allocation system does not allow accommodation to be viewed before families move. This is currently being reviewed.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service families have been moved from Modern Housing Solutions-maintained accommodation into temporary private accommodation in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [145713]

Derek Twigg: Officials are working to establish the information requested. Once information is available, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many gas leaks have been reported in Modern Housing Solutions-maintained accommodation in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [145714]

Derek Twigg: It is not possible to separately identify the number of gas leaks reported.

When occupants of service families accommodation contact Modern Housing Solutions to report a gas leak, the report is passed to Transco, who attend the property to identify the problem and make things safe.

Armed Forces: Mass Media

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who the duty Minister was on the day the decision was taken to allow the service personnel released by Iran to sell their stories to the media. [145148]

Des Browne: As the Secretary of State, decisions on certain issues are referred to me rather than the duty Minister. The sale of stories to the media by the service personnel released by Iran was one such issue. Between 5-7 April, the duty Minister for other issues was my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces. On 8 and 9 April, the duty Minister was my noble Friend the Minister of State for Defence Equipment and Support.

Armed Forces: Medical Examinations

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) serving personnel and (b) veterans passed through the Medical Assessment Programme in each year since it was established for (i) physical and (ii) mental health conditions and (iii) in total. [142853]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 June 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of the future utility vehicles forming part of the Future Rapid Effect System are (a) expected to be air-transportable in one future A400M Aircraft and (b) within the whole airlift capability for a single operation. [145105]

Mr. Ingram: We expect the A400M to be able to carry one FRES utility vehicle. Airlift capacity for a single operation would be dependent on the scale, speed and distance of the deployment.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role and function of the future utility vehicle will be as part of the Future Rapid Effect System. [145106]

Mr. Ingram: These vehicles will carry out the protected mobility, command and control, light armoured support, medical, repair and recovery and driver training roles. Other elements of the Utility fleet, to be delivered in later planned increments, include specialist communications, electronic warfare and sensors vehicles.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Procurement

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the future rapid effect system programme will include a tracked variant of the (a) utility, (b) reconnaissance and (c) heavy vehicles. [144761]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 21 June 2007]: It is not envisaged that the FRES utility vehicle will be a tracked vehicle. The FRES reconnaissance and heavy requirements are however, expected to be predominantly met by tracked vehicles, although decisions regarding these vehicles will not be finalised until the main investment decision has been taken.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) development and (b) procurement programmes are being funded by his Department for the securing of effective armour for UK armed forces land vehicles. [145070]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence gave on 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1443W.

Chiefs of Staff: Powers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what strategic (a) planning and (b) supervisory roles are currently assigned to the Chiefs of Staff (i) individually and (ii) as a committee; and if he will make a statement. [144780]

Des Browne: The Chiefs of Staff Committee, chaired by the CDS, is the principal forum in which collective military advice is garnered and through which CDS discharges his responsibility for the preparation and conduct of military operations and the formulation of military strategy. CDS is also responsible for the provision of military advice to the Secretary of State and the Prime Minister. The single-Service Chiefs of Staff contribute to this role by providing advice on the employment of their respective service.

The Chiefs of Staff are also members of the Defence Management Board which directs and coordinates the delivery of core Defence outputs. As members of the Defence Management Board the Chiefs of Staff are individually accountable for the delivery of military capability generated by their Service; the fighting effectiveness and efficiency of the forces both now and in the future; and the morale of their personnel.

Defence Equipment: Saudi Arabia

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which officials of the Defence Export Services Agency were interviewed by the Serious Fraud Office as part of its recent inquiry into defence sales to Saudi Arabia; and if he will make a statement. [144253]

Des Browne: The Ministry of Defence co-operated fully with the Serious Fraud Office investigation. As the Attorney-General said in his statement in another place on 14 December 2006, Official Report, columns 1712-13, 'public comment about the case must inevitably be limited in order to avoid causing unfairness to individuals who have been the subject of investigation'. The details of who was interviewed remain confidential.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Saudi Arabia

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Defence Export Services Organisation staff work for the Saudi Armed Forces Project; what management fee was received from Saudi Arabia to cover the cost of the project in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; what in addition to salaries this fee covered; and if he will make a statement. [145424]

Des Browne: The Saudi Armed Forces Project employs 200 staff across the United Kingdom and Saudi Arabia. Aside from salary and salary related costs, the project's operating expenditure includes the costs of office and domestic accommodation, personnel travel and subsistence, IT and telecommunications, training and professional fees and utilities.

The project's operating expenditure is covered in full by a management fee received from the Saudi Arabian Government, but details of the fee are confidential between the two Governments. I am withholding the details as they would, or would be likely to prejudice international relations and harm the interests of the United Kingdom.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether defence contractors are under any obligations to seek ministerial clearance for payments to overseas nationals in connection with defence contracts. [144346]

Mr. Ingram: Defence contractors are not under any obligation to seek ministerial clearance for payments to overseas nationals in connection with defence sales contracts.

Iraq

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the oral answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1068-69, on Iraq, on what date it was decided that troops in theatre in Iraq would not face a threat from weapons of mass destruction other than from pre-1991 stocks, chlorine bombs or similar items held by insurgents. [144355]

Des Browne [holding answer 21 June 2007]: In the period following the formal cessation of hostilities, it was assessed that the threat to troops from weapons of mass destruction had decreased such that standard protective measures could be reduced. The precise moment will have depended on unit roles and tasks.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK (a) civilian and (b) military personnel were (i) killed and (ii) injured in the Iraqi provinces of

(A) Al Basrah, (B) Al Muthanna, (C) Dhi Qar and (D) Maysan in each month from March 2003 to December 2005; and how many attacks on multi-national forces were recorded in each Iraqi province during that period. [139096]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The following figures are produced from the most complete record of events within Multi National Division (South East) and are for the period between March 2003 and December 2005. Each record is not specifically verified and so cannot be guaranteed to be completely accurate.

The figures include incidents that involved the employment of improvised explosive devices, rockets, mortars, rocket propelled grenades, grenades, small arms and other weapons such as petrol bombs or knives, but not the throwing of stones. Number of Attacks on MNF by Province

It is not possible to break down the number of persons killed and injured in each attack as requested. The total number of UK military and civilian personnel killed and injured between March 2003 and December 2005 is provided on the MOD website at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm.

The information on the website does not include UK civilians employed or contracted by other Government Departments or by civilian contractors. This information is not held by the MOD.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the operational ability of Lynx helicopters serving in the Persian Gulf has been affected by high air temperatures. [145574]

Mr. Ingram: The performance of all helicopters is affected by variations in air temperature, but Lynx helicopters serving in the Persian Gulf are capable of performing all their assigned tasks.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with senior members of the armed forces on the operational suitability of combat footwear issued to UK forces in Iraq and Afghanistan. [144280]

Mr. Ingram: Following comments from Telic and Herrick in June 2006, alternative boots were provided and sizing advice was offered to units. In addition, a trial to select new commercially available desert boots is due to complete during 2007. This will allow a new boot to be issued to all troops deploying in the autumn and a second alternative boot to be available from early 2008—thus offering some degree of choice. The Department has also initiated a project to introduce a web-based application for the controlled supply of personal clothing to provide service personnel with the ability to order from an online catalogue, with item(s) despatched to an address of choice. This could eventually change the way that items such as boots are provided.

Missile Defence Technology Centre

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on development of the Missile Defence Technology Centre; and if he will make a statement. [144034]

Des Browne: The UK Missile Defence Centre was founded on 18 July 2003 with a six-year mandate. It has just begun its fifth year. The Missile Defence Centre continues to focus on providing scientific and technical advice to the Ministry of Defence on strategic missile defence matters, and supports UK industrial opportunities in this area.

Nuclear Submarines: Procurement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to order an eighth SSN. [145841]

Mr. Ingram: Three Astute Class submarines are on order with BAES and a further order was placed on 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 55-56WS to commence the build of the fourth boat.

Further boat orders are being considered, subject to affordability. We are working with industry as part of the Defence Industrial Strategy to achieve an affordable and sustainable submarine programme.

Unidentified Flying Objects

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason his Secretariat (Air Staff)/ Defence Secretariat did not receive a copy of the report on Unidentified Aerial Phenomena produced by the Defence Intelligence Staff; and if he will make a statement. [145883]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 26 June 2007]: The report was distributed to those areas of the Department who were considered to have most interest in the findings, including parts of the RAF.

Vanguard Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to prolong the operational life of the Vanguard class submarine beyond 30 years. [145840]

Mr. Ingram: There are no plans to extend the Vanguard submarines beyond 30 years.

Veterans Day

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which applicants have been (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful in bids to obtain funding to mark Veterans Day 2007; and the amounts received by each. [142408]

Derek Twigg: 220 bids have been received requesting funding for Veterans Day 2007 events. Bids were assessed against well-publicised criteria setting out the objectives and key messages that events would need to support; where bids were initially non-compliant, efforts were generally made to explain how they might be modified to meet the criteria. Funding was allocated accordingly. The successful and unsuccessful applicants, together with the grants allocated to the former, are listed as follows:

Warships: Procurement

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many jobs his Department estimates will be created in the UK through the construction of (a) Type 45 destroyers, (b) Astute class submarines and (c) future aircraft carriers; and what assessment he has made of the likely effect of these projects on the level of skills in the work force. [128585]

Mr. Ingram: Around 8,000 personnel are currently employed by BAES and VT on surface ship and submarine business for the UK MOD in Glasgow, Barrow-in-Furness and Portsmouth. We expect current and planned programmes to ensure the retention of shipbuilding skills and expertise in the short to medium term. The Defence Industrial Strategy defined the key maritime industrial skills and capabilities we need to retain on shore to support the needs of the Royal Navy in the longer term and we are working with the shipbuilding industry to agree the core workload required to sustain these high-end design, systems engineering and combat systems integration skills across the maritime sector.

Departments: Marketing

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which advertising and marketing campaigns were run by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years; which external agencies were involved; and what the cost was of each campaign. [144624]

Angela E. Smith: In 2002-03 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister ran the following advertising and marketing campaign:

Fire Safety

The external agencies were EURO RSCG for advertising; Carat for media planning and media buying; and COI for public relations and partnership marketing. Total spend was £4.8 million.

In 2003-04 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister ran the following advertising and marketing campaign:

Fire Safety

The external agencies were EURO RSCG for advertising; Carat for media planning and media buying; and COI for PR and partnership marketing. Total spend was £6.3 million.

In 2004-05 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister ran the following advertising and marketing campaigns:

Fire Safety

The external agencies were EURO RSCG for advertising; Carat for media planning and media buying; and COI for public relations and partnership marketing. Total spend was £5.7million.

Elected Regional Assemblies

The external agencies were Robson Brown for design events and advertising, and Carat for media planning and buying. Total spend was £3.24 million.

In 2005-06, our predecessor department the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister ran the following advertising and marketing campaigns

Fire Safety Campaign

The external agencies were EURO RSCG for advertising and COI for public relations, partnership marketing and media buying. Total spend was £4.3 million.

Houses of Multiple Occupancy

The external agencies were EURO RSCG for advertising; Amazon for public relations and publicity; Carat for media planning; and COI for media buying. Total spend was £1.4 million.

Figures for advertising and marketing campaigns in the financial year 2006-07 were published in the Department's Annual Report on 17 May 2007, which is available in the Libraries of the House.

Figures for external agencies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Government policies and programmes affect the lives of millions of people and may save lives, as with Fire Safety. They must be communicated effectively to meet our duty to inform and in order for policies to be successful. There are strict rules to ensure value for money on Government advertising.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in her Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145969]

Angela E. Smith: In each of the last three years the percentage of sick leave which is recorded as stress related is; 2006-07: 8.7 per cent., 2005-06: 8.6 per cent., 2004-05: 8.2 per cent.

Our staff handbook provides information for staff and managers on stress in the workplace. The Department offers counselling and support services to staff and guidance to managers on minimising stress.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of her Department's employee surveys for (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [142028]

Angela E. Smith: Staff surveys are valuable tools used by Departments to help them improve performance. The results of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister 2005 and 2006 surveys are available on the Civil Service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/news/staff_survey/index.asp

Fire Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions (a) retained appliances have been off the run due to lack of staffing and (b) other appliances have then been mobilised as a result for each fire authority in each of the last five years. [146155]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of all valid operational guidance issued to fire and rescue authorities. [146156]

Angela E. Smith: The Department is currently in the process of reviewing all operational guidance issued to the fire and rescue service. As it is likely that this project will result in the review, re-issue or withdrawal of some of the considerable body of existing guidance, it is my view that placing all operational guidance in the Library now would not be a good use of resources. Recently issued Operational Guidance for the Fire and Rescue Service is available on the Communities and Local Government website, and a substantial proportion of older guidance such as Fire and Rescue Service Manuals is available from the Stationery Office. In the medium term, I would see guidance being made available electronically and, as this is of an operational nature, I have no plans to place this in the Library.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Centre of Excellence for the Fire Service will be created; and what consultation her Department has held with the Fire Brigades Union on the matter. [146157]

Angela E. Smith: Proposals for a Centre of Excellence for the Fire and Rescue Service are being developed with a view to consultation in the autumn. A decision on whether to create a new body will be taken following consultation. All the Fire and Rescue Service trade unions, including the Fire Brigades Union are represented on the Sounding Board established by the Fire and Rescue Service Practitioners Forum to consider Centre of Excellence proposals.

Fire Services: Standards

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government from what point response times are measured for the fire service in each regional control centre area. [146154]

Angela E. Smith: The Regional Control Centre network will record response times from the point at which the public telecommunications operator routes a call to the regional control centres.

Housing: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings were (a) constructed for private sale, (b) built by housing associations and (c) built by local authorities in each London borough in each of the last three years. [145491]

Yvette Cooper: Information on new house building activity by tenure, in London, between 2004-05 and 2006-07 is set out in the following tables. The figures on total and local authority dwellings are as reported from building control inspections by local authorities and the National Housebuilding Council. The figures on registered social landlords (RSLs) are based on information from the Housing Corporation and refer to new social rent only and exclude acquisitions and intermediate (e.g. low cost home ownership) housing.

The two sources are not directly comparable which means that timing differences may result in the RSL dwellings exceeding the total dwellings for some years in particular authorities.

Local Government

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by (a) local authorities in England and (b) City of York council on employing staff, including education staff, in (i) 2002-03 and (ii) 2005-06; and what the percentage change was in expenditure on staff over that period. [106478]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is listed in the following table.

	Employee expenditure[1]
	2002-03 (£ billion)	2005-06 (£ billion)	Between 2002-03 and 2005-06[2] (Percentage change)
City of York council	0.106	0.139	31.1
England	44.345	55.515	25.2

[1] Total expenditure on employees as reported by authorities to Communities and Local Government on revenue outturn (RO) forms. This includes all direct and indirect employee expenses and contributions to employee-related provisions, including national insurance contributions, pensions and employee related expenses.

[2] Comparisons across years may not be valid due to changes in the method of reporting the information. In particular, the outturn data for 2002-03 have been calculated on a non-FRS (financial reporting standard) 17 basis whilst the outturn data for 2005-06 have been calculated on an FRS 17 basis. Hence, figures for the different years may not be directly comparable.

Local Government Finance

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority population estimates used in the calculations to inform the 2007-08 local government funding settlement have been more than 5,000 people lower than official estimates of the population in those authorities. [109360]

Mr. Woolas: The 2007-08 Settlement uses population projections data for 2007 produced by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) as the key driver of population in the settlement calculations. For all data used in settlement calculations we have to use the best data available on a consistent basis for all authorities that are available at the time of making the settlement. At the time of making the multi-year settlements for 2006-07 and 2007-08, the best population projections data available were the 2003-based sub-national population projections produced by the ONS. These data were published on 25 November 2004.

The most recently published ONS mid-year population estimates are those for mid-2005, published on 24 August 2006.

Comparing the two sets of data: 12 local authorities, five police authorities and four fire and rescue authorities have their 2003-based projected population data for 2007 5,000 or more lower than their mid-2005 population estimate.

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities met the deadline of 31 May 2007 to apply for directions to capitalise equal pay back pay from 2007-08. [146190]

Local Government Finance: Swindon

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much was provided in grants from central Government to Swindon borough council in 2006-07; [131821]

(2) how much she expects to be provided in grants from central Government to Swindon borough council in 2007-08. [131851]

Mr. Woolas: The amount of Government grant Swindon borough council budgeted to receive in 2006-07 and is budgeting to receive in 2007-08 is tabled as follows.

	Revenue support grant	Redistributed non-domestic rates	Specific and special grants inside aggregate external finance
2006-07[1]	7,190	37,248	134,276
2007-08[2]	6,526	38,885	n/a

Budget estimates for specific and special grants inside aggregate external finance in 2007-08 are not yet available.

Figures exclude grants outside aggregate external finance (i.e. where funding is not for the authority's core services, but is passed to a third party; for example, as in the case of mandatory student awards), capital grants, funding for the local authority's housing management responsibilities and those grant programmes (such as European funding) where the authority is simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

Local Government: Reform

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the impact on coterminosity of boundaries between primary care trusts and local government areas will be a criterion for assessing new local government structure proposals. [146152]

Mr. Woolas: The criteria for assessing councils' unitary proposals were set out in the "Invitations to councils in England" published in October 2006.

Local Government: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many best value performance indicators in total have been required of local authorities in each year since the introduction of Best Value. [145522]

Mr. Woolas: Best Value Performance Indicators (BVPIs) were introduced in 2000-01. Details of the number of BVPIs that have been set for local authorities in each year since then are set out in the table.

	Number
2000-01	189
2002-03	93

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many shire counties moved to a rating for excellent in the comprehensive performance assessment by the Audit Commission in the last 12 months; and if she will list them. [146150]

Mr. Woolas: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 27 June 2007:

Your parliamentary question on how many shire counties moved to a rating for excellent in the comprehensive performance assessment by the Audit Commission in the last 12 months and your request to list them has been passed to me for reply.

Under section 99 of the Local Government Act 2003 the Audit Commission has a duty, from time to time, to report on its findings and categorise English local authorities according to their performance in exercising their functions. CPA is the tool that the Commission uses to fulfil this duty.

In 2005 the Audit Commission revised the CPA framework in response to changes in the operational and regulatory environment, rising public expectations, and the performance of local government itself. Because the framework from 2005 is both a harder and a different test the CPA categories were renamed to reflect this change. As a result single tier and county councils are no longer categorised as excellent, good, fair, weak or poor. The five new categories introduced from 2005 were 4 stars (reflecting the highest category of performance), 3 stars, 2 stars, 1 star and 0 stars.

National CPA reporting for single tier and county councils last took place in February 2007. At the time of reporting there were eight county councils that improved their overall CPA category to 4 star. These councils were:

(a) Cheshire

(b) Dorset

(c) Norfolk

(d) North Yorkshire

(e) Oxfordshire

(f) Suffolk

(g) West Sussex

(h) Wiltshire

Following national reporting in February 2007, Somerset County Council was re-categorised as 4 star as part of the Audit Commission's quarterly reporting arrangements in March 2007 following a corporate assessment.

Further information about the CPA framework and scores is available at www.audit-commission.gov.uk/cpa.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Non-Domestic Rates

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the internal guidance or training manual produced by the Valuation Office Agency for its staff on undertaking assessment casework for business rates valuations. [143670]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1596-97W.

Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the funding for the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund is additional funding that was not previously granted to local authorities in previous years through other named funds. [141757]

Ruth Kelly: The £6 million funding for the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund was sourced from the New Ventures Fund.

Travellers

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which company is making good the work on the Travellers' site at Ecton Lane following the completion of the refurbishment contract. [146003]

Meg Munn: Westgate Technical Services Ltd. have been issued with a comprehensive schedule of the remedial works needed to achieve the requirements set out in the contract specification. They have been asked to complete these works within three weeks. Work on perimeter fencing and floodlighting is being undertaken by separate contractors.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who is responsible for the management of the Ecton Lane Travellers' site. [146004]

Meg Munn: Northampton borough council own and are ultimately responsible for the Ecton Lane Travellers' site.

The day to day management of the site was undertaken by Westgate Management Services Ltd. until 13 April 2007. I understand that the Gypsy Council was awarded a short term contract for the day to day management of the site from 1 May 2007, while long-term arrangements are put in place.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date the Valuation Office Agency's electronic image management bespoke application went live for operational use. [111963]

Mr. Woolas: The VOA's existing electronic image management system "Digital Photography" was implemented in 2004.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total estimated expenditure has been by the Valuation Office Agency on its automated valuation model on (a) consultancy costs, (b) payments to CapGemini and CLT, (c) hardware costs, (d) staffing costs and (e) other costs. [111966]

Mr. Woolas: Prior to postponement of the council tax revaluation in England, announced in September 2005, expenditure on developing the Valuation Office Agency's (VOA's) automated valuation model (AVM) amounted to some £10 million. Since that time approximately £3.2 million has been spent by the VOA on consultancy and IT development, hardware and support costs associated with securing the investment in the AVM. This will allow the AVM to be used as a support for the Agency's day-to-day work, including maintenance of council tax valuation lists. Staffing costs since postponement associated with developing and maintaining the AVM are not recorded separately.

Walsall Metropolitan Borough Council: Dismissal

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ensure that the District Auditor's report on the dismissal by Walsall Metropolitan Borough Council of Peter Francis and related matters is published by the end of June 2007; and if she will make a statement. [145187]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 25 June 2007]: Publication of this report is a matter for the District Auditor. The Government will carry out a full assessment of the report at the earliest opportunity.

HEALTH

Cancer: Research

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding from the public purse was provided for cancer treatment research in each year since 1992. [145354]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not collect expenditure data at the level requested. The available information on total expenditure by the Department on cancer research is shown in the table. Details of individual projects supported in the national health services can be found on the national research register at www.dh.gov.uk/research.

1998-99	75.4
1999-2000	77.4
2000-01	83.8
2001-02	113.4
2002-03	124.1
2003-04	139.8

The Research Councils are also important funders of cancer research. The research councils are independent bodies funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation.

Since 2001, the major funders of cancer research in the United Kingdom, including the Department and the Medical Research Council, have been working in partnership to streamline cancer research in the UK for the benefit of cancer patients. This partnership, the National Cancer Research Institute (NCRI), has the role of maintaining strategic oversight of cancer research in the UK, identifying gaps and opportunities and co-ordinating the funding activities of the partner organisations.

The NCRI's most recent strategic analysis of the directly funded cancer research supported by Government and charities showed that, as at 1 April 2004, 19 per cent. of total funding was dedicated to supporting research on cancer treatment. The analysis forms part of the Institute's three-year progress report 2001-04 and is available at www.ncri.org.uk.

Cholesterol: Elderly

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received on the effects of cholesterol on the health of older people; and if she will make a statement. [146316]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not received any representations regarding the effects of cholesterol on the health of older people.

However, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is due to consult on draft recommendations on cardiovascular risk assessment and the modification of blood lipids (cholesterol) for the primary and secondary prevention of cardiovascular disease (CVD). The consultation will be open until 22 August 2007.

The draft guideline is expected to address the issue of identifying those most likely to be at higher risk of developing CVD. Age is one of the risk factors involved.

Community Health Services: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has for community health care services in Coventry. [145357]

Caroline Flint: Decisions about community health care services in Coventry need to be taken locally with the involvement of local people. However, we know from the listening exercise that preceded the "Our health, our care, our say" White Paper that the public want more local and convenient care closer to home even where that means changes to local hospital services.

Diabetes

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) adults and (b) children were diagnosed with diabetes, broken down by type, in each year since 1997. [146221]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the number of children and adults with diabetes is not available in the exact form requested. The following information is available for diagnosed diabetes. The total number of patients aged 17 and over on practice registers in England who have an appropriate diabetes diagnosis in 2004-05 was 1.77 million people (Source: 2004-05 Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) data published by the Information Centre for health and social care.) This is the first year of data from this source.

The total number of patients aged 17 and over on practice registers in England who have an appropriate diabetes diagnosis in 2005-06 was 1.89 million people. (Source: 2005-06 QOF data published by the Information Centre for health and social care.)

It is estimated that over 90 per cent. of people with diabetes have type two diabetes.

Notes:

The difference between 1.77 million in 2004-05 and 1.89 million in 2005-06 does not mean that extra 0.12 million patients were diagnosed within those 12 months. The figures are a function of diagnosis recording on practice registers, and therefore were subject to data quality review in that period, as the QOF was being established.

Patients with diabetes aged under 17 are not included because they are regarded as receiving their diabetes management in the secondary care sector.

Health Professions: Employment

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) midwives, (b) doctors, (c) nurses, (d) occupational therapists and (e) physiotherapists who have graduated or completed their training since May 2006 have (i) obtained and (ii) not obtained NHS jobs in the field in which they trained in each English region. [146011]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Health Services: Essex

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the most recent figures are for the financial position of (a) the Mid Essex Hospital Trust and (b) the Mid Essex primary care trust; [145930]

(2) when she expects (a) the Mid Essex Hospital Trust and (b) the Mid Essex primary care trust to reach a break-even financial position. [145931]

Andy Burnham: At quarter four 2006-07 Mid Essex National Health Service Hospital Trust had a provisional outturn deficit of £1.3 million and Mid Essex primary care trust (PCT) had a provisional outturn deficit of £17.8 million.

Although the NHS overall delivered a net surplus of £510 million in 2006-07, we recognise that a small number of organisations continue to face significant financial challenges.

Financial recovery is only possible if clinicians and managers work together to deliver savings, increase efficiency and reduce deficits. Despite financial difficulties, all parts of the NHS are consistently delivering for patients against national priorities.

We have received financial plans for 2007-08 and these are now subject to final validation and sign-off with the NHS. At this stage, Mid Essex PCT is aiming to reach break-even position in this current financial year and Mid Essex NHS Hospital Trust aiming to recover its break-even duty by 2009.

Health Services: Prisons

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding she provided for prison healthcare in each of the last three years. [145355]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Over the last three years, the amount spent on medical and psychiatric care for prisoners in England has increased as follows:

Expenditure on prison healthcare in England 2004-05 to 2006-07[1]

2006-07	[2]189,319,000

[1] The figures quoted include amount spend on mental health in-reach services in both publicly and privately managed prisons. [2] The figure for 2006-07 also includes an amount to cover the cost of implementing Agenda for Change, backdated to October 2004, for prison healthcare staff who have transferred to the NHS. Source: Department of Health Notes:

The 2007-08 allocation currently stands at £198,999,000. This figure will increase based on additional funding from the National Offender Management Service to reflect in-year changes in prison capacity.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what level of access to (a) prescription medicines and (b) psychiatric care prisoners have. [145356]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government are committed to providing a health service to prisoners that is equivalent in quality and range to that in the wider community. Prisoners are entitled to the same range and quality of services provided and commissioned by the national health service as is received by the general public.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) which host prisons became responsible for commissioning services to meet the healthcare needs of prisoners in April 2006.

In each prison, a patient focused, primary care based pharmacy service, based on identified need, should be provided to prisoners as recommended in the document 'A Pharmacy Service for Prisoners' (Department of Health 2003). Copies have been placed in the Library, and are available on the Department's website.

Similarly, for mental health services, all prisoners receive health screening on reception into prison. Prisoners who are identified as needing further psychiatric help can be referred to a mental health in-reach team, who will arrange further assessment and follow up referral.

Investment in prison mental health in-reach services has been steadily increasing, with nearly £20 million invested in these services each year since 2004-05, and 360 whole time equivalent staff employed, more than the initial commitment in the NHS Plan to create 300 posts.

People who are mentally too ill to remain in prison should be transferred to hospital. We have introduced tighter monitoring to identify prisoners waiting an unacceptably long period for transfer to hospital, and a protocol was issued to prisons and primary care trusts in October 2005 setting out what must be done when a prisoner has been waiting for a hospital place for more than three months following acceptance by the NHS.

These measures have helped bring about positive results. In 2006, 33 per cent. more prisoners, with mental illness too severe for prison, were transferred to hospital than in 2002—up to 961 from 723. There has been a significant decrease in the number of people waiting over 12 weeks for a transfer—in the quarter ending March 2007, 40 prisoners were waiting, down from 51 in the same quarter in 2005.

Heart Diseases: Health Education

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the trainers proposed in the 2004 White Paper, Choosing Health, Making Healthy Choices Easier, will be trained to give advice on lifestyle changes and minimising the risks of cardiovascular disease; and if she will make a statement. [146117]

Caroline Flint: Health trainers are trained to meet a mandatory set of core competences. Skills for Health has worked with representatives from the British Psychological Society and for the Department to take forward the development of national competences for the role of health trainer.

The competences have been quality assured and approved as national occupational standards.

Health trainers focus on enabling people to change their behaviour in relation to a number of lifestyle factors such as smoking, reducing alcohol intake, physical exercise, healthy eating, all of which would help minimise the risk of cardiovascular disease.

Hospital Beds: Shrewsbury and Telford NHS Hospitals Trust

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds are available within the Shrewsbury and Telford NHS Hospital Trust; and if she will make a statement. [146206]

Andy Burnham: In 2005-06, the latest period for which data is available, there was an average daily number of 873 available beds provided by Shrewsbury and Telford Hospital NHS Trust. These consisted of beds open overnight and day only beds.

Infant Mortality

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many births took place at (a) Sussex County hospital, Brighton, (b) Worthing hospital, (c) St Richards hospital, Chichester, (d) the Conquest hospital, Hastings, (e) Eastbourne hospital and (f) Princess Royal, Haywards Heath in 2006; and what the peri-natal mortality rate was for children born at each of the above hospitals in each of the last three years. [145844]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 25 June 2007:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many births took place in 2006 in (a) Sussex County hospital, Brighton; (b) Worthing hospital; (c) St Richards Hospital, Chichester; (d) The Conquest hospital, Hastings; (e) Eastbourne hospital; and (f) Princess Royal hospital, Haywards Heath; and what the peri-natal mortality rate was for children born at each of the above hospitals. (145844)

Figures on live births in hospitals are available from birth registration information. The latest available data by place of birth are for 2005 and are shown in the following table .

Number of live births—2005

Sussex County Hospital, Brighton	3,142
Worthing Hospital	2,441
St Richards Hospital, Chichester	2,208
The Conquest Hospital, Hastings	1,539
Eastbourne Hospital	1,758
Princess Royal Hospital, Haywards Heath	2,122

The peri-natal mortality rate is defined as stillbirths and deaths aged under one week per 1,000 live and stillbirths. Peri-natal mortality rates by hospital are not available for reasons of confidentiality of stillbirth information.

Leukaemia: Drugs

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to assess Dasatinib for the treatment of chronic lymphoblastic leukaemia (a) in the first instance and (b) after prior therapy with Imatinib; how many representations she has received on Dasatinib; and if she will make a statement. [145995]

Caroline Flint: Dasatinib is licensed for the treatment of adults with chronic, accelerated or blast phase chronic myeloid leukaemia (CML) with resistance or intolerance to prior therapy including Imatinib. Dasatinib is also licensed for the treatment of adults with acute lymphoblastic leukaemia and lymphoid blast CML with resistance or intolerance to prior therapy. The Department has no plans to commission a further assessment of Dasatinib at this time.

It will be for primary care trusts at a local level to decide whether to make this drug available to patients who might benefit from it.

The Department has received a number of representations about Dasatinib in the form of written correspondence and parliamentary questions.

Maternity Services: East Sussex

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future of maternity services at the Conquest hospital in East Sussex. [145800]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for the local national health service, in partnership with strategic health authorities and other local stakeholders, to plan, develop and improve services. Local solutions will meet the needs of local patients and communities. However, any proposed changes to services will only happen after full public consultation with local people.

NHS Foundation Trusts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost has been of establishing an NHS hospital as a foundation trust. [146252]

Andy Burnham: Information on the cost of a national health service trust preparing an application for NHS foundation trust (NHSFT) status is not held centrally, as costs will vary from trust to trust.

The decision on when to apply for foundation status is one which is taken locally. Applicant trusts are responsible for meeting the costs associated with their application and establishment as a NHSFT. The continued rollout of NHSFTs provides for the sharing of information and best practice between applicants and NHSFTs. The Department also continues to provide a centrally provided programme of support.

Obesity

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) adults and (b) children were classed as clinically obese, broken down by (i) strategic health authority and (ii) primary care trust in each year since 1997. [146119]

Caroline Flint: The information is not available in the format requested. Data on adult obesity prevalence by strategic health authority (SHA) is collected in the Health Survey for England (HSE). For adults, we can provide age standardised data for the years 1997-99 to 2000-02, and observed values for 2002-04. Age-standardised figures take account of the age profile of the population living in an area, making for more reliable comparisons between areas, whereas observed values do not. This information is given in Table 1, which has been placed in the Library.

Estimates of prevalence of obesity amongst adults based on 2000-02 data by primary care organisation (PCO) are also available. PCO represent both primary care trusts (PCTs), and care trusts. These estimates represent the prevalence of obesity for any PCO based on the population characteristics of that area. The estimates have been generated using a model-based method that combined individual-level data from the Health Survey for England (HSE) with area-level measures of population characteristics from the 2001 Census and from administrative datasets. The estimates of prevalence along with associated confidence intervals by PCO are provided in Table 2, which has been placed in the Library.

Data on obesity prevalence among children is not available by SHA or PCT. However, data on obesity prevalence by Government Office Region is available from the HSE and we are able to provide data for 2002-04 combined. This information is given in Table 3, which has been placed in the Library.

Psychology: Waiting Lists

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Government have set waiting times for access to psychological therapies on the NHS. [142109]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Currently no waiting times targets for access to psychological therapies have been set by the Department. The two Improving Access to Psychological Therapy (IAPT) demonstration sites have made significant progress in reducing local waiting times and improving access to effective services. In addition, 10 new IAPT pathfinder sites are soon to be developed to increase access to treatment. These sites will test out proposed standards including appropriate access times for different stages of treatment as detailed in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's guidelines.

Strokes: Rehabilitation

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to increase funding allocated to research into the long-term care and rehabilitation of people who have had a stroke; and if she will make a statement. [146064]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Implementation of the Department's research strategy "Best Research for Best Health" will result in an expansion of our research programmes and in significant new funding opportunities for health research. In particular, the Oxford and Newcastle Biomedical Research Centres, formed this year, propose to undertake research on stroke for which a five year centrally funded budget of some £5 million has been approved. Other biomedical research centres will undertake research on stroke as part of broader-based research themes.

In addition, the Department's National Institute for Health Research has recently awarded five stroke-related programme grants with a total value of £7 million, and is investing £20 million over five years in the UK Stroke Research Network set up in 2005. The network is supporting clinical trials and other well designed studies conducted by public and private sector funders.

Tuberculosis: Immigrants

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are made for the screening for tuberculosis of immigrants arriving (a) legally and (b) illegally if apprehended at the Port of Dover. [136735]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 May 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

Immigrants arriving at Dover will already have passed through the juxtaposed border control in Continental Europe. If the arriving passengers are residents of a country where pre-entry screening is required then they will already have been screened for tuberculosis.

Illegal entrants who are apprehended at Dover may be detained at a police station and would be referred for a medical examination if necessary. If detained at an immigration removal centre they are required under the Detention Centre Rules 2001 to be given a medical examination within 24 hours of admission subject to their consent.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since establishment; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million. [146324]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 23 October 2006, Official Report, column 1626W.

Departments: Home Working

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many people in his Department have been allowed to work from home for part of the week in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement on his Department's policy on home working. [143886]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Staff in my Office are seconded from the Department for Communities and Local Government, and I therefore refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, my hon. Friend the Member for Basildon (Angela E. Smith) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2099W.

Departments: Joint Ministerial Committee

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1671W, on what date the Deputy Prime Minister last attended a meeting of the Joint Ministerial Committee. [145474]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I last attended a meeting of the Joint Ministerial Committee on Europe (JMC(E)) in July 2005.

Departments: Manpower

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many people granted (a) temporary part-time, (b) temporary full-time, (c) permanent part-time and (d) permanent full-time contracts of employment in his Department since its establishment were (i) male, (ii) female, (iii) registered disabled and (iv) aged 55 years or over; [143893]

(2) what percentage of staff in his Department are (a) male, (b) female, (c) registered disabled and (d) aged 55 or over. [143910]

The Deputy Prime Minister: As stated in the departmental Annual Report, copies of which are available in the Library of the House, my Office employed 19.8 full-time equivalent staff. Of these, 40 per cent. were female and 60 per cent. were male. Where the information requested results in figures of less than five this is not released in order to protect the privacy of individuals.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each year since establishment. [145972]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 536W.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he will reply to the letter to him from Buckinghamshire county council of 22 March 2006, which enclosed a petition from residents of Aylesbury and the Bypass Aylesbury Now Group, and which was followed up by a letter to his office from Buckinghamshire county council, dated 26 April 2007. [142839]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The issues raised in the correspondence were discussed when my noble Friend Baroness Andrews met with representatives of the local authority and others on 20 April 2006. We have no record of the letter dated 26 April 2007.

West Indies

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the cost to the public purse was of his recent trip to the West Indies. [145099]

The Deputy Prime Minister: This Government publish an annual list of Cabinet Ministers' travel overseas costing over £500, along with the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2007-08 will be published as soon as it is ready at the end of the financial year.

All travel is in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Business Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration the Valuation Office Agency and her Department have given to the merits of moving to annual revaluations for business rates. [114754]

Mr. Woolas: Ministers have not considered this issue.

Fire Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects regional directors to be appointed for each of the regional control centres; and what the target date is for the establishment of each regional control centre company under the Fire Control Project. [146737]

Angela E. Smith: Each company must have its directors appointed prior to being formally incorporated by Companies House. The appointment of the company directors is for Fire and Rescue Authorities in each region.

The Fire and Rescue Service National Framework 2006-08 set out target dates for the establishment of local authority controlled companies to operate regional control centres. These were by 1 August 2006 in the South West, East Midlands and North East; by 1 January 2007 in the West Midlands, North West and South East; and by 1 May 2007 in Yorkshire and Humberside and the East of England.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the staffing model to be produced for each of the regional control centre companies; what change in job numbers she expects to result from the transition to regional control centres; and how many temporary staff are currently employed in each region. [146738]

Angela E. Smith: The staff numbers contained within the latest version of the business case, published on 14 June, are outlined in the following table, together with current control room staffing levels. The numbers include control room operators as well as data and gazetteer specialists and operational managers. The actual number of staff employed by each regional control centre (RCC) will be for the RCC company to determine.

East Midlands	125	81
East of England	147	85
London	112	114
North West	200	103
North East	107	76
South East	266	93
South West	155	85
West Midlands	150	91
Yorks and Humb	143	86
Total	1,405	814

All numbers are in terms of full time equivalents. For staff who are unlikely to be able to transfer to an RCC, FRAs have been encouraged to find alternative jobs, and where appropriate, to provide retraining. Costs of redeployment and retraining will be borne by the Department, within reason. The Department seeks to avoid compulsory redundancies where possible.

The staffing model assumptions are being reviewed. The indicative staff numbers for each regional control centre resulting from this review will be made available by the end of October 2007.

We do not have information on numbers of temporary staff employed within each region.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place the business case for the Fire Control Project in the Library. [146739]

Angela E. Smith: Version 1.0 of the FiReControl Project's Full Business Case was sent to Fire and Rescue Authorities on 8 June 2007. It was made available on the project's website on 11 June. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Fire Services: Radio

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on the specification of the Firelink project; and what recent consultation she has held with relevant staff and trade unions. [145998]

Angela E. Smith: The specification of the Firelink project was determined in advance of the contract being awarded in March 2006, and installation of the infrastructure for Firelink has commenced. Representative bodies sit on the Firelink Stakeholder Group which last met on 29 March 2007.

Housing

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of households in the UK living in (a) boats, (b) caravans or camper vans, (c) tents and (d) makeshift accommodation; and if she will make a statement. [146216]

Meg Munn: Information is not held centrally identifying households in these categories.

Counts of Gypsy and Traveller caravans in England are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/pub/586/TableICountofGypsyandTravellercaravansonl8January2007Lastfivecounts_idl153586.xls

http://new.wales.gov.uk/topics/statistics/headlines/housing-2007/hdw200704111/?lang=en

The 2001 Census identified 93,844 households in England and Wales living in a caravan or other mobile or temporary structure, in an unshared dwelling.

Non-Domestic Rates: Agriculture

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 129W, on non-domestic rates: agriculture, whether she plans to review the exemption from business rates for agricultural land and agricultural buildings under Schedule 5 of the Local Government Finance Act 1988. [137436]

Mr. Woolas: The exemption of agricultural land and buildings will be considered as part of the wider review of non-domestic rate reliefs and exemptions announced by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his Budget statement on 21 March.

Tax Rates and Bands: Agriculture

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government has to re-rate agricultural land and buildings. [141644]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for the Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) on 28 June 2007, Official Report, (PQ 137436).

Tetra: Health Hazards

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research her Department has carried out into the potential long-term health implications of using (a) hand-held radio schemes using the Tetra system and (b) vehicles fitted with Tetra masts and radios. [145999]

Angela E. Smith: Government commissioned a comprehensive programme of research following the Advisory Group on Non-Ionising Radiation report published in July 2001. The main conclusion of this research is that Tetra technology is unlikely to present a risk to health. Imperial College is continuing with a long-term health monitoring study of police users of Tetra technology.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is commissioning work to consider if any aspects of the introduction of Tetra in a Fire and Rescue Service environment need further consideration.

Village Halls: Conservation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what support she plans to make available for the protection and enhancement of village halls following her recent announcement on community assets. [139289]

Mr. Woolas: The independent Quirk Review of community management and ownership of public assets, published by The Department for Communities and Local Government on 15 May, was primarily concerned with removing barriers to the transfer of surplus public assets to communities.

The majority of village halls are in fact already in the management or ownership of community-led committees, and while recognising the enormous contribution they make to the well-being of their communities, the Government believe that their primary sources of revenue support should be their users and other local funding sources.

Continuing practical advice and help is available to village hall management committees from Village Hall Advisors employed by Rural Community Councils, which are supported through the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs' Rural Social and Community Programme.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Finance

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) funded organisations and (b) project to project grants will be affected by the reduction in Arts Council England forecast funding. [146314]

Mr. Lammy: No decision has yet been taken by Arts Council England on its future lottery budgets.

Decisions about grant in aid for Arts Council England will be taken as part of the comprehensive spending review later this year.

Gaming Machines: Orders and Regulations

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the summary of responses to the consultation on the section 240 machine regulations under the Gambling Act 2005 will be published; and when the regulations will be laid. [146253]

Mr. Caborn: The Gaming Machine (Circumstances of Use) Regulations to be made under section 240 of the Gambling Act 2005 will be laid in Parliament in August 2007. The regulatory impact assessment which will accompany the regulations will include a summary of responses to the consultation and will be published on the Department's website www.culture.gov.uk when the regulations are laid.

Licensing: Fees and Charges

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she plans to publish a response to the Report of the Independent Licensing Fees Review Panel; and if she will make a statement. [146070]

Mr. Lammy: The question of fee levels and the recovery of any local authority overspend is a matter which needs to be agreed with other Government colleagues. We are currently assessing the implications of all the panel's detailed conclusions and recommendations and hope to publish a response shortly.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether an 80,000 seat stadium at the Olympic Park is required in order to fulfil the London 2012 host city contract. [146071]

Mr. Caborn: Yes. The commitment made to the International Olympic Committee (IOC) in the London 2012 Candidate File was for the Stadium to have an 80,000 seat capacity during the games.

Tourism

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with devolved authorities on development of a single UK tourism strategy. [146204]

Mr. Lammy: Tourism is a devolved matter. Discussions take place with all tourism partners to co-ordinate strategies. The 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games present great opportunities for all tourism bodies in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

DCMS will also shortly publish a Tourism Strategy for the 2012 Games. The devolved Administrations of Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland, and their national tourism bodies, were consulted in developing the Strategy.

The Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly are also represented on the Ministerial Advisory Group which has, since early 2006, helped to shape the emerging strategic approach.

DEFENCE

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much depleted uranium ammunition has been used by British forces in (a) Operation Telic and (b) Operation Herrick since 2003. [145952]

Des Browne: Approximately 1.9 tonnes of depleted uranium ammunition was expended by UK forces in the early phases of Operation Telic in 2003. There has been no depleted uranium ammunition used in Operation Telic since this time. No depleted uranium ammunition has been used by UK forces in Operation Herrick since 2003.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Charities: Public Expenditure

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much Government funding was allocated to third sector organisations for the delivery of public services in (a) education and (b) health in each year since 2005. [138508]

Hilary Armstrong: For 2005 and later years, no figures are currently available. Figures for 2004-05 are currently being compiled on expenditure by central Government Departments allocated to the third sector for the delivery of public services. These figures will be made available later this year.

Figures for 2003-04 indicate that in education, spending allocated to the third sector for the delivery of education services by central Government Departments amounted to £221 million and that allocated by local government amounted to £1,454 million.

Figures for 2003-04 indicate that spending on health-related activity in the third sector by central Government Departments amounted to £26 million. These figures do not include spending by the national health service. A separate estimate, produced externally for the Department of Health, suggested that in 2004-05 third sector organisations in England received around £1.1 billion from the NHS, including through trusts and PCTs, for the delivery of health care services.

Treaties: USA

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will place in the Library a copy of the recently announced UK-US Defence Trade Co-operation Treaty. [146080]

Hilary Armstrong: In accordance with the usual procedures, a copy of the Treaty will be published as a Command Paper and laid with an accompanying Explanatory Memorandum before both Houses of Parliament. Copies of the Command Paper will be laid in the Votes and Proceedings Office, the Vote Office and with the Clerk of the Parliaments at the House of Lords.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Free Nursery Places

10. Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to increase the entitlement of three and four-year-olds to free nursery provision. [146028]

Beverley Hughes: We remain committed to extending the free early education entitlement for three and four-year-olds. It will increase from 12 and a half to 15 hours per week for 38 weeks of the year by 2010. This increase will further improve the life chances of all children and will help parents to balance work and family life more easily. We recognise that there will be transitional issues for some providers. This is why we are rolling out the extended entitlement gradually. 20 pathfinder local authorities began delivering the extended entitlement in April 2007.

Higher Education Admissions

12. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent assessment he has made of trends in higher education admissions; and if he will make a statement. [146030]

Bill Rammell: The latest figures published by the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) show that students from England applying for entry in 2007 are up by 6 per cent. compared to last year. They have also exceeded the large increase in 2005, meaning we are now seeing the largest ever numbers applying for higher education at this point in the application cycle. The small downturn we saw last year, which we always anticipated, has been strongly reversed this year. I am also pleased to see that there has been a slight increase in the proportion of applicants from the lower socio-economic groups. These highest-ever figures show that tuition fees are not putting students off applying to university as many predicted. The critics of the new system are being proved emphatically wrong.

Educational Achievement

13. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent representations he has received on the influence of ethnicity and social class on educational achievement; and if he will make a statement. [146031]

Jim Knight: While no specific representations have been made to the Department, we are aware of a number of recent publications, including the report from the Joseph Rowntree Foundation and the Sutton Trust's publication, which have highlighted social class influences on educational achievement.

To improve the chances of children from disadvantaged backgrounds we are investing over £1 billion to support personalised learning, trialling one-to-one tuition for pupils in maths and English and building academies in areas of real disadvantage.

Trade Union Learning

14. Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the role of trade union learning representatives in promoting lifelong learning. [146032]

Phil Hope: More than 18,000 union learning representatives have been trained over the last few years. Evaluations have shown that they are very effective at promoting and encouraging training and development in the workplace, particularly among low skilled workers and those with literacy and numeracy difficulties. Union learning representatives have encouraged over 400,000 employees—150,000 employees in the last year alone—to get back into learning.

Looked-after Children

15. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures the Government plan to take to improve the outcomes for children in care. [146033]

Alan Johnson: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave earlier today.

PFI Programme

16. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he has made an evaluation of the private finance initiative programme for school buildings. [146034]

Jim Knight: In 2005, we commissioned Partnerships UK to review operational schools private finance initiative contracts. Overall, this review was positive with, on balance, contracts operating successfully across most of their provision.

The review highlighted some difficulties and made recommendations, all of which were accepted and most of which had already been addressed. We continue to work with Partnerships UK and HM Treasury to ensure that private finance initiative contracts provide good service and value for money.

Building Schools for the Future

17. Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effects of the Building Schools for the Future programme. [146035]

Jim Knight: Following procurement through the Official Journal of the European Union, in 2006 we placed a contract with PricewaterhouseCoopers to evaluate the impact of Building Schools for the Future investment on educational achievement and to learn early lessons to inform the development of the programme. The contract is for three years, and may be extended to support a longitudinal evaluation of the longer term impact. We aim to publish periodic reports from this evaluation.

Adult Education

18. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on adult education. [146036]

Phil Hope: We are spending more on adult learning than ever before, with over £3 billion in 2007-08 invested through the LSC.

Our priority is to help low skilled adults, with 1 million more adults now with essential employability skills and more than 1.6 million having gained Skills for Life qualifications. Lord Leitch's Review recommended an ambition that the UK becomes world class in skills by 2020. We accept that ambition and will publish our response shortly.

Overseas Trained Teachers

19. Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of overseas trained teachers who will not have gained qualified teacher status in England before September. [146037]

Jim Knight: This information is not collected centrally.

Child Employment

20. Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of legislation on child employment and child performances. [146038]

Beverley Hughes: We have not carried out a recent assessment of legislation on the employment of children. The Government continue to focus at all times on how to deliver the outcomes we want to see for all our children, as expressed in our 'Every Child Matters' programme. Up-to-date Government guidance on child employment will be issued within the next year.

Adult Education: Liverpool

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision of adult education in Liverpool. [146063]

Phil Hope: We have increased investment in further education by 48 per cent. in real terms between 1997-98 and 2005-06. Spending on adult learning will continue to increase with over £3 billion in 2007-08, up 7 per cent. on 2005-06.

Our funding priorities have been clearly set out in the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) 'Annual Statement of Priorities—Raising our Game' for 2007-08 (www.lsc.gov.uk/Aboutus/LSCStrategy/AnnualStatementofPriorities/).

In Liverpool, as elsewhere in England, we are focusing public funding on helping those who need it most. This prioritises those without the basic and Level 2 skills for employment and further progression in learning while protecting provision for those with learning difficulties and disabilities as well as community learning. We will also develop new progression pathways that focus explicitly on the skills and learning needed for progression from Entry levels and Level 1 to a full Level 2 qualification. These local circumstances as well as the national priorities will be taken into account by the LSC when planning provision in consultation with local partners.

The Department does not hold information at local or regional levels. Mark Haysom, the Learning and Skills Council's chief executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information about adult education in Liverpool and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Library.

City Academies

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many academy schools he expects to be opened in the next 12 months. [146065]

Jim Knight: There are currently 47 open academies. We anticipate that a further 36 academies will open in the next 12 months.

Degrees

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of the additional student numbers (a) applied for and (b) awarded were for (i) foundation degrees and (ii) honours degrees, broken down by institution in each of the last five years. [146129]

Bill Rammell: The following table shows how additional student numbers were allocated by the Higher Education Funding Council for England for the period in question, analysed by type of degree studied for. The figures are in aggregate for the sector as a whole: allocations to each institution can only be provided at disproportionate cost. Figures showing applications for ASNs could also only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Education: Children In Care

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to improve the educational attainment by children in care. [146108]

Beverley Hughes: Our White Paper "Care Matters: Time for Change" sets out how we will improve the education of children in care. We are increasing support for children and young people in care across all children's services. Specific education proposals include: a £500 educational allowance for children in care at risk of falling behind at school; putting the 'designated teacher' on a statutory footing to improve the expertise in schools; appointing 'virtual school heads' to oversee their education; improving attendance and reducing exclusions; reducing mobility of school placements, particularly in the crucial years before GCSEs; and a bursary of a minimum of £2,000 for all children in care who go on to university.

Higher Education: Anti-semitism

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of universities' compliance with equality legislation, with particular reference to anti-semitism. [146160]

Bill Rammell: The Government have demonstrated their clear commitment to ensuring equality of opportunity in higher education and more broadly in British society. Universities as independent, autonomous bodies are responsible themselves for complying with legislation and fulfilling their statutory duties. Under the Race Relations Act 1976 (as amended by the Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000) university governing bodies are also responsible for assessing the impact of their policies on student and staff of different racial groups.

Higher Education: Israel

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Government have taken to make clear its opposition to an academic boycott of Israel. [146159]

Bill Rammell: We have made our position extremely clear on this issue in recent weeks—including my recent visit to Israel, when I spoke to senior Government Ministers, academics, students and the media. We fully support academic freedom and are firmly against any academic boycotts of Israel or Israeli academics. While I appreciate the independence of the UCU, I am very disappointed that the union has decided to pass a motion which encourages its members to consider boycotting Israeli academics and education institutions. I profoundly believe this does nothing to promote the Middle East peace process, in fact the reverse.

Home Education

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to ensure that all individuals involved in providing home education are qualified teachers. [146052]

Jim Knight: There are no plans to ensure that individuals providing home education are qualified teachers, as many home educators are parents teaching their own children.

Pre-school Education: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what funding was allocated to Sure Start, child care and early years in each of the last three financial years; [146317]

(2) what total funding for Sure Start, child care and early years will be in each of the next three financial years; [146318]

(3) what representations he has received on the implications of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review for Sure Start, child care and early years funding. [146319]

Beverley Hughes: The funding allocated to Sure Start, child care and early years in each of the last three financial years is shown in the table.

In addition, Government invest some £3 billion each year in the delivery of the free entitlement to nursery education for three and four-year-olds. Funding is provided to local authorities through the dedicated schools grant.

The Department received its CSR settlement for 2008-11 in the 2007 Budget. Announcements about specific allocations will be made over the coming months.

The Department has had many discussions with a wide range of stakeholders during preparations for and the run up to the Comprehensive Spending Review and will continue to do so as allocations are finalised.

Reading: Males

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are being taken to improve reading skills among teenage boys. [146493]

Jim Knight: Good reading skills are essential to improving chances of success for all young people. The literacy standards of all pupils have improved markedly over the past decade, but within this there remains a roughly constant gender gap: boys tend to read less than girls, and to achieve lower rates of literacy as measured by English tests.

The Boys into Books initiative which the Government launched last month allows every state-funded secondary school with boys on roll to select 20 free books from a new list created by the School Library Association; the take-up of this offer is already approaching two-thirds of all eligible schools. The Reading Champions initiative provides a range of ideas and resources to encourage boys to read more by using the motivational power of reading role models. Both initiatives support our wider programme to promote literacy, including the planned National Year of Reading in 2008.

Schools: Capital Investment

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been allocated to Warrington for capital expenditure in each year since 1997. [146261]

Jim Knight: Capital allocations to Warrington, in each year since it achieved unitary status, are set out in the following table:

	£ million
1998-99	3.7
1999-2000	4.7
2000-01	8.7
2002-03	10.0
2003-04	8.8
2005-06	9.8

The large allocation of £12.1 million in 2006-07 includes a safety valve basic need allocation of £3.7 million, for new pupil places.

Schools: Drugs

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to improve drugs education in schools. [146107]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools (DfES 2004)" outlines schools' responsibilities in this area and the issues to be covered in drug education across all of the four key stages. Ofsted tells us that the standard of drug education continues to improve.

However, the Government will continue their fight against drugs and intend to consult later this year on proposals for a new drug strategy to be introduced from 2008. Education will be considered as a fundamental part of this wider process.

Schools: Emergencies

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of procedures to evacuate pupils from school buildings in an emergency. [146217]

Jim Knight: We do not make such an assessment but schools must have contingency evacuation procedures in place for fire risks and we advise them to build on these for other emergencies such as floods. We also worked recently with the Cabinet Office Civil Contingencies Secretariat in the production of guidance on evacuation and shelter which includes information for schools, for whom we also maintain a website on emergency planning.

Schools: Intimidation

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are being taken to tackle homophobic bullying in schools. [146106]

Jim Knight: The Government believe there is no place for homophobic bullying in schools, and all our guidance on bullying makes this clear. Recognising that this can be a particularly difficult issue for many teachers to deal with, my Department has been working with Stonewall and Educational Action Challenging Homophobia (EACH) to prepare detailed guidance for schools on how to prevent and tackle homophobic bullying. This will be issued as part of our revised overarching guidance on bullying, "Safe to Learn: Embedding Anti-Bullying Work in Schools", which we aim to launch online in September.

Sports: Children

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Government are taking to increase levels of physical or sporting activity by children to help combat obesity. [146215]

Jim Knight: The National School Sport Strategy, jointly implemented by DCMS and DfES, is a key component of a multi-faceted, 'whole school' programme of addressing obesity. The 2005/06 school sport survey found that overall 80 per cent. of pupils participate in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport a week. This exceeded the target of 75 per cent. for 2006 and demonstrates a considerable increase from the estimated 25 per cent. in 2002. This target for 2008 rises to 85 per cent. By 2010 the ambition is to offer all children at least four hours of sport a week.

Furthermore, we are working with school sports partnerships to increase participation in physical activity by overweight and obese children.

Teachers: Science

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many biological sciences graduates who had an A in biology A level began teacher training in each of the last 10 years, broken down by class of degree; [146127]

(2) how many chemistry graduates who had an A at chemistry A level began teacher training in each of the last 10 years, broken down by class of degree; [146128]

(3) how many physics graduates who had gained an A at physics A level began teacher training in each of the last 10 years, broken down by class of degree. [146132]

Jim Knight: A level grades for post graduate trainees entering initial teacher training (ITT) are not collected centrally. Data relating to trainees first degree is collected as part of the TDA's performance profiles data.

Teenage Pregnancy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, if he will examine the relationship between trends in teenage pregnancy rates and trends in educational attainment over the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [145763]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2007]: The likelihood of teenage pregnancy is far higher among young women with poor educational attainment. 29 per cent. of girls leaving school at 16 without qualifications will have a birth under 18, and 12 per cent. an abortion under 18, compared with 1 per cent. and 4 per cent. respectively for girls leaving school at 17 or over. This association between teenage pregnancy and low attainment is evident even after accounting for the effects of deprivation. On average, among the 20 per cent. most deprived wards in England, those with poor levels of educational attainment (less than 40 per cent. of young women achieving 5 GCSE's A-C) have under 18 conception rates twice as high as similarly deprived wards with better levels of educational attainment (more than 60 per cent. of young women achieving 5 GCSE's A-C). Consequently, the teenage pregnancy strategy focuses on raising aspirations and attainment as well as on delaying first sex and better contraception use—giving young people the motivation as well as the means to prevent early pregnancy.

However, while there is a strong association between absolute teenage pregnancy and educational attainment rates, the association between changes in rates over time is less strong and more difficult to interpret. In large part, this is because teenage pregnancy and educational attainment rates are independently influenced by a wide range of factors. Accounting for how these factors impact on the relationship between changing teenage pregnancy and educational attainment rates is problematic as many are not captured by routinely collected statistics.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bovine Tuberculosis

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of whether bovine tuberculosis can be carried from farm to farm by people and animals walking across the land, with reference to the report of the Independent Scientific Group on Bovine Tuberculosis. [146310]

Mr. Bradshaw: Officials have assessed these risks and consider them to be low.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145974]

Barry Gardiner: The percentage of total sick absences taken by DEFRA staff for which stress was recorded as the reason for absence was as follows:

2005: 6.7 per cent.

2006: 5.3 per cent.

Information for 2004 is not available.

Floods: Kingston upon Hull

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the flood protection and water drainage infrastructure serving Kingston upon Hull and the surrounding area following the flooding that took place on 25 June. [146591]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement given by the Secretary of State on 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 763, in which he explained that it is too early to make a full assessment of the recent flooding but that there had been no reported structural failings of flood defences.

Packaging: Recycling

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the packaging recovery note system is monitored. [145803]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency monitors compliance of businesses obligated under the Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations via the packaging recovery note (PRN) system. All obligated businesses are required to provide the appropriate agency with a certificate of compliance for the previous year by 31 January, which confirms that a producer has complied with their recovery and recycling obligations. Copies of all PRNs acquired for that particular year should accompany the certificate of compliance.

The Agency may also, by notice in writing, require any person with producer responsibility obligations to maintain and supply records to the Agency within a specified time.

The Agency is required to provide a report at the end of each year, in respect of the following calendar year, setting out its proposed monitoring plan including in relation to monitoring it is required to carry out (under Regulation 31). This will include an indication of the minimum number of businesses which it proposes to monitor in the course of that year.

The recently established National Packaging Waste Database has been developed to simplify data submission under the regulations, aid national planning and assist the enforcement agencies to identify abuses and non-compliance.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason the packaging recovery note system is only applicable to companies that exceed an annual turnover of £2 million and whose packaging handling exceeds 50 tonnes per year. [145804]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations oblige businesses in the packaging chain which have an annual turnover of more than £2 million, and which handle more than 50 tonnes of packaging a year, to recover and recycle a specified amount of packaging waste. This amount is determined, in part, by the amount of packaging they handle. The packaging recovery note (PRN) system was established as the mechanism for businesses to provide evidence of compliance with these regulations.

Businesses with a lower annual turnover, or handling a lower tonnage of packaging, were excluded from the obligation in order to lessen the regulatory burden on small businesses.

VALPAK

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department monitors how VALPAK uses its licence fee income from the use of the Green Dot trademark; [145805]

(2) for what reasons the decision was taken to authorise VALPAK to charge a licence fee for the use of the Green Dot trademark; [145806]

(2) how his Department monitors the use of the Green Dot trademark to ensure that products bearing the trademark uphold the environmental obligations associated with the logo. [145807]

Mr. Bradshaw: Currently, the Green Dot Licensing Company (a subsidiary of Valpak) is vested with the task of managing the Green Dot trademark in the UK. The Green Dot Licensing Company administers Green Dot licences in the UK on behalf of the licence-holder, Pro-Europe, and this decision was made by Pro-Europe rather than the UK Government.

Valpak, as part of the agreement with Pro-Europe, is required to manage the Green Dot registered trademark according to English trademark laws. This includes the policing of its use, granting "User Agreements", ensuring the integrity of the mark is protected and that it is not used in a misleading fashion or in derogation of its meaning in any way.

Valpak operates the Green Dot Licensing Company on a non-profit making basis and charges a flat licence fee. The licence fee reflects Valpak's operating costs and these will depend on the number of Green Dot users; the more users, the lower the fee. The costs are purely operating costs which will be charged back to those companies using the Green Dot logo.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Kashmir: Human Rights

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will support the appointment of a special rapporteur with an ongoing mandate to publish regular and public reports on the human rights situation in Jammu and Kashmir and Azad Kashmir; and if she will make a statement. [146109]

Dr. Howells: The UK continues to call for an end to all external support for violence in Kashmir and an improvement in the human rights situation there. But it is not for us to intervene and prescribe a solution. That is for those parties directly involved to determine through dialogue. We hope that the dialogue process between India and Pakistan will build on progress achieved to date and, in due course, lead to the resolution of all outstanding differences between the two countries, including over Kashmir.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has received on the prosecution in civilian courts in India of members of the army and other security forces implicated in rights abuses in Jammu and Kashmir; and if she will make a statement. [146114]

Dr. Howells: We have not received any such representations. Criminal prosecutions before Indian courts are a domestic matter for the Government of India and the Indian judiciary.

Saudi Arabia: Terrorism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1481-82W, on Saudi Arabia: Terrorism, if she will list the Saudi Arabian based charities on the UN Consolidated List with respect to Al-Qaeda, Osama Bin Laden, the Taliban and other individuals, groups and entities associated with them; and if she will make a statement. [146116]

Dr. Howells: The Consolidated List, established and maintained by the Security Council's UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1267 sanctions Committee and last updated on 8 June, currently lists two Saudi Arabian-based charities associated with Al-Qaeda. These are:

The Benevolence International Foundation listed on 21 November 2002 (updated on 24 January 2004) and which is shown to have had branches in Jeddah and Riyadh in Saudi Arabia; and the Wafa Humanitarian Organisation listed on 6 October 2001 and shown to have a presence in Saudi Arabia.

The list also designates various international branches of the Al-Haramain Islamic Foundation. The original Foundation, based previously in Riyadh, was dissolved by the Saudi Arabian government in June 2004 and its assets taken over by the Saudi National Commission for Relief and Charity Work Abroad. The Saudi Arabian government has said that the National Commission, described as a non-governmental body, has now assumed responsibility in the Kingdom for all private overseas aid including the distribution of Saudi private charitable donations.

The United Kingdom is obliged to uphold UNSCR 1267 listings and to impose a corresponding assets freeze, travel ban and arms embargo. These financial sanctions are administered by the Bank of England, acting as agents for HM Treasury.

HEALTH

Care Homes: Nutrition

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to improve standards of nutrition and hydration of residents in care homes. [146676]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 14 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1306-07W.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors were taken into account in deciding not to proceed with the review of the national minimum standards for care homes. [146677]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has decided to refocus the work that has already been carried out on the review of the national minimum standards, and to build on this, as part of the wider reform of health and adult social care regulation, to ensure there is an effective and integrated regulatory system.

The decision to integrate the review into the regulatory reform work was based on concerns received from stakeholders about a two-stage approach to changes in the standards. It is also important to ensure that any changes in respect of adult social care will align with the new regulatory regime.

Doctors: Training

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the public purse has been arising from legal action in relation to the medical training application service, broken down by main budget heading. [145997]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There have been no legal challenges against the medical training application service. Remedy UK Limited brought an unsuccessful legal challenge against the Department, the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board, the Conference of Postgraduate Medical Deans of the United Kingdom, the British Medical Association and the National Association of Clinical Tutors in relation to the changes made to specialty training recruitment as a result of the Douglas Review. The costs to the Department of this challenge are currently being assessed.

Elderly: Social Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health to what extent the rate of ageing of a population is taken into account when calculating adult social care budgets; and what proportion of (a) over 65 and (b) over 85 years olds must be present in a population for a local authority to receive additional funding. [146014]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Local authority funding for social services is derived from a variety of sources both from within central Government and also determined locally (via council tax, fees and charges).

It is for individual local authorities to manage and direct their own resources in accordance with local priorities and the needs of the communities to which they are accountable.

Central funding for adult social care is via formula grant (via Department for Communities and Local Government) which is not hypothecated and specific grants from the Department.

Formula grant is allocated using relative needs formulae (RNF) which include a factor for the number of older people. The RNF are mathematical formulae that include information on population, social structure and other characteristics of each authority. For social care, there are separate formulae for older people (aged 65 and over) and younger adults (aged 18 to 65). The older people's formula also includes an age top-up for those aged 90 and over (as a proportion of the older people population), which takes into account the higher needs of those of very advanced age This age top-up is calculated as part of the econometric analysis carried out in an academic research project in 2005. There is, however, no set proportion of older people which leads to 'additional funding'.

The Government (in consultation with local government) have developed separate formulae to cover the major service areas, because there are different factors influencing each service area. The funding blocks for service areas are; children's services, adults' personal services, police, fire, highway maintenance and environmental, protective and cultural services. These formulae apply to all local authorities providing particular services.

The formula for each specific service area is built on a basic amount per client, plus additional top ups to reflect local circumstances. The top ups take account of a number of local factors that affect service costs, but the biggest factors are deprivation and area costs.

Relative needs are designed to reflect the relative needs of individual authorities in providing services. They are not intended to measure the actual amount needed by any authority to provide local services but simply to recognise the various factors which affect local authorities' costs locally.

The arrangements for allocating specific grants vary, some schemes use formulae grant; others allocate funds on the basis of appraisal of bids.

Health Visitors

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she will take in response to the publication of Facing the Future, a review of the role of health visitors. [146282]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are considering the report's recommendations and intend to publish a response in the autumn.

Midwives: Mid-Essex Hospital Trust

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were employed by the Mid-Essex hospital trust in each of the last 10 years. [145965]

National health service hospital and community health services: qualified midwives in the Mid-Essex hospital services NHS trust as at 30 September for each specified year

Note:
More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total workforce figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent., of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures (and negligible for full time equivalents). This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends over time.

Midwives: Training

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwifery training places there were in each English region in academic year 2006-07. [146010]

Muscular Dystrophy: Drugs

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2006, Official Report, column 554W, on Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy, what recent assessment has been made of progress of research into Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy administered by LGC Ltd; and if she will make a statement; [146057]

(2) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of exon skipping as a potential therapy for Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy; [146054]

(3) what plans her Department has to trial the drug Losartan for the treatment of Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy. [146053]

Caroline Flint: The £1.6 million, four-year programme (2005-08) of research towards a phase 1 clinical trial for Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy (DMD) that the Department has been supporting is administered through the company LGC Ltd. Progress is assessed through quarterly reports, and site visits by LGC Ltd. The programme started in January 2005.

My noble Friend the Minister of State for Health (Lord Hunt) met with representatives from the DMD research team on 15 March. The MDEX Consortium research and clinical trial is progressing well, with the first patient due to receive the first dose of the experimental molecule within the next few months. According to the group's latest report of April 2007, ethical approval for the phase 1 clinical trial is in place and regulatory approvals are expected to be given soon. The clinical trial is predicted to take place through to the end of 2008.

Research in the United States has demonstrated that Losartan may improve muscle regeneration in mice with DMD. We are not aware of any human clinical trials organised in the United Kingdom.

NHS Treatment Centres: Newcastle

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much has been paid to Care UK for the NHS walk-in centre at Jury's Inn, Newcastle; what the reasons were for the delay in opening the centre; what costs were incurred during the delay; when the days of opening were extended to include Sundays; and what consideration is being given to an extension of opening hours after 7 p.m; [146223]

(2) which trust or organisation in the NHS (a) determined the cost and service standards of the NHS walk-in centre at Jury's Inn, Newcastle and (b) is responsible for monitoring the contract; and how long the contract with Care UK for the NHS walk-in centre has to run. [146226]

Andy Burnham: The Newcastle Central NHS walk-in centre at Jury's Inn is one of seven centres commissioned by the Department to provide health services which address the needs of the working population. Care UK is the provider under a contract that runs until 30 April 2011. The amount payable under this contract is commercially confidential. The centre opened on 17 May 2006, two weeks later than scheduled due to an issue with the electrical power source. No costs were incurred during this period. The centre is open 7 am to 7 pm, Monday to Friday and although the Department, the provider and the primary care trust are discussing options for extending opening hours, no decision has been taken.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her statement that the NHS IT programme is the largest civilian IT programme in the world, which non-civilian IT programmes are larger; and which civilian IT programme is nearest in size to the NHS IT programme. [145635]

Caroline Flint: Although formal research has not been conducted, we are not aware of any publicised IT programme in the world that services 1.3 million staff with what is said by suppliers to be the largest virtual private network and largest single email service that underpins the complex technology to support electronic booking, electronic prescriptions, digital imaging and an electronic care record for 50 million patients. It is not known what the second largest civilian programme would be and it would be a disproportionate cost to the taxpayer to find out. Non-civilian IT programmes tend not to publicise their details.

NHS: Management Consultants

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on management consultancy contracts by the NHS in 2006-07. [146291]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Strokes: Ethnic Groups

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to help raise awareness of the increased risk factors for stroke in people from (a) African Caribbean and (b) South Asian communities. [146077]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has provided Section 64 grants to fund the following projects: The Afiya Trust's Stroke Awareness for Black and Minority Ethnic Communities project will target black and minority ethnic communities and run stroke awareness sessions within community settings.

The Stroke Association's Blood Pressure Awareness: African Caribbean Communities project will promote a blood pressure awareness campaign within African Caribbean communities in England.

The Stroke Association's Stroke Prevention: South Asian Communities project raised awareness of stroke prevention through the production of materials and the dissemination and distribution of these materials.

The risk factors which increase an individual's chances of suffering a stroke include smoking, drinking alcohol, poor diet and lack of physical activity. Strokes are also more likely in those who suffer from hypertension and diabetes. Through the public health White Paper "Choosing Health" the Department has set out a programme of action to help improve the health of the public including action on smoking and diet. This builds on existing work such as campaigns on smoking and diet, National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on the management of hypertension, points for prevention activities in the general practitioners contract and support for the Blood Pressure Association blood pressure awareness campaigns.

The Coronary Heart Disease and Diabetes National Service Frameworks have also driven forward improvements in primary and secondary prevention of risk factors associated with circulatory disease in general. This includes better control of blood pressure and blood glucose, cholesterol management and the use of aspirin.

The Department is also developing a new national stroke strategy for England which aims to modernise services, not just for those who have had a stroke, but also those at risk of doing so.

Strokes: Research

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to encourage the participation of more (a) hospitals and (b) patients in stroke research studies. [146076]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's National Institute for Health Research is investing £20 million over five years in the United Kingdom Stroke Research Network set up in 2005. The Network is currently supporting 40 clinical trials and other well-designed studies conducted by public and private sector funders.

The Stroke Research Network works closely with patients, their carers and the public to ensure involvement at all levels of its activity.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were issued in the criminal justice system area most closely corresponding to Chelmsford in each year since the scheme commenced. [145964]

Mr. Coaker: The available information (up to 31 December 2005, latest available) is given in the table.

Number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts in the Essex CJS area, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, by year, April 1999 to December 2005

Essex CJS area	Number
April 1999-May 2000	0
June-December 2000	0
2002	2
2003	16
2004	59
2005	72
Total issued	149

[1] Between 1 April 1999-31 May 2000 data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area (pfa).

Note:

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Police: Road Traffic

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what resources have been allocated to police forces for traffic policing to meet the Government's road casualty reduction targets. [146124]

Mr. McNulty: Government funding for police authorities is chiefly allocated using a funding formula that provides an assessment of the relative need of each police force in England and Wales.

Funding for traffic policing is not separately identified. Decisions on the distribution of resources are matters for the Chief Officer and the Police Authority.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the Government's Safety Camera initiative on the numbers of police officers employed on speed enforcement duties in those areas where it has been implemented; and if he will make a statement. [146125]

Mr. Coaker: We would expect the effective use of automatic, unattended speed cameras to improve law enforcement by deterring more drivers from exceeding the legal speed limit and detecting more who do. It will at the same time free up police resources for other duties. These would include roads policing duties, such as active speed limit enforcement by officers on the ground. How resources are deployed is however an operational matter for individual chief officers of police.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Art Works

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what the Works of Art Committee acquisition budget is for 2007-08. [145049]

Nick Harvey: The total income of the acquisition budget for 2007-08 is £188,124.68. This is made up of the vote for the financial year of £72,500, plus a carry-over from the previous financial year of £115,624.68. The carry-over arose from underspend in 2003-04 and 2004-05, when few works of art became available which fitted the Committee's acquisition aims. A large proportion of it has already been committed to projects begun in the last financial year, including purchases made at the auction of the collection of the late Lord Stratford and portrait commissions.

Lifts

Mr. Laws: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what plans are being made to repair the lifts in 1 Parliament Street; and how often all of these lifts have been working simultaneously over the last two years. [144995]

Nick Harvey: The refurbishment of the suite of three lifts in 1 Parliament Street is being undertaken as a two year programme to ensure that at least one of the lifts is always available. In the first year (2006) one of the lifts was repaired and provisional wiring for the other two took place. During this summer recess the other two lift cars and doors will be renewed and at the end of the recess all three lifts will be in full service.

Other than during the summer recess, all three lifts have been in normal operation except between February and April. During that period, one lift at a time was taken out of operation to improve the controls which enable them to work together. This task was due to be done in the summer recess 2007 but was brought forward in view of complaints from Members. Since April there have been other breakdowns which on one occasion put two of three lifts out of action for one Tuesday afternoon and overnight before they were repaired.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

International Assistance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent progress has been made in meeting the millennium goals. [145769]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Progress towards the millennium development goals (MDGs) is reported on officially by the UN and varies across goals and targets and across regions.

The world is on track to meet the poverty reduction and hunger goal. The most recent official data at global level show that between 1990 and 2002, the percentage of people living on less than $1 a day in the developing world dropped from 28 to 19 per cent. However, progress across regions varies. The proportion of people in Asia living on less than $1 a day dropped by nearly a quarter of a billion over that period. In Sub-Saharan Africa, the goal is seriously off track and, although the poverty rate itself did not increase, the number of people living in extreme poverty increased by 140 million.

Progress towards the other seven millennium development goals (MDGs) goals also varies. For example, reducing child mortality is on track in Latin America, South East Asia and North Africa, and slightly off track in most other regions. There is less progress towards goal 6 (combating HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases): this goal is seriously off track for at least one of its composing targets in most regions (including Sub-Saharan Africa, South Asia, Oceania and the Commonwealth of Independent States both in Europe and Asia). Progress towards environmental sustainability is mixed, with most regions off track for some targets and on track for others.

On current rates of progress, Sub-Saharan Africa will not meet any of the goals by 2015. The UK has placed Africa at the forefront of our campaign for more and better aid. Out of the 25 key countries on which DFID focuses its work, 16 are in Africa. The 2006 White Paper sets out DFID's future work on governance, basic services, climate change, the international system, and fragile states, which will all help make further progress towards meeting the MDGs.

The 2006 UN Millennium Development Goals Report, which can be found on http://unstats.un.org/unsd/mdg/default.aspx, gives a comprehensive account of progress to date on each of the goals, and how great an effort remains necessary if they are to be met. The report is about to be updated by the UN this summer.

DFID's 2007 annual report "Development on the Record", which was recently published includes an annex on progress towards all goals including UK progress towards MDG 8. A copy of the report is available in the Library of the House.

International Assistance: Group of Eight

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1251W, on international assistance: Group of Eight, if he will break down the figures on (a) total overseas development assistance and (b) debt relief as a proportion of gross national income by G8 member country. [146207]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following table gives a breakdown of total Official Development Assistance (ODA) and debt relief, as a proportion of total Gross National Income (GNI) in 2006 for each of the G7 countries using current prices (as opposed to 2004 prices in the previous answer). Russia is not a member of the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, therefore any aid from Russia is not included in the official DAC statistics on ODA.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has for the provision of aid to the people of Gaza. [145768]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: On 19 June my right hon. Friend the Member for Leeds, Central (Hilary Benn), the former Secretary of State for International Development, announced a contribution of £1 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) for immediate humanitarian needs in Gaza and the West Bank. ICRC has delivered medical supplies, repatriated bodies, evacuated medical cases and helped the Palestinian Red Crescent to deliver blood supplies in Gaza. It has also helped the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) to deliver food aid.

UNRWA provides food aid to 850,000 Palestinian refugees in Gaza, along with other essential services. With ICRC, UNRWA is assisting the 250 people trapped at the Erez crossing. DFID has provided £15.6 million through UNRWA this year for its operations in Gaza and elsewhere in the Middle East.

Through the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM), the European Union is providing fuel to ensure the continued operation of electricity, water and sanitation services in Gaza, supporting front line health services and providing allowances for Government workers, pensioners and other needy Palestinians in Gaza and the West Bank. DFID has provided £15 million through the TIM so far.

The European Community (EC) is providing €9.8 million through the World Health Organisation, €6 million for UNRWA's food programme, and €9 million through the World Food Programme for the West Bank and Gaza. This is in addition to the European Community's contribution to UNRWA's core fund of €66 million this year. The UK contributes about 17 per cent. of EC assistance.

The key humanitarian issue in Gaza at this time is access. 104 containers of UNRWA supplies await transit to Gaza through the Kami crossing. Without regular and reliable access for aid supplies and privately traded goods it will not be possible for Gaza's 1.3 million people to meet their basic needs.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial assistance has been provided to support Palestine in each year since 1995. [145770]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Figures for DFID support to the Palestinian people since 1995 are as follows:

2005-06	30,043,000
2004-05	34,794,000
2003-04	40,487,000
2002-03	33,873,600
2001-02	38,737,000
2000-01	26,764,000
1999-2000	20,727,000
1998-99	8,516,000
1997-98	16,133,000
1996-97	14,288,000
1995-96	10,147,000

These figures include contributions through the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) which supports Palestinian refugees living in the West Bank, Gaza Strip, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan.

JUSTICE

Chelmsford Prison

Mr. Burns: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many prisoners are resident in Chelmsford prison. [145966]

Mr. Sutcliffe: At unlock on 25 June, the prisoner population at Chelmsford prison was 687.

Data Protection: Enforcement

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what the maximum penalty is that the Information Commissioner can impose on a direct mailing company that is in breach of section 11 of the Data Protection Act 1998; and if she will make a statement; [146133]

(2) how much was spent by the Information Commissioner on prosecuting direct mailers in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [146134]

Vera Baird: The Information Commissioner does not have the power to impose a penalty on a direct mailing company for breach of section 11 of the Data Protection Act 1998. Section 11 of the Act gives a right for an individual to give notice in writing for an organisation to cease processing their personal data for the purpose of marketing. If the organisation concerned fails to comply, the individual can seek enforcement at court. An individual can ask the Commissioner's Office to make an assessment of processing, but this does not result in punitive action. Failure to comply with an enforcement order is a criminal offence and could result in prosecution.

Departments: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what ministerial visits have been made to prisons in Wales; and what the date of each such visit was. [146273]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table details the ministerial visits to prisons in Wales since 1 May 1997, according to available records. There are plans to visit Cardiff and Parc prisons in July 2007.

Lawyers: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many law firms in Wales have (a) signed and (b) not signed new contracts with the Legal Services Commission. [146269]

Vera Baird: The Unified Contract for civil work was issued to 200 solicitors' offices in Wales. 196 contracts have been returned signed. 29 contracts were issued to not-for-profit organisations in Wales and all have been returned signed.

Peterborough Prison: Reoffenders

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what procedures have been put in place to undertake risk assessments in respect of those prisoners released early from HMP Peterborough and the likelihood of their reoffending; and if she will make a statement. [146322]

Mr. Hanson: The suitability of each prisoner for release under End of Custody Licence (ECL) will be assessed according to set criteria rather than individual risk assessment. All prisoners who are potentially eligible will be screened against these criteria. We will not release:

Registered sex offenders, whether or not they are currently serving a sentence for a sexual offence;

Prisoners serving sentences for serious violence;

Prisoners who have previously escaped from custody;

Prisoners who have previously breached temporary release conditions during the current sentence, have offended during a period under temporary release at any time, or prisoners currently serving a sentence for failing to return from temporary release;

Prisoners with no accommodation arranged;

Foreign national prisoners who will be subject to deportation at the end of their sentence;

Prisoners who are subject to extradition proceedings;

Sentenced prisoners who have been remanded into custody on further charges or who are awaiting sentence;

Prisoners who, within the period of their current sentence, had been recalled either from HDC or from normal licence;

Prisoners required to undertake a treatment programme as a condition of the normal (end of sentence) supervision licence that could not be arranged during the period of THL;

Prisoners who are under 18 years of age.

Prison Population

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the statement of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1241, on prison population, how many prisoners will be released from prisons in (a) Wales and (b) England where the prisoner's last known address was in Wales. [146304]

Mr. Hanson: End of custody licence prisoner numbers are not broken down by area or by last known address.

Prisoners Release

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what measures will be put in place to monitor those prisoners who will be released early from prison. [146056]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners who are subject to supervision on release (all prisoners serving 12 months or more and prisoners under 22 years of age) will be required to meet their probation officer after release on the end of custody licence (ECL) and to have regular contact after that in line with their supervision programme.

All prisoners released under the end of custody licence will be liable to recall if they are reported to have broken the terms of licence.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many foreign national prisoners were imprisoned at the latest available date, broken down by (a) European Union nationals, (b) non-European Union nationals and (c) other nationals; and what percentage of all prisoners are foreign nationals. [146123]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The requested information is contained in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Secure Training Centres: Restraint Techniques

Ms Keeble: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what consultations were undertaken on changes to the use of restraint in secure training centres before the laying of the Secure Training Centre (Amendment) Rules 2007 (S.I., 2007, No. 1709), dated 13 June 2007, before Parliament; and what (a) monitoring and (b) impact assessment she plans to undertake of the implementation of the changes. [146005]

Bridget Prentice: We consulted the Youth Justice Board and Directors of secure training centres about the proposed change. Wider consultation was not necessary or appropriate, as there is no change of the policy on the use of physical restraint. That policy is set out in section 10 of the Youth Justice Board's code of practice "Managing Children and Young People's Behaviour in the Secure Estate".

Monitors appointed by the Youth Justice Board monitor the use of physical restraint in secure training centres and are required to submit to the Board a report of any incident in which physical restraint is used. The Board also collects statistical data on the use of physical restraint across the under-18 secure estate. In April 2007, it introduced a new system of data collection, which will provide more detailed information and allow more accurate comparisons to be made about use of restraint in the three sectors of the estate (young offender institutions, secure training centres and secure children's homes).

Ms Keeble: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many reviews the Youth Justice Board has undertaken of the use of restraint in secure training centres in the last five years. [146006]

Bridget Prentice: The Youth Justice Board has commissioned four reviews relating exclusively to methods of restraint used in secure training centres.

These were:

a review by David Waplington of behaviour management in secure training centres (October 2004);

a review by medical and other experts of the safety of "Physical Control in Care" (PCC) the system of restraint approved for use in secure training centres (May 2005); an independent review of PCC and behaviour management in secure training centres. Conducted by Anthony Bleetman and Peter Boatman (July 2005);

Safe and Sound, a review of the development of physical control techniques used in secure training centres. Conducted by a forum of Secure Training Centre Directors (August 2006).

In addition, the Youth Justice Board commissioned the National Children's Bureau to report on use of physical intervention within the juvenile secure estate generally (2003).

NORTHERN IRELAND

Firearms: Registration

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many firearms certificates were (a) held, (b) granted and (c) extinguished in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [145252]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable of the Police Service for Northern Ireland has provided the information in the following table.

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
(a) Certificates held	76680	70983	65129
(b) Certificates granted	[1]n/a	13818	[2]27732
(c) Certificates extinguished	1386	5083	4657

[1] Figures are not available for the number of certificates granted in 2004-05.
[2] The increase in certificates granted in 2006-07 reflects a clearance of a backlog of applications.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by staff in his Department via departmental (a) credit, (b) procurement and (c) fuel cards in each of the last three years. [145299]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not have any credit or fuel cards. The Office has one procurement card which was issued in 2006-07; nothing was spent on that card in that year.

Departments: Public Participation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many public consultations his Department undertook in the last 12 months; and what the cost was of each consultation. [145281]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office undertook one public consultation entitled "Scottish Parliament Elections May 2007: Ballot Paper Design", this was an online consultation and the associated costs were £17,000.

Identification of Criminals

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has made to the First Minister of Scotland on the retention of DNA samples of suspected criminals; and if he will make a statement. [146238]

David Cairns: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has made no representations to the First Minister with regard to this matter.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Criminal Justice Pilots

24. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Solicitor-General what the early findings are of the Criminal Justice: Simple, Speedy, Summary pilots on speeding up prosecutions in north Northamptonshire. [146042]

The Solicitor-General: The Criminal Justice: Simple, Speedy, Summary Process was introduced in three magistrates courts in North Northamptonshire on 4 June 2007. These were Corby, Kettering and Wellingborough. The implementation was effected smoothly, but it is too soon to be able to identify any findings. The process was successfully piloted in four other sites. I have visited courts in Coventry and London recently where there is real enthusiasm about the benefits of CJSSS. It is being rolled out across the country this year.

Law Officers

25. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will make a statement on the future role of the Law Officers. [146043]

26. Robert Neill: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will make a statement on the future role of the Law Officers. [146044]

The Solicitor-General: I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) today.

Human Trafficking

27. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Crown Prosecution Service is taking to improve prosecution rates in cases of alleged human trafficking. [146045]

The Solicitor-General: The CPS is working with other Departments to implement the UK action plan on trafficking which provides for a range of actions on Prevention, Investigation, Enforcement and Prosecution. The CPS has taken the following steps:

A Network of Human Trafficking Champions appointed in each CPS Area;

A Senior prosecutor seconded to the UKHTC (Government's multi-agency task force to tackle organised immigration crime) to:

provide early tactical legal advice assist in obtaining evidence from other jurisdictions; issued national guidance to prosecutors on how to handle trafficking prosecutions; and ensured that the victim's interests are at the heart of any prosecution as part of the Prosecutor's Pledge.

Media Reporting: Criminal Cases

28. Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Solicitor-General what his policy is on enforcement of the contempt laws on media reporting of criminal cases. [146046]

The Solicitor-General: I refer to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stourbridge (Lynda Waltho) on 28 June 2007, but I should stress that the Law Officers will not hesitate to enforce the Contempt of Court Act 1981 where coverage of active proceedings creates a substantial risk that the course of justice in those proceedings could be, or has already been, seriously prejudiced. This extends to interference with pending criminal investigations, if there has already been an arrest.

Administration of Justice

Mr. Bone: To ask the Solicitor-General what guidance his Department has issued to the Crown Prosecution Service on procedures for the reinstatement of trials which have been aborted due to technical error. [146229]

The Solicitor-General: No specific guidance has been issued to crown prosecutors on procedures for the reinstatement of trials, which have been aborted due to technical errors. Where cases are stopped because of a technical error, steps may be taken to correct the error so that the case may proceed in the usual way.

More general guidance has been issued, which states that a decision to re-institute proceedings should only be taken when 'special circumstances' exist that demand the reinstitution of proceedings in order to maintain public confidence in the criminal justice system. If it is decided to re-institute proceedings, action is taken to bring the defendant back before the court by way of a charge or summons. This process is independent of the previous proceedings.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Prosecutions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions the Crown Prosecution Service has instigated for breaches of criminal anti-social behaviour orders since 2004. [146220]

The Solicitor-General: Crown Prosecution Service records include the number of prosecutions for breach of an antisocial behaviour order under section 1(10) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998, but do not differentiate between prosecutions relating to criminal and non-criminal orders.

Complete records are held for the last two financial years, showing that the number of prosecutions under this legislation which reached a first hearing in magistrates courts, or were entered on indictments in the crown court, was as follows:

	Magistrates courts	Crown court
2005-06	13,436	2,110
2006-07	13,475	2,406

Departments: Northern Ireland

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will place in the Library a copy of the concordat governing the relationship between his Department and the Northern Ireland administration. [145934]

The Solicitor-General: The Law Officer's Department does not have a concordat governing the relationship between his Department and the Northern Ireland administration.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Solicitor-General how much was raised from the sale of the Law Officers' Departments departmental property in each of the last five years. [139309]

The Solicitor-General: The Law Officers' Departments' only sales of departmental property in the period were both in 2005-06: the Treasury Solicitor's Department sold Queen Anne's Chambers in Central London for £33 million; and the Crown Prosecution Service sold Winchway House in Haverfordwest for £450,000.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Solicitor-General how much was received by the Law Officers' Departments from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139328]

The Solicitor-General: Of the Law Officers' Departments, only the Treasury Solicitor's Department (TSol) and the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) have owned properties during the period.

Their income from letting was as follows:

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
TSol	792,821	514,994	470,128	462,307	[1]343,357
CPS	4,469,496	4,334,181	2,482,060	3,099,057	3,412,320
Totals	5,262,317	4,849,175	2,952,188	3,561,364	3,755,677

[1] Forecast

Grant Shapps: To ask the Solicitor-General what properties the Law Officers' Departments has (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139348]

The Solicitor-General: The Treasury Solicitor's Department owned Queen Anne's Chambers in London SW1 for the financial years spanning 2002 to 2006. It then sold it, as referred to in my reply to question 13909. They have rented 1 Kemble Street in London WC2 since 2005-06, to date. Riverside Chambers, Taunton, Somerset was leased by the Department in 1991 and is now let to various public sector tenants.

None of the other Law Officers' Departments owns any properties. The Serious Fraud Office has rented Elm House, London WC1 throughout the period. The SFO rented fourth floor of Verulam Gardens, London WC1 from 2003-04 to 2006-07, and the fifth floor of the same building from 2004-05 to 2006-07. It rented the first and fifth floors of 200 Gray's Inn Road, London WC1 from 2005-06 to date.

The Attorney-General's Office AGO rented 8-9 Buckingham Gate, London SW1 throughout the period, and began renting 20 Victoria Street, London SW1 towards the end of the financial year 2006-07, prior to their move its move there in May 2007.

Her Majesty's Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate has rented numbers 26 and 28 Old Queen Street, London SW1 throughout this period.

The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office, since its inception in April 2005, has occupied space under a Memorandum of Terms of Occupation agreed with HM Revenue and Customs in Ralli Quays, Salford, Greater Manchester and new Kings Beam House, London SE1.

The CPS breakdown is in the following table and a comprehensive list of the buildings has been placed in the Library.

	Owned	Rented
2003-04	4	91
2004-05	4	92
2006-07	3	86

Grant Shapps: To ask the Solicitor-General what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Law Officers' Departments' property portfolio. [139367]

The Solicitor-General: The net book value recorded in HM Procurator General and Treasury Solicitor's departmental resource accounts for 2005-06 for freehold and leasehold land and property is nil. (This includes the Attorney General's Office and HM Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate.)

Neither the Serious Fraud Office nor the Revenue and Customs Prosecution Office has made any estimate (as noted in my earlier reply to the hon. Member [139328], neither owns any properties).

The most recent estimate (financial year 2006-07) that has been made for the three freehold sites in the Crown Prosecution Service's property portfolio is £6,110,823 after accumulated depreciation calculation.

Terry Lloyd

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Solicitor-General pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1047W, on Terry Lloyd, by what date he expects the Crown Prosecution Service to make a decision on the prosecution of those responsible. [145946]

The Solicitor-General: The file submitted to the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) has been reviewed and as a result the CPS has requested further evidence from the United States. This has been done through a formal letter submitted under the United Kingdom—United States mutual legal assistance treaty and a response is awaited to the request.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY
Nuclear Power Stations: Sussex

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department plans to carry out a consultation in Sussex on the feasibility of locating new nuclear power stations in the county. [142551]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 14 June 2007]: Any new nuclear power stations would be built by the private sector but no decisions would be taken on any potential location for a new nuclear power station pending the carrying out of a full strategic siting assessment (SSA). DTI is currently consulting on a proposed SSA process, which would be implemented if the Government confirm their preliminary view that it is in the public interest to allow energy companies the option of investing in new nuclear power stations. The proposed SSA process would include a public consultation on draft SSA criteria, and a further public consultation on a draft list of locations judged to have met this criteria.

In advance of such an SSA being carried out, and subject to the outcome of the Government's consultation on the future of nuclear power, DTI has no plans to consult on the feasibility of locating new nuclear power stations in any particular geographical area. However, any proposed locations for new nuclear power stations emerging from an SSA would be the subject of local consultation through the planning process.

TRANSPORT
Aviation

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the objectives are for the second stage of the EU/US aviation negotiations; and what plans he has in the eventuality of no agreement being concluded by November 2010. [146237]

Gillian Merron: European Transport Ministers have given the European Commission a mandate to secure a full transatlantic open aviation area. The UK wants to see, in particular, further liberalisation of market access, including US ownership and control rules, while further enhancing co-operation in areas such as environmental protection, security, consumer protection, and the elimination of state subsidies.

The stage 1 agreement sets out a clear timetable for the signature of a second stage deal. We hope that it will be possible to reach an acceptable agreement within this timescale. But the EU has already agreed, in its decision on the signature of the agreement, that in the event this timetable is not met, a process will automatically be set in hand to suspend traffic rights for US air carriers.

Aviation: Noise

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which noise monitors in (a) Wandsworth, (b) South West London and (c) West London have provided data used in noise pollution modelling as part of the Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow; where those noise monitors were situated; and if he will make a statement. [146303]

Gillian Merron: Modelling to estimate future aircraft noise exposure at Heathrow is being carried out using the Civil Aviation Authority's Aircraft Noise Contour Model (ANCON). The model is validated against information obtained from 10 fixed monitors under the departure tracks at Heathrow, supplemented by additional mobile noise monitors. Since 2000, monitoring has included data from mobile monitors in Fulham, Barnes, Richmond, Isleworth and Twickenham. The methodology is set out in ERCD Report 0307 and the location of fixed and mobile monitoring sites is shown in ERCD Report 0406, both of which are available on the CAA website www.caa.co.uk

Bridges: Downton

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Tannery bridge replacement project at Downton, Wiltshire is funded by his Department under the EU bridge strengthening programme; and what (a) the original scheme cost estimate, (b) the tender price agreed with the contractor and (c) the current estimated out-turn cost of the project are. [146277]

Gillian Merron: The Department has not received a bid for funding to support the replacement of the Tannery bridge. This scheme is a matter for the local highway authority, Wiltshire county council.

Bus Services

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average age is of public service buses in service in England. [146293]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 24 January 2007, Official Report, column 1765W.

Bus Services: Standards

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff are available to each of the Traffic Commissioners to monitor the reliability of bus services in each of the English regions. [146262]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) employs 10 staff based in England whose role includes the monitoring of bus service reliability. Their bases by traffic region are in the following table.

	Number
North Eastern and North Western	4
Eastern	1
South Eastern	2
West Midlands	1

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what proportion of the bus fleet received an unannounced inspection allocated on a random basis by the Traffic Commissioners in each of the last five years. [146263]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) conducts unannounced inspections on bus fleets. It does not record the proportion of these requested by the Traffic Commissioners as opposed to other enforcement work.

The results of spot checks by VOSA where operator based are published annually in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at: www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many buses were inspected by VOSA officials in each of the last five years; and how many such buses were consequently subject to an (a) immediate and (b) delayed prohibition notice. [146265]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes statistics on bus inspections, immediate and delayed prohibition notices annually in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or from the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the distribution of responsibility for delays to bus services between (a) congestion, (b) mechanical failures and (c) fleet management. [146266]

Gillian Merron: The Department does not hold data on the causes of delays to buses. However, it does collect data on the causes of scheduled mileage not run by buses. These are published in Section 2 of the quarterly bulletin "Bus and Light Rail Statistics GB", copies of which are held in the House of Commons Library.

Cycling: Helmets

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents on the subject of cycle helmets. [144792]

Dr. Ladyman: None.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to promote the wearing of cycle helmets by (a) children, (b) teenagers and (c) the general population. [144793]

Dr. Ladyman: For children the Department has set up the "Hedgehogs" website www.hedgehogs.gov.uk and publishes "Arrive Alive" (A Highway Code for young road users).

For teenagers the Department has set up the "Cycle Sense" safety campaign encouraging teenagers to wear helmets. The campaign consists of a series of posters, a website www.cyclesense.co.uk and a supporting TV filler film. At the end of February Think! launched a new teen road safety campaign with MTV. This will include an advertisement on cycling safety encouraging helmet wearing and will air on MTV channels week commencing 16 July.

For adults and the general cycling population the Driving Standards Agency publishes The Highway Code which encourages all cyclists to wear a helmet.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the percentage of cyclists in the UK who wear protective headgear; and if he will make a statement. [144794]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Carmichael) on 20 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1793-94W.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whom he has designated as responsible for the management of inquiries under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 from (a) hon. Members and (b) other sources. [146264]

Gillian Merron: The Department has exactly the same arrangements and process for deciding what information is to be disclosed and what is exempt from disclosure under the FOI Act, whether the FOI request comes from an hon. Member or any other person.

Decisions on exemptions are made by officials, except in the case of exemptions under Section 36 where a Minister is the 'qualified person' as defined by the Act. This applies irrespective of who makes the request.

In the Department all requests for information under the FOI regime are handled by the area responsible for the subject matter.

The responses come from different people, depending on whether the request is from an hon. Member, the media, or someone else. Responses to requests from an hon. Member are made by a Minister. In other cases, the response is made by an appropriate official. For requests from the media, the response is sent by a press officer. Where the applicant is from the legal profession, it is sent by a legal adviser. In all cases, responses are approved by the responsible member of the Senior Civil Service in the department.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the accuracy of the Motor Insurance Database. [146232]

Dr. Ladyman: The accuracy of the Motor Insurance Database (MID) is solely the responsibility of the Insurance industry.

The latest figures (mid June) indicate that 94.4 per cent. of all appropriate records are provided to the Motor Insurance Database (MID) within seven days. This is in line with expectations to meet the target of 95 per cent. of all appropriate records provided to the Motor Insurance Bureau within seven days by 1 January 2008.

The police make extensive use of the MID to help identify vehicles being driven uninsured. They have had considerable success in removing uninsured vehicles from the road and although there have been occasional instances where a vehicle has been seized as a result of inaccurate data these are very rare and generally the MID is considered reliable for current enforcement purpose.

Public Transport: Gosport

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are for improvements in access to the Gosport peninsula. [146284]

Gillian Merron: Improvements to the local transport network are the responsibility of Hampshire county council.

Access to and within the Gosport peninsula has been considered by the council in its second Local Transport Plan. This sets out the county's transport strategy until 2011, and allocates some £4 million towards schemes to address congestion and access issues on the Gosport peninsula. These include a series of junction improvements on the A32 and B3385 corridor, as well as improvements to public transport.

In addition the local authorities in the Solent area are working together developing transport strategies to improve access to Southampton, Portsmouth, and the wider area. With the help of Government funding they are starting work on three studies, one of which, entitled Access to South East Hampshire, sets out to identify appropriate interventions to address key bottlenecks on transport networks in and around the Gosport peninsula.

Railways

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many locomotives in use on the rail network are older than 10 years old. [146290]

Mr. Tom Harris: The following table gives details of the locomotives used by UK franchised passenger train operators, broken down by train operating company and class. Not included are vehicles operated by Scotrail (for which Transport Scotland is responsible) and non-franchised operators such as Network Rail, open access and charter operators. Information on the number of freight vehicles used on the network is not held by the Department.

This information is based on latest available data but variations in the figures can be expected due to short-term vehicle hiring, introduction of new fleets and withdrawal of older vehicles and cascades.

The locomotives shown in Table 1 were all manufactured more than 10 years ago but most have been substantially modified or re-engined since that time.

Table 1: Locomotives

Train operating company	Class	More than 10 years old?	Number of vehicles

Roads: Construction

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been allocated for the construction of the proposed Bexhill to Hastings link road; and if he will make a statement. [146075]

Gillian Merron: The Bexhill to Hastings link road scheme was granted Programme Entry in December 2004 with an agreed departmental funding contribution of £47.12 million. In July 2006, we accepted the South East region's advice that the scheme was a priority for the region at an increased cost of £48.5 million. However, it has since been reported that the estimated total cost of the scheme has increased to around £89 million. As a result, the South East region will need to decide whether it still wishes to prioritise funding for this scheme at its higher cost within its regional funding allocations. Should the region formally advise that the scheme continues to be a priority, it will then be subject to a re-appraisal and value for money assessment in accordance with the Department's guidance before a final decision is taken on whether to provide additional funding for the scheme.

TREASURY

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140028]

John Healey: With the following exceptions, the information for the Chancellor's Departments and their agencies could be provided at disproportionate cost only. Information on spending on recruitment consultancy is not held in a format whereby it can be separated out from other external management consultancy, or from the cost of agency staff. The Government Actuary's Department has provided a nil return, the Valuation Office Agency can confirm that it did not use recruitment consultants during 2006-07, and the Royal Mint and the Debt Management Office have been able to provide the following figures for recruitment consultancy fees.

	Royal Mint	Debt Management Office
1997-98	61	[1]

[1] Figures for years prior to 2002-03 could be provided at disproportionate cost only due to a change in accounting system in that year.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on taxis in 2006-07. [139999]

John Healey: Use of a taxi at the Treasury's expense is not an entitlement and official journeys should wherever possible be made on public transport. However, when there is no reasonable and cost-effective alternative, for example when travelling home after working late into the night, the Treasury may justify the use of a taxi. Expenditure in 2006-07 was £188,000.

Mid-Essex Hospital Trust: Childbirth

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many babies were born in hospitals run by the Mid-Essex Hospital Trust in each of the last 10 years. [145963]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 28 June 2007:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many babies were born in hospitals run by Mid-Essex Hospital Trust in each of the last 10 years. (145963)

Figures on live births in hospitals are available from birth registration information. The latest available figures by place of birth are for 2005. The attached table shows the figures requested for the years 1996 to 2005.

Live births in hospitals run by Mid-Essex Hospital Trust[1], 1996 to 2005

	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005

[1] St. Michael's Hospital in Braintree and the Chelmsford and Essex Centre are also run by Mid-Essex Hospital Trust, but no live births took place in these establishments between 1996 and 2005.

Tax Allowances: Armed Forces

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many claims made by members of HM armed forces for laundry allowance while on deployments and exercises were granted in each of the last five years; and what the (a) total value of the tax allowance and (b) average allowance per claimant was in each of those years; [146296]

(2) for what reasons HM Revenue and Customs does not meet claims made by members of HM armed forces for laundry allowance while on deployments and exercises; and if he will make a statement. [146297]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs does not hold the information requested about the number and value of claims for tax relief for laundry expenses.

Members of the armed forces are normally entitled to free laundry facilities when on deployments and exercises. No tax relief is due in these circumstances.

Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the long-term financial effect of (a) reducing the basic rate of tax from 22p to 20p and (b) abolishing the 10p lower level of tax on pensions over the next (i) 10, (ii) 20, (iii) 30, (iv) 40 and (v) 50 years. [138030]

Ed Balls: The Government do not judge there will be discernable long-term financial effect on pensions resulting from changes to income tax announced in Budget 2007. Any long-term financial effect would depend not only on the marginal rates of relief but also on the future structure of the tax system, the numbers saving for pensions and their contribution levels, the numbers in receipt of pensions and any behavioural response to the changes in rates of relief.

Taxation: Pensioners

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on the reform of taxation for older people on low incomes; if he will commission further research on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [146257]

Ed Balls: The Government have received a number of representations on this subject following the reforms to personal taxation announced in this year's Budget. For older people, the Budget announced that the age-related income tax allowances for those aged 65 or over and 75 or over will rise by £1,180 above indexation in April 2008. By April 2011 no pensioner aged 75 or over will pay any tax until their income reaches £10,000 a year. These reforms will remove 580,000 pensioners from paying tax in April 2008.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many instances there have been of debt caused by overpayment of tax credits being (a) generated and (b) subsequently cancelled, broken down by (i) constituency or (ii) nearest equivalent geographical area in the last year for which figures are available; and how much was (A) generated and (B) cancelled in each such area in the same period. [146241]

Dawn Primarolo: Statistical information relating to working tax credit and child tax credit is available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Information about overpayments of tax credits, which HM Revenue and Customs decide claimants should not be asked to pay back in accordance with its Code of Practice 26, is not kept at constituency or regional level.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pensions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions by what means a woman whose husband reaches 65 years is advised of her right to claim a pension based on his contributions to replace the pension she is drawing based on her own contributions. [146242]

James Purnell: The Pension Service contacts customers four months before they reach state pension age to invite them to claim state pension by telephone.

Over the phone they are asked to provide their marital status and, if appropriate, the national insurance number of their spouse. If the man is married and his wife is over state pension age and in receipt of a basic state pension based on her own contributions but which is less than the rate of pension based on her husband's contributions, a claim form is issued to her.

If customers who wish to claim by post, they are asked to complete and return a tear-off slip from the invitation to request a claim pack. The tear-off asks men "Is your wife aged 60 or over?" If the customer ticks "yes", a claim form is also sent out to their wife.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Broadcasting Programmes: Scots Gaelic Language

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the new Gaelic television channel is expected to commence transmission. [146015]

Mr. Lammy: A precise date has not yet been set. However, we hope the new Gaelic digital service, providing a vastly improved service to the Gaelic-speaking community not only in its heartlands of the Highlands and Islands, but across Scotland, will be launched as soon as is practicable.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145970]

Mr. Lammy: The percentage of stress-related sick leave taken by staff in the last three financial years is as follows:

	Percentage of sick leave
2004-05	3
2005-06	10.5

The Department has been improving the way in which it monitors and records sickness absence.

As part of our attendance, health and welfare programme for staff, we have a range of policies in place to reduce stress. These include: a stress management policy; a revised sickness absence policy; a full range of flexible working patterns to support work-life balance; an on-site gym and yoga classes.

The Department also launched the employee assistance programme in April 2007, which includes a confidential advisory service and counselling service for all staff.

We will also be undertaking a stress audit at the end of 2007, beginning of 2008.

DEFENCE

Army: Reserve Forces

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the present strength is of the Army Volunteer Reserve. [146763]

Mr. Ingram: The present strength of the Army Volunteer Reserve (Territorial Army) as at 1 March 2007 is 35,700. This figure includes Mobilised Territorial Army and Officer Training Corps, but excludes full-time reserve service personnel and non-regular permanent staff.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the 1 April 2007 data will be available under heading TSP07 Strength of all Services Reserves and Cadets on the Defence Analytical Service Agency website. [146764]

Mr. Ingram: "TSP7 UK Reserves and Cadets Strengths at 1 April 2007" will be published on the Defence Analytical Services Agency website during September 2007. The actual date of publication will be pre-announced not less than two weeks prior to publication on the Office for National Statistics website in line with National Statistics protocols.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the missile defence feasibility study that was delivered to the NATO summit in Riga in 2006. [146743]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 165W, to the hon. Member for North Devon (Nick Harvey).

Defence Equipment: Exhibitions

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) from which countries buyers (a) have been and (b) will be invited to the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition at the ExCel Centre in September; [145715]

(2) on which days the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition will be open to (a) overseas customers, (b) the press and (c) the public; and what estimate he has made of the number of visitors expected at the event; [145716]

(3) what the estimated cost of the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition is to the public purse. [145717]

Mr. Ingram: The full list of countries that will receive official invitations to Defence Systems and Equipment International is still being finalised. The Defence Export Services Organisation (DESO) intends to publish a list of those countries from which delegations are invited a day or so in advance of the exhibition opening, the timing being consistent with the security of guests. It is planned to place this list on the DESO internet site:

www.deso.mod.uk

The exhibition is organised by Reed Exhibitions Ltd. We understand it will be open to registered visitors including from overseas, and accredited media representatives between 11-14 September 2007. It will not be open to the general public. An estimate of the number of visitors likely to attend is a matter for the organisers.

The costs of hosting official overseas delegations at DSEiO7 will largely be met by the organisers. The balance of these costs met from Defence funds is expected to be in the region of £120,000. Other MOD costs will be met from a number of budgets and an estimate of these cannot be centrally made. No estimate has been made of costs for which MOD is not responsible.

Departments: Assets

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assets and resources have been disposed of by his Department in the last 10 years; and what revenues have been accrued as a result. [145490]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 26 June 2007]: Tens of thousands of individual fixed assets are disposed of annually, either as a result of changing requirements, upgrade or replacement programmes or where equipment has reached the end of its serviceable life. Information on all items disposed of could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Proceeds from the disposal of fixed assets were not held centrally before financial year 1999-2000. From 1999-2000 the figures are as follows:

Financial year	Proceeds (£)
1999-2000	234,862,000
2000-01	317,987,000
2001-02	287,923,000
2002-03	404,774,000
2003-04	481,298,000
2004-05	266,912,000
2005-06	299,317,000

[146776]

Departments: Northern Ireland

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the concordat governing the relationship between his Department and the Northern Ireland administration. [145942]

Mr. Ingram: No such concordat exists.

The principles set out in the Memorandum of Understanding and Supplementary Agreements between the UK Government, Scottish Ministers, the Cabinet of the National Assembly for Wales and the Northern Ireland Executive, published in 2001, continue to underpin our working relationship with the Northern Ireland Executive.

RAF Brize Norton

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the Ministry of Defence regulations for civil aircraft use of RAF Brize Norton. [145308]

Des Browne [holding answer 26 June 2007]: Yes, once the regulations have been redacted to remove classified information.

Rendition

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates aircraft HZ-124 has landed at RAF Brize Norton since 21 May 2007. [145309]

Des Browne [holding answer 26 June 2007]: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of travel arrangements of foreign governments.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1052W, on rendition, on which 14 dates aircraft HZ-124 landed at RAF Brize Norton between 1 July 2006 and 21 May 2007; and what the total amount is of the fees paid by the owner of HZ-124 to his Department for using RAF Brize Norton since 1 July 2006. [145488]

Des Browne [holding answer 26 June 2007]: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of travel arrangements by foreign governments. The fees for the use of RAF Brize Norton by aircraft HZ-124 since 1 July 2006 were waived in accordance with the regulations in Chapter 7, Annex F of Joint Service Publication 360, which govern the waiver of charges for the use of military airfields by British and foreign civil and military aircraft.

The hon. Member may also wish to note that my answer of the 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1053W, was incorrect and should have read:

> Since 1 July 2006, aircraft HZ 124 has landed 15 times at RAF Brize Norton. The aircraft operated in accordance with the MOD regulations for civil aircraft use of military airfields. The regulations also cover the applicability and level of landing, housing, parking and insurance fees charges. The regulations have been adhered to for each flight.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Recycling

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what research has been conducted by the Department and its agencies on (a) the effectiveness of the Green Dot approach to recycling in the countries that have adopted this initiative and (b) assessing its feasibility in the UK; [145621]

(2) what factors the Government take into account when deciding whether to adopt the Green Dot approach to recycling; and what assessment the Government have made of its use in other European Union member states. [146136]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answers 27 June 2007]: No such research has been conducted and my Department has not carried out any assessments of the systems employed in other member states.

The Green Dot system is used in several member states to transpose the requirements of the EU directive on packaging and packaging waste. The Green Dot is a licensed trademark which denotes compliance with an authorised packaging recovery scheme in other European Union member states. Its use indicates that a financial contribution has been paid to a national packaging recovery company, set up in accordance with the principles defined in the EU directive and the national law which transposes it.

The Green Dot is not a recycling symbol, although is often misinterpreted as such, so should not be used to denote general recyclability or recycled content.

The Green Dot system is not used in the UK; producer responsibility obligations are fulfilled via a different method. The management of packaging and packaging waste is covered by two sets of regulations in the UK, the Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations 2007 and the Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended). The packaging waste regulations require producers to buy packaging waste recovery notes (PRNs), or the export equivalent (PERNs), to demonstrate that they have financed a certain amount of recycling. Introducing a Green Dot system, therefore, would simply mean changing the system we have used in the UK to implement the provision of the packaging directive, rather than extending producer responsibility.

The approach that has been taken by the UK is unique and was formulated and agreed with industry following the adoption of the EU directive on packaging and packaging waste.

Waste Disposal: Nappies

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of reusable nappies to reductions in landfill material. [146506]

Mr. Bradshaw: Disposable nappies form 2-3 per cent. of the household waste stream, approximately 400,000 tonnes per year.

Reusable nappies may reduce demands on landfill but they still impact on the environment in other ways, such as the water and energy used in washing and drying them. In May 2005, the Environment Agency published a report entitled "A Life Cycle Assessment of disposable and reusable nappies in the UK". The report concluded that there was no significant difference between any of the environmental impacts of the disposable, home use reusable and commercial laundry systems that were assessed. None of the systems studied were more or less environmentally preferable.

The DEFRA-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme's (WRAP) Real Nappy Campaign was established to promote the use of reusable nappies. The three-year campaign succeeded in diverting approximately 23,000 tonnes of biodegradable nappy waste from landfill in England.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of (a) the length of time required for a disposable nappy to fully decompose in landfill and (b) the number of tonnes of (i) carbon dioxide, (ii) methane and (iii) other greenhouse gases which are emitted by landfill disposable nappies in each (A) first 10 years after disposal and (B) subsequent decade until total decomposition. [146507]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Wisard software tool used by the Environment Agency in their report, "Life Cycle Assessment of Disposable and Reusable Nappies in the UK", assumed a 500 year time boundary for leachate in landfill. The Environment Agency therefore concluded that it would take that amount of time for the plastic part of a disposable nappy to decompose. The paper-fluff and faeces should take approximately 100 and 10 years respectively to degrade.

My Department does not hold the information requested on the gases emitted by landfilled disposable nappies. However, the Environment Agency's report (available from their website and the Library of the House) does contain some information on the impacts of disposable nappies on global warming and the gases involved.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the annual volume of disposable nappies going to landfill in each of the last five years. [146552]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Romsey (Sandra Gidley) on 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2122W.

Waste Management

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 June 2007, Official Report, column 1371W, on waste management, which measures his Department (a) has introduced and (b) plans to introduce that are specifically designed to reduce the amount of waste that the UK produces. [146100]

Mr. Bradshaw: Waste Strategy for England 2007, published on 24 May 2007, sets out a range of measures which will drive the reduction of the amount of waste produced in England. Table 8.6 of the strategy summarises how these measures will help to drive waste reduction. Further detail is available throughout the strategy which is available on the DEFRA website and in the Library of the House.

Waste management is a devolved matter and, in the rest of the United Kingdom, is the responsibility of the respective devolved Administrations.

Written Questions

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 17 May to the Minister of State on recycling plants. [146705]

Mr. Bradshaw: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 20 June 2007. I apologise for the delay which occurred due to high volumes of correspondence received.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Cuba: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the political situation in Cuba. [145771]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The June EU Council Conclusions on Cuba reaffirmed the UK view that there have been no significant changes to the political, economic and social system in Cuba over the last year, despite the temporary transfer of power from Fidel to Raul Castro last July. The conclusions state that the Council

"deplores that the human rights situation has not fundamentally changed" and observe that

"the Cuban Government continues to deny its citizens internationally recognised civil, political and economic rights and freedoms".

In response to this lack of change, UK/EU policy continues to be based on the 1996 EU Common Position, which states that the EU's main objective is to encourage a peaceful transition to pluralist democracy in Cuba. The UK/EU remains committed to a two-track policy of intensive dialogue with both the Cuban Government 'and' civil society in Cuba. We also continue to urge the Cuban Government to improve human rights standards in Cuba, including the unconditional release of all political prisoners.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2001-02; and at what total cost. [146589]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office introduced performance-related bonus payments for staff in its senior management structure (senior civil service) in 2003-04. We did not pay bonuses to senior staff during the period from 1997 to 2001-02.

European Constitution Treaty

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many meetings involving UK (a) officials and (b) Ministers with (i) officials and (ii) Ministers of other EU countries were held to discuss the EU Amending treaty in the three months before 23 June 2007. [146250]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the former Prime Minister, Mr. Tony Blair, my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the former Foreign Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), the former Minister for Europe and officials had numerous meetings with EU partners in the period leading up to the European Council. Discussions covered many areas, including EU institutional reform. My right hon. Friend the former Foreign Secretary's discussions included those with her EU counterparts at the 17-18 June General Affairs and External Relations Council, which considered a presidency report on EU institutional reform.

Iraq: Asylum

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance has been given to Iraqi citizens who have provided interpretation services for official UK representatives in Iraq to (a) enter and (b) remain in the UK on grounds of their security; and how many Iraqis have been assisted in this way. [146018]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold a central record of applications for assistance to enter and remain in the UK on grounds of security, from Iraqi citizens who have provided interpretation services for UK representatives in Iraq. In order to answer my hon. Friend's question accurately, officials at all diplomatic posts, and some Departments in the UK, would be required to examine all their records since 2003, which would incur disproportionate cost.

As I said in my response to the hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Mr. Moore) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2206W, in line with our policy worldwide, we do not comment on the substance of individual immigration or consular cases, and all applications are dealt with on a case-by-case basis.

HEALTH

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Health Services

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the adequacy of specialist services for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis; and if he will make a statement; [146603]

(2) when (a) he and (b) officials in his Department last met representatives of the charities and organisations working on behalf of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis patients; and what matters were discussed. [146604]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no assessment of the impact of the adequacy of specialist services for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME).

We are not aware of any recent meetings by ministers or officials with representatives of charities and organisations working on behalf of those living with CFS/ME.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Connecting for Health has paid Google for the sponsored link on Google's search engine; and which words or phrases in the search criteria bring up Connecting for Health as a sponsored link. [141977]

Caroline Flint: This link was established by a communications agency contracted to NHS Connecting for Health without authorisation and without consultation on the search criteria used. This was part of a wider programme of initiatives to improve communications about the Connecting for Health programme. The arrangement has been terminated. No costs have been borne by NHS Connecting for Health or indeed by the taxpayer.

We are exploring with the agency concerned the circumstances under which this arrangement was made and the terms under which it operated, including the search criteria. We will write to the hon. Member when these inquiries are complete, and a copy will be placed in the Library.

Royal Cornwall Hospitals NHS Trust: Finance

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was allocated to the Royal Cornwall Hospital Trust in each of the last 10 years; and what the average allocation was to hospital trusts in England over the same period. [146245]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Revenue allocations are made directly to primary care trusts (PCTs), not national health service trusts or individual hospitals. NHS trusts receive most of their income through the commissioning arrangements they have with PCTs.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration Appeals

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what the average time a Home Office presenting officer spent on (a) a deportation appeal, (b) an asylum appeal and (c) an immigration appeal, excluding the time spent travelling and waiting for, and presenting, an appeal hearing was over the last 12 months. [141409]

Jacqui Smith: Over the last 12 months the average time spent by a presenting officer on an individual deportation appeal or an individual asylum appeal was three hours and thirty-six minutes. The average time spent by a presenting officer on an individual immigration appeal was one hour and thirty-six minutes. These figures exclude time spent travelling, waiting for and presenting appeal hearings. They represent the average preparation time spent by a presenting officer for each case type.

It should be noted, however. that this is only an average time. Cases vary tremendously in their complexity, therefore Presenting Officers will spend whatever time is required to prepare a case to the necessary standard.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Trade Unions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on how many occasions he has met members of the University and College Union to discuss academic boycotts. [146158]

Bill Rammell: In the course of regular discussions with the University and College Union I have discussed academic boycotts and made clear the Government's opposition to them.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

CDC Capital Partners: Pensions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to provide guarantees for (a) present and (b) former employees of CDC that their pensions will be assured following any flotation or sale. [146706]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: DFID has no present plans for a flotation or sale of CDC.

Pension benefits for current and former CDC employees are provided through the CDC pensions scheme. This is a conventional UK occupational pension scheme, established under trust and with its assets entirely separate from CDC. No payment can be made from the scheme to CDC, except in circumstances where the scheme is wound up, and a surplus exists after all benefits have been secured in full by the purchase of annuities.

The most recent actuarial valuation was undertaken on 31 March 2006. This showed the scheme, although better funded than most UK pension schemes, to have a shortfall of assets against liabilities. Additional contributions are being paid by CDC to remove that shortfall. In addition, CDC has put aside significant additional assets in a contingent funding arrangement which safeguards the future payment of the shortfall contributions and provides materially improved security for the accrued benefits of scheme members.

Developing Countries: Sight Impaired

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with EU counterparts on improving the availability of accessible eye-care in developing countries. [146478]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Neither I nor my predecessor have had any discussions with EU counterparts about improving the availability of accessible eye-care in developing countries.

JUSTICE

Asylum

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on what date the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal notified the Home Office of the judge's decision in Tribunal Case VA/31440/2006 (FCO number 1198381), promulgated on 29 March, about the case of Mr. M.I. sponsored by Mr. R.A. of Aylesbury. [146722]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information shows that the immigration judge decision was served to all parties on the 29 March 2007.

In entry clearance and family visitor appeals the determination is served upon BIA who will arrange for the forwarding of the determination to the entry clearance post that made the original refusal.

National Offender Management Service

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on the National Offender Management Service in each year since its inception; and what the budget distribution was per region in each year. [146746]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The National Offender Management Service was created on 1 June 2004. The net resource outturn as recorded in the Home Office accounts, is as follows:

2004-05	[1]3,695,058,000
2005-06	4,084,141,000
2006-07	[2]4,342,070,000

[1] Figures relate to the full year
[2] Provisional subject to audit

Significant parts of the NOMS' budget are not distributed on a regional basis, and the local services may serve a wider catchment area than their geographical location, so a regional analysis of the overall NOMS budget cannot be achieved without disproportionate cost.

Peterborough Prison: Prisoners Release

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of prisoners in HMP Peterborough who are likely to be released early; and if he will make a statement. [146315]

Mr. Hanson: Figures for release are not available to be broken down by establishment.

Prisoners: Police Stations

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 25 June to question 144968, on police cells costs, what range of nightly cost was used in calculating the £385 per night average cost; what the (a) highest and (b) lowest nightly invoice received so far is; and whether his Department is made aware of the cost per night before placing prisoners in police cells. [146479]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Police forces do not invoice nightly for Operation Safeguard expenses. The £385 per prisoner per night figure was calculated by applying experience of the costs of Operation Safeguard in 2002. Police forces may submit monthly, bi-monthly or consolidated invoices and the highest and lowest nightly invoices are therefore not centrally held.

The actual cost of holding a prisoner under Operation Safeguard varies between forces.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Pay

Jo Swinson: To ask the Leader of the House which hon. Members elected at the 2005 election are not drawing their salaries as hon. Members. [146477]

Ms Harman: All current Members elected at the 2005 election are at present drawing their salary except for the five Sinn Fein MPs, none of whom have taken the Oath.

PRIME MINISTER

Accident and Emergency Departments: Closures

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to meet the Secretary of State for Health to discuss the closures of accident and emergency departments. [146484]

The Prime Minister: I shall be meeting all ministerial colleagues.

TRANSPORT

Community Railways Initiative

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what progress has been made on each of the six pilots in the Community Rail Development Strategy; [146715]

(2) what progress has been made on identifying and separating out maintenance and renewal costs for community rail lines as envisaged in the Community Rail Development Strategy; [146716]

(3) what plans her Department has to implement the Community Rail Development Strategy; [146717]

(4) what progress has been made in increasing use of community rail lines as envisaged in the Community Rail Development Strategy. [146718]

Mr. Tom Harris: A review of the Community Rail Development Strategy, setting out progress in implementing the strategy and plans for further action, was published in March 2007. A copy is available in the House Library.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her policy is on single wagon marshalling for freight on the UK rail network. [146254]

Mr. Tom Harris: Freight operations on the UK rail network are a commercial matter for the private sector companies which operate the trains.

TREASURY

Members: Correspondence

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter of 3 May 2007 from the hon. Member for North Down on the supply of a VAT number to Lighthouse Electrical in Donaghadee, County Down. [147195]

Dawn Primarolo: I replied to the hon. Lady on 26 June.

Taxation: Shipping

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue HM Revenue and Customs received from businesses subject to incorrect Customs procedures codes being entered on export shipments of inward processing relief goods in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [145093]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC advise me that to September 2006, errors have been identified involving 484 businesses. The total revenue involved amounts to £19.7 million customs duty and £81.9 million recoverable import VAT. Of the 484 confirmed cases, 203 have been granted remission from customs duty; following a departmental review by HMRC. This has remitted 564,000 of the £19.7 million customs duty.

WALES

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146325]

Mr. Hain: Since its inception in July 1999, the Wales Office has spent the following on external consultants.

2000-01	16,294
2001-02	31,084
2002-03	10,758
2006-07	37,699

None of these consultants undertook work in excess of £10 million.

Departments: Domestic Visits

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what visits have been made by Wales Office Ministers to Welsh prisons; and what the dates of such visits were in the last 12 months. [146287]

Mr. Hain: Prisons in Wales are the responsibility of the Ministry for Justice. Neither myself nor the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Wales has visited a Welsh prison in the last 12 months, but we have had discussions with ministerial colleagues about prison issues in Wales.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146085]

Mr. Hain: Officials in the Economic and European Affairs Policy Branch of the Wales Office are involved to a limited degree in EU business. None work exclusively on EU business.

Driving: Insurance

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Home Secretary on action taken by the police to identify uninsured drivers in Wales. [146554]

Mr. Hain: I understand that the police make extensive use of insurance data made available through the Motor Insurers' Bureau to tackle the serious problem of uninsured driving. I understand that the latest figures indicate that 94.4 per cent. of all appropriate records are provided to the Motor Insurance Database within seven days. This is in line with expectations to meet the target of 95 per cent. of all appropriate records provided to the database within seven days by 1 January 2008.

Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what visits he has made to Wales on ministerial business; and what the purpose and date of each visit was. [146286]

Mr. Hain: Since becoming Secretary of State in 2002, I have always undertaken a busy programme of meetings, visits and functions with a wide range of organisations in Wales. It would require a disproportionate cost to identify and list all of the visits I have made, but specific examples are referred to in the Wales Office annual reports.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Jobseekers Allowance

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1741W, on jobseeker's allowance, if he will provide equivalent data for 1997. [146573]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

New Deal for Young People

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 2 July 2007

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Detainees

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements are in place to ensure that UK resident citizens detained at Guantanamo Bay receive regular health checks; and if he will make a statement. [146596]

Dr. Howells: There are no longer any British nationals detained in Guantanamo Bay. However, we continue to raise humanitarian and human rights concerns about those other nationals detained at Guantanamo Bay with the US authorities, including issues relating to detainees who were formerly resident in the UK. In this context, we have recently been told that all detainees at Guantanamo Bay have regular access to medical professionals.

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the US authorities on securing independent investigations into the allegations of torture and ill-treatment of UK citizens while detained at Guantanamo Bay; and if he will make a statement. [146597]

Dr. Howells: We take all allegations of mistreatment of British nationals abroad very seriously and unreservedly condemn the use of torture.

There are no longer any British nationals detained in Guantanamo Bay. However, we did pursue all credible allegations of abuse regarding those British detainees who were detained there and subsequently released in 2004 and 2005. We pressed the US to examine the allegations. We also raised concerns about issues including isolation, lack of access to daylight and lack of exercise with respect to the British detainees, and secured a number of improvements to their physical conditions of detention.

Arms Trade: Firearms

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to establish an international treaty to prohibit the sale of small arms. [146613]

Dr. Howells: The Government are committed to leading work to secure a legally binding treaty to set standards for the international trade in conventional arms, including small arms. On 6 December 2006 we secured agreement to start a UN process to take forward this work, with the backing of 153 states. In March we submitted to the UN the United Kingdom's views on the initiative, making clear we envisage a treaty which will allow the responsible sale of small arms but will prohibit their sale in certain cases, including where they will be used in the commission of serious violations of international humanitarian or human rights law, or to provoke or exacerbate internal or regional conflict.

Commonwealth: International Conferences

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he expects the President of the host country for the forthcoming Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting in Kampala to exercise the prerogative to extend invitations outside designated member states; and if he will make a statement. [147186]

Dr. Howells: The host of the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting (CHOGM) may extend invitations to non-member states in consultation with the Commonwealth Secretary-General and on this basis the Government of Uganda has invited two members of the East Africa Community, Rwanda and Burundi, to the CHOGM in Kampala this November. The Commonwealth Secretary-General is responsible for extending invitations to other international organisations.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1216W, on Departments: advertising, what terms and conditions apply to membership of the Know Before You Go campaign and the granting of an entry and logo display on the list of the Department's campaign partners on its website. [145987]

Dr. Howells: The following terms and conditions apply to becoming a member of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Know Before You Go (KBYG) campaign and having an entry and logo display on the FCO website:

www.fco.gov.uk/travel

A potential partner is required to complete an 'information form' which the KBYG team uses to assess the applicant's suitability. The applicant is asked to provide details of the reach of the organisation and relevant customer base; their media spend, the number of communication channels they use and what is their association with one or more of a list of KBYG recognised high risk groups.

If suitable, a potential partner is sent a Partner Framework and Agreement to sign which sets out the following requirements: promoting key messages of the campaign including FCO Travel Advice; encouraging travellers to get adequate and comprehensive travel insurance; informing travellers about preparations they need to make before travelling; informing travellers about the consular assistance they can and cannot receive once abroad.

Furthermore, a partner will have the responsibility wherever possible to promote the campaign to its customers through its own communications initiatives and distribute marketing materials. The partner will also need to have a secure and established website or newsletter, which hosts the KBYG logo and link to the FCO website in a prominent position. We also expect where possible the partner to work together with other partners and the FCO on a strategic level to leverage the campaign and where appropriate offer feedback and case studies of campaign activity.

We also request that the applicant operates in accordance with best practice guidelines or codes of conduct, as outlined by relevant industry bodies, trade associations or professional institutions. The terms and conditions make clear that being part of this campaign by no means entitles partners to claim that the FCO endorses their product or services in any way.

Partners are expected not in any way to bring the campaign into disrepute and at the absolute discretion of the FCO partner status can be immediately withdrawn. In such instances the partner agrees to remove immediately all references to the KBYG campaign from its website and literature.

Being a partner in the campaign does not give rise to any payment from the FCO, except where the FCO decides to co-sponsor specific communications activities with particularly relevant partners, for example, the co-funding of a guide to travel safety produced by "Lonely Planet" books and distributed free to younger independent travellers.

Diplomatic Service: Dismissal

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many foreign diplomats were asked to leave their posts by the Government in each of the last 10 years; what the reasons were for the request; and from which countries' embassies each was expelled. [146121]

Dr. Howells: Information on the number of diplomats that have left their post as a result of a specific request by the Government could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, information held centrally indicates that, from the community of about 24,000 individuals entitled to diplomatic immunity, 28 foreign diplomats have been withdrawn from the UK in the last 10 years after some form of representation from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Details of the missions at which they served and the reasons for their withdrawals are as follows:

European Union: Constitutions

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with his Polish counterpart during the recent conference in Brussels to discuss the new EU constitutional treaty. [146996]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the former Foreign Secretary had discussions with counterparts from a number of EU partners during the European Council in Brussels, including the Polish Foreign Minister.

European Union: Treaties

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish a White Paper when the new European Union treaty is available, setting out side by side what the original constitution said and what the new treaty proposes. [147179]

Dr. Howells: The Government will present to Parliament a White Paper setting out their approach to the Intergovernmental Conference.

The White Paper will set out in detail the changes to be introduced by the proposed "reform treaty". Once published, copies of the White Paper will be available in the Library of the House.

India: Demonstrations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on protests by Maoist rebels against the Indian Government in the districts of Bihar, Purlieu, Jharkhand and West Bengal, Andhra Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra; and what assessment he has made of the scale of those protests and numbers of fatalities. [146936]

Dr. Howells: Our high commission in New Delhi and the deputy high commission in Kolkata regularly monitor the situation in respect of the Maoist (Naxal) protests in India.

We are concerned about continuing reports in the media of violence and fatalities, but this remains an internal matter for the Indian Government. Prime Minister Manmohan Singh has described Naxalism as the 'single biggest' threat to the country's internal security.

Kashmir: Human Rights

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the United Kingdom will support the establishment of an independent commission of inquiry into violations of international human rights and humanitarian law by Indian security forces in Jammu and Kashmir; and if she will make a statement. [146110]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned about all reports of human rights abuses in Kashmir, including allegations of violations perpetrated by the Indian security forces and militant groups. We have welcomed Indian commitments to investigate and curb violations and will continue to call for an improvement in the human rights situation in Kashmir.

Saudi Arabia: Foreign Relations

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Saudi Arabian counterpart on the future of Anglo-Saudi relations. [147002]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the former Foreign Secretary met with His Royal Highness Prince Saud Al Faisal at the Lebanon Donor Conference in January and at the Iraq Compact Group in May. Their discussions concerned the continuing close UK/Saudi bilateral relationship, as well as other key regional issues.

Somalia: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of India on that country's role in peacekeeping in Somalia. [146860]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the former Foreign Secretary did not made any representations to the Government of India on that country's role in peacekeeping in Somalia.

Vietnam: Oppression

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the government of Vietnam on the persecution of Christians in that country, with particular reference to (a) Nguyen Van Dai and Le Thi Cong Nhan, (b) Father Thaddeus Nguyen Van Ly and (c) the Hmong people; and if she will make a statement. [146501]

Dr. Howells: We, along with our EU partners have made numerous representations to the Vietnamese government on the arrest and sentencing of Lawyers Nguyen Van Dai, Le Thi Cong Nhan and Father Nguyen Van Ly.

Most recently, on 15 May, the EU issued a statement expressing its concern about the recent arrests and calling on the Vietnamese government to release all non-violent political activists who have exercised their rights to freedom of expression and association.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney), the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs raised human rights issues at a meeting with Vietnamese Vice Minister Le Cung Phung during the EU/Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting on 14 and 15 March and again with the Vietnamese Ambassador on 10 May.

We continue to monitor the situation of ethnic minorities in Vietnam, including the Hmong people, through regular field missions. EU officials, including the UK, raise our concerns about religious freedoms and restrictions with the Vietnamese on a regular basis. Most recently during the EU/Vietnam human rights dialogue on 28 June.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146420]

Edward Miliband: The number of senior civil servants in the Cabinet Office awarded bonuses and the total cost of these bonuses, since the bonus pot was introduced in 2002, are as follows:

Year	Number of bonuses	Total cost (£)
2006	112	764,000
2005	112	507,500
2004	88	439,800
2003	77	360,500
2002	89	216,900

Bonuses were not awarded to senior civil servants prior to 2002.

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Office in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146981]

Edward Miliband: The number of civil servants (including senior civil servants) in the Cabinet Office awarded end of year bonuses and the total cost of these bonuses over the past three years are as follows:

Year	Number of staff	Total cost (£)
2006	809	1,608,000
2005	867	1,402,000
2004	838	1,225,802

There is also a small number of staff receiving in-year bonuses. The total cost is not held centrally and would only be available at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Training

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department spent on away days located outside his Department's buildings in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [146863]

Edward Miliband: It is not possible to readily identify from the Department's accounting system how much the Cabinet Office spent on away days located outside the Department's buildings. This information is available only at disproportionate cost.

All Cabinet Office expenditure on away days is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting and other HM Treasury guidance.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much public expenditure was incurred by Directgov for paying to send staff to attend the Good Communication Awards on 30 May 2007 held at the Marriott Grosvenor Hotel, London. [146864]

Edward Miliband: Directgov were nominated for, and won, the Good Communications Mobile Technology Award 2007 and received a commendation for the Central Government Website of the Year Award. The only costs incurred by Directgov were for the purchase of two tickets for the awards at a cost of £50 per ticket (£100 in total).

Departments: Vacancies

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster for what reason the vacancies published on the Government Communication Network public website will no longer be advertised to the public. [146866]

Edward Miliband: The Government Communication Network (GCN) website (www.comms.gov.uk) is now a password-protected site for Government communicators and other civil servants. The new GCN site has been made into a more practical and interactive resource to support the professional development of Government communicators.

All job vacancies which are open to the public are now advertised on the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway and through other public media such as newspapers and specialist magazines.

Official Residences: Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Cabinet Office received from the Deputy Prime Minister's Office for the official residence of the Deputy Prime Minister in Admiralty House (a) in total and (b) to cover the cost of (i) rent, (ii) security, (iii) utilities, (iv) facilities management and (v) general maintenance in 2006-07. [147196]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office received a total of £173,000 from the Deputy Prime Minister's Office in 2006-07 in relation to the Deputy Prime Minister's official residence at Admiralty House.

The operation of Admiralty House is covered by a single facilities management contract which covers maintenance, renovation, security and running costs. It is not possible, within the overall total, to separately identify the costs that arise from the three flats in Admiralty House. However, for internal accounting purposes the Deputy Prime Minister's Office meets 20.7 per cent. of the costs of the operation of the entire building. This is calculated on the basis of the floor area of the flat as a proportion of the total floor area of Admiralty House.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Freedom of Information

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what requests have been made to his Department under the Freedom of Information (FOI) Act 2000; and what the (a) FOI case reference number, (b) request summary, (c) request outcome and (d) reason for exemption was in each case where appropriate. [146843]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 1 January 2005, DFID has received 589 Freedom of Information (FOI) requests covering a very broad range of subjects. Each case is logged and given a reference number. DFID is committed to openness and transparency in accordance with the spirit of the FOI Act, and the presumption is always in favour of disclosure unless exemptions are found to apply. For example, in 2006, 80 per cent. of FOI requests received by DFID were answered in full without the withholding of any information. Only in 7 per cent. of cases was information fully withheld under permissible exemptions, often after consultation with other Government Departments such as the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence.

To provide a summary of each of the 589 requests, the request outcome, and any exemptions used could be done only at disproportionate cost. Summary statistical information on the outcomes of FOI requests and exemptions used are reported by DFID to the Ministry of Justice every quarter and can be accessed on the Ministry of Justice website at:

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Mass Media

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of 24 April 2007, Official Report, column 1013W, on armed forces: mass media, 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1665W, on service personnel: media and 8 May 2007, on detainees: Iran, and following the publication of the Fulton and Hall reports, whether he is now in a position to identify any instance of a second-hand account of military experiences being sold to the media by relatives of service personnel who have been refused permission to sell them directly. [145147]

Des Browne [holding answer 27 June 2007]: I have nothing further to add. It remains impossible for the MOD to determine whether relatives of service personnel have sold to the media second-hand accounts of their relative's military experiences. Any such transactions would be a private matter between the media organisation and the individuals concerned.

BAE Systems: Saudi Arabia

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contacts his Department has had with anti-corruption investigators from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development in relation to defence orders with Saudi Arabia since January 2006; and if he will make a statement. [143092]

Des Browne: No one in the Department has had any contact with anti-corruption investigators from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development in relation to defence orders with Saudi Arabia since January 2006.

Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency: USA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there have been revisions of and amendments to the Memorandum of Understanding between the US Government European Command and the Ministry of Defence Police 1989; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [146742]

Des Browne [holding answer 29 June 2007]: To date, there has been no revision or amendment to the 1989 memorandum of understanding between the US Government European Command and the Ministry of Defence police.

Negotiations are currently being held with the US authorities to review the policing and guarding services provided by the Ministry of Defence police.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Sanctions

Jane Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the likely impact of a boycott of Israeli universities and academics by British universities, colleges and academics, as proposed by the Universities and Colleges Union, upon Jewish students studying in Britain. [146236]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The Government fully support academic freedom and are firmly against any academic boycotts of Israel or Israeli academics. The Government have demonstrated their clear commitment to ensuring equality of opportunity in higher education and more broadly in British society. Universities as independent, autonomous bodies are responsible themselves for complying with legislation and fulfilling their statutory duties. Under the Race Relations Act 1976 (as amended by the Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000) university governing bodies are also responsible for assessing the impact of their policies on student and staff of different racial groups.

Students: Complaints

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students have brought complaints to the Office of the Independent Adjudicator in each month since it was established; and if he will make a statement. [146398]

Bill Rammell: The following table shows the latest available information on the number of student complaints handled by the Office of the Independent Adjudicator Scheme, since its inception in 2004.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Modernisation

21. David Taylor: To ask the Leader of the House when she will bring forward plans to modernise further the House of Commons. [146367]

Ms Harman: As I have indicated in my earlier response to the hon. Member for Cardiff, North (Julie Morgan) the Government are considering their response to the Modernisation Committee's recent report on "Revitalising the Chamber". We hope to bring forward specific proposals for the House's consideration as soon as reasonably possible. I remain open to representations on matters for reform.

Westminster Hall Debates

22. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Leader of the House if she will consider extending the amount of time allocated to Westminster Hall debates. [146368]

Ms Harman: I have no plans to do so. The present sitting times for Westminster Hall were set in January 2005 to complement the revised sitting hours agreed at the same time for the main Chamber.

Front-Bench Speeches

23. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the effect on debates of the length of Front-Bench speeches. [146369]

Ms Harman: I have made no such specific assessment. As the hon. Member is aware, the issue of Front-Bench speaking times was discussed in the recent report of the Modernisation Committee on "Revitalising the Chamber: the role of the back bench Member". The Committee recommended the extension to Front-Bench speeches of the power to impose speaking limits, with certain safeguards.

European Legislation: Scrutiny

24. Mr. Cash: To ask the Leader of the House what steps she is taking to ensure effective scrutiny of European legislation; and if she will make a statement. [146370]

Ms Harman: The Government are considering possible measures for the reform of the scrutiny of European legislation and hopes to bring forward proposals in due course.

TRANSPORT

Fast Link Trains

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 June to Question 145649, on fast link trains, what the anticipated frequency is of the one hour and 25 minute fast trains from St. Pancras to Ramsgate; and on what date this service is likely to commence. [146654]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is anticipated that the fast services from St. Pancras to Ramsgate will operate on a one train per hour frequency during the main part of the day, seven days a week. These services are scheduled to be introduced from 13 December 2009.

M1: Castle Donington

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will examine the feasibility of bringing the hard shoulder into use as a carriageway on the M1 motorway in the vicinity of junction 24 during large-scale events likely to lead to congestion at Donington Park circuit at Castle Donington; and if she will make a statement. [146725]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are no plans to introduce hard shoulder running on the M1 motorway in the vicinity of Junction 24 at present.

The Highways Agency is currently evaluating an active traffic management pilot project on a heavily used length of the M42 south east of Birmingham, which includes hard shoulder running. This became fully operational in September 2006 but it is too early to draw definite conclusions at this point.

The Agency expects to produce an evaluation later this year and is continuing a thorough review of the strategic roads network to identify potential locations that might benefit.

The majority of major events at the Donington Park Circuit take place at weekends when traffic flows are lighter. The Highways Agency liaises regularly with the management of Donington Park to plan for events. The Agency has received no reports of any significant traffic problems for this length of the M1 when events are taking place.

M1: Nottingham

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for how long the slip road at junction 25 of the M1 motorway towards Nottingham is likely to remain closed; what the reason is for the closure; and if she will make a statement. [146726]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The A52 slip road at Junction 25 of the M1 motorway is closed while the A52 Bardill's improvement scheme is under construction.

Forecasts from traffic flow figures show that if the slip road was left open there was a real risk of traffic forming queues from Bardill's roundabout back to Junction 25 and onto the M1 motorway. Therefore, for safety reasons, this slip road is to remain closed until the scheme is completed, which is scheduled for 11 August this year.

Motor Vehicles: Safety Measures

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to require new cars sold in the UK to be fitted with electronic stability control. [146728]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As a member of the European Community we accept all cars constructed/approved to a scheme known as European Community whole vehicle type approval. Currently this does not include electronic stability control (ESC) and the UK could not mandate such fitment unilaterally. However, the Government appreciate the potential benefit of ESC and urges anyone buying a new car to give serious consideration to choosing one with ESC fitted.

It is anticipated that the European Commission will bring forward proposals for mandating ESC for cars, once a technical specification and a test method for ESC systems have been agreed. The UK is contributing to the development of both.

Fire Services: Cambridge

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the deadline is for authorities to sign up to the proposed regional fire and rescue control centre to be located in Cambridge. [146651]

Hazel Blears: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 205W, to the hon. Member for Hayes and Harlington (John McDonnell).

Ordnance Survey: Copyright

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring the Ordnance Survey to make licensable or copyright material available to schools and other public educational establishments free of charge; and if she will make a statement. [146016]

Hazel Blears [holding answer 29 June 2007]: In its role as the national mapping agency of Great Britain, Ordnance Survey places great importance on supporting education and learning at all levels, and in responding to its unique position as the only organisation whose products are specifically identified for study within the national curricula.

In addition to the well publicised "Free Maps for 11-Year-Olds" scheme, Ordnance Survey offers a wide range of other opportunities for schools and other public educational establishments to access its licensable and copyright material, much of it free of charge.

Under the "Free Maps for 11-Year-Olds" initiative Ordnance Survey has provided over 3.8 million OS explorer maps free to primary seven pupils in Scotland and year seven pupils in rest of Great Britain through their schools, with a further distribution planned for autumn 2007. All 11-year-old pupils are eligible regardless of the school they attend.

Ordnance Survey provides an educational copyright licence to any school, college or university wishing to copy Ordnance Survey paper mapping or use Ordnance Survey digital map data for educational, research or teaching purposes. The licence is available free to schools for students up to 16-years-old. In addition, individual students may obtain copies of extracts of in-copyright Ordnance Survey mapping from libraries under the terms of exceptions to the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, for their private study, research, criticism or review purposes.

Digital map data are also freely available to LEA-funded schools from their parent local authority under the terms of the Local Authority Mapping Services Agreement. In order to ensure that LEA schools are technically able to access this data, Ordnance Survey has been working closely with the British Education Communications Technology Agency (Becta) to trial an on-line mechanism for the delivery of map data to schools and their suppliers. The 18 month 'MapPilot' project will report in summer 2008.

To further support the educational use of geographic information within schools Ordnance Survey operates a specialist on-line service within its web site. 'MapZone' is an award-winning free resource for school use, available 24 x 7 for teachers and pupils. It contains all the map reading skills required within the national curricula. The latest mapping is also available free of charge to schools and pupils (and the public) through the Ordnance Survey on-line 'Get-a-Map' service from which extracts may be downloaded or printed for a wide range of personal or learning uses.

Ordnance Survey supports teacher training by supplying all tutors of Post Graduate Certificate of Education geography courses across Great Britain with free OS Explorer and OS Landranger maps to aid with training of secondary school teachers. Through sponsorship arrangements with the Royal Geographical Society (RGS) and the teachers' professional body. The Geography Association (GA), Ordnance Survey also supports the provision of free geography teaching materials and teacher in service training (INSET).

Further and higher education needs are served through a collective purchasing agreement between Ordnance Survey and the Higher Education Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC). A basket of Ordnance Survey digital mapping products is available for use for teaching and non-commercial research use within higher and further education establishments—each establishment pays a single annual subscription for all agreed use by staff and students.

The value of providing further services for free is continually held under review. The Government published their response to an independent review by Ed Mayo and Tom Steinberg, "The Power of Information" on 25 June 2007. This made clear that Ordnance Survey will look very seriously at launching Open Space, a project which would allow non-commercial experimentation with mapping data.

JUSTICE

Community Legal Service: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions his Department has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on the establishment of a Community Legal Services Strategy for Wales; and if he will make a statement. [147015]

Bridget Prentice: In December 2006, the Legal Services Commission (LSC) and Welsh Assembly Government (WAG) issued a joint consultation paper; Making Rights a Reality in Wales. The consultation closed on 2 March 2007 and the responses have all been analysed. A response to the consultation will be published in late summer.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146092]

Bridget Prentice: Officials throughout the Ministry of Justice are involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in the European and International Division total six. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Newcastle-upon-Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of (a) his Department's and (b) courts service staff in Newcastle-upon-Tyne are in each of the five new area related paybands; and how many are at, or above, the top of the new area related payband scales. [146225]

Bridget Prentice: All staff employed by Ministry of Justice from the former DCA (including HMCS and Tribunals Service staff) who are based in Newcastle-upon-Tyne have been allocated to the same pay range (within the five available pay ranges).

302 members of staff are employed by HMCS and the Tribunals Service in Newcastle-upon-Tyne and of these, 13 are currently paid salaries at, or above, the top of the payband relevant to Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Of the 302, 216 members of staff are employed by HMCS, of whom four are paid at, or above, the top of the payband relevant to Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

These arrangements do not apply to staff employed by the Home Office or its agencies prior who transferred to the Ministry of Justice on 9 May 2007.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146424]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice was created on 9 May 2007. The information provided relates to former DCA Senior Civil Service (SCS). It excludes those staff in the Tribunals Service and who joined former DCA on 1 April 2006 and those who joined the new Ministry from the Home Office for whom information is not currently available. As the SCS bonus scheme only came into being in 2002, information is provided from this point forward.

Senior Civil Service bonuses received for staff on former DCA terms and conditions:
2002	44	128,836
2003	43	170,557
2004	69	268,900
2005	105	537,687
2006	118	821,750

Electoral Register: Barnet

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the measures put in place by Barnet council to ensure the electoral register for Grahame Park, Colindale is properly compiled; and if he will make a statement. [146786]

Bridget Prentice: The Department has not made an assessment of the measures put in place by Barnet council but I understand the Electoral Registration Officer (ERO) has been conducting a canvass of properties in Grahame Park, Colindale in an effort to maintain an accurate register and to raise registration levels.

Section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 sets out the necessary steps that all EROs must take to maintain the register. These include sending the canvass form more than once to any address, conducting house to house enquiries and making contact by such means as appropriate.

It is for the ERO to decide on the best steps to use in conjunction with their local knowledge to ensure that requirements for making contact with persons and maintaining the register are complied with.

Home Detention Curfews

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convicted criminals were returned to prison for breaking home detention curfews in the last three years for which figures are available. [146061]

Mr. Hanson: The number of prisoners recalled for breaching their HDC conditions were 1,470 in 2003, 1,710 in 2004 and 1,722 in 2005, the latest year for which published figures are available.

These figures are taken from Table 10.7 of Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005, a copy of which is in the House of Commons Library and which can also be found online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1806section10.xls.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Magistrates: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of magistrates expected to be recruited for Welsh courts in financial year 2007-08. [146270]

Bridget Prentice: During the financial year 2007-08, it is expected that 82 magistrates will be recruited throughout Wales. This is based on predicted business need.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of magistrates expected to leave the magistracy in Wales in financial year 2007-08. [146271]

Bridget Prentice: During the financial year 2007-08, 50 magistrates are due to retire throughout Wales. An unknown number of magistrates may leave due to other reasons such as illness, transfer etc.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many magistrates are employed in courts in Wales. [146272]

Bridget Prentice: At the financial year ending 31 March 2007, there were 1,949 serving magistrates throughout Wales.

Prison Population: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) men and (b) women are being held in (i) each prison and (ii) police cell accommodation in Wales; [146274]

(2) what the (a) maximum and (b) useable operational capacity is of each prison in Wales as at 19 June 2007. [146275]

Mr. Hanson: The latest information available on prisoners held in accommodation in Wales, for the end of May 2007, is provided in the following table.

Establishment	Male prisoners	Women prisoners	Totals
Cardiff	753	0	753
Parc	1,136	0	1,136
Prescoed	162	0	162
Swansea	422	0	422
Usk	247	0	247
Total	2,720	0	2,720

The reported prison population also includes prisoners on authorised absence from the prison.

There are 28 places available in Wales under Operation Safeguard, which are used when there is a shortage of prison places. The use of Operation Safeguard in individual police force areas is held for use as management information only.

The latest information available on Operational Capacity, for the end of May 2007, is provided in the following table.

The maximum number of prisoners that an establishment can hold is the Operational Capacity. This is the total number of prisoners that an establishment can hold taking into account control, security and the proper operation of the planned regime. It is determined by senior operational managers on the basis of operational judgement and experience.

Establishment	Operational Capacity
Cardiff	754
Parc	1,126
Prescoed	178
Swansea	428
Usk	250
Total	2,736

Prisoners: Facilities

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what arrangements have been made for providing food to prisoners held in (a) court cells and (b) police cells since January 2006; [146055]

(2) what the (a) total cost of providing food and (b) the average cost per prisoner per meal has been for prisoners housed in (i) police cells and (ii) court cells since January 2006; [146058]

(3) what arrangements have been made for (a) drug assessments and (b) drug treatment and detoxification for prisoners housed in (i) police cells and (ii) court cells; and what the (A) total cost and (B) average cost per prisoner has been of providing these services since January 2006; [146059]

(4) what arrangements have been put in place to ensure that prisoners housed in (a) police cells and (b) court cells are (i) subject to necessary mental health and other medical assessments upon entry, (ii) adequately supervised throughout custody in such cells in accordance with the needs of any medical condition and (iii) provided with any necessary medical treatment; and what the cost has been of such arrangements since January 2006; [146060]

(5) what arrangements have been made to ensure that prisoners housed in (a) police cells and (b) court cells have adequate access to showers and other necessary hygiene facilities; and what has been the (i) total cost and (ii) average cost per prisoner per night of providing these services in such cells since January 2006. [146062]

Mr. Hanson: All efforts are being made to avoid vulnerable prisoners being held in police or court cells. Prisoners previously held in prison accommodation will have been assessed on their reception for drugs treatment, detox and wider health needs. Invoices, including medical and food expenses are submitted in arrears. The total cost of food and average cost per prisoner per meal is not centrally available. Estimated costs, on average, are around £385 per place per night to hold a prisoner in a police cell, and around £300 for every place in a court cell.

Under the terms of Operation Safeguard, police forces can be reimbursed by NOMS up to a ceiling of £12 for the costs of food for each prisoner over a 24-hour period.

Responsibility for the care and lawful custody of prisoners held in police accommodation rests with the police. Medical care afforded to Safeguard prisoners is in accordance with PACE Code C s9.

Prisoners have access to sanitary facilities within the custody area. Forces that provide cells under Operation Safeguard arrangements have shower facilities which are available for use. Every effort is made to ensure that prisoners are not held for more than one or two nights in succession.

Evening meals and breakfast are available for prisoners held overnight in court cells. For one contractor, figures for prisoners' food per night are around £15 per prisoner.

All prisoners held in court cells, whether or not previously held in custody, have a 'prisoner escort record' (PER) form, on which issues giving rise to concern are noted. Contractor staff and the on-site constables are able to take management action as appropriate, up to and including a hospital bed watch (where a minimum of two officers are to be present throughout the hospital stay). At each court a clinic is held each night by a qualified health care professional to identify and help address any health issues.

Prisoners have access to sanitary facilities within the custody area. Showers are not generally available, but other than in wholly exceptional circumstances prisoners are only held in court cells for one night.

Prisoners: Transport

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1727W, on prisoners: transport, what steps he is taking to ensure that prisoners are not detained in prisoner transport vehicles when awaiting or following court hearings. [146594]

Mr. Straw: The contractors responsible for the escort of prisoners are fully aware that vehicles are not to be used to hold prisoners either before or after their court appearance. The National Offender Management Service have to date received no reports of prisoners being held on vehicles because cells are not available in courts.

Prisoners: Young Offender Institutions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 2129W, on prisoners: young offender institutions, what the average (a) male and (b) female population was in young offender institutions in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [146153]

Mr. Hanson: The average male and female population in Young Offender Institutions in England and Wales in each year from 1997 to 2005 is shown in the following table:

Average population in young offender institutions[1], by gender

	Male	Female	Total
1997	7,556	278	7,834
1998	8,172	333	8,505
1999	8,012	332	8,344
2000	8,070	369	8,439
2001	8,175	390	8,565
2002	8,320	459	8,779
2003	8,025	399	8,424
2004	7,928	366	8,294
2005	7,883	360	8,243

[1] Includes under-18s held in YOIs

The figures have been taken from web table 8.10 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin: Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005. This can be found at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1806section8.xls.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Separation: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to introduce further mediation services for separating couples with children. [146343]

Bridget Prentice: We have established the Family Mediation helpline and supporting website; sponsored a public awareness campaign; and are facilitating judicial awareness seminars and supporting in-court referral schemes.

Provisions of the Children and Adoption Act 2006 will enable the court to direct parties in child contact disputes to attend a meeting about mediation. Referrals will also be encouraged through changes to court rules and court forms, particularly in relation to disputes over children.

Finally, the Legal Services Commission's revised Family Fee scheme will remove the financial disincentives for solicitors to make referrals to mediation. Under the scheme, it will be in the interests of the solicitor to make a referral to mediation and to do so, at an earlier stage.

Therefore, the Government have no plans to introduce further mediation services but remain committed to encouraging greater use of existing provisions for family mediation.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Airguns

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legislation controls the (a) ownership and (b) use of airguns; and if she will make a statement. [146482]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 June 2007]: There is a range of controls in the Firearms Act 1968 and related statutes controlling the possession and use of airguns. For example, a person must be aged 17 or over before they can buy an airgun or receive one as a gift. Anyone under 17 must normally be supervised by an adult when in possession of an airgun. It is an offence to carry an airgun in public without reasonable excuse. Other offences include possession with intent to injure, possession with intent to cause fear of violence and trespass with an airgun. Persons sentenced to three years imprisonment or longer for any offence are prohibited for life from possessing an airgun, and those sentenced to three months or more are prohibited for five years. High powered airguns are subject to certification and some are prohibited.

The Government are further strengthening the controls on airguns through measures contained in the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. It will soon become an offence for businesses to sell airguns unless they register with the police as firearms dealers. To guard against under-age sales, transactions by dealers will have to be completed in person. The Act will also increase to 18, the age limit for buying and possessing an airgun and will make it an offence for anyone of any age to fire an airgun beyond the boundary of premises.

Antisocial Behaviour: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what antisocial behaviour initiatives her Department has funded in Blackpool since 1997. [146516]

Mr. McNulty: In 2005-06, Blackpool received £238,639 revenue and £54,453 Safer Stronger Communities Fund grant from the Home Office. This included £25,000 for a local antisocial behaviour co-ordinator, to prioritise and drive forward action on local issues.

Since 2006-07, Blackpool has received centrally pooled Safer Stronger Communities (SSC) funding from Communities and Local Government—£776,950 revenue and £1,027,031 capital in 2006-07; and £1,104,893 revenue and £1,199,033 capital in 2007-08. Through its Local Area Agreement, Blackpool has agreed to deliver a range of outcomes using this funding, including reductions in community perceptions of antisocial behaviour.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families has said that, as a Respect Area, Blackpool has been allocated funding of up to £50,000 to appoint an expert parenting practitioner to work closely with antisocial behaviour teams, £125,000 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families for parenting interventions and an additional pump priming fund of £15,000 to cover costs related to delivering of parenting support training. A further £215,000 over two years has been allocated to Blackpool by the Respect Task Force to establish a Family Intervention Project.

Blackpool is also one of 20 Respect Areas which recently submitted proposals for 'Talking CCTV' as part of their wider campaign to tackle antisocial behaviour. Blackpool received £25,000 to set up and promote 'Talking CCTV'.

Asylum: Applications

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of claims for asylum were dealt with within the eight week target time period in each of the last 12 months. [126948]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the timeliness of initial decisions is published quarterly and annually. Information up to March 2007 will be available on 21 August 2007 in the quarterly publication. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Asylum: Children

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases were referred to Ministers for review of the continued detention of children on immigration grounds beyond 28 days in each of the last three years; and in how many of those cases was detention not extended beyond 28 days. [146166]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested on referrals is not centrally collated and could be provided only by examining individual cases at disproportionate cost.

Quarterly snapshots are published in the quarterly asylum bulletin, showing the number of people detained under Immigration Act powers on the last Saturday of each quarter. Statistics on the total number of persons leaving detention each quarter are also published in the quarterly asylum bulletin.

Published information on immigration and asylum is available on the Home Office's Research Development and Statistics web site at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Asylum: Finance

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the section 9 pilot on removal of support to refused asylum seeker families was concluded; when the evaluation of the pilot was (a) conducted and (b) provided to Ministers; when she expects to publish the evaluation; and if she will make a statement. [146162]

Mr. Byrne: The section 9 implementation pilot concluded in December 2005.

The evaluation of the pilot was conducted between January 2006 and June 2007. Ministers were presented with the findings of the evaluation in June 2007.

A written ministerial statement was published on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 9WS.

The evaluation of the section 9 pilot is available on the Border and Immigration Agency website.

Asylum: Housing

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people attending hearings before the Asylum Support Adjudicator were provided with overnight accommodation in each of the last three years. [146163]

Mr. Byrne: Management information records the following numbers of people provided with overnight accommodation to attend hearings before the Asylum Support Adjudicators (now the Asylum Support Tribunal): 521 in 2005; 661 in 2006; and 350 in 2007 (January to May).

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of complaints about poor accommodation provided under (a) section 95 and (b) section 4 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 have been (i) made, (ii) investigated and (iii) upheld since its introduction. [146164]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested in respect of complaints about s4 and s95 accommodation is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many accommodation providers under section (a) 95 and (b) 4 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 have been subjected to financial sanctions in each of the last three years. [146165]

Mr. Byrne: 25 regional accommodation contracts for s4 and s95 have had financial sanctions applied since the award of new contracts in April 2006.

Prior to the award of these new contracts financial sanctions were not applied. However, accommodation providers were expected to remedy any shortfalls identified or provide alternative accommodation.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the criteria for considering applications for asylum from Iraqi citizens differ from those applying to other countries. [146745]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The United Kingdom considers all asylum and human rights claims, including those from Iraqi nationals, on their individual merits in accordance with our obligations under the 1951 UN Refugee Convention and the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) against the background of the latest available country information. How other countries handle asylum claims is a matter for those countries.

Automatic Number Plate Recognition

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the reliability of automatic number plate recognition technology. [146483]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Automatic Number Plate Recognition (ANPR) is a well-established technology that allows vehicles observed by camera to have their vehicle registration mark 'read' using pattern recognition software.

It is not possible to assess the reliability of ANPR technology as this information is not collated centrally. ANPR is operationally independent in each police force and is structured and maintained in a variety of ways. There is however, an established, collaborative working arrangement between police forces at the local, regional and national level that allows for the exchange of good practice.

Children: Romania

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with the Romanian National Agency for the Protection of Minors on unaccompanied Romany minors entering the United Kingdom. [146195]

Mr. McNulty: Discussions have been held at a number of levels with the Romanian authorities about accompanied and unaccompanied Roma children from Romania who have entered the United Kingdom. These discussions are continuing.

Community Policing: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding was made available by her Department for neighbourhood policing initiatives in Blackpool in (a) 1997, (b) 2005 and (c) 2007. [146515]

Mr. McNulty: Before 2002-03, when the Home Office introduced funding specifically for police community support officers (PCSOs), the cost of funding any neighbourhood policing initiatives was met by police authorities from the general police grant and local resources. In November 2004, the Home Office launched the Neighbourhood Policing Fund and significantly increased investment in PCSOs and the wider aspects of neighbourhood policing. We have allocated the amounts shown in the following table to Lancashire constabulary. It is for the local police authority and the chief constable to determine the most appropriate distribution of resources to Blackpool and other parts of the force area.

Lancashire constabulary

	Specific funding for neighbourhood policing and police community support officers (£ million)
2002-03	0.7
2003-04	1.6
2004-05	1.7
2007-08	7.6

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to provide further funding to Blackpool as part of the town's award of Respect Area status. [146517]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families has said that, in return for securing Respect Area status, Blackpool has been allocated £125,000 for 2007-08 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families to help improve parenting programmes linked to tackling antisocial behaviour.

Convictions: Offensive Weapons

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions there have been under the (a) Licensing Act 2003, (b) Knives Act 1997 and (c) Drugs Act 2005. [145989]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform for offences under the Licensing Act 2003 and the Knives Act 1997 are shown in the following tables.

As offences of failing to attend drug assessments under the Drugs Act 2005 came into force late in 2005, there have been no offenders found guilty, up to the end of 2005. Data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Defendants found guilty of offences under the Knives Act 1997, England and Wales, 1997 to 2005[1, 2]

1998	2

Defendants found guilty of offences under the Licensing Act 2003, England and Wales, 2005[1, 2, 3]

	Number
2005	25

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] The 2003 Licensing Act was not commenced until November 2005.

Dangerous Dogs Act 1991

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the cost has been to public funds of keeping dogs held by the Metropolitan Police Service under the provisions of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991; [145558]

(2) how many dogs are being held by the Metropolitan Police Service under the provisions of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991. [145559]

Mr. McNulty: The number of dogs held by the Metropolitan Police Service under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 and the associated cost to public funds is an operational matter for the commissioner; such information is not collected by the Home Office.

Departments: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of staff in her Department were over 60 years of age in each of the last three years. [145683]

Mr. Byrne: The percentage of staff who were 60 years of age in each of the last three years is in the table.

The Criminal Record Bureau has been unable to provide data. The information is not held centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Figures are taken from the Home Office personnel system called ADELPHI for 31 March for each year. They cover permanent and casual employees but exclude agency staff and contractors.

It is possible that 31 March 2005 figure may be inflated by some staff whose employment status was in the process of being updated as data was transferred to ADELPHI from the preceding Home Office personnel system.

The information has been derived from the Personnel Corporate Database and Oracle HRMS. These systems are subject to the marginal inaccuracies associated with any large-scale reporting systems.

	April 2004 to March 2005 (2005)	April 2005 to March 2006 (2006)	Percentage April 2006 to March 2007 (2007)
Home Office and Border and Immigration Agency	4.19	2.03	2.3
HMPS	3.50	3.70	4.70
Identity and Passport Service	4.60	4.20	4.00

Domestic Service: Foreign Workers

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals her Department has made to change the rights to legal protection of domestic workers from overseas; and if she will make a statement. [125426]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to my reply of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 301W.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motorists in (a) the area of North Wales police and (b) England and Wales were wrongly identified as driving while uninsured as a result of information obtained from the Motor Insurers' Bureau Police Helpline in the last year for which figures are available. [146234]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 June 2007]: This information is not collected centrally.

Emergency Services: Radio

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has held on the implementation of tetra based trunk radio, with particular reference to the Airwave system; and if she will make a statement. [146577]

Mr. McNulty: Airwave—the national digital trunked radio communication system—will shortly complete its roll out in London, completing the UK roll out to all forces. Airwave is also rolling out to fire and ambulance services. The service is managed by the National Policing Improvement Agency on behalf of the police service.

The Airwave contract is managed by the NPIA. The Minister has not held discussions on the implementation of Airwave or any other tetra based trunk radio communication system recently.

Entry Clearances: USA

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what grounds a refusal stamp for a visa application to live in the UK made by a US citizen can be removed from a person's passport. [144314]

Mr. Byrne: A visa refusal stamp cannot be removed from an applicant's passport. In the event of a successful appeal against refusal, were an administrative error to be made or a subsequent application approved, a visa vignette inserted into the passport would supersede the refusal stamp.

Fraud: Cheques

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent estimate she has made of the incidence of (a) cheque and (b) plastic card fraud; [146767]

(2) what discussions she has had with the Attorney-General on the reporting of cheque and plastic card fraud; [146768]

(3) what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on cheque and plastic card fraud; [146769]

(4) what discussions she has had with the Financial Services Authority on cheque and plastic card fraud; [146770]

(5) what requirements or obligations banks and credit institutions are subject to to ensure that complaints of cheque and plastic card fraud reported to them are provided to the police for investigation; [146771]

(6) if she will conduct an assessment of the effectiveness of new arrangements for reporting cheque and plastic card fraud; [146772]

(7) what steps she has taken to ensure that victims of cheque and plastic card fraud know to whom to report these crimes; [146773]

(8) what guidance she has given to police forces on the handling and recording of reports of cheque and plastic card fraud by members of the public. [146774]

Mr. McNulty: Cheque and plastic card fraud are not separately identifiable in Home Office crime statistics. For the year 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006 there were 87,860 cases of cheque and plastic card fraud recorded by the police. Figures for the year 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007 will be released on 19 July 2007.

APACS (the UK Payment Association) records information on the financial losses resulting from plastic card fraud in the UK. The total losses reported by APACS in 2005 were £439.4 million.

Prior to 1 April 2007, Home Office officials consulted with the Attorney General's Fraud Review Steering Group on 30 March 2006, where a presentation on proposed changes to the reporting and recording of cheque and plastic card fraud offences was made.

The Fraud Review published on 24 July 2006 mentions proposed changes to the Home Office Counting Rules under paragraph 2.17 and states

"Changes to the counting rules centre on rationalising responsibility for recording the crime and using statistics collated by APACS to supplement crime statistics".

Under paragraph 2.18 it states

"These changes to the fraud statistics, following on from the Fraud Bill, are welcome".

Home Office officials have not held any direct discussions with Trade and Industry officials on changes to the reporting and recording of cheque and plastic card offences introduced on 1 April 2007.

Prior to 1 April 2007, Home Office officials have discussed changes to the reporting of cheque and plastic card offences with APACS (UK Payments Association), ACPO (Association of Chief Police Officers) and Attorney General's Office officials.

Home Office officials are integral members of the Economic Crime Portfolio Group which is chaired by the commissioner of the city of London police. The Commissioner is also the ACPO lead on all fraud matters. Home Office officials have made presentations to the group and kept them updated on the changes to reporting and recording of cheque and plastic card fraud by police introduced on 1 April 2007. The FSA are also represented at the ECP meetings, together with a range of other stakeholders in fraud.

From 1 April 2007 each police force now has a single point of contact (SPOC) that has been set up to receive reports of cheque and plastic card crime direct from financial institutions. It is a matter for the financial institutions which crimes they decide to refer to the police for recording. It is then a matter for individual chief officers to decide which crimes will be investigated.

The Home Office has been making greater use of APACS (UK Payments Association) figures to provide a better indication of the extent and trends in cheque and plastic card fraud.

Home Office officials will remain engaged with the UK Payments Association (APACS) and the Association of Chief Police Officers to continually assess the effectiveness of new arrangements for reporting and recording of cheque and plastic card fraud introduced on 1 April 2007.

Financial institutions now have a network of single points of contact within each police force where they can report cheque and plastic card fraud. Guidance issued to both police and financial institutions and contained within the Home Office Counting Rules for Recorded Crime, (which is a public document available online at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/countrules.html) states the following:

The financial institution wishing to report fraud will give the case or cases to the force area based on the following set of principles. The principles are listed in order of priority and it is only when a principle cannot be achieved or is not known that the next principle will apply:

1st—The police force area covering the location of the fraudulent operation.

2nd—The police force area with the greatest number of individual usages.

3rd—The police force area where the first offence was committed.

4th—The police force area where the victim is located.

The Rules make it clear that where the trader or account holder is the victim (i.e. they suffer the financial loss) they can report this to the police who have to record this as a crime and not refer them back to the financial institution. It is then a matter for the police to decide which force is responsible for recording this matter as a crime based on the above criteria.

Where an account holder does contact the police to report this matter without having first spoken to their financial institution, a crime related incident will be recorded and the account holder will be referred to their financial institution.

APACS put out a press release to this effect on 30 March 2007.

A series of questions and answers for all police staff was circulated to all police forces in January 2007 on the changes to the reporting and recording arrangements for cheque and plastic card fraud offences. This additionally appeared in Police Review on 19 January 2007 as a two page article.

In addition the Home Office Counting Rules for Recorded Crime contain more extensive details. This is a publicly available document available on the Home office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/countrules.html.

Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and individual forces have been fully consulted on these proposed changes throughout the course of 2006-07 through the National Crime Recording Steering Group and also its fraud sub-group.

Fullbright Fellowship in Police Studies Scheme

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1958W, on the Fullbright Fellowship in Police Studies scheme, what further steps she is taking to promote and enhance the skills of police officers and police staff in co-operation with other countries. [146487]

Mr. McNulty: The Fulbright Fellowship is one of six programmes which the NPIA is responsible for that helps to promote and enhance the skills of police officers and staff. Additional programmes include an exchange with the John Jay College in New York, the French Gendarmerie Exchange in Paris, the Hong Kong Police, the Chevening Scholarships and the Australian Institute of Police Management.

NPIA also hosts the European Police College (CEPOL) which has been developing a common curriculum for key areas of European policing. CEPOL provides around 100 training programmes across Europe which UK officers are encouraged through NPIA to access.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1958W, on the Fullbright Fellowship in Police Studies scheme, when she expects the National Policing Improvements Agency to ensure that a mechanism is put in place to assess the effectiveness of the scheme for both police officers and police staff. [146488]

Mr. McNulty: Policy and practice in respect of the Fulbright Programme is now a matter for the NPIA. I understand from the NPIA chief executive that he will be arranging a meeting shortly with the executive director of the Fulbright Fellowship to discuss how the programme is operating and to help maximise its use among police officers and police staff.

Homicide: Wiltshire

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences recorded as homicide by sharp instrument were recorded by Wiltshire Constabulary in each year from 1997-98 to 2005-06. [147090]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Offences currently[1] recorded as homicide where apparent method of killing is 'sharp instrument'[2]: Wiltshire police 1997-98 to 2005-06

2001-02	3
2002-03	2
2003-04	2
2005-06	1

[1] As at 9 October 2006; figures are subject to revision as cases are dealt with by the police and by the courts, or as further information becomes available.

[2] Homicides involving any sharp instrument, including knives.

[3] Offences are shown according to the year in which the police initially recorded the offence as homicide. This is not necessarily the year in which the incident took place or the year in which any court decision was made.

Insurance: Motor Vehicles

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the accuracy of information provided by the Motor Insurers' Bureau Police Helpline. [146233]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The helpline has been in service since April. Its accuracy is the responsibility of the Motor Insurers' Bureau. The police make extensive use of insurance data made available through the bureau to tackle the serious problem of uninsured driving. The latest figures, to mid June, indicate that 94.4 per cent. of all appropriate records are provided to the Motor Insurance Database (MID) within seven days. This is in line with a target of 95 per cent. of all appropriate records being provided within seven days by 1 January 2008.

Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the Liberation Tamil Tigers of Eelan activists in (a) London and (b) the UK. [146130]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The Liberation Tamil Tigers of Eelam (LTTE) is listed as proscribed as a terrorist organisation under the Terrorism Act 2000. It is a criminal offence for a person to belong to or encourage support for the LTTE in the UK. It is also a criminal offence to arrange a meeting in support of it or to wear clothing or to carry articles in public which arouse reasonable suspicion that a person is a member or supporter. The arrest and prosecution of offences under the Terrorism Act 2000 is a matter for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service respectively.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on recent arrests of the Liberation Tamil Tigers of Eelan activists under counter terrorism legislation. [146131]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The arrest and prosecution of offences under the Terrorism Act 2000 is a matter for the Police and the Crown Prosecution Service respectively. It would not be appropriate for me to comment on such matters.

MI5: Official Secrets

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will declassify MI5 file series PF600, 439 to 610 and 109. [146788]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The Security Service transfers records to the National Archive for public access in accordance both with the selection criteria recommended by the Lord Chancellor's Advisory Council on Public Records and with the Public Record Act 1958.

Some records in the Service's Personal File (PF) series have already been transferred to the National Archive. Those that remain will be considered in due course.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will answer Question 115828, on indefinite leave to remain, tabled by the hon. Member for Hertsmere on 10 January 2007. [117678]

Mr. Byrne: I replied to the hon. Member on 27 June 2007, Official Report column 769W.

Police: Horses

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the annual cost was in the last three years of each mounted police section. [146683]

Mr. McNulty: The Government allocate funding to police authorities. The allocation of resources within each force is a matter for the chief officer and the police authority. We do not hold information centrally on resources for mounted police sections.

Police: Protective Clothing

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2078W, on Police: protective clothing, what guidelines her Department issues to chief officers of police on the selection, purchase and issue of body armour for on-duty police officers. [146105]

Mr. McNulty: Decisions about the selection, purchase and issue of body armour are for chief officers of police. All officers should have access to a range of body armour, either on an individual or shared basis, dependant on their role. In reaching decisions about what protective equipment to issue, chief officers have the benefit of expert advice provided by the Home Office Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB) and the standards they produce. Body armour supplied to the vast majority of police officers in the UK now offers a dual protection level of knife and ballistic resistance as detailed in the HOSDB Standard.

Police: Safety Measures

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what risk assessment she has commissioned on the health and safety of police officers during a (a) chemical, (b) biological, (c) radiological and (d) nuclear incident. [146627]

Mr. McNulty: Such risk assessments are an operational matter for the police and are not commissioned by the Home Office.

Police: Stun Guns

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) injured and (b) killed due to the firing of a stun gun by the police since April 2003; and during what type of operations. [146553]

Mr. McNulty: There have been no deaths in the UK directly attributable to police use of Taser. There have been no injuries directly attributable to police use of Taser beyond the expected injury caused by Taser barbs penetrating or puncturing the skin on impact.

Independent medical advice from the Defence Scientific Advisory Council's Sub-Committee on the Medical Implications of Less Lethal Weapons (DOMILL) examine all the available medical reports where Taser has been used and are content that the medical issues attributable directly or indirectly to Taser use are not unexpected and are addressed by their statements to Ministers. DOMILL has issued three statements on the medical implications of the use of the Taser. Its view is that the risk of death from primary injury with high power laser is low and certainly very much lower than that from conventional firearms.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions Taser stun guns have been used by each police force since April 2003; and in what type of operation they were used. [146559]

Mr. McNulty: Taser is currently available to authorised firearms officers as a less lethal alternative for use in situations where a firearms authority has been granted in accordance with criteria laid down in the ACPO Manual of Guidance on Police Use of Firearms. Taser is deployed alongside conventional weapons providing the police with an additional tactical option that is less lethal than conventional firearms.

Information on the occasions when Taser has been used is set out in the following tables.

Since April 2003, there have been 619 incidents at which the device has been used operationally. This can be broken down as follows:

Uses of laser (at 31 December 2006, England and Wales)

	Number
Drawn/aimed/application of projected red-dot	326

TREASURY

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many deaths there were with an alcohol-related underlying cause in (a) the north east, broken down by local authority area and (b) the UK, broken down by (i) region and (ii) country, in (A) 2004, (B) 2005 and (C) 2006; and what the death rate per head of population from alcohol-related causes was in each case. [146224]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 2 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many deaths there were with an alcohol-related underlying cause in (a) the north east, broken down by local authority area and (b) the UK, broken down by (i) region and (ii) country, in (A) 2004, (B) 2005 and (C) 2006; and what the death rate per head of population from alcohol-related causes was in each case. I am replying in her absence. (146224)

The attached table provides the number of deaths with an alcohol-related underlying cause, with the corresponding age-standardised mortality rate[1], for (a) the north east, by local authority, and (b) the UK, by (i) region and (ii) country, for 2004 and 2005 (the latest year available).

[1] Age-standardised rates are used to allow comparison between populations which may contain different proportions of people of different ages.

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). The specific causes of death categorised as alcohol-related, and their corresponding ICD-10 codes, are shown in the box below.

[2] Age-standardised mortality rates per 100,000 population, standardised to the European Standard Population.
Age-standardised rates are used to allow comparison between populations which may contain different proportions of people of different ages. To avoid reporting potentially misleading results, rates have not been calculated for areas with less than 10 deaths (marked with an asterisk*).

[3] Figures for the UK include deaths of non-residents, whereas figures for sub-national areas exclude non-residents. Therefore, the number of deaths reported in the UK is greater than the sum of the numbers in its constituent areas.

[4] Based on boundaries as of 2007.

Defence: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to paragraph 5.32 of Consolidated Budgeting Guidance 2007-08, what (a) arrangements for the control of non-cash to near-cash switches and (b) definition of near cash he has agreed with the Ministry of Defence. [145205]

Andy Burnham: As set out in the 2007-08 Consolidated Budgeting Guidance paragraphs 5.14-5.20 the Treasury will allow switches between non-cash to near cash to incentivise greater management of departmental asset bases. In light of the size of MOD'S asset base and the potential fiscal implications of such switches, HM Treasury has agreed with MOD an upper limit for non-cash to near cash switches. These switches are reflected through the parliamentary supply estimates process.

The MOD's definition of near cash resource is identical to that of other Government Departments, with the exception of the treatment of non-nuclear provisions, which sit outside the MOD's departmental expenditure limits.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146326]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury's spending on consultancy is published in table 7.4 on page 91 of the Annual Report and Accounts 2006-07, available from http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/A/2/annua_report07.pdf.

Since 2002-03, there have been no consultancy contracts with a value over £10 million. Information going back to the date of establishment of the Treasury could be provided at disproportionate cost only.

Departments: Credit Cards

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many (a) corporate charge and (b) corporate credit cards were lost in each year since 2001-02 in his Department; [147103]

(2) how many (a) corporate charge and (b) corporate credit cards have not been recorded as returned to his Department by staff who have left; [147104]

(3) what estimate he has made of the value of fraudulent transactions on his Department's (a) corporate charge and (b) corporate credit cards in each financial year since 2001-02; [147105]

(4) what the value is of (a) corporate charge and (b) corporate credit card outgoings in 2006-07 for which claim forms have not yet been received from staff; [147111]

(5) pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1496W, on Departments: credit cards, how much was spent via corporate charge cards by staff in his Department in each year since 1997. [147112]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury issues cards for the purchase of official travel and subsistence services. Total spending on these cards in the past four years was:

	Amount (£)
2003-04	182,075.04
2004-05	222,274.69
2005-06	273,722.74
2006-07	229,042.29

Information on late claims, stolen and lost cards is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146977]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1881W. All bonuses paid are non-pensionable.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146927]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury's relative appraisal system does not include an "unacceptable" ranking. Poor performance is dealt with on a case-by-case basis by the line manager of the individual concerned.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's Consolidated Budgeting Guidance for each financial year since 1999-2000. [146528]

Andy Burnham: The Consolidated Budgeting Guidance is only reissued when there have been changes to the budgetary framework, so copies do not exist for every financial year. I have arranged for copies of all existing versions of the guidance to be placed in the Library.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1498W, on Departments: recruitment, what payments have been made from the public purse to each of these recruitment agencies since 1997. [147102]

Angela Eagle: For total spending on temporary staff, supplied by those agencies, I refer to the answer given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 1985W. The amounts paid to each agency since 1997 (including recruitment fees) could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Sick Leave

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [146562]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson) on 27 June 2007, Official Report, column 754W.

Immigration

Keith Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what change there has been in (a) the proportion of immigrants arriving in the UK from the European Union since 1 May 2003 and (b) the countries of origin of those immigrants. [146104]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 2 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning (a) the proportion of immigrants arriving from the European Union since 1st May 2003 and (b) the countries of origin of those immigrants. I am replying in her absence. (146104)

The requested information is only available for calendar years by country of last residence. The latest figures are for 2005.

Estimates for the European Union as a whole are routinely published based on Total International Migration, the most comprehensive measure of international migration into the UK. Figures requested are given in Table 1. Estimates by individual EU country of last residence are only available using International Passenger Survey (IPS) data. These figures are given in Table 2.

[1] Estimates of total international migration (TIM) are compiled using the following sources of migration data: International Passenger Survey (IPS) data on migrants and visitors; Home Office data on asylum seekers and their dependants; and estimates of migration between the UK and the Irish Republic from the Irish Central Statistics Office. An international migrant is defined as someone who changes their country of residence for at least a year so that the country of destination effectively becomes the country of usual residence.
[2] Estimates by country of last residence can include migrants of any citizenship. Therefore British citizens previously resident in another EU country and returning to the UK will be included in these estimates.
[3] For 2003, EU estimates are shown only for the EU15 (Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, the Irish Republic, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Portugal, Spain and Sweden). From 2004, the estimates are also shown for A8 (the Czech Republic, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Slovakia and Slovenia) and the EU25 (i.e. the EU15 and A8 groups, plus Malta and Cyprus). These splits are necessary because TIM estimates are not available for the post accession groupings before 2004.
[4] For 2003, non-EU includes all the countries that acceded to the EU on 1 May 2004.

Landfill Tax

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was raised by the landfill tax in each of the last 10 years for which records exist; and how much was (a) allocated in grants and (b) disbursed. [146699]

Angela Eagle: Annual UK landfill tax receipts for 1997-98 to 2005-06, and a provisional figure for 2006-07 are published by HM Revenue and Customs at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=Bulletins in the landfill tax bulletin.

Initially, landfill tax revenues were used to fund a 0.2 percentage point reduction in the main rate of employers' national insurance contributions. Since 2005, the Government have recycled landfill tax escalator revenues to business and local government. In England, the business resources efficiency and waste (BREW) programme is worth £284 million over three years. In addition, the Government take account of the impacts of landfill tax when allocating local government funding. In the 2004 spending review (which takes us through to 2007-08) the revenues from the landfill tax escalator were recycled back to local councils via revenue support grant. Decisions for the future will be taken in the context of this year's comprehensive spending review.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue collected under the landfill tax was (a) allocated and (b) disbursed to local authorities in each of the last 10 years for which records exist. [146701]

Angela Eagle: The Government takes account of the impacts of landfill tax when allocating local government funding. In the 2004 Spending Review (which takes us through to 2007-08) the revenues from the landfill tax escalator were recycled back to local councils via Revenue Support Grant. Decisions for the future will be taken in the context of this year's Comprehensive Spending Review.

The net current expenditure on waste collection and disposal by local authorities in each year for which figures are available since 1997 is shown in the following table (source: local authority Revenue Outturn returns).

Local Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what his policy is on the number of unitary authority proposals implemented on the basis of the local government review; [146485]

(2) whether his officials have assessed the costings put forward in the unitary council bids under review by the Department for Communities and Local Government. [146472]

Angela Eagle: All 16 unitary proposals that were subject to stakeholder consultation will be reassessed against the five criteria set out when local authorities were originally invited to submit their proposals in October 2006, having regard to all the information available including that received in response to the consultation. Decisions as to which proposals will proceed towards implementation will reflect the collective decision of Government.

National Income

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the share was of (a) wages and (b) profits of national income in each year since 1979. [146780]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 2 July 2007:

Navy: Military Bases

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on his commitment to move civil service jobs out of the South East, with particular reference to the Naval Base Review. [147016]

Andy Burnham: The Chancellor regularly has meetings and discussions with Cabinet colleagues including the Secretary of State for Defence, and discusses a wide range of issues. As was the practice of previous Administrations, the Government do not disclose details of all such discussions.

Olympic Games

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contribution his Department's (a) devolved countries and regions team and (b) education, training and culture team made to discussions on the proposed logo for the 2012 Olympics before its approval. [146953]

Angela Eagle: The development and approval of the brand was the responsibility of the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games.

Public Sector: Standards

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list all the current public service agreement targets. [146807]

Angela Eagle: I refer my right hon. Friend to the command paper '2004 Spending Review: Public Service Agreements 2005-2008' (Cm 6238) which lists the public service agreements and targets for the current spending period.

The HM Treasury public spending performance website also includes links to the technical notes for each PSA:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_spending_reporting/public_service_performance/psr_performance_efficiency_supporting_documents.cfm.

Transport: Expenditure

Graham Stringer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the overall annual level of public expenditure on transport per head of population was in (a) each of the English regions, (b) Northern Ireland, (c) Scotland, (d) Wales and (e) London in each of the last five years. [146465]

Andy Burnham: Information on total identifiable expenditure per capita on transport for each region and country of the UK is set out in Table 9.11 of HM Treasury's publication, 'Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses 2007 (Cm7091)', published in May 2007. This provides outturn data from 2001-02 to 2005-06 and planned expenditure for 2006-07.

Unitary Councils

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on local authorities seeking unitary status which appeared on the shortlist published by the Department for Communities and Local Government on 27 March 2006. [146486]

Angela Eagle: The decision as to which proposals should proceed to stakeholder consultation reflected the collective decision of Government.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Working Carers

13. Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to assess the levels of support available for working carers. [146357]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government fully recognise the vital role which all carers undertake. Through our National Carer's Strategy, we have made substantial improvements in the support we give to carers, both financial and practical, and we are continually looking at ways to further improve the support available.

Unemployment Trends

14. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of trends in levels of unemployment since the end of 1997. [146359]

Mr. Hain: As a result of our stable economy and successful labour market policies, unemployment is down and employment is up compared to 10 years ago.

Since 1997 claimant unemployment has fallen by 739,000; in the last year it has fallen by 71,500; and in the last month it has fallen by 9,300—a continuing trend of success.

Worklessness: London

15. Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to tackle worklessness in London. [146360]

Mr. Plaskitt: The numbers of people on out of work benefits in London has fallen by over 125,000 since 1997, and continues to fall. However, London poses one of our biggest challenges in achieving our long-term aim of an 80 per cent. employment rate.

Initiatives like the City Strategy, the Deprived Areas Fund and higher levels of financial support in London now available through the lone parent In-Work Credit, will help us in supporting more Londoners back to work.

Inactive Benefits

16. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people are receiving inactive benefits; and if he will make a statement. [146361]

Caroline Flint: Latest figures indicate that around 3.7 million people are in receipt of inactive benefits and that at 21.3 per cent. the economic inactivity rate is close to its lowest since 1992.

Since 1997, the number of lone parents claiming benefits has fallen by 238,000 and new claims for incapacity benefits are down by a third. The number of people on incapacity benefits is at the lowest level in over seven years.

We are determined to build on this success, and the measures set out in our Welfare Reform Act will help us to do that.

Employers' Contributions

17. Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to enforce the automatic enrolment of employers and making appropriate contributions by employers in respect of personal accounts; and if he will make a statement. [146362]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government propose a three-stage compliance strategy. We will educate employers and employees about their new rights and responsibilities. We will engage with employers, enabling them to comply. Where necessary, we will take proportionate enforcement action, through a graduated approach with increasing penalties.

We are continuing to work with the relevant stakeholders in developing our enforcement strategy further.

Youth Unemployment

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on youth unemployment. [146355]

Mr. Hain: Since 1997, unemployment for 18 to 24-year-olds has fallen by 35 per cent. and long-term youth unemployment has fallen by 70 per cent.

This success has been made possible by active labour market policies, such as the New Deal for Young People, combined with unprecedented stability and growth in the economy.

Disability Benefits

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he has introduced to reduce complexity in the assessment process for disability benefits. [146356]

Mrs. McGuire: We are aware of the importance of making the benefits system as easy and straightforward as possible for disabled people to use.

The introduction of the new Employment and Support Allowance will make the system easier for people to understand and will smooth the administration process.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what target will be set for the time taken to secure an assessment under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [146141]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Secretary of State will set high level performance targets for the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what restrictions there will be on (a) deduction orders and (b) lump sum deduction orders under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [146144]

Mr. Plaskitt: Deduction orders will only be used if a person has failed to pay their statutory maintenance liabilities. They will not be applied to joint accounts or business accounts and may not directly cause a person's account to become overdrawn.

With current account deduction orders the Commission will require the deposit taker to deduct a regular amount from a non-resident parent's account to recover ongoing statutory maintenance liabilities and/or arrears. The amount will be based on the non-resident parent's gross earnings and a proportion of those earnings, to be specified in regulations, will be protected. These orders will not normally be used in a case where a deduction from earnings order can be imposed and non-resident parents will be encouraged to convert the deduction into a direct debit or other means of payment which they find more convenient.

Lump sum deduction orders will only be used to recover arrears.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish the Department's latest forecast of the (a) winners and (b) losers under the new maintenance formula which will be used by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, compared with the existing formula, broken down by (i) family size and (ii) income; and if he will make a statement. [146173]

Mr. Plaskitt: With the increased focus on voluntary arrangements and the ending of the requirement that parents with care on benefit be treated as applying for child maintenance, not all of the current Child Support Agency case load will choose to use the statutory maintenance service. Since we do not know the precise composition of the resulting case load, it is not possible to estimate the average level of maintenance liabilities that will arise.

Figures on the amounts paid under the second child support scheme and statutory maintenance arrangements under different income levels and for different family sizes can be found in table 2, page 19 of the regulatory impact assessment which accompanied the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission: Debt Collection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make use of the key objectives of the new Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission on the recovery of existing maintenance arrears; and if he will make a statement. [146180]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission would have to have regard to its objectives in the exercise of its functions. In line with this, the Commission will, when appropriate, seek to secure compliance with existing statutory maintenance arrangements, including recovery of existing maintenance arrears. The Commission will have at its disposal the new debt and enforcement powers contained in the Bill.

Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill: Curfews

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many curfew orders he estimates will be used each year under the powers in the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill. [146187]

Mr. Plaskitt: The numbers will depend on a range of factors, including the effectiveness of other enforcement powers.

Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will provide an estimate of the expected reduction in annual administration costs as a consequence of the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill, broken down by main budget heading; and if he will make a statement. [146186]

Mr. Plaskitt: The overall impact over the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill can be found in the Regulatory Impact Assessment. The estimated effect on annual administration costs of the statutory maintenance service can be found on page 34, paragraph 116.

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much Child Support Agency maintenance arrears are expected to be collected in each quarter between June 2007 to June 2012; and if he will make a statement. [146148]

Mr. Plaskitt: This information is not available.

Child Support Agency: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the costs of setting a Child Support Agency maintenance disregard for those on benefits of up to (a) £10, (b) £20, (c) £30, (d) £40, (e) £50 and (f) £100 per week; and what estimate he has made of the effects on child poverty in each case. [146179]

Mr. Plaskitt: The number of children lifted out of poverty and cost of increasing the levels of the child maintenance disregard in income support, jobseeker's allowance, housing benefit and council tax benefit are shown in the following table.

Level of disregard	Number of children lifted out of poverty	Cost in extra benefit expenditure (£ million)
£30	30,000-40,000	100
£40	40,000-50,000	140
£50	50,000-60,000	170
£100	50,000-70,000	200

n/a = Not available.

Notes:

1. Number of children lifted out of poverty is defined here as the number of children in households lifted above 60 per cent. of equivalised median household income before housing costs by increasing the level of the disregard.
2. Estimates provided are indicative and should only be used to give some idea of scale, since there is uncertainty over future distributions of earnings and maintenance receipts, and figures are sensitive to the assumptions used and drawn from a sample of data.
3. Figures for the number of children lifted out of poverty by a £20 disregard are not available due to a small sample size.
4. Poverty figures are based on analysis of 2004-05 Family Resources Survey and are rounded to the nearest 10,000.
5. Costs are calculated to the nearest £10 million and are based upon a combination of DWP administrative and survey data.
6. Figures are for the extra number of children lifted out of poverty and extra costs compared to a position where there is a £10 disregard in income support and a £25 disregard in housing benefit and council tax benefit.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact on child maintenance payments of new powers in respect of (a) curfews and (b) passport withdrawal; and if he will make a statement. [146145]

Mr. Plaskitt: The disqualification from holding or obtaining travel authorisation and the use of curfew orders are part of a package of changes to the child maintenance enforcement model.

In the case of travel authorisation, giving the power to impose these measures directly to the Commission greatly strengthens their hand in dealing with the non-resident parent. There is more immediacy than a threat of court action. It is envisaged that this threat of imminent action will be significantly more effective in securing compliance.

Curfew orders will serve as an effective alternative to committal; it is expected to create a strong incentive to pay without impeding the non-resident parent's ability to do so by causing him or her to lose his or her job.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact on poverty levels of non-resident parents on benefits of setting a £7 minimum child maintenance deduction from benefits; and if he will make a statement. [146175]

Mr. Plaskitt: It is not possible to accurately model the effect of increasing the £5 flat rate payment to £7 on the number of non-resident parents in poverty. This is because we cannot identify with certainty which non-resident parents are currently paying flat rate maintenance from the survey we use to measure poverty, the family resources survey.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the evidential basis is for the Department's view that, for child maintenance collection, historic tax income information is close enough to the current financial position of most non-resident parents at the time to be an acceptable and robust basis for assessment. [146177]

Mr. Plaskitt: Our analysis showed that two thirds of non-resident parents subject to the 2003 CSA scheme would have a liability within £10 of that assessment if it were based on HMRC gross income data.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to introduce a general anti-avoidance rule in respect of payments of child maintenance by a non-resident parent. [146184]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are continuing to look at ways to ensure non-resident parents meet their financial responsibilities to their children. Under the proposed scheme, we will use income information held by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs to ensure non-resident parents cannot delay in providing income information, and deploy the full range of enforcement powers available to the Commission to prevent the non-resident parents avoiding paying the maintenance they owe.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of Child Support Agency cases involve use of a deduction of earnings order; and what change he expects in this proportion under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [146192]

Mr. Plaskitt: As of March 2007, around 21 per cent. of the Child Support Agency's caseload where the payment method has been decided had a deduction from earnings order or request in place.

The intention is for the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission to run a pilot in order to establish whether using deduction from earnings orders as a basic method of collecting child maintenance will increase compliance. It will then decide on whether to proceed with a full roll out. I am therefore unable to provide an estimate of the expected change in this proportion under the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Pensions: Family Credit

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what effect past receipt of family credit has on entitlement to pensions under the state earnings-related pension scheme; by what means information about such receipt is transferred from his Department's computer records to those of HM Revenue and Customs; and if he will make a statement. [147019]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A person entitled to family credit between 1995-96 and 2001-02 built up entitlement to the state earnings-related pension (SERPS) based on their family credit award provided they reached or are due to reach state pension age after 5 April 1999.

Prior to October 1999 information on family credit awards was transferred to the then Inland Revenue Department electronically or in exceptional cases clerically. Inland Revenue became responsible for administering family credit in October 1999 at which point more automated processes were put in place for the transfer of information between the family credit computer system and the national insurance recording system.

Note:

Family credit was replaced by working families' tax credit on 5 October 1999.

PRIME MINISTER

10 Downing Street: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to change the number of staff employed by 10 Downing Street. [146873]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the senior staff appointments press notice issued by my Office on 27 June. The press notice is available on the No. 10 website http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page12153.asp, and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Further information on staff in my Office will be published in "Dod's Civil Service Companion" in due course.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Closures

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister if he will visit accident and emergency departments due to close to discuss alternative provision. [147018]

The Prime Minister: My visits will cover a range of subjects, including health.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister what recent representations he has received from military commanders on the allocation of additional funds to the reconstruction of Afghanistan. [147017]

The Prime Minister: I have received no such representations, but I have been briefed by military commanders on the situation in Afghanistan, in particular the Southern Region and Helmand Province where the majority of UK forces are deployed. The briefing covered the progress that has been made and the challenges that remain covering security, security sector reform, and reconstruction.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has considered the recommendations of the recent report of the Public Administration Select Committee on changes to the machinery of government; and if he will make a statement. [147175]

The Prime Minister: The Government will respond in due course.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in his Office in each year between 1997 and 2006; and at what total cost. [146588]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my Office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office today.

Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister who his new special advisers are. [146874]

The Prime Minister: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each payband. The information requested will be published in the normal way in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1659W, on domestic wastes: waste management, if he will provide statistics for the amount of waste produced per person in local authorities operating (a) alternate weekly collections and (b) traditional weekly collections, based on the data on which councils operate alternate weekly collections referred to in the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 77W on domestic waste. [146161]

Joan Ruddock: It is not possible to provide an accurate comparison of the amount of waste produced per person in local authority areas running alternate weekly collection (AWC) services and the amount produced in those that are not. The list provided to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), Official Report, column 77W, reflected our knowledge at the time, but it is subject to change. Additionally, the collection of the data does not neatly coincide with the roll-out of AWC schemes. Indeed, many schemes are currently being rolled out, so not all households in a local authority area on the list will receive the service. In addition, AWC is being trialled in some areas and no decision has been taken as to whether such schemes will be rolled out more widely.

The 2005-06 municipal waste statistics, which include tonnages for individual local authorities, can be found on DEFRA's website at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/wastats/bulletin.htm

Data on the performances of individual local authorities can also be found on the websites of the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Audit Commission.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Ballots: Trade Unions

Mr. Heald: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many meetings the Certification Officer or his representatives have held with the Electoral Commission on trade unions since the establishment of the Commission. [147192]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that, while it has no record of any meetings having taken place with the Certification Officer or his representatives, it contacts the office of the Certification Officer periodically to verify the registration of trade unions which are reported as having donated to political parties.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House what percentage of sick leave taken by her staff was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145979]

Ms Harman: None.

Short Money

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Leader of the House what estimated Short Money funding allocation she plans to make to Opposition political parties in the House of Commons for the 2008-09 financial year. [147468]

Ms Harman: Financial Assistance to Opposition Parties, known as Short Money, is calculated under a formula established by a resolution of the House in 1999. It is set at £6,618,982 for the 2007-08 financial year. This will increase in April 2008 by the year-on-year rise in the retail prices index as at 31 December 2007. Equivalent arrangements, known as Representative Money, are also in place for Opposition parties whose Members decide not to take up their seats. The amount of Representative Money for 2007-08 is £90,036. This, too, will be increased in April 2008 by the rise in the RPI to the previous December. Detailed allocations for 2007-08 are set out in the Library's Standard Note SN/PC/1663.

Westminster Hall Sittings

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the merits of holding additional Westminster Hall sittings on Mondays. [146404]

Ms Harman: I have made no specific assessment of the merits of holding such sittings on Mondays.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Northern Ireland

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1616-17W on aviation: Northern Ireland, what the reasons were for the three airprox incidents in Northern Ireland between 1 June 2006 and 31 May 2007. [146800]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Two of the three airprox incidents in airspace over Northern Ireland during the period 1 June 2006 to 31 May 2007 remain subject to assessment by the UK Airprox Board (UKAB). In due course, findings will be published both on the UKAB's website at

and subsequently in hard copy.

The third airprox was the result of a conflict in Class G airspace between a hang-glider and a light aeroplane. Both pilots had a responsibility to "see and avoid". Avoidance action by the light aircraft resolved the conflict and prevented there being any actual risk that the aircraft would have collided. The UKAB assessed the degree of risk as Category B "safety not assured". The full report (reference number 118/06) is available from the UKAB's website.

Petrol Alternatives: Ribble Valley

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many filling stations in Ribble Valley are able to accommodate alternative fuel types for cars. [147430]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This information is not held centrally by Government. However information on geographical locations is available on the Energy Saving Trust website at www.est.org.uk

The Government provides funds to the Energy Saving Trust to run their Infrastructure grant programme. The grants assist the building of refuelling stations for alternative fuels (natural gas/biogas, hydrogen and bio-ethanol).

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the resilience of the Mastiff vehicle for service in Afghanistan. [145103]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Mastiff is a robust and capable vehicle and it has already saved the lives of soldiers on operations in both Iraq and Afghanistan.

Armed Forces Compensation Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel injured in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 are (i) awaiting payment under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme and have been waiting (A) less than six months, (B) less than one year and (C) more than one year and (ii) have not applied for payment under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme. [139620]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The AFCS injury came into operation on 6 April 2005 and applies to injuries and deaths caused by service on or after that date. All injury claims made between that date and 31 March 2006 have been cleared and a decision issued to the claimant. Therefore none are awaiting a decision.

With regards to the year 2006-07, as at 31 March 2007, there were 593 AFCS injury claims being processed. Of these, 585 claims had been outstanding for less than six months; the remaining eight claims had been outstanding for less than one year.

Outstanding claims are, by definition, at varying stages of being processed, and it is therefore not possible to say how many of the 593 claims will go on to receive an award.

Information is not held on the number of injured personnel who have not made a claim to an AFCS award. Following the evaluation of the first year of operation of the AFCS, which found that the number of claims had been less than forecast, measures are being taken to ensure full awareness of the scheme. Possible lack of awareness in the early days of the scheme does not mean that personnel will lose out: they have five years to claim from the date of the injury.

Armed Forces: Casualties

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what support is available to the families of service personnel killed in armed conflict. [147137]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Lancaster and Wyre (Mr. Wallace) on 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1161W.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current (a) percentage and (b) number of postings is with less than four months notice in (i) the armed forces and (ii) each service. [121495]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. While the majority of postings are administered well in advance there will always be short notice postings where guidelines on notice to deploy cannot be met due to, for example, operational or compassionate/welfare reasons.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to restrict the disclosure of information about the future deployment into combat zones of armed forces personnel. [146390]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We make every effort to ensure that information regarding the future deployment of armed forces personnel is not released publicly until a statement is made in Parliament, while simultaneously providing our armed forces with enough notice of the deployment to complete appropriate pre-deployment training.

Armed Forces: Mental Health Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where he expects the mental health pilot schemes to be held; and what criteria will be used to assess their performance. [145195]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 25 June 2007]: The MOD is working with the four UK Health Departments to pilot a new community-based service that will provide NHS health professionals with assured access to expertise in military mental health. We are in discussion with a number of health trusts across the UK, including in the devolved Administrations, who have indicated an interest in participating in the pilot scheme. I expect the first pilots to launch later this summer. The pilots are planned to last for two years, after which they will be evaluated.

MOD will commission a process and outcome evaluation of the pilots over the two-year period. This will be an integral part of the project. The terms of the evaluation, which will cover the two years of the pilots and an additional period for follow-up and report-writing, have been advised by the Project Expert Group which comprises national clinical and health care experts. The evaluation will involve a comparison of the new model of services with services previously available in the same area and will compare the particular approach of individual pilot sites. The key measures will be the assessment and treatment regimes provided, and the patient (and carer) experience and outcomes.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his latest estimate is of the total cost of defence pensions as a share of defence spending in each year from 2002-03 to 2050-51; and if he will make a statement. [144275]

Derek Twigg: The percentage of Ministry of Defence's budget spent on contributions to the Armed Forces Pension Scheme for the period 2002-03 to 2007-08 is set out in the following table. It is not possible to calculate percentages out to 2050-51 as the Ministry of Defence does not know what its budget will be for this period; the Defence budget for 2008-09 to 2010-11 will be set in the comprehensive spending review.

AFPS as a percentage of Defence spending

	Percentage
2002-03	8.1
2003-04	9.8
2004-05	9.0

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value was of the war disablement pension in each year since 1997. [146072]

Derek Twigg: War pension is awarded at different rates and is based on the degree of disablement caused as a result of service in HM forces. The weekly 100 per cent. rate of basic war disablement pension since 1997 payable is as follows:

1998	111
1999	115

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans are in receipt of a war disablement pension, broken down by percentage assessment of disability. [146073]

Derek Twigg: The number of veterans in receipt of a war disablement pension, broken down by percentage assessment of disability is reported quarterly and presented in Table 1.6 of the War Pensions Quarterly Statistics, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. The publication is also available on the Defence Analytical Services Agency website:

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Procurement

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of future rapid effect system vehicles will be required to be manufactured in the UK. [144762]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 25 June 2007]: The FRES programme is currently in its assessment phase. In common with all equipment programmes, the decision on where manufacture will take place will be confirmed when the main investment decision has been taken. It is envisaged that the majority of the vehicles will be manufactured in the UK but existing production lines located overseas may be used to manufacture initial batches of FRES vehicles in order to promote early delivery. We are clear, however, that the intellectual property rights, design authority, and systems architecture of the final FRES vehicle must reside in the UK.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role he intends (a) the Organisation for Joint Armament Co-operation (OCCAR) and (b) the EU Defence Agency to play in the future rapid effect system project. [144763]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 25 June 2007]: For the Utility variant, on current plans, there is no scope to collaborate at the overall programme level but there is scope for co-operation at the sub-system level. The Reconnaissance, Fires and Support vehicle families are also likely to offer further opportunities for co-operative working.

Army Board: Housing

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the running costs were of the housing provided by his Department for members of the Army Board in each year since 1997. [130306]

Derek Twigg: The Army Board members who live in Official Service Residences are the Chief of the General Staff (COS), Commander-in-Chief Land (C-in-C Land), Adjutant General (AG) and the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland (GOC NI). The Assistant Chief of the General Staff (ACGS) occupies accommodation rented from a private landlord at a cost of £1,403.50 per month, to which ACGS makes a contribution of approximately £100 per month.

Information has not been retained for years prior to 1999-2000, or in GOC Northern Ireland's case prior to 2001-02. Available figures are shown in the following table.

The running cost for the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland for 2005-06 is £1,806 more than that stated in my answer of 20 March 2007, Official Report, column 749-750W. This answer was corrected in my answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1379W. Neither answer included furniture within the maintenance cost, which is included above.

Departments: Lobbying

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many lobbying companies his Department engaged on (a) a paid and (b) an unpaid basis in each of the last five years; and for what purpose. [141317]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Over the last five years, the Department engaged lobbying companies as follows:

2002: one company (paid);

2003: one company (paid);

2004: one company (paid);

2005: two companies (one paid, one unpaid);

2006: two companies (both paid);

2007: one company (paid).

for the provision of advice on relations with Congress to the Defence Equipment organisation in the British embassy in Washington, DC, USA on the promotion of British interests in the defence equipment and defence industrial fields in relation to Congress.

Departments: Public Participation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many public consultations his Department undertook in the last 12 months; and what the cost was of each consultation. [145272]

Derek Twigg: Information on the number and cost of public consultations conducted by MOD is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Surveys

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's Senior Civil Service Survey 2006. [143117]

Derek Twigg: Yes. I have today arranged for the document to be placed in the Library of the House.

Ex-servicemen: Health

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements are to be put in place to monitor the health status, including DNA and gene damage, of serving and former servicemen and servicewomen potentially exposed to ionizing and depleted uranium; and if he will make a statement. [146598]

Derek Twigg: In March 2003, the MOD established a research programme into the physical and psychological health of personnel deployed (regulars, reservists and MOD civilians) on Operation Telic (Op Telic) as part of its duty of care to serving personnel and in response to lessons learned from the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict. A team led by Professor Simon Wessely at King's Centre for Military Health Research has been carrying out the bulk of this research. The first findings were published in the Lancet last year and there is so far no sign of the repeat of Gulf veterans' illnesses in Service personnel coming back from Iraq. The other main finding of a slightly increased level of common mental health problems in reserve personnel who served in Iraq is being addressed through a package of additional healthcare. We have agreed a three year extension to our original Op Telic research project and Service personnel deployed to Afghanistan (Operation Herrick) will now specifically be covered by it.

Our biological monitoring policy is that all military personnel and civilians on recent operations, such as Iraq (Op Telic), and any future operations involving use of depleted uranium (DU) are offered a test for total uranium in the urine. A test for uranium isotopes, which determines whether the uranium is depleted, is offered if the initial test for the total uranium gives anomalous results. Around 390 personnel have taken this test. A separate screening programme overseen by the Depleted Uranium Oversight Board (DUOB) tested a total of 496 veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict and Balkans operations. I announced the publication of the final report of the DUOB on 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 64WS.

Future Rapid Effect System

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the aim of keeping the intellectual property rights and the design authority of the Future Rapid Effect System within the UK is compatible with the boxer vehicle design proposed by Artec and managed by OCCAR. [146081]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 28 June 2007]: Yes. UK residence of intellectual property rights (IPR) and design authority status is a key objective of the defence industrial strategy and meeting this objective was a precondition for entry into the FRES utility vehicle design competition.

Galileo Project

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether a representative of his Department has attended meetings on the Galileo project in the last six months; and if he will make a statement. [146205]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department for Transport (DFT) is the lead Government Department for Galileo. MOD policy officials, along with officials from other Government Departments, provide DFT advice on wider issues.

In addition, the British National Space Centre (BNSC) has contracted satellite navigation experts from the Defence Scientific and Technology Laboratory (DSTL), an MOD executive agency, to provide technical support to the UK's involvement in the EU's Galileo civil satellite navigation programme.

They have regularly attended meetings on Galileo since the earliest days of the programme.

Gurkhas: Pensions

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to improve the pensions of Gurkhas who have served more than 21 years with the British army. [146601]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The changes necessary to implement the new terms and conditions for Gurkhas that I announced earlier this year have now started. In the particular case of pensions, we propose to offer serving and retired Gurkhas who served on or after 1 July 1997, when the Brigade became home based in the UK, the opportunity to transfer to one of two armed forces pension schemes, with a planned transfer date of 1 October 2007. This will allow Gurkhas to choose the pension scheme which best meets their personal circumstances.

TREASURY

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146086]

Jane Kennedy: Officials throughout the Treasury are involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in the International and Finance Directorate in the Treasury total 37. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Informers

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1284W, on informers, when Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) commenced taking account of Association of Chief Police Officers' guidelines in calculating rewards to informers; and what the statutory basis is for HMRC taking such guidelines into account. [144256]

Dawn Primarolo: Since the merger of the former Inland Revenue and HM Customs and Excise to form HM Revenue and Customs on 18 April 2005 all reward payments made by HMRC have followed the relevant ACPO principals.

ACPO guidance does not have a statutory basis in law, but is recognised as "best practice" within the Law Enforcement environment.

Inheritance Tax: Gifts and Endowments

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will increase the limit of the annual exemption from inheritance tax for gifts; and if he will make a statement. [146593]

Jane Kennedy: Under the current inheritance tax rules, most gifts made more than seven years before death are not regarded as within the chargeable estate for tax purposes. Gifts made within this period are brought within the taxable estate; however they will only be subject to IHT where the taxable estate exceeds the nil-rate band of £300,000. Where gifts made within this period may be liable to IHT, there is an exemption of £3,000 each year; there are also various other gifts reliefs available. The Government keep all taxes under review.

National Insurance Fund

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the surplus or deficit on the National Insurance Fund was in each year since 1979. [146249]

Andy Burnham: Information on total identifiable expenditure per capita for each region of England is set out in the HM Treasury publication, 'Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 2007', May 2007. This provides outturn data from 2001-02 to 2005-06 and planned outturn for 2006-07. The PESA publication is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spending_statistics/pes_publications/pespub_pesa07.cfm.

The Government do not currently disaggregate spending data below regional level.

Welfare Tax Credits: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was overpaid to recipients of tax credits in Peterborough constituency in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [146755]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the numbers of families with tax credits awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments by constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes, for 2005-06, is available in the HMRC publication 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Awards 2005-06. Supplements on Payments. Geographical Analysis', which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geoq-stats.htm.

Working Families Tax Credit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much working families tax credit was (a) overpaid and (b) underpaid due to (i) error and (ii) fraud in each year that the credit was available. [146258]

Jane Kennedy: The estimated level of error and fraud by value under the working families tax credit is published in paragraph 5 of the Introduction note in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Error and Fraud Statistics 2003-04", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/error-fraud.htm

Ordnance Survey: Copyright

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what revenue the Ordnance Survey raised from selling licensable or copyright material to (a) schools and public educational establishments, (b) commercial cartographers and (c) software developers in each of the last five years. [146017]

Hazel Blears [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Ordnance Survey revenue from licensing data and from sales of products and services directly attributable to the schools and public educational establishments for each of the five years from 2002-03 to 2006-07 was £436,188, £461,064, £428,274, £280,334 and £304,837 respectively.

Revenue information is not held separately for the specific categories of commercial cartographer or software developer. This could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what action the Government are taking to support efforts by local public bodies and voluntary groups to strengthen their practice on local sector independence. [147215]

John Healey: As part of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, HM Treasury and the Cabinet Office are leading a review of the role of the third sector in social and economic regeneration. The role of local voluntary and community groups is central to the review.

Communities and Local Government have been actively involved in the review and supported the activity on strengthening communities. We also published our Third Sector Strategy discussion document on 7 June which invites comments on how we can help strengthen the relationship between the sector and local government.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146330]

David Cairns: The following table provides information on consultancies, none of which was greater than £10 million.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146089]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has a small team of policy officials who, among a range of other responsibilities, provide advice and guidance, on request, to UK Government Departments on any Scottish devolution aspects of European Council negotiations, the monitoring and enforcement of EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice.

The Scotland Office does not assist or advise the European Commission, nor does the Scotland Office have officials seconded to the European Commission.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at the Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146500]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999. Members of the senior civil service in the Scotland Office are seconded from the Scottish Executive; their bonuses are assessed under a framework set by the Cabinet Office. The Scotland Office does not hold central information on such bonuses.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146924]

David Cairns: All the staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice who hold the individual personnel records, including annual performance. Poor performance is dealt with by line management within the procedures prescribed by the parent Departments. The Office does not maintain a central record of the performance of staff.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145981]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to the answers that I gave him on 26 April 2006, Official Report, column 1131W and 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 764W.

Departments: Surveys

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff surveys his Department undertook in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [145264]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office undertook one staff survey in 2006 at no cost.

WALES

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147600]

Mr. Hain: Nil.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146419]

Mr. Hain: On its creation in 1999 the Wales Office initially had two senior civil servants, but since 2000 has had only one. This is the director post, which has been held by two individuals since 1999.

The director has been subject to performance related pay, in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance. The current scheme can be found on the Cabinet Office's Civil Service website.

The pay, including any bonus, of the director is reported by salary range in our annual departmental reports, which are available in the House Library and on the Wales Office website.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues in the Department of Work and Pensions on the level of assistance afforded to former Allied Steel and Wire workers under the Financial Assistance Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [146508]

Mr. Hain: The Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS) allows all members of affected pension schemes to receive payments of 80 per cent. of their pension, which is a substantial replacement of scheme members' pensions.

Up to 27 June 2007, 37 former ASW (Cardiff) members are in receipt of FAS initial payments.

A review led by Andrew Young of the Government Actuary's Department is currently examining whether better use can be made of scheme assets and other potential funding sources, with a view to providing greater levels of help to those who have lost their pensions as a result of scheme collapse. The review is due to report by the end of the year, with an interim report due shortly.

Patients

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on waiting times for hospital treatment in England of patients from Wales. [146402]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with Cabinet colleagues on a range of issues, including the delivery of cross border health services.

The number of Welsh patients waiting over eight months for in-patient or day-case treatment has dropped from 7,218 in April 2006 to none at the end of May 2007. This includes patients from Wales receiving treatment in hospitals in England.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to reduce opium production in Afghanistan. [146731]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government supports the Afghan National Drug Control Strategy, a key priority of which is to strengthen and diversify legal livelihoods which free farmers and other rural workers from dependence on poppy cultivation.

DFID has provided £77 million from 2005 to 2007 to support the development of legal rural livelihoods, much of which has been channelled through the Government of Afghanistan's own National Priority Programmes.

Alternatives to opium poppy can take many forms. There is no one single crop which will replace poppy, and therefore DFID has provided £3 million to support research into a range of alternatives including high value crops such as mint and saffron. Traditional alternatives include crops such as wheat and onions.

However, alternatives to poppy come not only in the form of different crops. They can often be non-farm activities such as clothes-making and shop keeping. The Government of Afghanistan's Microfinance Investment Support Facility of Afghanistan (MISFA) has provided over £133 million worth of small loans to 364,786 Afghan families to help them invest in their own licit businesses. MISFA operates in 23 provinces, including Helmand. DFID has provided £15 million to MISFA since March 2004. Nearly 75 per cent. of those receiving loans are women.

DFID also provided £18 million in 2005-06 to the Government of Afghanistan's National Rural Access Programme (NRAP), which has so far built or repaired over 9,000 km of roads—essential for rural farmers to access markets. So far the programme has generated over 13 million days of labour for Afghans. NRAP operates in all 34 provinces.

DFID has also provided £42.6 million in total for the National Solidarity Programme (NSP) and is providing £10.6 million to roll out NSP in Helmand province (2006 to 2009). NSP is helping elected Community Development Councils (CDCs), representing over 17,000 communities across Afghanistan, identify development priorities in their areas and then receive grants to undertake the work. NSP has funded over 28,000 projects in agriculture, education, health, irrigation, power supply, transport, and water supply. NSP currently operates in all 34 provinces.

DFID is making a contribution of £22.7 million over three years (as part of an overall UK Government contribution of £30 million) to the Government of Afghanistan's Counter Narcotics Trust Fund. The fund brings funding for counter narcotics into the national budget, gives the Afghans greater responsibility for managing the drugs problem and ensures money is targeted effectively.

India: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to support education in rural areas of (a) India and (b) Pakistan. [146730]

Mr. Malik: DFID has been supporting the Indian Government's flagship Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA) universal elementary education programme, together with the World Bank and the European Commission, for the last five years to increase educational opportunities, particularly in rural areas where 75 per cent. of school-age children live. DFID has spent £210 million over the five years 2003-04 to 2007-08 in support of SSA. Over the same period the World Bank has contributed £330 million and the EC £100 million. SSA is the central Government's prime vehicle for delivering on the Universal Primary Education (UPE) Millennium Development Goal (MDG), and the 2002 constitutional amendment that made elementary education a fundamental right in the country. The aim is to ensure that by 2010 all children in India are receiving eight years of basic education of acceptable quality, regardless of sex, caste, creed, family income or location.

SSA is a priority for the Indian Government, which last year spent over £1.5 billion on the programme. Over 90 per cent. of India's Government elementary schools are in rural areas and SSA has a particular focus on these institutions. Very good progress is being made:

The number of out of school children has fallen from 25 million in 2003 to 9.6 million in 2006 and the majority of the 15 million plus children that have been brought to school are from rural areas;

Drop out rates have fallen, particularly in rural areas;

Strong progress has been made towards gender and social equity, including for Scheduled Caste children, Scheduled Tribe children and children with disabilities, particularly in rural areas, and

The gap in education indicators between rural and urban areas is narrowing. Rural primary enrolment rates are now just 3 per cent. behind those of urban areas. In rural areas there are now 89 girls for every 100 boys enrolled, compared to 94 girls for every 100 boys in urban areas. Examination pass rates are now almost identical in rural and urban areas.

DFID and its development partners are currently preparing a second phase of external support to SSA. The support will have a strong focus on raising the quality of education, through teacher development, improved assessment systems, better school management and improved classroom practices.

In addition to SSA, DFID has just approved £35 million of support for Mahila Samakhya (MS), promoting Education for Women's Equality. This is the Government of India's main programme for tackling women's empowerment through education. It supports mostly rural women to organise into village level collectives called Mahila Sanghas, which empower women to resist violence; to gain better access to education and health services; to open up economic opportunities such as microfinance; and enhance women's role in local government.

DFID's education programme in Pakistan does not focus on rural areas specifically. We generally work through the Federal and Provincial Governments to promote system reforms so our support benefits all, including urban, rural and remote areas.

DFID is supporting nationwide educational development through the Gender and Education Policy Support Project (£3.5 million over four years) and the National Education Assessment System (£700,000 over five years). Both of these jointly funded programmes benefit rural areas.

DFID is also funding education activities in specific parts of the country. In Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) DFID is supporting a Community Participation Education Project (£550,000 over two years) covering four districts, most of which are rural. DFID support to the Faisalabad Devolution Project (£6.4 million over four years) includes support to develop the strategic and management capacities in the education sector in the Faisalabad district, including support for the improvement of individual schools, many of which are in rural areas. In the Punjab province more widely DFID is contributing £30 million over four years to the Asia Development Bank-led Punjab Devolved Social Services Programme, 17 per cent. of which is for support to education.

DFID contribution to the reconstruction of the earthquake affected areas has a substantial element of this funding is for education, reconstruction and rehabilitation, with much of the earthquake affected areas being rural. We have agreed so far to contribute £44 million in budget support and technical assistance.

Palestinians: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent (a) estimate has been made of the number and (b) assessment has been made of the humanitarian needs of Palestinian refugees on the Iraq-Syrian border; and what support the UK has offered. [146667]

Mr. Malik: The United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) estimate that there are 1,400 Palestinians living in refugee camps on the Iraq-Syrian border. The UNHCR have visited these camps and are providing emergency support. We are in contact with our international partners and aid agencies regarding the situation for displaced peoples both within Iraq and in neighbouring countries, including the Palestinian community, which UNHCR estimates to number about 15,000 people in Iraq itself.

In 2007, DFID has contributed £1.5 million to the UNHCR regional appeal and £15 million for UN Relief and Works Agency's (UNRWA) work among refugees in the middle east. Both the UNHCR and UNRWA are providing support to Palestinians who are living in refugee camps on the Iraq/Syria border. We have also contributed £7 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) to support vulnerable groups including displaced Iraqis and Palestinians living in Iraq.

Palestinians: Transport

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with international colleagues on Palestinian development, with particular reference to the development of a Palestinian (a) airport and (b) port. [146729]

Mr. Malik: My right hon. Friend the former Secretary of State for International Development held regular discussions with international colleagues on Palestinian development and I will continue to do so.

Under the UK presidency, the EU led in negotiations with the parties and Secretary Rice to agree the Agreement on Movement and Access which was signed by Israel and the Palestinians in November 2005. This Agreement states that construction of a seaport should commence. The Agreement also notes the importance of an airport in Gaza and recommends that discussions on construction, security and operations should begin. Despite this Agreement, negotiations on the seaport and airport are currently on hold.

At this difficult time in Gaza the urgent priorities are to ensure sufficient and regular supplies to meet the basic needs of Gaza's 1.3 million people and to re-open external trade. However, in the longer term, establishing reliable access to the outside world will be essential for sustainable economic development, poverty reduction and a viable Palestinian state.

The Government regularly raise their concerns on movement and access restrictions with the Israeli Authorities.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pilot Schemes: Data Networks

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the trial introduced in North Tyneside following the GNN report, 'Data Sharing can lead to Faster, More Efficient Services', will be extended to a further six local authorities; and if he will consider Thanet as a location for one of the next pilot schemes. [146650]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The joint working pilots to extend the trial carried out in North Tyneside to a further six local authorities will run for three months from around September and will be evaluated early in 2008. Six local authorities have been invited to participate and we are awaiting their response. Final selection of the six local authorities is ongoing pending these responses.

We are looking to test across a mix of different types of local authority, including London. Scotland, Wales, rural, urban and large conurbation and selection will also take into account factors such as caseload and performance.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of failed asylum seekers and their dependants removed to their country of origin under the assisted voluntary return (AVR) scheme in 2006 were given help with reintegration through the provision of training, education or help starting a small business; what the average cost per person was of return under the AVR programme in 2006; and what criteria are used under the AVR programme in the selection of recipients for help with reintegration in their country of origin through the provision of training, education or help starting a small business. [146762]

Mr. Byrne: Reintegration assistance is available to all those who return via the voluntary assisted return and reintegration programme (VARRP) one of a number of assisted voluntary return (AVR) schemes operated by the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) on behalf of the Border and Immigration Agency. VARRP is the largest of the AVR schemes and the only one that includes reintegration assistance as standard.

The average cost of an AVRIM return in 2006 was £1,434.23 per returnee.

Reintegration assistance was taken up by 57 per cent. of those who returned through VARRP in the 2006 calendar year. The breakdown of this figure is as follows:

	Percentage
Starting a small business	87
Provision of training	1
Provision of education	1
Other	11

Reintegration assistance is provided in kind in the country of return; however, during 2006 the enhanced package offered included the option to take phased cash payments. This is included in the "Other" category.

The average cost of a VARRP return in 2006 was £2,024.59 per returnee. No criteria are used to select recipients for help with reintegration in their country of return as all those who return through VARRP are eligible.

The other major AVR scheme is the assisted voluntary return for irregular migrants (AVRIM). Those who return via this scheme do not generally receive reintegration assistance. However, it can be considered for a limited number of vulnerable applicants who are likely to fall into categories such as victims of trafficking or unaccompanied minors.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Iraqis have (a) applied for and (b) been successful in gaining asylum in the United Kingdom in each year from 2003 to 2007. [146744]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Information on asylum applications, initial decisions and appeals for nationals of Iraq is shown in the following table. Initial decisions do not necessarily relate to applications made in the same period. Appeal determinations do not necessarily relate to initial decisions made in the same period.

Information on asylum applications, initial decisions and appeals for nationals of Iraq is published quarterly and annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

Departments: Good Communication Awards

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what public expenditure her Department incurred to send staff to attend the Good Communication Awards on 30 May held at the Marriott Grosvenor Hotel, London. [146876]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office welcomes external endorsement of the high quality of its website. Two members of the website team attended the Good Communication Awards ceremony on 30 May. Tickets for the event were free, the staff attended in their own time and travelled at their own expense. There was no public expenditure cost incurred in attending.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in her Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145977]

Mr. Byrne: The available information for Home Office Headquarters, Border and Immigration Agency and HMPS are as set out in the following table.

Information concerning the Identity and Passport Service and the Criminal Records Bureau is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Public sector Prison Service data relate to absences due to mental and behavioural disorders which include, but are not exclusively to do with, stress related conditions.

	Percentage
	Year ending 31 March
Department	2004	2005	2006
Home Office Headquarters	10.60	10.83	8.83
Border and Immigration Agency	9.50	9.07	11.14
HMPS Prison Service	25.00	23.80	23.50

Illegal Immigrants: Mauritania

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she had with her Mauritanian counterpart on assistance the UK can give to Mauritania to deal with illegal immigrants sailing from Mauritanian ports to European Union territory. [146997]

Mr. Byrne: I have not had any meetings with my Mauritanian counterpart regarding any assistance the UK can give to deal with illegal immigrants sailing from Mauritanian ports to European Union territory. I am not aware that my predecessor had any such contact.

Immigration Controls: Passports

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what changes she proposes for the system of passport checks of people flying into the UK; and what steps she intends to take to reduce delays for passengers, with particular reference to those arriving this summer. [146797]

Mr. Byrne: The level of staff working in frontline border control is at an all time high. Tough checks at our airports are imperative if we are to prevent illegal immigration, turn away criminals and maintain Britain's secure borders. For this reason we will continue to make every necessary check of those trying to gain entry.

We recognise that we have a responsibility to process genuine passengers without delay but the safety and security of the public is our priority.

Immigration: Crime

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were arrested by the police for immigration offences in each year since 1997. [146969]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested regarding all those arrested is not collated centrally by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform and could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

Written Questions

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to answer question 109676, on Harmondsworth Immigration Detention Centre, tabled by the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam on 13 December 2006. [127761]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend, the former Home Secretary, replied to the hon. Member on 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 716W.

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007 to question 144841, on Yarl's Wood Detention Centre, how the prices charged by the contractor are independently monitored to ensure there is no overcharging. [146616]

Mr. Byrne: The shop prices at Yarl's Wood are not charged by the monitor but are set in line with the Recommended Retail Price. Accounts are returned to the monitor on a monthly basis and are checked to ensure that the profit margin remains below 10 per cent.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007 to question 144839, on Yarl's Wood Detention Centre, for what reasons women are held in confinement away from the main accommodation areas; for what periods of time; for what reasons satellite news broadcasts were not available on (a) 26 April to 4 May, (b) 9 to 10 May and (c) 22 to 23 May; and if she will make a statement. [146617]

Mr. Byrne: The reasons why women may be held in temporary confinement, away from the main accommodation areas, are governed by the Detention Centre Rules 2001, Rule 42, and Paragraphs 1 to 8. Detainees are held in temporary confinement due to their refractory or violent behaviour, but only because that behaviour presents a risk to either themselves, to others or to the good order and discipline of the centre. The average length of stay in temporary confinement is one day.

Sky satellite news broadcasts were temporarily unavailable during the period of transition between Global Solutions Ltd. and Serco, 26 April to 4 May, due to a payment problem to the supplier and difficulties tuning the system to the correct channels. These problems were resolved and detainee choice continues to govern channel selection. During the other dates mentioned the full Sky satellite service including Sky news was available to all residents.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146332]

Mr. Woodward: The following table indicates how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000.

	(a) Spend on management consultants	(b) Spend on other external consultants and advisers
2000-01	[1]51,840.00	[1]707,026.00

[1] There was limited information available for the periods 2000-01 and 2001-02.

No consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Bingo

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effects of the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 on the bingo industry; and if she will make a statement. [146560]

Mr. Sutcliffe: An assessment of the impact of implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 on the bingo industry has not been carried out since the Act does not come fully into force until September 2007.

The estimated costs of implementation to the gambling industry, including bingo, were set out in the 'Regulatory Impact Assessment' which was published in April 2005 with the Gambling Act 2005.

In addition, impact assessments are prepared for each element of the secondary legislation required to implement the Gambling Act 2005. These are published with the related explanatory memorandum document on the Office for Public Sector Information website, and separately in the better regulation section of the Department's website www.culture.gov.uk.

Cricket: Curriculum

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps have been taken to facilitate the introduction of cricket into the wider state school sports education curriculum. [146670]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are committed to increasing the amount of physical education and sport in schools. This includes cricket which may be taught in schools as part of National Curriculum PE. Cricket is one of 25 sports helping to deliver the National School Sport Strategy. The England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) which is the National Governing Body for cricket has received £1.8 million to date to deliver their objectives for the Club Links and Step into Sport programmes within the Strategy.

The 2005-06 School Sport Survey found that cricket is the 5th most popular sport among schools in a school sport partnership, with 89 per cent. of schools offering it to their pupils. The survey also found that cricket was the second most popular sport in terms of club links, with 52 per cent. of schools having links with a local cricket club.

We have established over 100 cricket Community Sports Coaches through the CSC scheme. The majority of CSCs time is spent within the school setting.

Since 2003, Sport England has allocated £14.15 million of Community Club Development Programme (CCDP) funding to the (ECB) to help community sports clubs develop, or redevelop their sports facilities. Early evaluation of CCDP indicates that, since 2003-04, it has made a key contribution to an increase in links between community sports clubs and schools.

Sport England has awarded £4.5 million during the period 2005-08 of Sports Lottery Funding to the ECB's "Chance to Shine" initiative for young people, which aims to regenerate competitive cricket in state schools.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146914]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS changed its appraisal system from 2006-07. The appraisal system now contains two performance categories; successful and needs to improve.

Based on the 2006-07 appraisal reports received to date, there are only six staff in the needs to improve category.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147321]

Margaret Hodge: No estimate has been of the number of staff in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport using public transport to commute. However there are no car parking spaces available for staff and presumably staff must either use public transport, bicycles or walk to work.

Holidays: Pets

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the British Tourist Board on increasing the number of pet-friendly (a) hotels, (b) bed and breakfast, (c) holiday parks and (d) holiday resorts. [146471]

Margaret Hodge: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State nor my right hon. Friends the Members for St. Helens, South (Mr. Woodward) and for Dulwich and West Norwood (Tessa Jowell) have discussed this issue with VisitBritain, which has performed the statutory functions of the British Tourism Authority since 2003.

VisitBritain currently operates the Pets Come Too! marketing campaign, as one of its range of Welcome Schemes. The campaign is designed to make international and domestic visitors to England aware of hotels, bed and breakfast establishments, and providers of self-catering accommodation, which welcome pets.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much each sports lottery contributor will contribute to the Lottery funding package for the 2012 Olympics. [147200]

Mr. Sutcliffe: £340 million of National Lottery funding is to come via expenditure by the sports lottery distributors. Of this, £50.5 million (from Sport England) will be spent by the Olympic delivery authority on delivering the venues for the Games. £40 million towards the costs of the aquatic centre and £10.5 million on the velopark. The distributors themselves will determine and spend the remaining £289.5 million on continuing support for elite athletes and coaches, facilities for elite and community use, and community programmes.

In addition to this contribution, as my right hon. Friend the Member for Dulwich and West Norwood (Tessa Jowell) announced on 15 March, it is proposed that the Sport lottery distributors will contribute the following sums to the Olympic funding package between 2009 and 2012.

Sports Council	£ million Lottery Contribution
Sport England	99.956
Sport Scotland	13.059
Sports Council for Wales	7.255
Sports Council for Northern Ireland	4.192

I would also refer the hon. Member to the written statement of 27 June 2007, Official Report, column 29WS, which provides details of the revised Memorandum of Understanding between the Government and the Mayor and the arrangement by which the London Development Agency (LDA) and the Lottery will be reimbursed from proceeds from the sale of the relevant LDA-owned land following the games.

Copies of the revised Memorandum of Understanding are available in the House Library.

Sports

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (a) the Youth Sport Trust, (b) the Association for Physical Education and (c) Sports Coach UK were consulted on the development of county sports partnerships; and if he will make a statement. [147266]

Mr. Sutcliffe: County sports partnerships (CSPs) are independent organisations created by local partners to provide a forum for the development of sport across a clearly defined sub regional area. Many CSPs have been in existence for some years.

As independent organisations, it is for local partners to decide who to consult and involve in their development. CSPs are key to the delivery of school and community sport and the Youth Sports Trust and Sports Coach UK are actively engaged in working with CSPs across the country.

Video Games: Violence

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with his European counterparts on the regulation of violent video games. [146111]

Margaret Hodge: None. But Lord Falconer of Thoroton, Baroness Scotland of Asthal and my right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan) represented the UK at the Justice and Home Affairs Council of the Council of the European Union held on 12 and 13 June where violent video games were discussed. A statement setting out the outcome of the Council's discussions was laid in Parliament on 27 June.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children in Care: Runaway Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in the care of a local authority have been reported to the police as missing; and for how many of these children the whereabouts are unknown. [147418]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Children: Databases

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on the National Children's database on data protection and confidentiality. [147382]

Beverley Hughes: We have consulted widely at every stage throughout the design and development of ContactPoint and have received a number of representations about compliance with the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) and about confidentiality. We have worked closely with the Information Commissioner's Office and continue to enjoy an open and constructive relationship with them. We are confident that ContactPoint is fully compliant with the DPA and that the confidentiality of children, young people and their families have been taken into account.

The fourth data protection principle provides that data shall be accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date. The draft Children Act 2004 Information Database (England) Regulations 2007, laid before Parliament on 25 June, will bring ContactPoint into operation. The draft regulations provide that local authorities and other suppliers of data to the system must take reasonable steps to ensure that the data is accurate.

Each local authority will be responsible for the records of children in their area and will have dedicated resources, funded by my Department, to carry out data matching and cleansing to ensure the accuracy and quality of the data held on ContactPoint. The DPA provides that individuals have the right to see personal data held about them and to have it corrected, where applicable. Draft statutory ContactPoint guidance, currently out for consultation until 27 July, sets out how local authorities are expected to handle requests from children and their parents to see their information on ContactPoint and to have any inaccuracies resolved.

The confidentiality and security of the information held on ContactPoint—basic identifying information on all children in England and contact details of practitioners providing services to them—is a key priority. Details of practitioners providing sensitive services, defined as sexual health, mental health and substance abuse, may only be added to ContactPoint with the informed and explicit consent of the child, young person or, where appropriate, their parent. These sensitive service practitioner contact details will be hidden from the view of users. Local authority ContactPoint teams will broker contact between the sensitive service provider and another practitioner who considers that there is good reason to know who is providing the sensitive service.

There will also be special arrangements to protect the records of children whose circumstances may mean that they are at increased risk, for example, where they are fleeing domestic violence. Information that could reveal the whereabouts of the child can be hidden from the view of ContactPoint users. Decisions to do this will be taken on a case by case basis and will be based on the level of threat posed if information becomes more widely available. This is entirely consistent with the principles of the DPA.

Children: Social Services

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on (a) the development of social partnership arrangements to cover the children's workforce and (b) pay benefits agreements for specialist and professional Children's Services' staff; and if he will make a statement. [144366]

Beverley Hughes: I do not believe we are in a position currently to develop social partnership arrangements for the children's workforce as a whole. The Department has however asked the Children's Workforce Development Council to consider what mechanisms might be employed to bring together key children's workforce stakeholders to consider the issues arising out of CWDC's recruitment, retention and rewards report.

The Department has no intention to introduce pay benefits agreements for specialist and professional Children's Services staff.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent from the Transformation Fund for the development of the child care workforce. [147296]

Beverley Hughes: Our current estimate of the total spent in 2006-07 from the Transformation Fund is £37 million.

Education: Unitary Councils

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the bids of local authorities shortlisted for unitary status on education provision in those areas; [146473]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the local authorities seeking unitary status which appeared on the shortlist published by the Department for Communities and Local Government on 27 March 2006; [146476]

(3) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the possible impact on child protection and vulnerable groups of children and young people of potential structural changes to local government. [146459]

Beverley Hughes: The decision as to which proposals for unitary local authorities should proceed to stakeholder consultation reflected the collective decision of Government. All the 26 unitary proposals that were received in response to the invitation issued on 26 October 2006 were assessed against the five criteria set out in that invitation. The 16 unitary proposals that have been subject to the stakeholder consultation will now be reassessed against the same five criteria, having regard to all the information available, including that received in response to the consultation.

Primary Education: Drugs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1158W, on primary education: drugs (1) what estimate he has made of the percentage of children at (a) Key Stage 1 and (b) Key Stage 2 who are receiving drugs education, as set out in the guidance; and what assessment he has made of the impact of this guidance in teaching young children to resist pressure to take drugs; [146545]

(2) on what date his Department started work on the new drugs strategy on which he plans to consult; [146546]

(3) what guidance existed on this subject prior to 2004. [146547]

Kevin Brennan: The Department's current guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools (DfES 2004)", replaced a number of publications for schools on drug issues, including the Department's guidance "Circular 4/95: Drug Prevention and Schools", and the guidance "Protecting Young People: Good practice in drug education in schools and the youth service, 1998". In doing so it updated and brought together in one document information for schools on drug education and related issues.

The guidance states that all children should be receiving age-appropriate drug education in all years from Key Stage 1 onwards. Assessment of education provision in schools is undertaken by Ofsted and it tells us that many schools are already doing excellent work in relation to drugs and that the quality and provision of drug education continues to improve. We have not formally assessed the impact of the guidance on the behaviour of children and young people.

Departments have been working since March on the new drug strategy consultation paper that will be published in July and will be the launch for a full and active consultation exercise involving all key stakeholders, service users and members of the public. We will start writing the new strategy when responses start to arrive. Education will be a key strand of the consultation.

Private Education

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children of compulsory school age in each local education authority area attended independent schools in the last year for which figures are available. [147349]

JUSTICE

Cardiff Prison: Rehabilitation

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how much was spent on the detoxification unit in Cardiff prison in each year since it was established; and if he will make a statement; [147359]

(2) how many applications to the detoxification unit at Cardiff prison were (a) accepted, (b) rejected and (c) made in total in each year since it was established; and if he will make a statement. [147391]

Mr. Hanson: The detoxification unit at Cardiff prison opened on 13 September 2004. The yearly running costs are as follows:

2004-05	520,950
2006-07	532,933

It has capacity for 52 prisoners and is routinely full. The unit is a voluntary unit and is offered on reception. A prisoner may refuse treatment but no one is ever rejected. The following number of applications have been made and processed since its opening in September 2004.

	Number
September 2004 to August 2005	1,051
September 2005 to August 2006	915

Dartmoor Prison

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons 90 cells in B wing at HM Prison Dartmoor are not being used; and for how long this has been the case. [146912]

Mr. Hanson: All cells on B wing are fully utilised. However, C wing was permanently removed from use in November 2002 as it was no longer fit for purpose due to weather penetration, lack of integral sanitation and inadequate security standards. Refurbishment was considered but was not as economically viable as building new accommodation at a better strategic location.

Domestic Violence: Courts

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many specialist domestic violence courts there are; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of such courts; how many further such courts are under consideration for establishment; and at which locations. [147160]

Bridget Prentice: There are 64 Specialist Domestic Violence Court (SDVC) systems in operation.

My Department and the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) commissioned an evaluation of the first five specialist magistrates courts operating in Cardiff, Derby, Leeds, West London and Wolverhampton. The results of the evaluation were published in 2004.

http://www.cps.gov.uk/publications/docs/specialistdvcourts.pdf

http://www.cps.gov.uk/publications/docs/dvpilotsites0405.pdf

Her Majesty's Courts Service, in conjunction with the CPS and the Home Office, is undertaking a review of the first 25 Specialist Domestic Violence Courts. Expressions of interest will be considered for new SDVC systems by end of March 2008.

Employment: Equality

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to ensure that the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 are applied to part-time members of the judiciary. [146734]

Bridget Prentice: The retirement ages for all judges, salaried, fee-paid (part-time) and magistrates, were reviewed in the light of the 2006 regulations, and there are currently no plans to change them.

Freedom of Information

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many requests for information under freedom of information legislation have been awaiting a decision by the Information Commissioner's Office for more than 118 days, as referred to in the answer of 12 October 2006, Official Report, column 807W, on the Information Commissioner; and whether any request concluded since 10 October 2006 has taken longer than 597 days for a decision to be reached. [146775]

Bridget Prentice: Between 10 October 2006 and the end of May 2007, 69 cases were closed which were older than 597 days. At that time there were 921 open cases which were older than 118 days.

This figure includes complaints pending resolution rather than information requests to the Information Commissioner's Office as a public authority.

Information Commissioner: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many press, marketing and communications staff are employed by the Information Commissioner's office. [146879]

Bridget Prentice: The Information requested has been provided by the Information Commissioner's office, an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Data Protection Act 1998. It employs 11 press, marketing and communications staff.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what public expenditure was incurred by the Information Commissioner's office in hiring (a) public affairs companies and consultants and (b) public relations companies and consultants, in each year since its creation. [146880]

Bridget Prentice: The Information requested has been provided by the Information Commissioner's Office, an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Data Protection Act 1998. Since its creation in January 2001, it has incurred costs for public relations companies as set out in the following table. There has been no expenditure on public affairs consultants or agencies and no expenditure on public relations consultants.

2002	0
2003	35,250
2004	100,984
2005	189,852
2006	270,534
2007	304,249

Legal Aid: Asylum

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in how many cases in each of the last three years the Legal Services Commission recommended exceptional funding for legal advice and representation for those making asylum support appeals; and how many of those recommendations were granted. [146112]

Bridget Prentice: Community Legal Service funding is not generally available for legal representation at asylum support appeals. Funding is available for general legal advice (falling short of advocacy) to those who qualify financially, under the legal help scheme. This allows legal aid solicitors to advise clients on tribunal procedures and can include the provision of written or oral advice, obtaining counsel's opinion if appropriate, and the preparation of a case to present at a tribunal.

However, the Lord Chancellor has the power, on receipt of a recommendation from the Legal Services Commission (LSC), to authorise "exceptional funding" for representation under Section 6(8)(b) the Access to Justice Act 1999 in those few cases where representation may be essential for a fair hearing, and where no other sources of help can be found.

The LSC has not authorised any requests for exceptional funding for representation before a NASS tribunal in the last three years. It does not record numbers of applications received.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the Legal Services Commission pilot on frontloading legal advice and assistance in asylum cases will be (a) conducted, (b) evaluated and (c) published; and if she will make a statement. [146113]

Bridget Prentice: The joint Legal Services Commission (LSC) and Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) pilot, entitled the New Asylum Model Early Legal Advice Pilot, commenced on 23 November 2006 and will run until 7 December 2007. The pilot is being evaluated on a monthly basis by the LSC, the BIA and other stakeholders such as the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the Refugee Legal Centre and the Immigration Advisory Service. A full and joint evaluation report will be produced once all cases in the pilot have concluded.

Legal Aid: Families

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of legal aid provision in family law cases was in each of the last three years. [146320]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Dorset and North Poole (Annette Brooke) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 347W.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average cost of the provision of legal aid services in family law cases was in 2006-07; and what the average length of a legally-aided case was over the same period. [146321]

Bridget Prentice: Figures are not yet available for 2006-07. However, for 2005-06, which is the most current year for which the data is available, the average cost of legal aid services in family law cases was around £3,600. The average length i.e. from issue of certificate to payment of claim, of a legally aided case over the same period was approaching 22 months.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what work is being conducted by his Department in relation to the Group of States against Corruption's review of party funding. [146878]

Bridget Prentice: The Group of States Against Corruption (known as GRECO), is currently carrying out a review of party funding in the UK. The review process includes a 3 day visit to the UK. This visit had originally been scheduled for 4-6 July 2007 but is now expected to take place later this year. During the visit two evaluators from other GRECO member states will be meeting with a range of experts in the field of political party funding. Ministry of Justice officials are facilitating this visit by arranging appointments and providing facilities for the use of the evaluation team. In addition, the Ministry of Justice submitted responses to a GRECO questionnaire earlier this year, setting out the legal basis of the party funding regime in the UK.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which (a) redundant military camps or other Ministry of Defence facilities, (b) ships or other floating vessels and (c) former secure hospitals were considered and rejected for use as prisons or secure accommodation in each of the last five years; and in each case what the reasons were for their rejection for such use. [146450]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have undertaken a number of national site search exercises to identify suitable sites for new prisons. These have included the consideration of surplus property owned by other Government Departments such as the MOD and the NHS. The majority of these were ruled out at an early stage as they did not meet the basic criteria for conversion into a prison.

NOMS identified one MOD site, Connaught Barracks in Dover, as potentially suitable for conversion into a prison. The Government decided not to proceed with this site. Another MOD site Rousillon Barracks, Chichester was not pursued further because of its listed status.

A competition to explore the option of using vessels as part of the expansion of the custodial estates of both the NOMS and the Borders and Immigration Agency is currently under way and the OJEU Notice covering the requirement was published on 24 October 2006.

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convicted prisoners have been detained in (a) police and (b) court cells in (i) Wrexham and (ii) Wales in each of the last 12 months. [146687]

Mr. Hanson: The usage of Operation Safeguard by individual police forces is held for use as management information only.

8 prisoners were held overnight in court cells in Cardiff on one night in June 2007. 3 of those held were convicted prisoners.

Prisons: Death

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) deaths from natural causes, (b) deaths from accidents and (c) self-inflicted deaths have occurred in (i) prisons, (ii) young offender institutions and (iii) secure training centres in England and Wales since 1 January 2006. [146449]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested in respect of deaths since 1 January 2006 is provided in the following table. The figures requested at (b) are given as 'Other non-natural' deaths.

	Prisons		Young offender institutions		Secure training centres
Type of death	2006	2007[1]	2006	2007[1]	2006	2007[1]

1 Up to and including 26th June 2007.
2 Includes all deaths where it appears the individual acted specifically to take their own life, not only those that received a suicide or open verdict at inquest. Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information become available.
3 Awaiting further information before classification.

Prisons: Employment

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what target was set for the number of hours of purposeful activity to be completed by prisoners in each year since 1997. [146971]

Mr. Hanson: The national target for the number of weekly hours of purposeful activity between 1996-97 and 2003-04 is shown in the table:

Purposeful activity targets between 1996-97 and 2003-04

	National purposeful activity target
1996-97	26.5
1997-98	22.5
1998-99	24.0
1999-2000	24.0
2000-01	24.0
2001-02	24.0
2003-04	24.0

Purposeful Activity ceased to be a key performance indicator (KPI) in 2004-05, and a national target is no longer set. However, it remains an establishment level key performance target (KPT). Establishments are set annual targets for prisoner activity and performance continues to be monitored internally.

Prisons: Ships

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when HMPS Weare was sold; to whom she was sold and at what price; what the original cost was of (a) acquiring and (b) refitting her for use as a prison was; what her annual running costs as a prison ship were for each year she was so used; and how many inmates she was designed to hold. [146524]

Mr. Hanson: The Weare was sold in May 2006 to a specialist ship broker as an accommodation barge. Further details of the sale are commercial-in-confidence. Maintenance costs for The Weare in each year since 1997 were published in response to a parliamentary question on 22 March 2005, Official Report, column 657W.

The original purchase price paid for the floating prison facility was £3.7 million. The initial refit commenced in 1997 at a cost of around £6.5 million with further re-fits to endure sea-worthiness.

The Weare held up to 400 prisoners.

Probation: Manpower

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2132-34W, on probation: manpower, if he will estimate how many vacancies not classified as active vacancies there were for (a) probation officers and (b) probation service officers (i) nationally and (ii) in each probation area in England and Wales for each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [146590]

Mr. Hanson: I am unable to provide an estimate on how many vacancies within the probation service are not classified as active. Information on vacancies in the NFS was initially collated on the basis of establishment minus staff in post, when the NFS work force information reporting cycle was put in place in 2003. Probation Areas have since been required to report regularly on the number of active vacancies they have. An active vacancy is one which a Probation Area is actively trying to fill through a recruitment process. Information on vacancies was not collected prior to 2003.

Secure Training Centres: Restraint Techniques

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice who was consulted prior to the introduction of Statutory Instrument no. 1709, 2007. [147027]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board and the Directors of secure training centres.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what role the departmental controller in each of the secure training centres plays in (a) monitoring and (b) reporting on the use of physical restraint; [147033]

(2) what system of monitoring the use of physical restraint is in place in each secure training centre to ensure that practice complies with guidelines set out in the Youth Justice Board paper on managing behaviour. [147036]

Mr. Hanson: Under section 8 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994, every contracted-out secure training centre shall have a monitor, who shall be a Crown servant appointed by the Secretary of State. The monitor's functions are set out in the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act and the Secure Training Centre Rules. Key functions are:

to keep the running of the centre under review, and report on it to the Secretary of State to investigate, and report to the Secretary of State on, any allegations made against custody officers to ensure that any person applying for certification as a custody officer is a fit and proper person and has received appropriate training.

When a young person has been subject to physical restraint, the Custody Officers involved complete a report immediately after the incident. This is signed by the unit manager, duty operations manager and duty director and copied to the monitor within 12 hours. The report details the reasons necessary for taking such action. The monitor checks that the report explains why physical restraint was considered necessary, who was present at the incident, who authorised the use of physical restraint, who applied the restraint and the exact methods used.

Any incident is also logged in a physical restraint care log book. Records are checked weekly by a nominated head of department and audited. Statistical information is given to the monitor on a weekly basis.

The monitor make a monthly report to a central team at the Youth Justice Board of all instances of physical restraint, together with any concerns he or she may have.

The Youth Justice Board's code of practice "Managing Children and Young People's Behaviour in the Secure Estate" applies to all establishments in the under-18 estate and covers other issues in addition to physical restraint. The Board undertakes separate assessments of compliance with the code.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times oxygen has been offered, or applied to, detainees following the use of restraint in secure training centres in each of the last three years. [147037]

Mr. Hanson: Oxygen was administered to a trainee at Rainsbrook secure training centre on four occasions in 2005 and once in 2006 following restraint incidents. It was not administered on any occasion during 2004 (or during 2007 to date). The other three centres have not administered oxygen following a restraint incident on any occasion during this period.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what consultation process was undertaken when deciding whether to extend the physical restraint procedures in the 2006 Youth Justice Board code of practice; and if he will make a statement; [147066]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that physical restraint is appropriately used within juvenile secure estates following changes to the 2006 Youth Justice Board code of practice; and if he will make a statement; [147067]

(3) what representations he has received on changes to physical restraint procedures in the 2006 Youth Justice Board code of practice; and if he will make a statement; [147068]

(4) what discussions he has had with the Youth Justice Board (YJB) when considering changes to the physical restraint procedures outlined in the 2006 YJB code of practice; and if he will make a statement; [147069]

(5) if he will make a statement on the decision to extend physical restraint within juvenile secure estates. [147071]

Mr. Hanson: We have not extended physical restraint procedures in the under-18 secure estate.

The recent inquest into the death in 2004 of Adam Rickwood highlighted a lack of clarity in the law relating to the use of physical restraint in secure training centres. Section 9 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 places certain duties on custody officers in contracted-out secure training centres, including a duty to ensure good order and discipline. It states that the powers arising by virtue of those duties include power to use reasonable force where necessary. However, the purposes for which approved methods of physical restraint may be used, as set out in rule 38 of the Secure Training Centre Rules 1998, did not include ensuring good order and discipline. In consequence, the coroner recommended urgent action to clarify the law. In response to his recommendation, we laid before Parliament on 13 June the Secure Training Centre (Amendment) Rules 2007. They come into effect on 6 July.

Before laying the new rules, we consulted with the Youth Justice Board and the directors of secure training centres. The board and the directors were of the view that the change to the rules should be made as quickly as possible.

I or my officials have received seven letters and four e-mail messages making representations or seeking information on this subject, including a letter from the chairman of the Joint Committee on Human Rights.

The change to the rules does not affect the two other types of establishment in the under-18 secure estate: young offender institutions and secure children's homes, to which other rules or regulations apply.

The Youth Justice Board has not amended its code of practice, "Managing Children and Young People's Behaviour in the Secure Estate" (February 2006), and has no plans to do so. Section 10 of the code sets out the principles governing the use of physical restraint. The amendment to the rules does not affect those principles. Nor does it alter the particular techniques that may be used (though those techniques are not prescribed by the code). The particular techniques that may be applied vary between the three sectors of the estate. In secure training centres, methods approved by the Secretary of State may only be applied.

Use of physical restraint in the under-18 estate is monitored by the Youth Justice Board, in accordance with section 10 of the code of practice. Following the introduction of the code last year, all under-18 establishments were required to conduct an assessment of compliance. The assessments were audited by the Youth Justice Board. Establishments that were not able to demonstrate full compliance were required to draw up an action plan to achieve it.

All under-18 establishments must provide the board with monthly statistics on use of restraint. A new, improved system of data collection was introduced in April this year. The board is planning a further assessment of performance in relation to use of restraint later this year.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many injuries occurred in juvenile secure units as a result of physical restraint in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [147070]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested relating to the under-18 estate at large was not collected centrally before the introduction of the Youth Justice Board's new data collection system in April 2007.

However, since February 2006, the Youth Justice Board has required secure training centres to make specific reports of any injuries. It has had no reports of injuries to young people arising out of the use of restraint during this period.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many unannounced inspections of each secure training centre have been carried out by the Commission for Social Care Inspection in each of the last five years. [147124]

Mr. Hanson: Inspection of secure training centres was originally the responsibility of the Social Services Inspectorate and subsequently the Commission for Social Care Inspectorate (CSCI). CSCI began to include unannounced inspections in its secure training centre inspection programme from April 2006. Inspection of secure training centres transferred to the expanded Ofsted on 1 April 2007.

In 2006 Rainsbrook, Medway and Hassockfield each received an unannounced inspection. So far in 2007, Oakhill has received two unannounced inspections.

Immediately after the deaths of Adam Rickwood and Gareth Myatt in 2004, unannounced inspections were conducted at Rainsbrook and Hassockfield.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children have been injured during physical restraint in each of the secure training centres in each quarter since January 2006. [147125]

Mr. Hanson: Since February 2006, the Youth Justice Board has required secure training centres to make specific reports of any injuries. It has had no reports of injuries to young people arising out of the use of restraint during this period.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what use was made of the chemical incapacitate known as PAVA to end the rooftop demonstration at Huntercombe Young Offenders Institution on 15 June; and if he will make a statement. [147127]

Mr. Hanson: During the operation to bring a rooftop incident to a close, PAVA was deployed in circumstances which the intervention teams judged to present no risk to the safety of the young offenders. Operational assessment is that the deployment hastened the resolution of the incident.

Victim Support Schemes

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what responses he has received about the piloting of the Victims' Advocate Scheme. [147159]

Mr. Hanson: The response to the scheme is very encouraging. The pilot began in five Crown court centres on 24 April 2006. There are currently 258 eligible cases and in 199 of these the family has chosen to make a statement in court or access personal and social legal advice. As at 18 June 2007, 40 family impact statements had been made with 38 delivered orally in court and in two read privately by the judge.

Young Offender Institutes

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the maximum capacity of young offender institutes was in each year since 1997, broken down by (a) male and (b) female accommodation. [146120]

Mr. Hanson: The following tables provide the operational capacity, at the end of June for each year from 1997 to 2006, of each designated Young Offender Institution (YOI) in England and Wales.

The tables list those sites that only hold under 21-year-olds either on remand or as sentenced young offenders. Operational capacity describes the total number of prisoners for the whole prison. For those establishments that have split functions, the operational capacity for the different functions are not available.

Women young offenders are held in accommodation designated for young offenders within women's prisons.

Young Offenders: Rehabilitation

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government are taking to help young female offenders get back into employment. [146388]

Mr. Hanson: There is a wide agenda of cross Government work underway to improve offenders' job prospects and to enable them to access sustainable employment. The joint DFES, Home Office and DWP reducing re-offending through skills and employment action plan sets the direction for this work. There are a number of programmes specifically designed to meet the needs of women. At Holloway prison, a job club has recently been set up by the European funded Exodus project to help women with CV writing, searching for employment and interview skills.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of measures in place to rehabilitate young offenders on their release from prison; and if he will make a statement. [146798]

Mr. Hanson: The inter-departmental reducing Re-offending Delivery Plan has at its heart the management of offenders from one end of their sentence to the other. It has a strong focus on commissioning the most effective interventions for offenders, including young offenders who often have chaotic lives and complex needs.

The Youth Justice Board published its youth resettlement framework for action in 2006, focusing on developing the key resettlement pathways and has rolled out resettlement and aftercare provision schemes (RAPS) in over 50 youth offending team (YOT) areas, providing planned resettlement activities for young offenders in custody and in the community.

The effective resettlement of offenders into the community is not just an issue for the Ministry of Justice. It requires a great deal of cross-Government and local partnership commitment, and this is currently being developed.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

EU Treaty

14. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the process is for agreeing a new EU treaty; and if he will make a statement. [146826]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Portuguese presidency plans to open an Inter-Governmental Conference on 23-24 July. Technical work will then be taken forward by working groups. The presidency aims to conclude the Treaty at the European Council in Lisbon on 18 October. Ratification by member states would then follow.

UN Drugs Organisations

15. Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the objectives of the United Nations drugs organisations. [146827]

Dr. Howells: UK policy is to support international drug control, including the relevant UN Conventions, and the work of the UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) in implementing it. The UK is a long standing member of the UN Commission on Narcotic Drugs and is also a major donor to UNODC.

Non-proliferation Treaty Review

16. Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking in preparation for the non-proliferation treaty review conference in 2010. [146828]

Dr. Howells: On 25 June, my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary set out how we intended to work towards the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) Review Conference in 2010.

She called for a reinvigorated commitment to a world free from nuclear weapons and recognised the pressure on the nuclear Non-Proliferation regime, particularly from Iran and North Korea. She made clear that we are committed to strengthen all aspects of the Nuclear NPT.

Zimbabwe

17. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to improve the political situation in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [146830]

Meg Munn: Mugabe has presided over catastrophic decline. Since 2000, the UK has given £143 million to help ordinary Zimbabweans stay alive, directly supporting nearly 1.6 million people. We will continue to support all those working for democratic change. Meanwhile state-sponsored violence in Zimbabwe must stop, the rule of law must be respected and the upcoming elections must meet the standards that Southern African Development Community states have themselves set one another.

Iran

18. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his European counterparts on Iran. [146831]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State had regular discussions with her European counterparts on Iran, most recently at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 18 June.

Middle East

19. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the middle east peace process. [146833]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend for Leeds North-East (Mr. Hamilton)

The middle east peace process is one of our highest priorities. Our objective remains a negotiated two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The two-state solution is the only realistic basis for a just and lasting peace, despite Hamas' actions in Gaza. This means a viable state of Palestine living in peace and security alongside the state of Israel. Both parties need to fulfil their obligations in order for this to become a reality. The international community has a key role to play in helping to secure this outcome. The Government are fully committed to doing whatever it can to help.

Israel

20. Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Israel on incursions by Israeli armed forces into Palestine. [146834]

Dr. Howells: The impact of Israel's military operations remains a real concern. Israel has the right to defend itself against terrorism but it must respect international humanitarian law. We regularly raise our concerns about this with the Israeli Government.

Occupied Territories

22. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the growth of illegal settlements in the west bank and east Jerusalem since 2002. [146836]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned at continuing settlement activity in the west bank and east Jerusalem. Non-governmental organisations have reported that the number of settlements has not changed but totals of settlers have risen.

The UK has stated that the settlements are illegal under international law; Israel should freeze all construction, including "natural growth" of existing settlements, and dismantle all outposts built since 2001. Our ambassador in Tel Aviv last raised our concerns with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 28 May.

Afghanistan

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the security situation in Afghanistan. [146815]

Dr. Howells: The security situation in the southern provinces of Afghanistan remains very challenging. Our forces, and those of Afghanistan and other international security assistance force nations, continue to work with great professionalism and bravery to provide the people of the Helmand and Kandahar provinces with the support they require to construct the services and infrastructure needed so badly in that part of the world.

African Union: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on increasing co-operation between the UN Security Council and the African Union Peace and Security Council; and what assessment he has made of the effect of such co-operation on African Union military involvement in (a) Sudan, (b) Somalia, (c) the Central African Republic and (d) Chad. [146937]

Meg Munn: We strongly welcome the growing co-operation between the UN Security Council (UNSC) and the African Union (AU) Peace and Security Council (AUPSC). Both have a vital role to play in conflict management in Africa. We are actively encouraging them to develop a practical and more formalised relationship. The UK and South Africa jointly led a UNSC mission to Africa from 14 to 18 June which included a joint UNSC-AUPSC meeting in Addis Ababa. The two bodies agreed to enhance co-operation and the UNSC agreed to "examine the possibility of the financing of a peacekeeping operation undertaken by the AU or under its authority" (copies of their joint communiqué will be placed in the Library of the House).

The UN and the AU are working extremely closely on Darfur, including joint mediation by their respective special envoys and on planning for the UN/AU hybrid peacekeeping operation. Discussions with the AU during the UNSC mission helped pave the way for authorisation of the hybrid operation by the UNSC and AUPSC.

We fully support the AU peacekeeping mission in Somalia (AMISOM)—the UK-sponsored UNSC Resolution 1744, adopted unanimously by the Security Council on 20 February, authorising the AMISOM's deployment. The UN is supporting AMISOM through an assistance cell to the AU in Addis Ababa and providing military planners. The UNSC has requested the Secretary-General to consult the AU on how to strengthen AMISOM and authorised him to begin contingency planning for a possible UN peacekeeping operation in Somalia. The UNSC mission discussed with the AUPSC on 16 June the need for an inclusive political process in Somalia. The two bodies will continue to work in tandem to try to help bring peace and stability to Somalia.

The AU has no military involvement in the Central African Republic or Chad. The UNSC is considering what role the UN might play to ensure stability and humanitarian access. The UNSC mission held discussions with the AU on 16 June on these issues.

Australia: Foreign Relations

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Australian counterpart since January. [146998]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with his Australian counterpart as yet. He looks forward to that opportunity. My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) the then Foreign Secretary and her counterpart, Australian Minister for Foreign Affairs Alexander Downer, met for substantive bilateral discussions on 18 to 19 December 2006 at the Australia-United Kingdom ministerial dialogue meeting in London.

Bermuda: Arrests

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the arrest and detention of the Auditor General for law and order in Bermuda. [146935]

Meg Munn: The Auditor General in Bermuda was arrested and subsequently released on police bail in connection with an ongoing criminal investigation by the Bermuda Police Service. It would therefore not be appropriate to comment further.

Burma: UN Resolutions

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what diplomatic steps the United Nations has taken on Burma since a resolution was vetoed in January. [147143]

Meg Munn: On 22 May, the UN Secretary-General announced that Ibrahim Gambari, the UN Special Adviser on the International Compact in Iraq and Other Issues, would continue to pursue the Good Offices mandate on Burma.

The UN Special Representative on Children and Armed Conflict, Radhika Coomaraswamy, visited Burma from 25 to 29 June to address compliance with UN Security Council Resolution 1612, which lays down reporting requirements for a number of countries of concern, including Burma.

The UN Assistant Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs, Margareta Wahlstrom, visited Burma from 4 to 9 April to assess the humanitarian situation in Burma.

The UN has a key role to play in addressing the political and humanitarian challenges in Burma. The UK will continue to support the UN's efforts in Burma.

Canada

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Canadian counterpart. [146733]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary last spoke to her counterpart, Canadian Foreign Minister Mr. Peter MacKay, by telephone on 9 March, when they discussed a number of international issues.

Cayman Islands: Business

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the US Administration in the last 12 months on the Cayman Islands and companies operating there; and if he will make a statement. [147213]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received no representations from the US Administration in the last 12 months on the Cayman Islands and companies operating there.

Central African Republic: Kidnapping

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports and representations he has received on armed groups seizing children for ransom payments in the Central African Republic; and if he will make a statement. [147129]

Meg Munn: We are monitoring the security and human rights situation in the Central African Republic (CAR) and are concerned by recent reports from Amnesty International referring, among other things, to incidents of armed groups kidnapping children for ransom. We have seen reports of child abductions by armed groups from refugee groups which appear to constitute forced recruitment and have raised this with the Office of the UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict.

We remain concerned by increased reports of humanitarian violations in CAR and the increasing level of violence in the north-west of the country, which has forced some humanitarian organisations to suspend operations in some areas. We have raised our concerns with the CAR authorities and welcome President Bozize's intention to carry out an investigation into the allegations of human rights abuses.

Darfur Oil Trust Fund

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with other members of the Government on the proposal for a Darfur Oil Trust Fund. [146624]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed the proposal for an oil trust fund with other members of the Government. Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development officials are discussing the proposal and will discuss the idea in more detail with the Aegis Trust.

We welcome the Aegis Trust proposal for an oil trust fund. This could be an option for consideration in the future to put further pressure on the government of Sudan to meet its commitments on Darfur. As with other measures, we need to carefully consider its impact on the economy and poverty reduction in the whole of Sudan, and on the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), agreed between north and south Sudan in 2005. Oil revenues are key to delivering the CPA's peace dividend across Sudan. The UK's policy remains focused on smart and targeted multilateral sanctions.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with other members of the Government on the proposals for a Darfur Oil Trust Fund; and if he will make a statement. [146901]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed the proposal for an oil trust fund with other members of the Government. Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development officials are discussing the proposal and will discuss the idea in more detail with the Aegis Trust.

We welcome the Aegis Trust proposal for an oil trust fund. This could be an option for consideration in the future to put further pressure on the Government of Sudan to meet its commitments on Darfur. As with other measures, we need to carefully consider its impact on the economy and poverty reduction in the whole of Sudan, and on the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), agreed between north and south Sudan in 2005. Oil revenues are key to delivering the CPA's peace dividend across Sudan. The UK's policy remains focused on smart and targeted multilateral sanctions.

East Timor: Democracy

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the conduct of the parliamentary election campaign in East Timor and its conformity with the Political Party Accord and Code of Conduct. [146938]

Meg Munn: The Deputy Head of our embassy in Jakarta visited Dili from 18 to 21 June and met with the East Timorese Government, the UN Mission and other key interlocutors. There was agreement that the parliamentary election campaign was proceeding well, with minimal evidence only of violence. All parties were respecting the Political Party Accord and Code of Conduct. The EU Election Observation Mission in East Timor also report that the electoral preparation is progressing well. We will continue to monitor progress.

European Constitution Treaty

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the cost of a national referendum on an EU treaty. [146102]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

This Department has not made an estimate of the cost of a national referendum on an EU treaty. We would, however, expect the cost of running a UK referendum to be similar to the cost of a general election. The last general election cost approximately £80 million.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the future of the middle east peace process. [146829]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today (UIN 146824) to the hon. Member for Enfield, Southgate (Mr. Burrowes).

The middle east peace process is a top priority. We seek a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict; the only realistic basis for a lasting peace. This means a viable state of Palestine living in peace alongside the state of Israel. Both parties must fulfil their obligations for this to become reality. The international community has a key role to play. The Government are fully committed to doing whatever they can to help.

Palestinian Arms Trade

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 211W, on Palestinian arms trade, if he will list the items provided by the UK to Palestinian Authority forces for close protection. [146680]

David Miliband: During financial year 2006-07, the UK provided the following to Palestinian President Abbas for close protection from the Global Conflict Prevention Pool: four Honda motorcycles; eight helmets; eight leather jackets; and four sets of gloves. We have also provided maintenance for three vehicles. The total cost for this was £36,081.

Russia and UK-EU Relations

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Russian relations with the UK and the EU. [146835]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Russia is a key partner for the UK and the EU. Both the UK and the EU share interests with Russia for example on trade, energy, human rights, security and a host of international issues, but on occasions our assessments and approaches differ. Where we have disagreements or concerns, we, and the EU, raise them frankly with the Russian authorities.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with Saudi Arabian officials on the country's human rights record. [146732]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the former Foreign Secretary's most recent meetings with her counterpart His Royal Highness Prince Saud were in the margins of the Iraq Compact Group (May) and the Paris Donor Conference for Lebanon (January) and focused on issues relevant to those events.

We remain concerned about the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia, regularly raising our concerns, both bilaterally and through the European Union.

Sierra Leone: Prisons

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of prisoners' rights and living conditions in Sierra Leone. [146932]

Meg Munn: The UN has recently published a report 'Behind Walls: An Inventory and Assessment of Prisons in Sierra Leone' which documents the state of prisoners' living conditions in Sierra Leone. The work of the Department for International Development-funded justice sector development programme (JSDP) in Sierra Leone informed the preparation of the report and provided some of the information it contains.

The JSDP is a £25 million, five-year programme, which started in 2005 and includes extensive work on prisoners' rights and living conditions. Some of the JSDP work already carried out has included: the development of a Best Practice-Case Management handbook that identified problems across the criminal justice system and provided training to tackle the problems identified, which led to a reduction in the remand rate from 70 per cent. to 52 per cent. in prisons in the last year; the rehabilitation of Moyamba Prison and improvements at Kenema Prison which have improved living conditions and reduced overcrowding; the construction of water wells at Pujehun and Bo Prison; and the renovation and furnishing of a school and home for children who otherwise would have been kept in adult prisons.

In addition, the JSDP is helping the Prison Service to develop a strategic plan which takes into account the need to improve prisoners' rights and living conditions.

Simon Mann

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) representations he has made and (b) reports he has received on the (i) imprisonment and (ii) welfare of Simon Mann in Harare; and if he will make a statement. [146858]

Meg Munn: When a British national is detained overseas, our principal role is to take an interest in their welfare. Consular officials have visited Simon Mann regularly and, where appropriate, raised any concerns with the Zimbabwean Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with colleagues in (a) NATO, (b) the European Union and (c) the United Nations Security Council on the ending of offensive Sudanese flights over Darfur. [146655]

Meg Munn: We are working with international partners in the UN Security Council to press both the African Union (AU) and the Panel of Experts to notify the UN Sanctions Committee of any instances of offensive military flights in Darfur.

We will pursue further UN sanctions if the Government of Sudan do not cease their aerial bombardment of Darfur; and if it or the rebel movements impede deployment of the AU-UN hybrid peacekeeping force or the relief efforts of the humanitarian agencies, or fail to engage on the political process, or commits human rights violations. Further measures would include better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur, with an enforced no fly zone a possibility for the future. We would need to assess the logistical challenges of implementation and impact on the humanitarian effort of any measures.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the timetable for the full deployment of the combined African Union-United Nations peacekeeping force to Sudan; what decisions were made at the enlarged Contact Group meeting in Paris; and if he will make a statement. [146900]

Meg Munn: The UN and African Union (AU) are still negotiating the timetable for the deployment of the AU-UN hybrid force for Darfur. We want the force to deploy as soon as possible.

My noble Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, attended the enlarged Sudan Contact Group meeting in Paris on 25 June which called on all to agree on the earliest possible date for deployment. The meeting also stressed the need to push ahead with the political process to resolve the Darfur crisis.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) proposed mandate and (b) command and control structure will be for the joint African Union-United Nations deployment to Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [146902]

Meg Munn: The proposed mandate of the joint African Union (AU)—UN peacekeeping force for Darfur is contained in the report produced by the AU and UN and presented to the Government of Sudan in Addis Ababa on 12 June. A copy of the report has been placed in the Library of the House. The Peace and Security Council of the AU endorsed this proposed mandate on 22 June. We are preparing a UN Security Council Resolution with other Security Council members that will mandate the UN elements of the force.

The command of the force will be unified to UN standards and principles. This is necessary for it to be effective and to secure UN troop contributors and funding. The new AU Mission in Sudan Force Commander, Nigerian General Agwai, will take over as Force Commander of the hybrid mission when it deploys. He will report to the newly appointed Joint Special Representative, Rodolphe Adada, who reports to both the UN and AU, which agreed these two appointments.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with colleagues within NATO, the European Union and the UN Security Council on ending offensive Sudanese flights over Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [146903]

Meg Munn: We are working with international partners in the UN Security Council to press both the African Union (AU) and the Panel of Experts to notify the UN Sanctions Committee of any instances of offensive military flights in Darfur.

We will pursue further UN sanctions if the Government of Sudan does not cease its aerial bombardment of Darfur; and if it or the rebel movements impede deployment of the AU-UN hybrid peacekeeping force or the relief efforts of the humanitarian agencies, or fail to engage on the political process, or commit human rights violations. Further measures would include better monitoring of the illegal use of aircraft in Darfur, with an enforced no fly zone a possibility for the future. We would need to assess the logistical challenges of implementation and impact on the humanitarian effort of any measures.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the timetable is for the full deployment of the African Union-United Nations force in Darfur; and what progress was made at the Contact Group Meeting in Paris. [147026]

Meg Munn: The UN and African Union (AU) are still negotiating the timetable for the deployment of the AU-UN hybrid force for Darfur. We want the force to deploy as soon as possible.

My noble Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, attended the enlarged Sudan Contact Group meeting in Paris on 25 June which called on all to agree on the earliest possible date for deployment. The meeting also stressed the need to push ahead with the political process to resolve the Darfur crisis.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to (a) expedite the deployment of the full African Union-United Nations force to Darfur and (b) encourage other countries to act in a similar manner; and if he will take steps to establish a public and verifiable timetable to keep the Sudanese Government to its commitments to accept the joint force. [147202]

Meg Munn: We are pressing the African Union (AU) and UN to deploy the AU-UN hybrid force as quickly as possible. We are preparing a draft UN Security Council Resolution, with other Security Council members, to mandate the force which will give the UN the authority it needs to begin preparations for deployment later this year. The Peace and Security Council of the AU has already endorsed the proposed mandate for the force.

We have also made clear to the Government of Sudan that we would consider tougher measures if they were to take action which impeded the deployment of this force.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of whether the Joint African Union-United Nations peacekeeping force in Sudan will be under overall United Nations control. [146610]

Meg Munn: The command of the African Union (AU)-UN hybrid peacekeeping force will be unified to UN standards and principles. This is necessary for the force to be effective, and to secure UN troop contributors and funding. The new AU Mission in Sudan Force Commander, Nigerian General Agwai, will take over as Force Commander of the hybrid mission when it deploys. He will report to the newly appointed Joint Special Representative, Rodolphe Adada, who reports to both the UN and AU, which agreed these two appointments.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her assessment is of the likely timetable for the full deployment of the Joint African Union-United Nations peacekeeping force to Sudan; and if she will make a statement on the decisions reached at the enlarged Contact Group meeting in Paris. [146623]

Meg Munn: The UN and African Union (AU) are still negotiating the timetable for the deployment of the AU-UN hybrid force for Darfur. We want the force to deploy as soon as possible.

My noble Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, attended the enlarged Sudan Contact Group meeting in Paris on 25 June which called on all to agree on the earliest possible date for deployment. The meeting also stressed the need to push ahead with the political process to resolve the Darfur crisis.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will place in the Library a copy of the proposed mandate for the Joint African Union-United Nations deployment to Darfur. [146625]

Meg Munn: The proposed mandate is available in the Library of the House: it is contained in the joint report for a hybrid peacekeeping force produced by the African Union (AU) and UN and presented to the Government of Sudan in Addis Ababa on 12 June.

The Peace and Security Council of the AU endorsed the proposed mandate on 22 June. It also requested that the UN Security Council authorise urgently its deployment. We are preparing a UN Security Council Resolution with other Security Council members that will mandate the force.

Uganda: Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to President Museveni of Uganda following the President's statement that the UK was responsible for Zimbabwe's economic and social problems. [146595]

Meg Munn: We are not aware that President Museveni has recently made such a statement.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney), the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, gave to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Mr. Llywd) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 225W.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

National Institute for Medical Research

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what views have been expressed by (a) the London Development Agency and (b) other advisers on the redevelopment of the National Institute for Medical Research at Mill Hill. [143077]

Ian Pearson: This is a matter for the Medical Research Council (MRC). I have asked MRC's Chief Executive Professor Colin Blakemore, to reply to the hon. Member.

HEALTH

Chiltern Health Profile 2007

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what methodology was used to calculate the ecological footprint of a Chiltern resident as set out in his Department's publication, Chiltern Health Profile 2007. [146288]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The ecological footprint is an indicator of ecological sustainability from a consumption perspective. It represents the environmental cost (resource use and environmental degradation) associated with people's lifestyle choice and the goods and services they buy.

The use of this sustainability indicator as the basis for policy and decision making at local authority level is in line with the United Kingdom's Government Sustainable Development Strategy "Securing the Future" (March 2005).

The calculations are produced by the Stockholm Environment Institute (SEI) based at the University of York using the UK National Footprint Account and a standardised environmental-economic method of calculation applied to all local authorities, based on local expenditure data.

SEI uses an environmental input-output model to calculate the Ecological Footprint (EF) of local authority Areas in the UK. A short description of the method can be found at:

www.sei.se/reap/national.php

A detailed description of the EF Indicator is at:

www.communityhealthprofiles.info/indicators/02EcologicalFootprintIndicator.php

The Stockholm Environment Institute in York can provide specific information concerning the Chiltern Health Profile 2007 and can be contacted at

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Research

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what bio-medical research (a) his Department and (b) the Medical Research Council has funded into the cause or causes of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [146602]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. That devolved funding is supporting a body of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME) research. Details are available on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research

The new National Institute for Health Research South London and Maudsley NHS Trust and Institute of Psychiatry biomedical Research Centre, funded by the Department, will undertake research on CFS/ME.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support biomedical research. During the period in question, MRC has funded seven research studies on CFS/ME, five of which are of direct relevance to the condition, and two related to it but of lesser relevance.

Although not currently funding any research specifically related to the biological effects of CFS/ME, the MRC remains committed to funding scientific research into all aspects of CFS/ME including evaluations of other treatments and studies into the biological basis of the condition. The MRC always welcome high-quality applications for support into any aspect of human health and these are judged in open competition with other demands on funding. Awards are made according to their scientific quality.

Health Profiles: Local Authorities

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the indicator ecological footprint included in Health Profiles of Local Authorities issued by the Public Health Observatory will be used by local government and primary care trusts to tackle health inequalities and improve health. [146787]

Dawn Primarolo: The ecological footprint indicator may be used in the Comprehensive Performance Assessment of Local Authorities. It may be used in local area agreements and community strategies developed by local strategic partnerships; and primary care trusts (PCTs) may use it or refer to it in their local delivery plans and annual public health reports.

Local authorities are responsible for strategic community planning and they have a statutory responsibility to undertake sustainability appraisal and strategic environmental impact assessments for local development frameworks. Local authorities influence environmental impacts and therefore the health of the local population, for example, through measures such as increasing recycling/re-using, less individual travel, controlled handing of environmentally harmful materials.

Public sector organisations, including local authorities and PCTs, are increasingly recognising their own ecological impact in terms of the business resources they consume and the carbon they produce as part of their daily business. They are continually developing ways of reducing their footprint.

A detailed description of the ecological footprint indicator is available at:

www.communityhealthprofiles.info/indicators/02EcologicalFootprintIndicator.php

IVF

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women have been denied IVF treatment on the grounds of the 'need of that child for a father' in accordance with 13 (5) of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 in each year since 1990. [147178]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Liverpool City Council (Prohibition of Smoking in Places of Work) Bill

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of the introduction of the Liverpool City Council (Prohibition of Smoking in Places of Work) Bill on Government policy and legislation to ban smoking in enclosed public places in England. [146566]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government recognise the significant contributions and efforts that Liverpool city council and its partners have made in providing protection from the harmful effects of secondhand smoke.

Meat: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with trading standards representatives on the regulation of businesses which insert water and protein into meat. [146619]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency has been working closely with trading standards officers to ensure that consumers are not misled about the chicken they buy.

Enforcement officers are encouraged to take action where food business operators are found to be selling chicken that does not comply with food safety and labelling legislation.

Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus: Meat

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what systems are in place for testing imported meat for MRSA contamination. [146481]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 29 June 2007]: All meat produced in the EU is prepared in accordance with hygiene regulations and in such a manner as to reduce bacterial load. There are no systems in place in the United Kingdom to test meat for MRSA from approved establishments.

Following advice on appropriate cleaning and the handling, storage and cooking of meat is important in preparing food safely and preventing/minimising the risk of contamination by micro-organisms.

Smoking: Elderly

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people over the age of 55 years he expects to give up smoking as a result of the public smoking ban. [146453]

Dawn Primarolo: The costs and benefits of the new smokefree law are set out in the final regulatory impact assessment published by the Department in December 2006 and is available in the Library and at:

www.dh.gov.uk/prod_consum_dh/idcplg?IdcService=GET_FILE&dID=121535&Rendition=Web

The primary aim of smokefree legislation is to provide protection from secondhand smoke within enclosed public places and workplaces. No specific assessment has been made regarding the number of people over the age of 55 years who are anticipated to give up smoking as a result of the implementation of the legislation.

Smoking: Television

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether accommodation used in reality television programmes are enclosed public places for the purposes of the forthcoming smoking ban; and if he will make a statement. [146904]

Dawn Primarolo: An assessment would need to be made on the particular circumstances of the premises. Such premises would be smokefree if they are a public place or workplace under the provisions in Section 2 of the Health Act 2006 (c.28). Premises that are open to the public or are a workplace will need to be smokefree within enclosed or substantially enclosed parts, as defined in the Smoke-free (Premises and Enforcement) Regulations 2006.

vCJD

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 1008W, on vCJD, what the name is of each prototype vCJD assay that is being evaluated; which body is carrying out each evaluation; what the purpose is of each evaluation; on what date each evaluation began; on what date his Department expects each evaluation to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [147424]

Dawn Primarolo: The prototype assays under evaluation are not named and are for research use only.

The evaluation is part of collaborative work between NHS Blood and Transplant, the Health Protection Agency (HPA) and the National Institute for Biological Standards and Control. This evaluation is to determine whether available prototype assays for the detection of abnormal prions in blood perform with the sensitivity and specificity that is required for their use in a large-scale study of the prevalence of abnormal prions in the British population.

The notice of the HPA's tender for prototype assays for evaluation was issued (in the Official Journal of the European Union) on 2 February 2007. The evaluation is expected to be completed by the end of 2007.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Electricity: Meters

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how frequently real time electricity displays will communicate data to customers under his proposals to extend smart-metering; whether the electricity displays will offer different tariffs depending on the time of day; and if he will make a statement. [146839]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Self-standing real-time display devices will provide real-time information to customers about electricity consumption and cost. Smart meters, in conjunction with display devices designed to work with them, could support a range of time-of-day tariffs.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he expects the smart-meters proposed in his Energy White Paper will be fully broadband enabled; and what contribution he expects that the use of such technology will make in reducing (a) losses in the network and (b) the need for peak power. [146840]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Energy suppliers are undertaking a programme of work, overseen by Ofgem, to address the issue of inter-operability of smart meters. This work includes an examination of the communications systems, including but not limited to broadband, that underpin smart meters. Smart meters can offer benefits such as peak-load shifting and maintaining of the network on the basis of a variety of communication technology. The Government will be considering these issues as part of their forthcoming consultation on billing and metering.

Energy: EU Action

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with the EU on a common energy policy. [147003]

Malcolm Wicks: The former Minister for Energy and officials have been in regular contact with the Commission and their counterparts in other member states to discuss the proposals in the Commission's Strategic Energy Review of January. These proposals have widespread support across the EU and have been endorsed by the European Council. We now look forward to the Commission producing proposals for legislation.

We fully support the Commission's proposals, which will promote the further development of a competitive, sustainable and secure European energy market to the benefit of consumers.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, how many civil servants, and of what pay grade, worked on restructuring the low carbon buildings programme. [142454]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 12 June 2007]: In making a decision on restructuring the low carbon buildings programme Phase 1 household stream, Ministers were primarily advised by the microgeneration team.

At the time, the microgeneration team consisted of five civil servants (two range 10s and three range 8s). More senior civil servants were involved as necessary.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry why his Department has cut the maximum limit for grants offered to householders through the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [145238]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme has proved successful in demonstrating the suitability of microgeneration at the domestic level. Another key objective of the programme is to see the cost of technologies fall. We took the opportunity of the additional £6 million announced for the household stream in Budget 2007 to restructure the scheme, following a wide consultation. We removed the monthly cap and lowered the £2,500 grant cap per household as this provides a simple and fair way of allocating funds to installations across all technologies, helping to ensure we use the limited funds available to support as many household microgeneration installations as possible.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the budget is for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06 and (c) 2006-07; and what the forecast budget is for 2007-08. [145498]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme has an £86 million budget over three years. The programme was launched in April 2006, with no formal budgets for specific years.

Phase 1 is a £36 million programme, which allocated £10,598,504 in financial year ending 30 March 2007. The remainder is forecast to be allocated in financial year 2007-08, less programme management fees.

Phase 2 is a £50 million programme. We forecast a budget of £20,000,000 in financial year 2007-08.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent under phase one of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (a) in total and (b) in each region in the UK in each month since the scheme began; and if he will make a statement. [145539]

Malcolm Wicks: At 27 June 2007, only one payment under Stream 2 of Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme has been paid. That was for £9,362 in the East of England, paid in November 2006. The following tables provide the data for the Communities (now closed to new applicants) and Householders streams.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent to date under phase two of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (a) in total and (b) in each region in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [145541]

Malcolm Wicks: At 5 pm on 26 June 2007, the expenditure under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme was £2,006.50, which was an interim claim for a project in the East of England.

Real-time national and regional data on both fund allocation and expenditure are available on the programme website:

www.lowcarbonbuildings.org.uk

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans his Department has to increase funding under phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [145728]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 was launched in April 2006 with a £30.0 million budget. In Budget 2007, the Chancellor announced a further £6.0 million for household stream of the programme, as a final tranche of funding for Phase One to aid the transition to a more mature market for microgeneration.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans the Department has to raise the cap on grants per household under Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings programme; and if he will make a statement. [145729]

Malcolm Wicks: Since Budget 2007, the Householder stream of Phase 1 has been restructured, following discussions with key stakeholders. It was re-launched on 29 May 2007. As part of the restructuring, the grant cap was lowered to £2,500, as this provides a simple and fair way of allocating funds to installations across all technologies, helping to ensure we use the limited funds available to support as many household microgeneration installations as possible.

We will continue to monitor and report on grant commitments and payments. However, once the funds are fully allocated, this form of grant support for householders is expected to cease.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme: Finance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (a) in total and (b) in each region of the UK in each month since the scheme has been operating; and if he will make a statement. [145753]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 June 2007]: At 5 pm on 26 June 2007, the expenditure under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programmes was £2,006.50, which was an interim claim for a project in the East of England paid in June 2007.

Real-time national and regional data on both fund allocation and expenditure are available on the programme website: www.lowcarbonbuildings.org.uk

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding under Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme has not yet been allocated; and if he will make a statement. [145754]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 June 2007]: Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme is a £36.0 million programme.

At 27 June 2007, Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme had allocated £16,394,070. The remainder, less programme management fees, remains to be allocated.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Department expects all the funding under Phase 1 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme to be allocated; and if he will make a statement. [145755]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 June 2007]: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 was launched in April 2006 with a £30 million budget. In Budget 2007, a further £6 million was made available for the household stream. In May 2007, the household stream was re-launched following restructuring. In removing the monthly cap and making other changes, we cannot predict future demand with certainty. We will continue to monitor and report on grant commitments and payments. To ensure projects have sufficient time to complete we expect to allocate the majority of funding for Stream 2 projects in the first 18 months of the programme.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much money under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme has not yet been allocated; and if he will make a statement. [145756]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 June 2007]: At 5pm on 26 June 2007, £1,688,839.81 of the £50,000,000 Low Carbon Buildings Programme fund had been allocated. The remainder, less programme management fees, has not yet been allocated.

Real-time national and regional data on both fund allocation and expenditure are available on the programme website: www.lowcarbonbuildings.org.uk

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding was allocated to the low carbon buildings programme for 2006-07. [145802]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 27 June 2007]: The low carbon buildings programme has an £86 million budget over three years. The programme was launched in April 2006. Funds are not allocated on a yearly basis.

Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (i) what steps the Government have taken since 1997 to encourage mortgage lenders to offer flexible types of loan; [145499]

(2) what steps the Government have taken since 1997 to encourage mortgage lenders to develop and market insurance policies to protect buyers and sellers against gazumping and gazundering. [145500]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The UK has a competitive and diverse mortgage market, which includes flexible mortgage products. The flexible mortgage market has grown since the late 1990s. Recent research (2004) suggests that 21 per cent. of borrowers have mortgages with flexible features. Whether or not a lender decides to offer a specific product is a matter of commercial judgment for the firm in question.

The Government considers that, in an open and competitive insurance market, it is for insurers to choose what products and services they wish to offer.

The FSA commenced regulation of first charge residential mortgages in October 2004, and regulation of general insurance in January 2005.

FSA regulation helps people to make informed choices about their financial future and offers valuable consumer protections.

Mothers: Flexible Working

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, what work he is undertaking to promote flexible working hours for new mothers. [147148]

Mr. McFadden: In April 2003, the Government introduced the right to request flexible working for parents of children under the age of six, or 18 for disabled children. The law has been a success, and has been particularly helpful for mothers. For example, 47 per cent. of new mothers now work flexi-time compared to just 17 per cent. in 2002. In addition, the proportion of new mothers who have changed their employer when returning to work has halved from 41 per cent. in 2002 to 20 per cent. (Maternity and Paternity Rights Survey of Employees 2005).

The Government aim to implement the right to request flexible working for parents in a manner which fits with the needs of a high employment flexible labour market economy. The Government are working closely with employers, who are leading the way in addressing the causes of the gender gap with projects which include supporting mothers returning to work and creating better quality opportunities for staff working part-time. 115 organisations, from both the public and private sectors, have signed up as exemplar employers.

More generally, the Government encourage all types of flexible working across the work force by providing detailed guidance and promoting the benefits and encouraging the sharing of best practice. Business Link also provides practical support and advice for employers on starting, maintaining and growing a business. Employers and employees can also access advice from the ACAS website and telephone helpline.

Sun Beds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what legislation covers (a) the sale of tanning equipment to private individuals for use in the home and (b) the permitted age for buying such equipment. [146995]

Malcolm Wicks: The legislation regulating the safety of tanning equipment sold to individuals is the Electrical Equipment (Safety) Regulations 1994 (S.I.1994 No.3260).

There are no constraints on age limits under this legislation.

8. Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussion he has had with the First Minister on the provision of support for children in Wales whose mothers are in prison. [146380]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and my predecessor have held regular discussions with Assembly Government colleagues on a range of matters affecting Wales, including prisons. I intend to follow in the same vein.

Barnett Formula

9. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister in Wales on the working of the Barnett formula as it applies to public funding in Wales. [146381]

Mr. Hain: I meet regularly with the First Minister and discuss a wide range of issues.

Prescriptions

10. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has held with the Welsh First Minister on prescriptions written in England being filled in Wales. [146382]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My predecessor had frequent discussions with Welsh Ministers on all issues, including health.

Welsh patients benefit from the Welsh Assembly Government's policy of free prescriptions for all, and English patients pay the apt fee for England, whichever side of the border they have their prescriptions dispensed.

GP Services

11. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has held with Welsh Assembly Ministers on funding for the treatment of English patients registered with Welsh GPs. [146383]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My predecessor had regular meetings with the Assembly Minister for Health and Social Services, where cross border treatment of NHS patients were discussed, among other issues. I will continue to hold such meetings.

Community Policing

12. Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the development of community policing in North Wales. [146384]

Mr. Hain: This Government have invested huge sums in extra policing and community safety, and delivered large numbers of extra police officers. As a result of our policies, crime has fallen.

We are committed to ensuring that every community will have a Neighbourhood Policing team by April 2008.

North Wales police is on track to meet this target.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1289W, on Departments: manpower, how many staff in his Department are classed as without posts. [146909]

Mr. Hain: None.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146976]

Mr. Hain: The only readily available information is for financial year 2006-07. Three members of Wales Office staff were awarded non-pensionable bonuses. The total cost was £1,000.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146928]

Mr. Hain: Provisionally one, which is currently being appealed.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147060]

Mr. Hain: This information is not held centrally and obtaining it could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Public Sector: Pay

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussion he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the economic benefits for Wales arising out of the introduction of regional pay in the public sector. [147294]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

It is essential that all public sector workers receive a fair rate of pay wherever they live. Pay reflects the individual circumstances facing each workforce, for instance recruitment and retention, operational circumstances, local labour market considerations, pay modernisation and the value of the total reward package. With major Welsh towns and cities like Cardiff, Newport and Swansea now enjoying increased prosperity and a booming property market, Wales is not necessarily one single labour market.

PRIME MINISTER

Official Residences: Mr. Prescott

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister whether the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) will be permitted to remain in his official residence in Admiralty House; and on what financial terms. [147435]

The Prime Minister: Following his recent illness, my right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) is making the necessary arrangements to move out of his official residence.

Football: Primary Education

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with colleagues in the Department for Children, Schools and Families on increasing participation in football in primary schools; and if he will make a statement. [147393]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are committed to increasing the amount of physical education and sport in schools through the National School Sport Strategy, delivered jointly by the DCMS and the DCSF. Football is one of 25 sports helping to deliver this strategy.

Gaming Machines: Standards

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to permit the pre-testing of gaming machines prior to the implementation of the new machine categories provided for in the Gambling Act 2005. [147466]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The power to test gaming machines for compliance with gaming machine technical standards rests with the Gambling Commission. Machines must be tested in line with the Commission's testing strategy, to be published before 1 September 2007. The Commission has provisionally approved a number of test houses to carry out testing, and where tests of certain gaming machines will be required, those tests may be commenced prior to 1 September or completed during a reasonable time-frame set by the Commission.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the value of land at the Olympic site which will be available for resale after hosting the Olympic games in 2012 at current prices. [146246]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 2 July 2007]: I have been asked to reply as Minster for the Olympics.

I refer the hon. Member to my written statement to the House on 27 March 2007, and the revised memorandum of understanding which has now been agreed with the Mayor. Copies of the memorandum have been deposited in the Library of the House. This shows details of the amounts we expect to be recovered from the sale of land acquired by the London Development Agency for the purposes of delivering the Olympic and Paralympic games, and how these funds will be allocated.

Sport England: Finance

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding was provided to Sport England North East Region in each of the last five years; and what the projected funding allocation is for the 2008-09 financial year. [147452]

The projected funding for 2008-09 financial year will not be known until the outcome of the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1216W, on Departments: Advertising, under what terms the checklist for the travellers website www.fco.gov.uk/travel and its paper equivalent carry advertisements for commercial insurance companies. [147353]

Meg Munn: The website www.fco.gov.uk/travel is the home page for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Know Before You Go (KBYG) Campaign. The campaign is aimed at encouraging British travellers to prepare better before going overseas. Companies and businesses can apply to become members of the campaign and as a part of that membership they have an entry and logo displayed through a link from:

www.fco.gov.uk/travel

The campaign employs a professional partnership marketing company, which develops a range of arrangements (within agreed guidelines), with partner organisations to get travel safety messages across to the public. As part of these arrangements, partner companies have been offered the opportunity to place their logos on the back of some KBYG leaflets. No financial exchange takes place, but the companies are required to provide the equivalent space in value on their own publicity materials.

One example of this is our partnership with The Halifax, whose logo appears on the "Checklist for Travellers" which, is distributed with each UK passport issued. In return for this, the FCO has secured wide exposure for travel safety messages in The Halifax's online and printed travel-related communications tools, such as travel newsletters, advice pages, and travel insurance documents.

Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 305W, to the hon. Member for Reading, East (Mr. Wilson), on Iraq, what the total contractual costs of private security companies contracted to his Department and operating in Iraq were in each year between 2003 and the latest date for which figures are available. [147295]

Dr. Howells: The information requested by my hon. Friend is provided as follows:

	Value (£ per annum)	Purpose
2003-04	16,800,000	Static and Mobile Security
2004-05	49,500,000	Static and Mobile Security
2005-06	47,800,000	Static and Mobile Security
2006-07	30,400,000	Static and Mobile Security

Value: £19,900,000

Purpose: Provision of Police Mentors and Advisers to the Government

The information above covers contracts put in place by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office with private security companies for services in Iraq. The figures reflect the contract values concerned and not the actual spend. Many of these contracts cover other Government Departments. Where this is the case, proportional costs are recovered accordingly.

Saudi Arabia: BAE Systems

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations were received by her Department about the Al-Yamamah military contract in the three months prior to the announcement that the Serious Fraud Office would end its investigation into the contract. [146761]

Dr. Howells: In the three months prior to the decision by the Director of the Serious Fraud Office to halt its investigation into BAE Systems, we continued to have talks with Saudi government officials on many subjects including the Al-Yamamah programme.

Primary responsibility for supporting the export of UK defence equipment and services lies with the Ministry of Defence.

Sierra Leone: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to ensure that elections in Sierra Leone are free and fair; for how long he expects international observers to remain in Sierre Leone; and whether they will remain there throughout the election process. [146931]

Meg Munn: We are funding a £3 million programme of electoral support to help ensure free and fair elections. This consists of support for international observers and a coalition of national election monitors, the 'National Elections Watch', which intends to host observers in every polling station in Sierra Leone; training for political parties; addressing the gender disparity surrounding elections; and strengthening the capacity of national and local media to cover the elections. We have also committed £4 million to the UN Development Programme's "basket fund", which finances Sierra Leone's National Electoral Commission and contributes to the cost of the elections. In addition, our high commission in Freetown is working with the full range of political and civil society to support free and credible elections. It is essential that Sierra Leoneans should be able to participate fully in the elections and that the result should reflect their choices.

On present plans the EU will send 28 long term observers from 15 July to 16 September; 42 short term observers from 6-16 August and, should there be a second round of voting in the presidential elections, 36 short term observers from 2-13 September. We are looking forward to contributing candidates as both short and long term observers.

The National Democratic Institute (NDI), an international non-governmental organisation with expertise on electoral issues, will send 35-40 short term observers who will stay for one week, including election week, and seven short term observers who will stay for one week in mid-July. NDI has already deployed six long term observers who will stay until the end of August. NDI's observers are being part-funded by the Department for International Development. UK Government election observers will also be deployed for the critical phases of the electoral process and for the elections themselves.

Sudan: Armed Forces

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK is making to the Government of Sudan on its commitment under the Comprehensive Peace Agreement to withdraw Sudanese armed forces from Upper Nile and Unity States by 9 July 2007. [147484]

Meg Munn [holding answer 3 July 2007]: As chair of the Security Working Group of the Assessment and Evaluation Commission, the UK is in regular dialogue with both parties on monitoring and assisting implementation of their security obligations in the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. Despite some delays, both sides remain committed to meeting their obligations.

Sudan: Oil

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government intend to work with their counterparts in the UN to introduce a Darfur oil trust fund. [147441]

Meg Munn: We welcome the proposal from the Aegis Trust for an oil trust fund. This could be an option for consideration in the future to put further pressure on the Government of Sudan to meet its commitments on Darfur. As with other measures, we need to carefully consider its impact on the economy and poverty reduction in the whole of Sudan, and on the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), agreed between North and South Sudan in 2005. Oil revenues are key to delivering the CPA's peace dividend across Sudan. The UK's policy remains focused on smart and targeted multilateral sanctions.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the timetable is for the full deployment of the combined African Union-United Nations peacekeeping force to Sudan. [147440]

Meg Munn: The UN and African Union (AU) are negotiating the timetable for the deployment of the joint AU-UN hybrid force for Darfur, accepted by the Sudanese Government on 12 June. We are pressing both parties to agree on the earliest possible date.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will provide details of the proposed mandate for the African Union-United Nations deployment to Darfur. [147444]

Meg Munn: The proposed mandate of the joint African Union (AU)—UN peacekeeping force for Darfur is contained in the report produced by the AU and UN and presented to the Government of Sudan in Addis Ababa on 12 June. Copies of the report are available in the Library of the House. The Peace and Security Council of the AU endorsed this proposed mandate on 22 June. We are preparing a UN Security Council Resolution, with other Security Council members, that will mandate the UN elements of the force.

Uganda: Politics and Government

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on incursion into the Uganda High Court by security forces to re-arrest suspects previously given bail; and if he will make a statement. [147248]

Meg Munn: The violence used by the Government forces at the Uganda High Court on 1 March to frustrate the decision of the High Court to grant the People's Redemption Army (PRA) suspects bail has grave implications for the independence of the judiciary, respect for the rule of law and human rights in Uganda.

We continue to raise our concerns about the detention of the PRA suspects with the Government of Uganda. Most recently our High Commissioner in Kampala raised this with President Museveni on 10 May.

We understand that court proceedings are due to resume later this month. We will continue to make further representations to the Government of Uganda calling for court proceedings to be expedited in a fair and just manner.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Security

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent advice she has had from TRANSEC on current hand baggage restrictions, with particular reference to the number of pieces of hand baggage allowed for air travellers departing UK airports. [146278]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The current security regulations are kept under constant review. The Department has currently placed a limit of one cabin bag per passenger in order to manage the current very real threat to aviation in the UK. However, we have made clear our readiness to remove the one bag limit once industry—collectively—is confident of its ability to deliver security effectively without it.

Bus Services: Concessions

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many appeals lodged in 2006 by bus operators under the concessionary travel appeal system in England have been successful; how many appeals were lodged in 2006; how much was awarded to successful appeals lodged in 2006; how many appeals are outstanding from 2006; and if she will make a statement. [146467]

Ms Rosie Winterton: 38 appeals lodged with the Secretary of State by bus operators disputing the reimbursement arrangements in travel concession authorities in England for 2006-07 were successful. Over 60 appeals were lodged in that year, although 15 of those were subsequently withdrawn and four were rejected. Two of the appeals lodged in the autumn are deferred until July following requests from both operators and the travel concession authority to allow time for local negotiation.

It would not be appropriate to comment on the individual determinations of appeals. Further information may be sought from the relevant bus operators and travel concession authorities.

Bus Services: Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely impact on the provision of rural bus services of the real terms reduction in the rural bus subsidy grant to Cumbria county council in 2007-08. [146708]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 29 June 2007]: In 2007-08 Cumbria will receive £1.6 million in rural bus subsidy grant (RBSG). This is a 2.39 per cent. increase over the previous year, which is the same percentage increase received by all other local authorities receiving the grant. RBSG allocations for 2007-08 total £55.6 million. This is a 71 per cent. increase in cash terms since the grant was introduced in 1998.

Whether an authority's allocation represents a reduction in real terms depends on the changes in contract prices that authority faces during the course of the year. This varies from area to area. It is for each authority to review their expenditure on bus support, taking account of local priorities and all the resources available to them which includes, in addition to RBSG, revenue support grant from central Government.

Bypasses: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make available funding to help finance the construction of an eastern bypass for Kettering. [146392]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Northamptonshire county council, as the local highway authority, is responsible for preparing any proposals for an eastern bypass of Kettering. Should the council decide to promote such a scheme, it would need to obtain the region's agreement to prioritise the scheme for funding within the East Midlands regional funding allocation for major transport schemes.

The council would then need to submit a detailed business case for the scheme, in line with departmental guidance, for consideration by the Department.

Channel Tunnel

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what date she expects the Channel Tunnel to reach full capacity for (a) freight and (b) passengers. [144795]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department currently holds no forecasts on this matter.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at her Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146499]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information for the number and total amount paid to senior civil service bonus payments within the Department for Transport is only available from 2004 onwards and is as follows:

	Number	Total cost (£)
2004	65	326,000
2005	105	492,000
2006	140	882,000

Under current arrangements, bonuses are used to reward excellent performance during the year and are based on a judgment on how well an individual has performed relative to their peers. The intention is the best performers receive the biggest bonus payments.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146978]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number and total cost of non-pensionable bonuses awarded to member of staff in the Department for Transport in the last three years is as follows:

	Number of bonuses awarded	Total value of these bonuses (£)
2004-05	5,652	1,690,379
2005-06	6,343	2,458,701
2006-07	8,876	4,361,708

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in her Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145983]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The percentage of sick leave taken by staff in the Department that was stress-related in each of the last three years is:

	Percentage
2004	20.6
2005	22.4
2006	17.6

Lorries: Tolls

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on tackling competitive distortions in the UK haulier market via a system of national road pricing. [146255]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2114-15W. No decisions have been taken on whether to introduce a national system of road pricing or what form it might take. Such decisions will be taken only on the evidence of established local schemes.

Motorcycles

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she or other Ministers from her Department last met the chairman of the Motorcycle Action Group to discuss policy issues; and when the next such meeting is planned. [146276]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No Ministers from the Department have met with the chairman of the Motorcycle Action Group (MAG) and there have been no requests to do so. The former Minister of State, the hon. Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman), had met with senior representatives of MAG in the last six months.

Motorcycles: Electronic Tagging

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether it is her policy to introduce electronic tagging of motorcycles. [146256]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport currently does not have plans to introduce such a system.

However a small trial of electronic vehicle identification (EVI) technology using electronic tags attached to number plates on both cars and motorcycle number plates took place in 2006.

Motorways: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what co-ordination exists between different regions of the Highways Agency to ensure that motorway lane closures in one region are notified to adjoining areas served by the same motorway; and if she will make a statement. [147442]

Mr. Tom Harris: For planned lane closures such as those required for maintenance activity and major improvements, the Agency has a Network Occupancy Management Process to ensure that roadwork activity is planned and coordinated effectively. As part of this process, the Agency records all this information on a national electronic system called the Schedule of Road Works. This national system is populated by its contractors and can be accessed by planning staff in all regions.

For unplanned lane closures such as those as a result of incidents, the Agency's National Traffic Control Centre (NTCC) co-ordinates the strategic response and informs motorists of road closures and implements strategic diversions. The NTCC automatically alerts the corresponding Regional Control Centre (RCC) that it is about to set a specific response plan and also provides information to motorists through the Traffic England website, the Highways Agency Information Line and through travel news media.

Incidents are managed from the Agency's seven RCCs. If the incident affects adjoining regions then the lead RCC will ensure they are notified and co-ordinate a joint response. Incidents of national significance are co-ordinated by a national crisis management team.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice she has given on the use of overhead gantry signs to ensure that motorists using a motorway in one Highways Agency area are warned of carriageway closures in other Highways Agency areas. [147443]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency (HA) have a wide variety of Variable Message Signs (VMS) and fixed message signs designed to give motorists advanced warning of any closures on the motorway network which could affect their journey. Where an incident occurs that necessitates the closure of a carriageway, the National Traffic Control Centre (NTCC) uses VMS located at key strategic points on the network, across HA areas and regions, to make motorists aware and allow them to make informed decisions about whether to change their route. It is important to note that the NTCC doesn't work on an HA regional or area basis, but sees the network as a whole.

Official Cars: Electric Vehicles

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of Government Car and Despatch Agency vehicles are hybrid electric vehicles. [147151]

Jim Fitzpatrick: At present, 41 per cent. of the Government Car and Despatch Agency's fleet are hybrid electric vehicles.

Railways: South Wales

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what evaluation her Department has made of the (a) punctuality and (b) reliability of trains operated by First Great Western between London and South Wales. [147216]

Mr. Tom Harris: Improving rail performance is a key objective for the Department for Transport. Joint action plans are in place between Network Rail and First Great Western to address performance issues. Additionally, First Great Western has implemented a 40-point Recovery plan. These are monitored monthly.

In the year to 31 March 2007 First Great Western achieved an average punctuality of 83.2 per cent. across the franchise as a whole.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the standard of First Great Western's train services between London and South Wales. [147217]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Secretary of State for Transport has not undertaken an assessment of the standard of First Great Western's train services. The industry-standard public performance measure (PPM) is used to measure performance of a train operating company (TOC) across the whole of its franchise area, not specific routes in isolation. Passenger surveys are undertaken by Passenger Focus. The results of the latest National Passenger survey were published on 5 June 2007.

Shipping: ELL Action

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with her opposite numbers in other EU states about the EU's consultation paper "Towards a future Maritime Policy for the Union". [146403]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The former Minister of State, the hon. Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman) recently held a meeting with the Portuguese State Secretary for Defence and Maritime Affairs to discuss this EU consultation and the plans of the Portuguese presidency in addressing its outcome.

In addition, officials have worked closely with those of other EU member states on this matter and have been involved in both formal community working groups and an informal 'friends of the presidency' group.

Traffic Officers: Speed Limits

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Highways Agency traffic officers have, in the course of their duties, been (a) caught speeding and (b) prosecuted for speeding in each of the last 24 months, broken down by region. [147086]

Mr. Tom Harris: In the last 24 months one Highways Agency traffic officer has been caught and prosecuted for speeding while in the course of their duty. This was in the North West Region, where a notice of intended prosecution was issued on 8 May 2007 in relation to an alleged speeding offence on 4 April 2007.

Train Operating Companies: Fees and Charges

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent meetings her Department has had with train operating companies to discuss pricing structures for the railways: who attended; what the outcomes were; and if she will make a statement. [147870]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport has been discussing with the Association of Train Operating Companies about how a simple national fares structure could be introduced, with standardised ticket names, terms and conditions. Discussions are ongoing.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps are being taken by UK forces in the Helmand province of Afghanistan to prevent the cultivation of opium. [147138]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: UK military forces deployed under the international security assistance force contribute to the broader counter-narcotics effort by helping to provide the secure environment in which the rule of law can be applied, reconstruction can take place and legal rural livelihoods can be developed. They are also able to provide support to Afghan led counter-narcotics operations, within the scope of the NATO operational plan. They are not there to carry out eradication themselves.

Aircraft Carriers: France

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he intends that France will participate in the construction of the UK future aircraft carriers. [144781]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 27 June 2007]: We have always stressed that co-operation with France through industry-to-industry links may offer potential benefits to both nations. It has been agreed with France that for co-operation to work, it must deliver cost savings and must do so without delaying UK or French programmes.

Armed Forces: Advisory Services

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to provide independent advisory panels to oversee welfare provision for trainee soldiers; at which barracks panels have been created; what guidance he has given on (a) the terms of reference for and (b) recruitment of lay persons to serve on such bodies; how the composition of panels is monitored; and what steps he has taken to involve parents of service personnel in an oversight role. [146185]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Independent advisory panels (IAP) have been established across the Army Recruiting and Training Division (ARTD)'s Phase 1 (Initial Training) and Phase 2 (Special-to-Arm Training) units since 18 January 2006.

IAPs exist in the following ARTD sites:

Phase 1 Training sites	Phase 2[1]
Army Foundation College (Harrogate)	Armoured Centre (Bovington)
Army Training Regiment (Bassingbourn)	Royal School of Military Engineering (Chatham and Minley)
Army Training Regiment (Lichfield)	Royal School of Artillery (Larkhill)
Army Training Regiment (Pirbright)	School of Infantry (Catterick)
Army Training Regiment (Winchester)	School of Army Aviation (Middle Wallop)

[1] Including phase 1 and 2 combined sites

The Defence College of Logistics and Personnel Administration, and the ARTD Staff Leadership School are planning to have IAPs in place during 2007-08.

The terms of reference for IAPs, developed in October 2005, include guidance on recruiting and are as follows:

1. Introduction

As part of the process of implementing the recommendations of the DHALI reports, the Adjutant General has directed Director General Army Recruiting and Training to establish IAPs across the Army's training establishments at either school or regiment level but not both.

2. Aim

The aim of IAPs is to provide an independent, non-statutory source of advice, challenge, encouragement and support to the training establishment in order to exchange information, provide feedback and assist in identifying possible areas for improvement.

3. Roles

IAPs have the following roles:

a. To act as a conduit for external communication for the training establishment to de-mystify the Army's individual training organisation and promote the Army's and training establishment's reputations locally.

b. To act as a source of local feedback on local issues.

c. To act as a "sounding board". They will support and challenge the training establishment by providing advice and encouragement on particular issues (both local and national) raised by the Commandant on an as required basis.

4. Limitations.

The IAP will not override the fundamental Army principle of self-regulation vested in the commanding officer and the higher chain of command. They will have no responsibility for budgets, objective setting, policy or staff selection.

5. Composition

IAPs are non-statutory bodies and their composition will depend on the circumstances for each establishment. IAPs might include opinion formers in the local community, who between them are able to speak with knowledge, credibility and experience on a range of issues that might relate to the operation of the training establishment and the training of young people. Examples might include local teachers, youth workers, social workers, councillors, religious figures (all faiths), policemen/women, businessmen/women, health professionals or sports personalities. The chairperson will be elected by the panel, and will not be a member of the training establishment. IAP membership from the training establishment could be:

a. School Commander/Commanding Officer;

b. Independent Complaints Officer (ICO);

c. Welfare Officer;

d. COS/Adjt to provide the secretarial function.

6. Frequency

IAPs will meet termly (three times a year) or as the School Commander/Commanding Officer and Chairperson decide.

7. Output

IAPs will write an annual report to the School Commander/Commanding Officer, recording key issues raised and action taken.

The ongoing composition of a panel is a matter for the respective chairperson, once elected, in consultation with the respective training establishment and, externally the headquarters of the ARTD.

While parents of service personnel are not specifically identified as potential members of the IAP, they are not excluded, and it is implicit in the Terms of reference (paragraph 3) that an IAP would wish to seek the views of recruits and trainees.

Chemicals: Ballast Bank

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will provide funding for the clean up of chemicals and asbestos at Ballast Bank, Charlestown in Fife. [146777]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The land in question does not belong to the Ministry of Defence (MOD) and has not been used as an MOD site. Thus MOD has no responsibility for the current condition of this land, for any activities that may have taken place there in the past, or for funding on carrying out any remediation required.

Derek Twigg: In the Ministry of Defence there are four members of staff working exclusively on European Security and Defence Policy business in the Directorate for Policy on International Organisations, and one full time member of staff dealing with EU business in the Defence Equipment and Support International Relations Group. A number of other staff throughout the Department are involved for part of their time in a wide range of EU business.

The MOD has nine military and civilian staff in the UK Military Representation to the EU in Brussels and two seconded to the UK diplomatic representation to the EU to work on European Security and Defence Policy. In addition there are 20 MOD military and civilian staff seconded to the European Council General Secretariat, including the European Union Military Staff, and eight to the European Defence Agency.

A functional breakdown of staff roles as requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at the Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146498]

Derek Twigg: The numbers and values of annual appraisal related bonuses paid to members of the senior civil service (SCS) and to fixed term appointees at SCS equivalent level over the past four years are listed in tables 1 and 2. We are only able to provide information from 2003-04 as pay arrangements for SCS staff were changed from 1 April 2002; bonuses for performance during 2002-03 were paid in 2003-04. Bonuses for performance in 2006-07 are in the process of agreement through the MOD SCS Pay Committee structure and will be paid in November 2007.

Bonuses are designed to reward those who are deemed to have made the greatest contribution, through specific in-year achievements, to departmental objectives or defence business more widely.

Derek Twigg: A total of 17 rail tickets were issued by the Abbey Wood travel office for the 12 month period 1 July 2006 to 28 June 2007.

Ex-servicemen: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence under what circumstances discharged service personnel can be classed as vulnerable service leavers and eligible for priority housing. [145712]

Derek Twigg: Guidance on vulnerability of former members of the armed forces and their need for priority housing is set out in Chapter 10: Priority Need, paragraphs 10.12 (iv)—10.14 and 10.21—10.23 of the Homelessness Code of Guidance for Local Authorities, issued by the Department for Communities and Local Government in July 2006.

People who seek social housing, including service personnel approaching discharge or recently discharged, should apply to their local housing authority to join the waiting list for an allocation of housing under Part 6 of the Housing Act 1996

The homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) provides a safety net for people who become homeless in a crisis. Under the legislation local housing authorities must secure suitable accommodation for housing applicants who are homeless through no fault of their own and who fall within a priority need group. This applies to all applicants who are eligible for homelessness assistance, including discharged service personnel.

The priority need groups include, among others, applicants whose household includes a child or pregnant woman and applicants whose household includes a person who is vulnerable in some way. In 2002, the Government extended the priority need groups by Order to include, among others, applicants who are "vulnerable as a result of... having been a member of Her Majesty's regular naval, military or air forces".

It is a matter of judgment by the local authority whether an applicant's circumstances make him or her vulnerable for the purposes of the legislation. Local authorities must consider whether, when homeless, the applicant would be less able to fend for him or herself than an ordinary homeless person, so that he or she would suffer injury or detriment in circumstances where a less vulnerable person would be able to cope without harmful effects.

The potential vulnerability to homelessness of personnel due to leave the Service would be considered by the individual's resettlement officer as part of the normal discharge process, and referral made to the Joint Service Housing Advice Office as necessary, which can assist with applications for social housing.

Ex-servicemen: Mentally Ill

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British Gulf War I veterans suffering from mental health issues there are in the Stockport area; and what proportion are receiving treatment. [147261]

Derek Twigg: The MOD does not hold this information.

Gibraltar: Police

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Gibraltar Services Police Staff Association will be consulted in connection with the review of the Gibraltar Services Police. [146673]

Derek Twigg: The Gibraltar Services Police Staff Association (GSPSA) has been consulted about the conduct of the Gibraltar Policing and Security Review, in accordance with established and agreed consultation procedures. The terms of reference for the review were provided to the GSPSA, and to other interested parties, on 4 June 2007. In response to a written request from the GSPSA, an extension to the consultation period on the terms of reference was granted. They subsequently responded on 19 June 2007, and conduct of the review commenced on 20 June 2007.

The GSPSA will also be consulted on emerging conclusions from the review in due course.

Gurkhas

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people applied for service in the Gurkhas in each of the last three years; and what the average selection time was. [146957]

Derek Twigg: Approximately 10,000 young men in Nepal applied to join the British Army as Gurkhas in 2004, with 15,000 applying in 2005 and 2006 respectively. The average selection time takes about 50 days.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to be in a position to make a detailed report of the (a) costs and (b) other aspects of UK involvement with Operation Telic; and if he will make a statement. [147187]

Des Browne: The cost of operations are calculated on a net additional basis and audited figures are published each year in the MOD's annual report and accounts. The total of the annual audited figures for the cost of operations in Iraq for the years 2002-03 to 2005-06 was £4,026 million. A total estimated cost of £1,002 million for 2006-07 was included in the Spring Supplementary Estimates published in February. Final figures will be published in the MOD's annual report and accounts for 2006-07 in July.

I have updated the House regularly on various aspects of the UK operation in Iraq.

Princess Royal Barracks

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress his Department has made in implementing the recommendations from the Deepcut Review report produced by Sir Nicholas Blake, QC, published in March 2006; and if he will make a statement. [147064]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statements of 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 91-95WS, and 28 June 2007, Official Report, column 35WS. The Ministry of Defence is committed to maintaining the improvements already achieved, and to continuing to address the areas where performance can be improved. Independent inspection of the training environment will continue and our internal training inspection team is working hard to ensure that policy is fully implemented, change sustained and good practice shared.

Territorial Army: Recruitment

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the strength of the various sections of the Territorial Army have seen active deployment, broken down by (a) officers and (b) other ranks. [146766]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Territorial Army (TA) is the reserve of "first choice" and its personnel are currently providing crucial support to the Regular Forces on operations in Afghanistan, Iraq and elsewhere. Since January 2003 around 13,000 volunteers from the TA have been mobilised on overseas operations. The ability of the TA to meet its operational requirement is closely monitored. However, there is no requirement to hold or maintain information centrally in the format requested and such data could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

World War II: Military Decorations

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will introduce a campaign medal for the servicemen and women involved in the Bomber Command campaign in the second world war; and if he will make a statement. [147304]

Derek Twigg: The creation of medals is the prerogative of the Sovereign. The Sovereign takes advice from the Government of the day, who, in turn, are advised by the inter-departmental, non-political Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals (known as the HD Committee), on which the armed forces are represented. In the case of campaign medals for service during the second world war, the issue was discussed exhaustively by those in command at the time and by the HD Committee. Those who served in Bomber Command during the second world war could qualify for one of the Stars instituted for campaign service for example the 1939-45 Star, the much prized Aircrew Europe Star or the France and Germany Star. World war two campaign medals were instituted for periods of military service in specified geographic areas and did not relate to individual battles, operations or military commands. The HD Committee has made it clear on many occasions that it will not revisit cases for service performed many years previously or where medals already exist for specified periods of service, both of which apply for service in Bomber Command.

Antisocial Behaviour: Greater Manchester

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the levels of perception of anti-social behaviour in (a) Greater Manchester, (b) Stockport and (c) Cheadle in each of the last three years; and if she make a statement. [147268]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey shows that the proportion of the public who perceive a high level of antisocial behaviour in the Greater Manchester Police Force area, which includes Greater Manchester, Stockport and Cheadle, fell from 21 per cent. in 2003-04 to 20 per cent. in 2004-05 and to 1.9 per cent. in 2005-06.

Asylum: Qualifications

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent research she has commissioned into the skills and qualifications held by (a) asylum seekers and (b) refugees. [146967]

Mr. Byrne: The Department has not commissioned research on the skills and qualifications of asylum seekers.

The Department has commissioned research on the skills and qualifications of refugees, which is reported in 'Skills Audit of Refugees', published in 2004 (Home Office Online Report 37/04). Link to publication:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs04/rdsolr3704.pdf

Information on the skills and qualifications of refugees is currently being collected in a Home Office survey to evaluate the pilot phase of SUNRISE (Strategic Upgrade of National Refugee Integration Services) and also in research into the Gateway Protection Programme. This research is not yet at a stage to be reported.

Crimestoppers

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent discussions she has had on Crimestoppers; and what steps she is taking to promote and increase awareness of the service; [146579]

(2) how many people were arrested in each of the last five years as a result of information supplied to Crimestoppers. [146580]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of arrests as a result of information supplied to Crimestoppers is not collected centrally by the Home Office. A Home Office evaluation 'Evaluating the impact of Crimestoppers' Home Office Online Report 22/03 stated that for the year 2000 there were 5,423 successful outcomes (arrested, charged or cautioned) approximately 9 per cent. of all actionable calls. However, the actual number of positive results is higher, as there is widespread under-reporting of feedback. The report estimated this figure as close to 9,614.

The former Home Secretary last met the Chief Executive of Crimestoppers on 25 April. The Home Office continues to support Crimestoppers through the terms of the Strategic Partnership Agreement which runs from 1 December 2004 to 31 March 2008.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in her Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146094]

Meg Hillier: Officials throughout the Home Office are involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in its International Directorate currently total 19. The Border and Immigration Agency has a European and International Policy Unit, which has a total of 21 staff working on European related matters. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at her Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146421]

Mr. Byrne: Senior civil service bonuses reward, and provide incentives for, delivery of key results. Under current arrangements, bonuses are used to reward performance during the year, and are based on a judgment of how well an individual has performed relative to their peers. Records of bonus payments made to SCS members are only available from 2002.

115 out of 185 SCS staff received performance bonuses. The total costs were £463,552.

2003-04

138 out of 215 SCS staff received performance bonuses. The total costs were £672,409.

2004-05

180 out of 219 SCS staff received performance bonuses. The total costs were £1,187,000.

2005-06

158 out of 232 SCS staff received performance bonuses. The total costs were £1,071,118.

Europol

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Government's policy is on the proposals to provide Europol with access to commercial data in the absence of a specific and credible threat; and if she will make a statement. [146867]

Meg Hillier: At present there are no formal agreements between Europol and public or private entities relating to the provision of commercial data to Europol. The Europol Information System can only be used to process data that relate to persons who are suspected of having committed or suspected of having taken part in a crime in contravention of the national law of that country, or where there are factual indicators that they will commit such an offence.

A new legal instrument to regulate Europol's activities is currently under negotiation in the Justice and Home Affairs Council. In the context of that negotiation, the question of the provision of commercial data to Europol has yet to be discussed. However, the Government's view is that where that would involve the processing of personal data from public or private entities, it must take place exclusively via the Europol national units. The Government also believe where it is reasonable and necessary for Europol to be able to process data there must be adequate safeguards to ensure that such data are relevant for its tasks.

Proof of Age Cards

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the (a) availability and (b) misuse of fake proof of age cards; and if she will make a statement. [146966]

Mr. Coaker: It is the responsibility of retailers to ensure that they have adequate procedures in place to prevent alcohol being sold to people aged under 18 and that their staff are appropriately trained, to enforce this. Many retailers have now adopted a 'Think 21' policy, where anyone appearing to be under 21 should be asked for identification prior to any sale of alcohol, which will prevent an offence being committed. Valid forms of identification include a passport or a driving licence with a photo.

The Home Office also supports the Proof of Age Standards (PASS) scheme, which establishes a common standard for issuing the various proof of age cards that are available. PASS accredited cards carry a secure hologram which helps retailers to identify genuine proof of age cards. The PASS hologram on a card is the hallmark indicating that the card issuer has passed a stringent audit carried out by Trading Standards Officers and that the card may be relied upon.

Following on from the success of the Alcohol Misuse Enforcement Campaigns, since May 2007 we have been conducting a national Tackling Under Age Sales of Alcohol Campaign, which is testing whether or not retailers ask for valid identification from potential underage purchasers of alcohol.

Illegal Immigrants: Malta

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what financial assistance has been given to Malta for tackling illegal African immigrants coming to that country. [147000]

Mr. Byrne: The UK supports Maltese efforts to tackle illegal immigration both bilaterally and through the EU. Last year we sent a Chief Immigration Officer to Malta to assist a Frontex co-ordinated operation with nationality and identity interviewing techniques and a senior official to give advice on returning failed asylum seekers. Also in 2006 a Maltese official was seconded to Border and Immigration Agency for a week to learn about our detention centres. EU funding has recently been obtained for joint returns work with Malta, and the European Commission is currently considering a joint proposal from the UK, Italy and Malta for funding to establish a centre for migration intelligence analysts on Lampedusa and Malta. Malta also receives funding through EU financial instruments such as the European Refugee Fund.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to encourage chief constables to undertake similar exercises to Operation Foist in their areas. [147436]

Mr. Coaker: Operation Foist was an initiative of the Metropolitan Police. Adoption of similar exercises elsewhere is an operational matter for individual chief officers. I understand from the Metropolitan Police that a number of forces have been in touch with queries about the operation with a view to undertaking such measures themselves.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect of Operation Foist in the London area. [147437]

Mr. Coaker: Operation Foist was an initiative of the Metropolitan Police that targeted uninsured drivers as a means of improving road safety and reducing criminality. The Metropolitan Police arranged for a review of the initiative's effectiveness to be carried out and I am arranging for a copy of this to be placed in the Library.

Racially Aggravated Offences: Wiltshire

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what type of offences with racial motivation were recorded by Wiltshire Constabulary which (a) were taken to court and (b) resulted in convictions in each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06. [147091]

Mr. Coaker: The statistics are not available in the form requested.

Recorded crime statistics relate to offences and court proceedings data relate to offenders. In addition, recorded crime data are published on a financial year basis and court proceedings data are published on a calendar year basis. For these reasons, the two data sources are therefore not directly comparable.

The available information relates to racially or religiously aggravated offences and is available from 1999-2000 only. Tables 1 and 2 give the number of offences recorded by the police in Wiltshire. Data on the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for all racially and religiously aggravated offences in the Wiltshire police force area are provided in Table 3.

Road Traffic Act 1988: Powers

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance is given by her Department to police forces on the exercise of the powers contained in section 165A of the Road Traffic Act 1988. [147401]

Mr. Coaker: The addition of section 165A to the Road Traffic Act 1988 was one of a number of roads policing measures included in the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005. Information on all these measures and the powers they confer was given to chief officers of police at the time and has been supplemented subsequently by responses to individual enquiries. How the powers are exercised is an operational matter for individual chief officers and any guidance that might be issued by the Association of Chief Police Officers.

Theft: Bicycles

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) prosecuted and (b) sentenced for bicycle thefts in London in each of the last five years. [146974]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Number of persons prosecuted at magistrates courts and sentenced at all courts for bicycle theft, in Greater London, 2001-05[1, 2]

	Proceeded against	Sentenced

War Criminals

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2007, Official Report, column 144W, on war criminals, (1) whether the police have contacted Vladimir Aleksandrovich Titov (State Counsel of Justice, 2nd Class, Chief of Administration of Surveillance for the Implementation of Laws concerning Federal Security) at the Office of the Procurator General of the Russian Federation, 2nd Tekhnicheskii Pereulok, Moscow, 103793, Russian Federation; and if he will make a statement; [146666]

(2) on war criminals, why bilateral discussions have not taken place with Leitender Oberstaatsanwalt Kurt Schrimm (Director), Zentrale Stelle der Landesjustizverwaltungen zur Aufklärung von NS-Verbrechen, Schorndorfer Str. 58, 71638 Ludwigsburg (Federal Republic of Germany). [146669]

Meg Hillier: I understand that the police are aware of these potential sources of information on Nazi war crimes but, in the absence of specific allegations against any named individual in the UK, the police do not have any immediate plans to contact them.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2007, Official Report, column 146W, on war criminals, whether progress has been made with the request for information about the withdrawal of German pensions from residents following the German War Victims Relief Act from Herrn Dr. Eckhard Assman, Bundesministerium für Arbeit und Soziales. [146681]

Meg Hillier: I understand that the Metropolitan Police have still to receive any indication that the German authorities have withdrawn a pension from anyone resident in the UK because of involvement in war crimes during the Second World War.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Autism: Judiciary

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he has taken to raise the level of autism awareness among the (a) Northern Ireland Prison Service, (b) Police Service of Northern Ireland, (c) Juvenile Justice Centre and (d) Public Prosecution Service staff. [146735]

Paul Goggins: As regards the Prison Service, when individual prisoners are identified as suffering from autistic spectrum disorders healthcare staff will engage with other relevant staff, including safer custody group and residential staff, to provide information about autism and offer guidance on assisting and managing the prisoner. Such prisoners will also be supported by education and psychology staff.

The PSNI has a number of initiatives to raise awareness including:

assistance with the production of the 'Criminal Justice System Autism Guide', which is distributed at PSNI training events; showing a videoed scenario of a police officer coming into contact with a young person with Aspergers syndrome at officers' diversity training; giving practical advice on the handling of such situations through role play devised in conjunction with Mencap; liaison with the promoter of the "Autism Spectrum Disorder" identity card to develop an online awareness raising programme on what this card represents and how to proceed if this card is shown to them.

The Juvenile Justice centre runs regular awareness raising sessions in relation to young people who are on the autism spectrum. These are run in conjunction with Autism NT.

The Public Prosecution Service has limited interaction with the general public and therefore has no specific training intervention.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he has assessed the partnership between Dyfed Powys Police, North Wales Police and Autism Cymru to develop an assessment of the needs of people with autistic spectrum disorders; and if he will introduce a similar scheme in Northern Ireland. [146741]

Paul Goggins: PSNI has not been in direct liaison with the Welsh Police authorities on the subject of autistic spectrum disorders. Ongoing efforts are, however, being made to meet the needs of those affected by this condition. Specifically, PSNI has been working with the promoter of the autistic spectrum disorder identity card, developing an on-line programme to raise awareness among officers across the organisation as to what this card represents and how to proceed when it is shown to them. The Police Service remains committed to meeting the needs of those affected by autism and related conditions, and will put in place farther measures as and when required.

Customs Officers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many uniformed HM Revenue and Customs officers are deployed in a full-time capacity in Northern Ireland, excluding intelligence and investigation officers, working on (a) fuel smuggling, (b) tobacco goods and (c) road fuel offences. [146940]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

There are 85 uniformed multi-functional HMRC officers deployed in Northern Ireland to meet the full range of HMRC enforcement duties including tackling fuel smuggling, tobacco smuggling and road fuel offences. They are regularly augmented by additional deployments of uniformed HMRC teams from other parts of the UK according to the assessed risk.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146982]

Paul Goggins: In respect of the 2003-04 reporting year, 1,670 staff received a bonus, at a total cost of £475,080;

In respect of the 2004-05 reporting year, 1,731 staff received a bonus, at a total cost of £629,742,

In respect of the 2005-06 reporting year, 1,024 staff received a bonus, at a total cost of £686,425.

Ports

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vessels from (a) EU states and (b) non-EU were searched by HM Revenue and Customs in Northern Ireland ports in each of the last two years. [146942]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The number of vessels searched by HMRC in Northern Ireland in each of the last two years is two in the year ended 31 March 2006, and one in the year ended 31 March 2007. These vessels were all from non-EU states.

Public Expenditure

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1263W, what the outcome was of his discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on funding programmes for Northern Ireland. [146605]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has made available over £51 billion extra spending for Northern Ireland for the next four years to meet the economic and political priorities of an incoming Northern Ireland Executive.

Full details of the financial package were announced by the Chancellor in his statement to Parliament on 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 2WS.

Smuggling: Fuels

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vehicles were detected smuggling fuel into Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [146943]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The number of vehicles detected smuggling fuel into Northern Ireland for each of the last three years was:

As at 31 March each year	Number
2005	108
2006	67
2007	37

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total quantity of fuel being smuggled into Northern Ireland was seized in each of the last three years. [146944]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The total quantity of fuel smuggled into Northern Ireland and seized for each of the last three years is as follows:

As at 31 March each year	Litres
2005	301,020
2006	297,260
2007	240,600

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what volume of fuel being smuggled from Northern Ireland to (a) the Republic of Ireland and (b) mainland Great Britain was seized in each of the last three years. [146946]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is as follows.

(a) Fuel smuggled from Northern Ireland into the Republic of Ireland is a matter dealt with by the Republic of Ireland authorities. HMRC have no record of seizures made in the Republic of Ireland.

(b) It is not a smuggling offence to transport fuel from Northern Ireland to mainland Great Britain, as this is an internal movement within the United Kingdom. Therefore, no such seizures have been made.

JUSTICE

Asylum: Appeals

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for statutory review of a refusal to grant asylum were submitted in each year since 1997; how many such applications were granted; and how many substantive re-hearings of asylum applications were successful. [146968]

Bridget Prentice: Appeals against a decision to refuse asylum are heard by the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT) and prior to April 2005 its predecessor, the Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA). Appeals are heard by an Immigration Judge (IJ) of the AIT. Volumes of asylum appeals since 1997 were:

Calendar year	Adjudicator/Immigration Judge receipts
1998	15,442
1999	7,775
2000	28,565
2001	47,906
2002	64,127
2003	70,577
2004	47,002
2005	24,891
2006	14,863

Following a decision on appeal, the unsuccessful party can apply for it to be reviewed on the ground that the IJ made an error of law. The provisions on review were established under Section 101 of the Nationality, Immigration and Asylum (NIA) Act 2002 and amended by the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc) (AITC) Act 2004.

Prior to April 2005, in an appeal to the IAA, the losing party could apply to the Immigration Appeal Tribunal (IAT) for permission to appeal against the decision on a point of law. If refused permission to appeal, the party could apply to the High Court (or the Court of Session in Scotland) for statutory review of that decision, on the ground that the Tribunal had made an error of law. If the High Court granted the application, the case was remitted to the IAT.

Since April 2005, losing parties in appeals to the AIT can apply for review of the decision via a transitional 'filter' provision. Applications are considered by Senior Immigration Judges (SIJs) of the AIT. If the application is granted, the SIJ will make an order requiring the AIT to reconsider its decision. If the application is refused, the party can 'opt in' to the High Court for statutory review, which is decided by a High Court Judge on consideration of the papers. If the High Court grants the application, an order requiring the AIT to reconsider its decision will be made.

Information is provided for the Tribunal's permission/filter applications and for the High Court from 2003 when the statutory review provisions commenced:

Calendar year	IAT permissions/ applications/ AIT filter application decisions (Asylum)	Granted	Asylum applications received at the High Court	Applications allowed
1997	8,128	—	—	—
1998	10,313	—	—	—
1999	9,575	—	—	—
2000	5,488	—	—	—
2001	13,538	4,197	—	—
2002	22,823	6,847	—	—
2003	32,178	11,906	410	93
2004	30,519	9,438	1,840	343
2005	24,711	5,447	3,784	499
2006	8,082	2,291	2,193	172
Total	165,355	—	8,227	—

If an application is granted, either by the AIT or the High Court, the appeal falls to be considered afresh by the AIT. Appeals reconsidered and allowed by the AIT and the IAT, pre-April 2005, were:

Calendar year	IAT Appeals/AIT reconsiderations (Asylum)	Allowed
1997	1,373	—
1998	1,089	—
1999	1,790	—
2000	2,637	—
2001	3,190	447
2002	5,563	668
2003	9,451	1,418
2004	8,783	1,040
2005	7,054	1,269
2006	4,201	1,227
Total	45,131	—

In appeals to the IAT (i.e. those prior to April 2005), the outcome (allowed or dismissed) relates to the party who lodged the appeal to the IAT, so may have been the respondent in the initial appeal to the IAA. Since April 2005, where an appeal is reconsidered by the AIT, the outcome relates to the appeal and not to the application for review. Thus, where an appeal is allowed on reconsideration, that represents a decision in the appellant's favour.

Departments: Pay

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what criteria were used by his Department to determine the paybands of departmental staff; and if he will make a statement. [147293]

Maria Eagle: All staff employed by Ministry of Justice from the former DCA (including HMCS and Tribunals Service staff) will be invited to opt into a new pay deal which incorporates a regional pay structure. These arrangements do not apply to staff employed by the Home Office or its agencies who transferred to the Ministry of Justice on 9 May 2007.

Regional pay is a reality in the economy as a whole—pay variations by location are not new. The system we are introducing offers greater coherence, greater transparency and enables us to target public money most effectively on those areas where there is greatest need. It will allow us to offer competitive salaries to attract and retain staff with the skills we need, where we need them.

In establishing our pay ranges we have explored pay related data for each of the regions of Great Britain (as defined by National Statistics, excluding Northern Ireland). This has included analysing data on average weekly pay and unemployment rates, salary surveys from reputable sources, pay data from other Government Departments and our own staff recruitment and retention data. We have also taken specialist advice from external consultants.

Decisions on the allocation of an office to a pay range were made using that data and following consultation with senior local managers. The involvement of local managers has ensured that local factors, which the economic data might not capture, can be properly reflected in the decisions.

Since the employment market does change over time, we have agreed an annual review mechanism. If the market changes significantly, the allocation of an office to a pay range can be adjusted accordingly.

Electronic Tagging

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many persons currently ordered by the courts to be tagged (a) as part of their bail conditions, (b) as part of an early release scheme and (c) as part of their sentence, have not yet had the tagging technology activated; and if he will make a statement; [147516]

(2) what the longest period was between a court ordering a person in the community to be tagged and that tag not having been activated as at 21 June 2007; [147518]

(3) for what reasons some persons ordered to be tagged by the courts as part of (a) their bail conditions, (b) early release schemes and (c) their sentence have not yet had the tagging technology activated; and if he make a statement. [147519]

Mr. Hanson: Data relating to installation of electronic monitoring equipment are not routinely collected by the monitoring contractors in the format requested, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. From 1 January 2007 to 31 May 2007, the latest period for which figures are available, the contractors installed the monitoring equipment in 99.37 per cent. of audited cases within 24 hours of notification by a Court or Prison.

It is the intention of the Department that all persons are tagged at the earliest opportunity. Installation of equipment may not happen for a number of different reasons. The subject may be delayed in travelling to the curfew address from court or custody, or be curfewed to an address with multiple accommodation such as flats or apartments where the contractor may have initial difficulty in accessing the building.

Prompt follow-up action is required by the contractor under such circumstances. If the person is absent at the first attempt the contractor will report the failure to the relevant supervising agency or the Court if the person is not under supervision. One further attempt must be made to complete installation within 24 hours of the start of the first monitoring period. If the second installation attempt is unsuccessful the contractor must report the failure as a breach of the curfew.

Electronic Tagging: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offences were committed by tagged offenders in Stockport in (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005, (d) 2006 and (e) 2007. [147258]

Mr. Hanson: Data on re-offending by offenders wearing electronic tags are collated centrally only in respect of offenders released on to the home detention curfew scheme. The data are not broken down by areas in which subsequent offences are committed. To provide such information would involve a manual trawl of the data and would incur disproportionate cost.

Family Courts

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many children, and which organisations representing children, responded to the Confidence and Confidentiality consultation on family courts; [147396]

(2) (a) how many children, and (b) which organisations representing children, his Department has sent the consultation document Openness in Family Courts. [147397]

Bridget Prentice: Over 200 children and young people contributed their views to the consultation on Confidence and Confidentiality. Some of them did this by registering on our online discussion forum (32) or visiting the Minister (three children from Southwark council). Some of them did this by attending one of various events held around the country (104 at a children's rights event in Leicester; 13 at an event run by the Family Justice Council/National Youth Advocacy Service (NYAS) in Birkenhead; 32 took part in a mock hearing run by the Children's Commissioner). Others submitted their views as part of a broader response from local authorities (including Oldham and Calderdale) and children's organisations (including NYAS and Voice of the Child in Care). Still others (12) produced a video about young people's views with help from CAFCASS.

Formal responses were received from the British Association for the Study and Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect, By the Bridge, Voice, the National Children's Bureau and NSPCC. The full list is available at annex A of the response paper at:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/courttransparency1106/response-cp1106.pdf.

The consultation document was published on 20 June and mailed to over 800 individuals and organisations. The initial mail-out included 148 directors of children's services across England and Wales. In addition, copies were sent to a large number of voluntary organisations that represent children and ensure their voice is heard, such as Young Voice and Voice for the Child in Care. It was sent to organisations that offer children support, including Childline, the Children's Society, Action for Children and the NSPCC. It was sent to organisations that protect children's rights, such as Children's Rights Alliance for England, the Children's Legal Centre and National Children's Bureau.

Prisoners Release: Compensation

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been paid in compensation for board to prisoners who have been released early in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [147551]

Mr. Hanson: I have presumed that the hon. Gentleman refers to 'compensation for board' as the subsistence payment in lieu of benefits made to prisoners being released on an end of custody licence (ECL) and that 'released early' refers to the ECL, home detention curfew (HDC) or parole.

The ECL came into use on 29 June 2007 and no figures are yet available for the amount which has been paid for subsistence. This payment is made because prisoners on an ECL are released under temporary licence from prison in accordance with the provisions of the Prisons Act 1952 and, as such, are statutorily ineligible to receive benefits payments.

Prisoners released on HDC or on parole receive benefits payments, if eligible within normal terms so there is no additional payment.

Prisoners Release: Winchester Prison

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are to be released from Winchester Prison under the Government's recent early release proposals in the next 12 months. [147517]

Mr. Hanson: Figures for release are not available to be broken down by establishment.

Prisoners: Rehabilitation Centres

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners received treatment through the detoxification unit at Cardiff Prison in each year since it was established; and if he will make a statement. [147584]

Mr. Hanson: The following numbers of prisoners have received treatment through the detoxification unit at Cardiff prison since it opened on 13 September 2004.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the rate of staff turnover in the Prison Service in prisons in Wales was in each month since 2002; and if he will make a statement. [147586]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the rate of staff turnover in public sector prisons in Wales, expressed as a percentage of total staff in post, is contained in the following table:

Prisons: Wales

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects to respond to the report by the Welsh Affairs Committee on the prisons estate in Wales. [146373]

Mr. Hanson: We expect to respond to the report week commencing 6 August 2007.

Victim Support Schemes: Expenditure

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to his answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1733W, on victim support schemes: expenditure, what his estimate is of the annual total funding for the support of victims and witnesses since 2002 in addition to the grant to Victim Support. [147613]

Mr. Hanson: Information on funding for victims and witnesses is not held centrally in this way. However funding to support victims and witnesses includes those in the following table:

There is other funding from this and other Government departments and local government which also includes elements that support victims and witnesses including:

Police
NHS
Local Authorities
Local Criminal Justice Boards
Safeguarding children partnerships
Housing
Connected Fund help to support victims of gun and knife crime, and gang violence.

Young Offender Institutions: Overcrowding

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of levels of overcrowding at young offenders institutions; and if he will make a statement. [146799]

Mr. Hanson: The assessment of the occupancy of all prisoner accommodation is undertaken by senior operational managers in line with national guidance (Prison Service Order 1900 Certified Prisoner Accommodation) which details measurable standards for the certification of cells that can be applied consistently across the estate and contributes to providing decent living conditions for all prisoners.

TREASURY

Babies: Down's Syndrome

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many (a) births and (b) terminations there were of babies with Down's Syndrome in each of the last five years; [147008]

(2) how many (a) births and (b) terminations there were of babies with (i) spina bifida, (ii) heart defects and (iii) kidney problems recognised during pregnancy in each of the last five years. [147009]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 4 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent questions asking how many (a) births and (b) terminations there were of babies with Down's Syndrome in each of the last five years (147008); and how many (a) births and (b) terminations there were of babies with (i) spina bifida, (ii) heart defects and (iii) kidney problems recognised in pregnancy in each of the last five years (147009). I am replying in her absence.

The table attached provides (a) the number of births notified to the National Congenital Anomaly System for England and Wales (NCAS) with a mention of (i) Down Syndrome, (ii) spina bifida, (iii) any cardiovascular anomaly, and (iv) selected renal anomalies, for 2001 to 2005 (the latest year available); and (b) the number of legal abortions reported to the Chief Medical Officers for England and Wales under Ground E of the Abortion Act 1967 with a mention of these anomalies, for 2001 to 2006 (the latest year available).

The number of notifications received by NCAS is likely to be less than the actual number of infants born with an anomaly. NHS Trusts provide these notifications to NCAS on a voluntary basis, either on forms sent to ONS or via local congenital anomaly registers. The recording of congenital anomalies is more complete in those areas where a register operates, because the register can obtain additional information locally. Consequently, the figures for congenital anomalies are presented separately for areas where a register operated in 2005 and for areas without a register in that year. In 2005, registers covered 45 per cent of births in England and all births in Wales.

While a few of these local congenital anomaly registers were already established in 2001, others were set up as late as 2003. Increases over time in the number of notifications for some congenital anomalies in the areas covered by a register in 2005 are likely to be due to the improved completeness of information brought about as these registers came into operation.

Congenital anomalies are reported to NCAS at or after birth, and do not include any information on whether or not the anomaly was diagnosed during pregnancy.

Abortions are carried out under Ground E of the Abortion Act only if there is substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped. Therefore, the anomaly must by definition have been diagnosed during pregnancy.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1495W, on departmental expenditure, whether the £50,955 is in addition to the £133,237 referred to in the answer of 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 196W. [147115]

Angela Eagle: The figure of £50,955 including VAT in the answer of the former Financial Secretary (John Healey) on 18 June 2007 was additional to the figure of £133,237 excluding VAT in the answer of 4 December 2006.

Departments: Block Grant

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the annual block grant was for the Home Department in each year since 2002. [147614]

Andy Burnham: The budget for the Home Office is set as part of the three-year spending review cycle. The following table sets out the Home Office budget for capital and resource since 2002. Future budget allocations will reflect transfers of responsibility following the creation of the Ministry of Justice on 9 May 2007.

Departments: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many requests for internal review made to his Department under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have taken longer than 40 working days to complete. [146386]

Angela Eagle: There is no statutory obligation on public authorities to complete internal reviews within a specified timeframe.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Minister agreed to each use by his Department of a section 36 exemption to withhold information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on which dates. [146527]

Angela Eagle: As is common with other departments HMT's departmental minister oversees the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last year to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147341]

Angela Eagle: 89 members of staff in HM Treasury (8 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age.

The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147345]

Angela Eagle: The Department has not estimated the number of its staff using public transport to commute. Treasury encourages the use of public transport and cycling to work by providing interest-free loans for the purchase of public transport season tickets and participation in the Cycle to Work scheme.

Ministers: Taxation

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what advice HM Revenue and Customs has provided on the tax status of official ministerial residences; [146868]

(2) what guidance HM Revenue and Customs has produced on whether ministerial severance payments under the Ministerial and other Pensions and Salaries Act 1991 are liable to (a) income tax and (b) National Insurance contributions. [146869]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC provides guidance on a range of tax and national insurance issues both in a booklet about tax for Members of Parliament and Ministers and in the notes to the parliament pages of the self-assessment return.

Planning Gain Supplement: Local Authorities

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consultation his Department has undertaken with local authorities on the distribution of planning-gain supplement. [146781]

Angela Eagle: The Government have consulted extensively with local authorities and other stakeholders throughout the development of the proposals for the planning-gain supplement.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of planning-gain supplement he proposes to return to the local authorities within whose area it is generated; and whether the remainder will be allocated to the region within which it is generated. [146782]

Angela Eagle: The Government set out their proposals for the allocation of planning-gain supplement revenues in paragraph 3.149 - 3.154 of Budget 2007 which is available in the Library of the House.

Public Services Productivity Panel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what contribution John Miskelly made through work on the Public Services Productivity Panel; [147116]

(2) over what periods John Miskelly was employed on the Public Services Productivity Panel. [147117]

Angela Eagle: John Miskelly was appointed a member of the Public Services Productivity Panel in September 2000, he resigned from the panel on 31 October 2001. During that time he attended two meetings of the panel.

Revenue and Customs: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will consider (a) amalgamating the tax offices in Kettering into one building and (b) not relocating the staff to Northampton or Leicester. [146400]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are currently reviewing the Northampton urban centre, which includes Kettering, and no decisions have yet been made.

I will consider all representations that have been made to me on this subject from hon. Members, staff and Trade Unions alongside the impact on customers, staff and diversity before coming to a view. HMRC will retain an inquiry centre presence in Kettering irrespective of the outcome of the review.

Revenue and Customs: Sunderland

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with Mapeley about the feasibility of finding alternative uses for Shackleton and Gilbridge Houses in Sunderland if HM Revenue and Customs withdraws from Sunderland city centre; and if he will make a statement. [147005]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) are currently undertaking a review of the Newcastle, Sunderland and Washington urban centre. No decisions have yet been made. HMRC have not discussed the feasibility of finding alternative uses for Shackleton and Gilbridge Houses in Sunderland with Mapeley.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the economy of Sunderland city centre of the proposed closure of HM Revenue and Customs offices in Gilbridge and Shackleton houses; and if he will make a statement. [147006]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are currently undertaking a review of the Newcastle, Sunderland and Washington urban centre. No decisions have yet been made.

The review process includes the production of an impact assessment which considers the social and economic effects of closure on the wider community, as well as on staff and customers.

Teenage Pregnancy: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the teenage conception rate was for (a) the Stockport Primary Care Trust area and (b) Cheadle at the latest date for which figures are available. [147257]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 4 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the teenage conception rate was for (a) the Stockport Primary Care Trust area and (b) Cheadle at the latest date for which figures are available. I am replying in her absence. (147257)

ONS does not routinely produce teenage conception figures for girls aged under 20 by Primary Care Trust (PCT) because there is a risk of disclosure of information about individuals due to differences in boundaries between PCTs and local authorities.

Figures for girls aged under 18 are however published at local authority level and figures for the Metropolitan District of Stockport for 2005 (the most recent year for which figures are available) are shown in the table below and are estimates of the number of conceptions that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or legal termination. Figures for 2005 are provisional.

Unemployment

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the number of 18 to 24-year-olds not in education, employment or training in (a) the UK, (b) Northamptonshire and (c) Kettering constituency. [146405]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 4 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about young people not in employment, education or training. I am replying in her absence. (146405)

There were 992,000 people, aged 18 to 24, resident in the United Kingdom, who were not in full-time education, employment or training, based on data from the Annual Population Survey, for the 12 months ending in December 2006. This is 19 per cent of the 18 to 24 population. The corresponding estimates for the county of Northamptonshire are 12,000 and 21 per cent respectively. For the Kettering constituency, the corresponding estimates are 2,000 and 17 per cent respectively.

Estimates for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. This is particularly true for the estimates for Northamptonshire and Kettering.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) England and (b) Milton Keynes were classed as unemployed in each year between 1997 and 2007. [146671]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 4 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people in (a) England and (b) Milton Keynes have been classed as unemployed in each year between 1997 and 2007. I am replying in her absence. (146671)

For unitary and local authorities, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) produces estimates of total unemployment, following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions, from a statistical model. Annual estimates for other areas are compiled from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following ILO definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of persons aged 16 and over, resident in England, who were unemployed and the corresponding unemployment rate, for the 12 months ending in February 1997 to February 2004 from the annual local area LFS, and for the 12 months ending in March 2005 to March 2006 from the APS. Table 1 also shows corresponding model-based estimates for the Milton Keynes unitary authority.

The LFS and APS data and the model-based estimates are all subject to a margin of uncertainty.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (ISA). Table 2, attached, shows the annual average number of people, resident in England and the Milton Keynes unitary authority, claiming ISA from 1997 to 2006. Also shown are the total numbers of claimants as percentages of the resident working age population.

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) 16, (b) 17, (c) 18, (d) 19, (e) 20 (f) 21, (g) 22, (h) 23 and (i) 24 year olds were (i) economically inactive and not in full-time education and (ii) unemployed in each year since 1997, broken down by (A) parliamentary constituency, (B) local education authority area and (C) region. [147035]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 4 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many (a) 16, (b) 17, (c) 18, (d) 19, (e) 20, (f) 21, (g) 22, (h) 23 and (i) 24 year olds were (i) economically inactive and not in full-time education and (ii) unemployed in each year since 1997, broken down by (A) parliamentary constituency, (b) local education authority area and (C) region. I am replying in her absence. (147035)

Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. To provide an answer requires retrieving 18 separate estimates from complex datasets for each parliamentary constituency, each local education authority area and each region for 10 separate years. This data, amounting to 150,000 separate estimates in total, would then need to be presented in tables and be quality assured.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 1323W, on Valuation Office: contracts, if he will place in the Library a copy of the ASPIRE terms and conditions which relate to confidentiality. [145343]

Jane Kennedy: As my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury stated in his answer of 26 April 2007, Official Report, column 1323W, the ASPIRE terms and conditions prohibit the publicising of details of this agreement. However, in respect of the specific information requested, the Government have obtained the agreement of both parties to the contract to place a copy of the clauses relating to confidentiality in the Library of the House. These include the statutory safeguards provided for by Section 182 of the Finance Act 1989, Section 18 of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005, Section 6 of the Taxes Management Act 1970 or Section 123 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992. A copy of the ASPIRE terms and conditions relating to confidentiality have been placed in the Library.

VAT: Disability Aids

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on value added tax and the purchase of aids and equipment for the elderly. [146561]

Jane Kennedy: As announced at Budget 2007, from 1 July the VAT chargeable on certain home adaptations that are designed to support the needs of elderly people will be reduced to 5 per cent. the lowest rate available under our European VAT agreements. The precise scope of this new relief was outlined in HMRC Brief 47/07 which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/brief/charities/brief4707.htm.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimates he has made of the proportion of tax credit overpayments which are caused by official error; and if he will make a statement. [145403]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 416W.

Welfare Tax Credits: Telephone Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls to the tax credits helpline were dealt with by private sector companies in each month from January 2003 to June 2007; how many of these were not recorded; and what steps are taken to notify claimants of this fact, where relevant, when they appeal against overpaid tax credits. [144702]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC supplemented its internal Contact Centre capacity with the use of private sector companies to deliver tax credit services during 2003-04. The table lists the monthly calls handled by these suppliers for the period requested. During any months in the period in question, where a value is not shown for calls handled, HMRC did not need to use private sector companies to supplement its services, and all calls were handled by HMRC.

The number of calls handled by private sector suppliers, which were not recorded, is not available in the format requested.

Calls handled by private sector companies were generic and did not require access to HMRC Computer systems or individual customer records.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: HIV Infection

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to assist (a) Uganda and (b) Senegal in reducing the spread of HIV/AIDS. [147145]

Mr. Thomas: DFID acknowledge the seriousness of the epidemic in Uganda and are working closely with the Government of Uganda, other donors and civil society organisations to support the Government's own national strategic plan for universal access to treatment, care and prevention. DFID are providing £9 million over three years to enhance national institutional capacity to achieve universal access. Our support is especially helping address potential gaps in the Government's prevention strategy.

The UK is the second largest donor of AIDS-related assistance in developing countries, spending £385 million in 2005-06. This includes supporting multilateral institutions like the World Bank, the UN agencies and the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria whose combined operations span all developing countries.

DFID have committed £359 million to the Global Fund for 2002-08, including £100 million in 2006 and the same for 2007. The fund is supporting substantial HIV and AIDS programmes in both Senegal and Uganda, with commitments of $41 million and $166 million respectively.

Bangladesh: Poverty

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps are being taken by his Department in conjunction with the Asian Development Bank to alleviate poverty in Bangladesh. [147146]

Mr. Malik: DFID works closely with the Asian Development Bank (ADB) in Bangladesh as part of a Joint Strategy partnership (which also includes the World Bank and Japan). Together, these four donors account for 80 per cent. of all development assistance to Bangladesh.

The Joint Strategy partnership group was formed in 2005 as a response the Government of Bangladesh's Poverty Reduction Strategy. The Joint Strategy approach has allowed more effective allocation of lead sector responsibilities among donors, and it is hoped that it will eventually lead to the development of a common donor strategy for Bangladesh.

DFID works directly with the ADB through the following programmes:

Primary Education Development Programme (PEDP) II:

DFID is providing £100 million through a pooled funded arrangement managed by the ADB, to provide 17 million primary aged children in over 78,000 schools with quality primary education.

Urban Primary Health Care Project:

DFID is contributing £15 million over six years to provide improved primary health care services in urban areas. The project, co-funded by the ADB, has a particular focus on providing health care services to poor women and girls.

Rural Infrastructure Improvement Project II (RIIP II):

DFID is providing £35 million over five years to RIIP II, which is also funded by ADB and the German Government, to reduce physical, social and economic exclusion among 28 million people in 23 of Bangladesh's poorest districts. This recently approved project will develop rural infrastructure and improve access to services and markets, provide opportunities for employment and strengthen the capacity of local government to deliver infrastructure services to the poor.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146425]

Mr. Malik: From 2002, individual departments and agencies have been responsible for their own reward arrangements for senior civil servants (including the award of non-pensionable performance bonuses) within a framework set by the Cabinet Office.

The following table gives the number of bonuses awarded to DFID's senior civil servants since 2002, together with the total costs for each of those years. All bonus payments are non-pensionable. No bonus payments were made by DFID to members of the senior civil service prior to 2002.

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Number of awards	27	51	57	68	65
Total cost (£)	85,051	153,170	189,500	266,750	377,100
% of SCS paybill [1]	2.3	3.8	4.0	5.0	6.5

[1] The percentage of the senior civil service (SCS) paybill allocated to performance related bonuses has increased year-on-year. This is in line with the Government's stated objective of building the bonus pot annually so that it reaches 10 per cent. of the SCS paybill by 2008.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146984]

Mr. Malik: The following two tables give the number of non-pensionable bonuses awarded to DFID staff over the last three years, together with the total costs for each of those years.

Non-pensionable bonuses awarded to DFID senior civil servants (SCS)

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07[1]

n/a = not applicable.
[1] Non-pensionable bonuses for the SCS in relation to the 2006-07 reporting year are not payable until November 2007.
[2] The percentage of the SCS paybill allocated to performance related bonuses is increasing year on year. This is in line with the Government's stated objective of building the bonus pot annually so that it reaches 10 per cent. of the SCS paybill by 2008.

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Number of awards	508	1,106	1,020
Total cost (£)	230,600	515,865	558,233
Percentage of paybill for grades below the SCS[1]	0.4	0.8	0.9

[1] For DFID staff below the SCS, the amount of money allocated for all forms of bonus payment is limited to a maximum of 1.2 per cent. of the paybill costs.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146921]

Mr. Malik: For the senior civil service (SCS), Departments and agencies are responsible for their own performance management arrangements within a framework set by the Cabinet Office. The 2006-07 guidance for the SCS was based on a relative assessment of how individuals compared to their peers, with between 5 and 10 per cent. of SCS staff being placed into the lowest of three performance groupings.

The performance management arrangements for staff in grades below the SCS have been delegated to individual Departments. DFID has in place a system similar to that of the SCS, whereby staff are classified as falling into one of three performance categories - with the lowest being defined as "those most in need of development". For staff below the SCS, the distribution of performance markings is not determined by a quota allocation.

Neither system explicitly identifies staff as "unacceptable" performers. Both are based on the principle of bringing about performance improvements through continual dialogue and coaching; and both are designed to identify those in whom DFID should invest more resources in terms of training and personal development.

We do have parallel systems in place to identify "unacceptable" performers whose standard of work falls well below that expected of their grade. In such cases, line managers are charged with setting in place a formal performance improvement plan, to be agreed with the job holder. Failure to meet the required standards within a specified period of time may result in sanctions being applied, including dismissal. Information on the number of staff being monitored in this way is not recorded centrally and could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to travel to work. [147313]

Mr. Malik: DFID last carried out a survey of staff two years ago in order to produce Green Travel Plans for our two UK offices. Our London office has no car parking for staff, so with the exception of 13 per cent. staff who cycled all or part of the journey, or 3 per cent. who walked, the remainder all used public transport. Our smaller East Kilbride office is somewhat more difficult to reach via public transport but around 20 per cent. use either trains or buses. The majority of the remainder use cars, but at least a third of these use car sharing arrangements. Overall, around 60 per cent. of our staff use public transport.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147057]

Mr. Malik: The following table sets out how many DFID staff have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months.

Periods of sick leave of less than 5 days	Number of staff in the last 12 months

HIV Infection: Medical Treatments

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Government are giving to UNICEF's efforts for a greater supply of the necessary medication to prevent the transmission from mother to baby of HIV/AIDS; and if he will make a statement. [147191]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has committed to spend at least £150 million over the three years from 2005-08 on programmes to meet the needs of children affected by AIDS. When the commitment was made in 2004 it was expected that at least £44 million of this would be delivered through UNICEF. The methodology to track this expenditure is under review.

In 2006 the UK was the second largest donor to UNICEF, providing £105 million. This included £19 million of core financial support and £5 million to increase the coverage, quality and coordination of the global response for children affected by HIV and AIDS. Both of these elements contribute directly to supporting UNICEF's strategic goals, which include reducing the number of paediatric HIV infections by at least 40 per cent. and ensuring that at least 80 per cent. of HIV positive pregnant women receive antiretroviral therapy to prevent mother to child transmission (PMTCT) of HIV.

DFID is also intensifying action on PMTCT at country level with a range of partners, including UNICEF. For example in Zimbabwe DFID has initiated a £25 million project specifically to strengthen actions to prevent, diagnose and treat HIV infections in mothers and babies. In Zambia, we support UNICEF's expansion of PMTCT services.

South America: Poverty

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures his Department are undertaking to alleviate poverty in (a) Uruguay, (b) Argentina, (c) Brazil and (d) Peru. [147144]

Mr. Malik: DFID's support to these four countries is provided through international ("multi-lateral") organisations—mainly the European Union, the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. In 2004, DFID's contributions through these channels were £1 million to Uruguay; £1 million to Argentina; £6 million to Brazil; and £2 million to Peru. To help these organisations focus on reducing poverty, DFID has a Latin-America regional programme, with offices in Brazil, Bolivia (for the Andes) and Nicaragua (for central America). These offices work with the Inter-American Development Bank and World Bank on two areas: (i) helping poor people benefit from markets, and (ii) making public sectors and political systems more transparent and accountable. In addition, we work on global issues that affect the region such as HIV and AIDS, and trade. Social exclusion is a cross-cutting theme throughout all facets of our work. DFID is also supporting a number of UK NGOs working in Latin America under partnership programme agreements and the Civil Society Challenge Fund.

DFID's assistance to Latin America from 2004-07 is set out in the regional assistance plan, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the UN Joint Logistics Centre in providing non food items for humanitarian programmes run by non-governmental organisations in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [147201]

Mr. Thomas: Overall, the UN Joint Logistics Centre (UNJLC) runs an effective mechanism for the supply and distribution of non-food items (NFIs) for Darfur in partnership with CARE and other non-governmental organisations (NGOs). Between January and May this year, 307,178 households were provided with NFIs, roughly 1.8 million people.

Given the scale of need in Darfur and like all other sectors, the supply of NFIs requires regular prioritisation to ensure the available resources are directed to the most pressing needs. UNJLC, CARE and other UN and NGO partners regularly meet to define the NFI priorities for Darfur, a process that is working well in very challenging circumstances. A second constraint is that of access for distributing agencies. Pervasive insecurity, including increasing attacks against humanitarian agencies, has limited the ability to deliver NFIs and other aid to populations in need.

It is only through the admirable work of the UN and NGOs that aid is being delivered to the 4 million people in need in Darfur. I utterly condemn the continuing violence targeting civilians and humanitarian workers in Darfur and the UK has called on all sides to cease the violence immediately; renew the ceasefire, reinvigorate the political process and support the rapid deployment of the AU/UN peacekeeping force for Darfur.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Further Education

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to encourage those in employment to engage in further educational study. [147155]

Mr. Lammy: It is essential that individuals in employment are encouraged to study further. The Leitch Review of Skills published in 2006 reinforced this and I welcome Lord Leitch's assessment that the need to dramatically raise awareness and aspirations on skills and to change people's attitudes is key to this.

On 9 July, we will launch a long-term, national marketing campaign which will play an important and powerful role in bringing about the change in culture that we need.

In order to improve their skills and employability and progress their careers, people also need to be informed of the choices they have. The Leitch Report made some specific recommendations on how to improve careers advice and empower the learner; we will respond to these in the forthcoming Leitch Implementation Plan.

Our policies also encourage and support those in employment to engage in further upskilling in various ways. Train to Gain is central to delivering a truly demand-led system and is the key vehicle for delivering the expansion in participation and achievement for individuals already in the work force. As at April 2007, a total of 154,290 learners had commenced learning through Train to Gain and over 40,000 employers had been engaged. The level 2 entitlement provides free tuition for all adults studying for their first full level 2 qualification. The Skills for Life programme provides opportunities for adult learners to acquire the underpinning skills they need for further learning and sustainable employment and many adults have benefited from free provision and achieved their first ever qualification in literacy, language or numeracy. Adults under the age of 25 who have missed out on education and training opportunities will be able to get free tuition through further education colleges and providers to obtain a first, full level 3 qualification, equivalent to 2 A-levels, from this August.

Higher Education

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students (a) enrolled for and (b) were awarded higher national certificates in each of the last 10 years. [146491]

Bill Rammell: The information is provided in the following tables. The length of time taken to complete a higher national certificate (HNC) can vary. Typically, the qualification lasts one year if studied full-time or two years if studied part-time. In addition, students completing an HNC can proceed directly to further study such as a higher national diploma (HND). For these reasons, it is not possible to calculate completion rates simply by comparing entrants with qualifiers.

Number of entrants to higher national certificate (HNC) courses[1], UK higher education Institutions[2], academic years 1996/97 to 2005/06

Higher Education Funding Council for England: Qualifications

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what proportion of the Higher Education Funding Council for England's annual budget was spent on Higher National Diplomas in each year since the introduction of that qualification; and how much of that budget was spent on (a) course design, (b) teaching and (c) other activities; [146414]

(2) what the total cost to the public purse was of (a) foundation degrees, (b) Higher National Diplomas and (c) Higher National Certificates in each year since their introduction. [146415]

Bill Rammell: It is not possible to answer these questions in precisely the way they have been asked on the basis of the data which is available centrally. The following table sets out for each of the last five years the amount of the Higher Education Funding Council's budget notionally allocated to support (a) Foundation Degrees (b) Higher National Diplomas and (c) Higher National Certificates in cash terms and calculates (b) as a proportion of the Council's overall budget.

	Notional grant £ million
	Foundation degrees	HNDs	HNCs	HND budget as percentage of total HEFCE budget
2001-02	9	155	56	3.2
2002-03	30	133	46	2.6
2003-04	54	115	45	2.1
2004-05	98	105	48	1.7
2005-06	140	88	46	1.4

Higher Education: Class Sizes

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the student to lecturer ratio is in (a) Russell Group, (b) pre-1992 and (c) post-1992 universities, broken down by subject. [146412]

Bill Rammell: The Department does not produce detailed breakdowns of student to staff ratios.

Higher Education: Disabled

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils in receipt of disabled students' allowance from (a) all schools, (b) maintained schools, (c) low-participation neighbourhoods and (d) socio-economic classes 4 to 7 who (i) applied and (ii) were accepted to (A) Oxbridge, (B) Russell Group universities and (C) other universities in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [146429]

Bill Rammell: The information is not collected centrally.

Higher Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what average number of contact hours students received per week in (a) Russell Group, (b) pre-1992 and (c) post-1992 universities with (i) fewer than five, (ii) fewer than 10, (iii) fewer than 15, (iv) fewer than 30 and (v) 30 or more students per academic year in the last five years for which figures are available, broken down by subject. [146411]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not collected centrally. Scheduled contact time is a matter for individual institutions.

Research: Stem Cells

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding for research into the development of treatment using (a) embryonic stem cells and (b) stem cells from umbilical cords and other adult stem cells his Department has allocated in each of the last five years; and what mechanism is used to determine how funds are apportioned between the two treatments. [147400]

Mr. Denham: The Medical Research Council (MRC) is the main agency through which the Government support medical and clinical research.

The MRC allocates funding in response-mode following competitive peer review on the basis of scientific quality and potential impact. The MRC supports research on embryonic and adult (including fetal) stem cells, which ranges from fundamental cell biology through to early phase clinical trials. The 'development of treatment' is not a term usually associated with pre-clinical trial scientific research; however, based on a broad interpretation, the majority of MRC's research could be categorised as such.

Funding for stem cell research by the MRC and the Department of Trade and Industry's Technology Programme for the last five years was as follows:

			Percentage of spend on stem cell research (MRC only):
Financial year	MRC (£ million)	DTI, Technology Programme (£ million	Adult (including fetal)[1]	Embryonic
2002/03	4.5	0.00	n/a	n/a
2003/04	14.5	0.00	n/a	n/a
2004/05	14.2	0.00	50	50
2005/06	17.4	0.80	45	55
2006/07	[2]	1.30	—	—

n/a = Not available.
[1] Fetal includes umbilical stem cells but information is not held in such a way as to identify spend separately.
[2] Not yet available.

Students: Part-Time Employment

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the number and percentage of undergraduate students who were in part-time work in the (a) first year, (b) second year, (c) third year and (d) fourth year of their degrees, broken down by (i) socioeconomic group and (ii) number of hours worked per week. [146413]

Bill Rammell: The Student Income and Expenditure Survey 2004/05, published on 30 March 2006, is a comprehensive study on students' income, expenditure, borrowing and debt. The survey showed that full-time undergraduate students were less likely to undertake paid work in the final year of their course. Further details are available in table 1.

The survey also shows that while a smaller proportion of students tend to work in their final year, those who do tend to work slightly more hours per week (table 2).

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

City Academies: Standards

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of the average Level 3 qualification and curriculum authority point score for pupils attending state city academies in 2006 was represented by (a) GCE A levels, (b) GCE AS levels and (c) VCE A levels or other Level 3 qualifications; [147082]

(2) what proportion of the average Level 3 qualification and curriculum authority point score for pupils attending schools other than state city academies in 2006 was represented by (a) GCE A levels, (b) GCE AS levels and (c) VCE A levels or other Level 3 qualifications. [147083]

Jim Knight: The qualification composition contributing to Level 3 QCA point scores for students attending academies and for students attending institutions other than academies in 2006 are given in the following table.

Proportion of QCA point scores in the school and college achievement and attainment tables represented by different qualification types, 2005/06

Institutions other than Academies[2]	68	11	21

Class Sizes

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the relationship between class size and pupil achievement at (a) Key Stage 1, (b) Key Stage 2 and (c) Key Stage 3. [147545]

Jim Knight: There is evidence that smaller classes result in an increase in attainment at Key Stage 1, particularly in literacy and maths in the reception year. However the situation is more complex for other age groups. For Key Stage 2 and Key Stage 3 there is no clear evidence that points towards a similar link between smaller classes and pupils' achievement.

Classroom Assistants: Mathematics

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 783W, on classroom assistants: mathematics, how many placements were provided (a) overall and (b) in mathematics in each financial year since its establishment. [146955]

Jim Knight: The following table details the total placements, and maths placements, for the Student Associate scheme in each academic year since it began. The 2006/07 and 2007/08 figures are estimates. For 2006/07 we will not know the final figures until Sept 2007.

Academic year	Total placements	Maths placements
2003/04	4,734	417
2004/05	6,588	841
2005/06	8,640	1,121

Departments: Delivery Unit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1702W, on Departments: delivery unit, what the (a) start date, (b) end date and (c) terms of reference are for the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit's joint work with his Department on Academies. [147161]

Jim Knight: The Prime Minister's Delivery Unit works with my Department on an on-going basis to monitor progress towards the Government's commitment to establish 400 Academies.

Education: Disadvantaged

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much is being spent on (a) personalised learning, with special weighting for deprived areas, for low achievers and (b) one to one tuition in mathematics and English for low achievers; how much has been spent in Leyton and Wanstead; and if he will make a statement. [147131]

Jim Knight: It is a matter for each local authority—in consultation with their schools forums—to determine the level of funding between different providers, based on an assessment of local circumstances.

Education: Expenditure

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was allocated for capital expenditure on education in Stockton-on-Tees in each year since 1997. [147291]

Jim Knight: Capital allocations for education in Stockton-on-Tees in each year since 1997 are set out in the following table.

	£ million
1997-98	1.0
1998-99	2.4
1999-2000	7.1
2000-01	8.2
2001-02	14.6
2002-03	8.7
2003-04	11.9
2004-05	11.8
2005-06	7.7
2006-07	10.9
2007-08	7.7

The changes in capital funding from year to year, apart from a general rise across the period, result from periodic allocations of ring-fenced capital funding which are additional to the annual formulaic funding. In the current spending review period, from 2005-06 to 2007-08, additional targeted capital funding (TCP) of £0.612 million was allocated in 2005-06, and £3.343 million TCP in 2006-07. The large allocation of £14.6 million in 2001-02 includes a PFI allocation of £6.4 million.

GCE A Level

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) independent, (b) maintained and (c) grammar schools received a grade A in three or more of mathematics, further mathematics, physics, chemistry, French, German and Spanish A-levels in the latest year for which figures are available; [146399]

(2) how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) independent, (b) maintained and (c) grammar schools received a grade A in one or more of mathematics, further mathematics, physics, chemistry, French, German and Spanish A-levels in the latest year for which figures are available. [146407]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils in maintained mainstream schools who gained five good GCSEs in 2006 gained (a) five, (b) four and (c) three C grades. [146082]

Jim Knight: The answer to this request is given in the table:

Number of pupils in maintained mainstream Schools who got the five or more GCSEs at grades A-C and obtained five, four or three C grades at GCSE*[1]

	5 or more GCSEs at grade C		4 or more GCSEs at grade C		3 or more GCSEs at grade C

Intimidation: Statistics

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps he plans to take to encourage schools to (a) record all incidents of bullying and (b) report the statistics to their local authority; [146512]

(2) what progress is being made on the recommendation of Third Report of Session 2006-07 of the Education and Skills Committee, on Bullying, HC 85, on developing a system for collecting and recording incidents of bullying in schools; [146513]

(3) if his Department will commission a study of the long-term effects of bullying on those subject to it in schools; [146514]

(4) what indicators his Department plans to use to measure progress in tackling prejudice-driven bullying related to special educational needs and disabilities; [146519]

(5) what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the non statutory requirement upon schools to report incidents of bullying on the quality of the collected results. [146520]

Jim Knight: As we make clear in the Government response to the Committee's Third Report of Session 2006-07, my Department recommends as best practice that schools record all incidents of bullying and report these statistics to their local authority (LA). We will be strengthening this message in our revised overarching anti-bullying guidance and will ensure it is clear in the more specialist guidance we are preparing on homophobic and other forms of prejudice-driven bullying.

However, we do not believe that a statutory requirement on schools to record incidents of bullying would be effective. It would present significant logistical and bureaucratic difficulties for schools, and there would be substantial issues around consistency of definition, collection, and interpretation which would be expensive, cumbersome and time-consuming to overcome. We think it is better to leave this matter to the good judgment and common sense of teachers, who will have detailed guidance on how best to go about this.

The forthcoming "Tellus 2" survey should give us more comprehensive data on young people's experiences of bullying in schools. It will be an annual survey, starting this year, covering all LAs. Data will be considered by Ofsted in their annual performance assessment of each LA's services, and could lead to Ofsted looking more closely at anti-bullying practices in a particular authority's joint area review (JAR). We are currently looking at how we might use data derived from the survey to inform future policy development.

The Department's contract with the Anti-Bullying Alliance (ABA) includes a specific research element, which is fulfilled by a senior researcher at Goldsmiths College and his team. In our response to the Education and Skills Select Committee's report on bullying, we made clear that the ABA was planning a substantial piece of research into reactive anti-bullying strategies, and we believed this was the best way forward. Any other research projects will be determined in light of our ongoing policy priorities.

The Department does not monitor the progress of individual schools in addressing bullying at a local, regional or national level or, as my earlier answers make clear, collect statistics in this area. However our partners in the Anti-Bullying Alliance (ABA) and National Strategies maintain close links with individual schools and authorities through their regional networks. We have flagged up that there is a need to tackle the bullying of children with SEN and disabilities in our guidance. The ABA and National Strategies work with schools to ensure effective measures are in place to prevent and tackle the bullying of these children. We have also asked the National Strategies to identify schools with weak and ineffective anti-bullying strategies and to provide challenge and support to these schools as appropriate.

Following the Government's commitment to issue specific guidance on prejudice-driven bullying in the Schools White Paper 'Higher Standards, Better Schools for All', my Department produced well-received guidance in 2006 on tackling racist bullying, "Bullying around racism, religion and culture". We will also be launching more specific guidance on how to prevent and tackle homophobic bullying later this year. We recognise there is a need for more specialist guidance to tackle the bullying of pupils with SEN and disabilities Once this is issued we will work with practitioners and with our partners in the field on a programme of dissemination to ensure schools across the country implement the guidance.

Our guidance to schools on tackling bullying has always been intentionally non-statutory. Schools need to determine an approach which best suits their local needs and circumstances, taking into account their pupil population and identified priorities. Schools are autonomous institutions, and we want them to retain the flexibility to establish a system of managing behaviour which best suits the needs of the local community they serve.

Learning Disability: Intimidation

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps are being taken to prevent bullying among young people with learning difficulties. [146387]

Jim Knight: The Department's existing guidance for schools flags up the need to prevent and tackle the bullying of children with special educational needs (SEN) and disabilities. We will be strengthening these messages in our revised anti-bullying guidance which we intend to launch in September under the title 'Safe to Learn: Embedding Anti-Bullying Work in Schools'. We have also announced that we will be producing specialist guidance on how to prevent and tackle the bullying of children with SEN and disabilities. We have begun to meet with interested lobby groups and experts and hope to start work on this guidance very soon, with a view to launching it early next year. We intend to work closely with the Special Educational Consortium and other charities and groups with an interest in this area, drawing on current research. Once completed, this specialist guidance will form part of 'Safe to Learn'.

Local Education Authorities: Documents

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local education authorities lost records in the fire at the Iron Mountain facility fire at Bromley-by-Bow on 12 July 2006; and if he will make a statement. [147072]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold this information, and so we do not know which local education authorities lost records in this fire.

Primary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1158W, on primary education: teaching methods, what the cost per pupil is of (a) the Every Child a Reader and (b) the Every Child Counts programme; [147163]

(2) if he will break down the average per capita cost of the Every Child a Reader programme in to (a) pay for specialist trained teachers, (b) materials for pupils, (c) central administration costs for the scheme, (d) marketing and (e) other costs; [147168]

(3) how many special teachers have been trained for the (a) Every Child a Reader and (b) Every Child Counts programme. [147169]

Jim Knight: The Every Child A Reader (ECAR) programme costs on average £2,300 per pupil. This unit cost breaks down as follows:

Costs at school level over four years
Start up costs
Essential:
Training Course	2,500	—	—
Core texts	30	—	—

61 already trained specialist teachers have been re-activated and an additional 215 specialist teachers have been trained to work with children as part of the ECAR programme. ECAR is largely delivered in maintained mainstream schools although a small number of specialist teachers are delivering ECAR in special schools.

Funding of £20 million for implementing the Making Good Progress pilot in the first academic year, 2007-08, was announced on June 6 along with the details of participating pilot schools. There will be further funding for implementation in the second academic year which will be settled through the comprehensive spending review. The cost per pupil in 2007-08 will be approximately £300 and we anticipate that it will be similar in 2008-09. There will be no specific training programme for teachers in relation to the Making Good Progress pilot.

We will announce detailed allocations for Every Child Counts in due course. At this stage we do not know what the cost per pupil will be. It is likely that there will be specific training for teachers in the numeracy equivalent to Every Child A Reader when it is rolled out, the details of which (including the number of teachers to be trained) are yet to be decided.

Pupils: Attendance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the relationship between pupil achievement and pupil attendance at (a) Key Stage 1, (b) Key Stage 2 and (c) Key Stage 3. [147544]

Jim Knight: The research report "An Analysis of Pupil Attendance Data in Excellence in Cities (EiC) Areas and non-EiC EAZs" published in 2005 found significant associations between school attendance and performance at Key Stages 3 and 4. Data for 1999-2000 to 2000-03 were analysed for a sample of 454 schools; the profile of the sample schools was less advantaged than that of secondary schools nationally. The research also found a varying impact of high absence rates upon different groups of pupils, particularly in the case of pupil gender, and that the relationship was less significant when background characteristics of the schools were taken into account.

Pupils: Guardianship

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, what mechanisms are in place to regulate or assess the quality of commercial guardianship services provided by UK organisations to overseas pupils at UK schools; how often such mechanisms are reviewed; and when the last such occasion was. [146494]

Jim Knight: Most overseas pupils are educated in independent schools. Guardianship arrangements set up by independent schools, and accommodation provided by independent boarding schools, including accommodation provided via host families, must meet national minimum standards. These cover suitability to work with children and the quality of boarding provision. These standards require all adult host family members and guardians to be checked through the Criminal Records Bureau, and are monitored through Ofsted inspection. Some independent schools use commercial guardianship services and in this case must satisfy themselves about the quality of service. However pupils placed under commercial arrangements are subject to the same level of monitoring through inspection against the national minimum standards.

It is also a legal requirement for a private foster carer to notify their local authority about private fostering arrangements. New measures in the Children Act 2004 and the Children (Private Arrangements for Fostering) Regulations 2005, which came into effect in July 2005, strengthened the private fostering Notification scheme, and provided additional safeguards for privately fostered children. We have made it clear that if the Notification scheme does not work well, we will introduce a Registration scheme for private foster carers.

Pupils: Intimidation

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to tackle bullying in schools. [146395]

Jim Knight: The Government believe that all bullying is wrong and should never be tolerated in schools, and all our guidance makes this clear.

This year the Department will provide around £1.7 million for anti-bullying programmes, which covers the costs of grants to external organisations, as well as anti-bullying resources, the publication of guidance and support for local authorities and schools, and directly funded external events.

We provide comprehensive advice for schools setting out a range of proven strategies for tackling bullying. We are currently revising our over-arching anti-bullying advice to schools, which we propose to issue on-line in September under the title 'Safe to Learn: Embedding Anti-Bullying Work in Schools'. This will include specific guidance on prejudice-driven bullying, with links to the guidance on racist bullying we first issued last year, and homophobic bullying guidance specifically prepared for us by Stonewall and Educational Action Challenging Homophobia (EACH). There will also be specific guidance on how to prevent and tackle cyberbullying. To complete this suite of guidance, we will also prepare specific advice on how to tackle the bullying of children with special educational needs and disabilities.

The Education and Skills Select Committee recently examined bullying in schools, and their report welcomed key aspects of the Government's programme of work, including our main guidance and our guidance on prejudice-driven bullying. The Government's response was issued very recently.

We work with and fund a number of partners, including the Anti-Bullying Alliance (ABA) who arrange the annual anti-bullying week, and provide a range of advice and support to local authorities; ParentLine Plus, who run a helpline for parents whose children are being bullied; and ChildLine in Partnership with Schools (CHIPS) who run peer mentoring schemes for the Department; and we also fund awards for anti-bullying work as part of the Princess Diana Memorial Awards scheme. We issue the anti-bullying charter to schools and have placed a duty on head teachers to determine measures to prevent all forms of bullying as part of their overall behaviour policy. More recently, we convened a taskforce to look at all aspects of cyber-bullying, made up of internet service providers, mobile phone companies, education professionals and those working in the youth justice system.

We are now shifting the focus of our anti-bullying work from campaigning to embedding effective practice in schools. To do this we are working with the national strategies to identify schools with weak and ineffective anti-bullying policies and provide targeted support to those schools; and with BeatBullying, a respected anti-bullying charity, to run a project on tackling inter-faith bullying, including Islamaphobia.

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding has been allocated to the North East of England to tackle bullying in schools in the last 12 months for which figures are available; what progress has been made in reducing bullying; and if he will make a statement. [147154]

Jim Knight: Ring-fenced funding for anti-bullying campaigns is not made available on either a local authority or school by school basis. Rather it is a matter for schools and local authorities to decide how much of their budget they devote to this important work.

The Government believe that all bullying is wrong and should never be tolerated in schools, and all our guidance makes this clear. This year the Department will provide around £1.7 million for anti-bullying programmes, which covers the costs of grants to external organisations, as well as anti-bullying resources, the publication of guidance and support for local authorities and schools, and directly funded external events.

To complete this suite of guidance, we will also prepare specific advice on how to tackle the bullying of children with special educational needs and disabilities.

The Education and Skills Select Committee recently examined bullying in schools, and their report welcomed key aspects of the Government's programme of work, including our main guidance and our guidance on prejudice-driven bullying. The Government's response was issued very recently.

We work with and fund a number of partners, including the Anti-Bullying Alliance (ABA) who arrange the annual anti-bullying week, and provide a range of advice and support to local authorities; ParentLine Plus, who run a helpline for parents whose children are being bullied; and ChildLine in Partnership with Schools (CHIPS) who run peer mentoring schemes for the Department; and we also fund awards for anti-bullying work as part of the Princess Diana Memorial Awards scheme. We have issued the Anti-Bullying Charter to schools and have placed a duty on head teachers to determine measures to prevent all forms of bullying as part of their overall behaviour policy. More recently, we convened a Taskforce to look at all aspects of cyberbullying, made up of internet service providers, mobile phone companies, education professionals and those working in the youth justice system.

We are now shifting the focus of our anti-bullying work from campaigning to embedding effective practice in schools. To do this we are working with the National Strategies to identify schools with weak and ineffective anti-bullying policies and provide targeted support to those schools; and with BeatBullying, to run a project on tackling inter-faith bullying, including Islamaphobia.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 797W, on pupils: intimidation, (1) on what date his Department's work to tackle cyber-bullying began; [147165]

(2) how many staff worked on the anti-bullying strand of this programme in each financial year given, broken down by payband; [147171]

(3) whether reduced funding for anti-bullying work in 2005-06 was a result of decisions taken in the 2004 Spending Review process; [147172]

(4) how much funding his Department has given to each organisation listed since it started working with them; [147173]

(5) how many schools' anti-bullying policies have been classified as weak and ineffective; and how many such schools have received targeted support. [147174]

Jim Knight: Further to research published by Goldsmiths University on behalf of the Anti-Bullying Alliance (ABA), the Department first published interim guidelines on cyberbullying in July 2006. Around the same time, we formed the Department's Cyberbullying Taskforce, consisting of industry leaders, particularly Internet Service Providers and mobile phone operators, as well as education practitioners, the professional associations and law enforcement agencies (such as the Youth Justice Board) to develop a range of initiatives to combat cyberbullying in schools, and to ensure parents are provided with the information they need to keep their children safe online.

The team within the Department with responsibility for anti-bullying had, in 2003/04, the earliest year for which authoritative figures are available, one Grade 7, two Higher Executive Officers (HEOs), three Executive Officers (EOs) and one Administrative Officer (AO). Some of these officers also had other duties besides anti-bullying work. By 2005/06 the team consisted of one Grade 7, one Senior Executive Officer (SEO), one HEO and 60 per cent. of one EO, all working on anti-bullying work. By the following year this had changed to one Grade 7, two HEOs and 60 per cent. of one EO.

This decrease in funding was not a result of decisions made in the 2004 Comprehensive Spending Review. The increased funding in 2004-2005 can be accounted for by the launch of the Department's "Make the Difference" nationwide conference series on bullying, a high-profile series of events attended by over 5,000 heads and school staff.

Our records show funding as represented on the following table:

Childline	75,000	258,000	166,800	200,000	200,000

The programme of work to identify schools with weak and ineffective anti-bullying policies is carried out for the Department by the National Strategies Behaviour and Attendance team and they hold the relevant data. In order to maximise the participation of Local Authorities (LAs) and schools on this programme, the National Strategies have given an undertaking that they will not pass this information on to the Department. Bullying can often be covert and difficult to identify so we think it is important to ensure the problem is not driven underground by "naming and shaming" schools which are deemed to have weak and ineffective anti-bullying policies.

The National Strategies use a number of monitoring prompts to assess whether a school needs additional support with its anti-bullying work. One such prompt relates to the use of the Department's Anti-Bullying Charter for Schools. According to recent figures from the National Strategies nearly 75 per cent. of secondary and over 50 per cent. of primary schools use the principles of the Charter to draw up effective anti-bullying policies.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been spent per pupil in Warrington in each year since 1997. [146259]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The revenue funding figures per pupil in Warrington in each year since 1997 are provided in the following table:

	1997-98	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-4	2004-5	2005-06
Warrington	[1]—	2,310	2,510	2,700	2,960	3,200	3,450	3,550	3,910

[1] Figures are not available.

Notes:

1. The combined LA and school based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in LA maintained establishments and pupils educated by the LA other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school based expenditure and all elements of central LA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA). A sector breakdown for combined LA and school based expenditure is not available from 2002-03 and consequently this table shows the total LA recurrent expenditure (except youth and community) per pupil by LA since 1995-96.
2. 1999-00 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the R01 form collected by the ODPM to the section 52 outturn forms collected by the DFES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of consistent financial reporting (CFR) and the associated restructuring of the outturn tables. The change in sources is shown by the dotted line.
3. Pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under fives funded by the LA and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools are taken from the DFES annual schools census. Private voluntary and independent (PVI) under five pupil numbers are taken from the early year census but are only included for 1999-00 onwards. For 1998-99 onwards other LA maintained pupils are included in the pupil count. This includes all pupils attending schools not maintained by the authority for whom the authority is paying full tuition fees, or educated otherwise than in schools and pupil referral units under arrangements made by the authority drawn from Form 8b submitted to the DFES. Also included as other LA maintained pupils are all pupils attending pupil referral units who are not registered at a maintained school drawn from the DFES annual school census. All pupil numbers are adjusted to be on a financial year basis.
4. Local government reorganisation (LGR) took place during the mid to late 1990s. Warrington was part of that reorganisation and figures are not available for 1997-98.
5. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10 and are subject to change by the LA.

Schools: Capital Investment

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what capital expenditure has been allocated to (a) secondary schools and (b) primary schools in each local authority area in England in each of the last five years for which information is available. [146685]

Jim Knight: The Department does not maintain central records which analyse, for each capital funding stream, the proportion that relates to (a) secondary schools and (b) primary schools in each local authority area. This is because local authority formulaic funding is not ring-fenced. When received by each local authority, it decides locally what proportion of formulaic funding shall be allocated to secondary schools and to primary schools.

The following table shows total schools capital allocations in each local authority area in England in each of the last five years.

Schools: Employment Agencies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many individuals teaching or managing in schools are paid through personal service companies (IR35), broken down by local authority; and what guidance his Department issues to local authorities on this matter. [146649]

Jim Knight [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The decision whether to employ teachers and other school staff through personal service companies is a matter for individual schools or local authorities. Guidance is issued by the department with respect to safeguarding children and safer recruitment in education including through personal service companies. Schools: Religion

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what religious groups his Department has corresponded with in the past 12 months over possible sponsorship of (a) an academy and (b) a trust school. [146809]

Jim Knight: Officials are in regular contact with the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church who are actively involved in the Academies programme. Discussions have also taken place about potential Academy and/or Trust School projects with the Eastern Orthodox Church and a number of organisations who have a religious ethos, including Oasis, the United Learning Trust and the Multi Faith Secondary School Trust and the Salvation Army.

The Focus Learning Trust has made a number of representations to Government concerning the establishment of an Academy or a Trust school in which the FLT would have a role. There are no current proposals to establish any such Academy or Trust school.

Teachers

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teaching posts were removed by each local education authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [146664]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

Provisional figures show that between 1997 and 2007 there was an increase of 5,300 full-time equivalent number of teachers employed in local authority maintained nursery and primary schools and 27,300 in local authority maintained secondary schools in England.

The source of information is the DFES annual survey of teachers in service and teacher vacancies, 618G.

Teachers: Science

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) physics, (b) chemistry, (c) biology and (d) biochemistry graduates began teacher training in each of the last 10 years, broken down by class of degree. [146126]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The breakdown of Science courses into the individual specialisms is not available. The following table shows the number of entrants to Initial Teacher Training (ITT) mainstream Post Graduate (PG) science courses with a first UK degree in science or in a science-related subject by the classification of their first degree between 1998/99 and 2004/05.

TDA performance profiles

Teachers: Standards

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect on the educational attainments of pupils of being taught by unqualified teachers. [147453]

Jim Knight: No such assessment has been made.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what training in teaching reading is provided to student teachers at university. [147212]

Jim Knight [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The standards for qualified teacher status require that all trainee teachers have a secure knowledge and understanding of their subjects and curriculum areas. They are also required to demonstrate that they are able to put into practice in their teaching the relevant aspects of the National Strategies. In the case of all primary teachers, this means that they will receive training in the teaching of reading. This training will include phonics approaches, such as the teaching of high quality systematic phonic work, in accordance with the recommendations of the Rose Review. The standards for the award of qualified teacher status have recently been revised and strengthened in these areas.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many teachers in the maintained sector have been trained by the Applied Scholastics programme; [147454]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the Applied Scholastics programme for (a) teachers and (b) pupils. [147455]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have information relating to how many teachers have been trained by the Applied Scholastic programme and has made no assessment of the Applied Scholastics programme for either teachers or for pupils.

Teachers: Working hours

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate his Department has made of the hours an average (a) primary and (b) secondary school teacher spends on planning, preparation, assessment and other administration in each seven day period; and if he will make a statement. [147546]

Jim Knight: Information on the hours and working patterns of teachers is collected via the 'Teachers' Workloads Diary Survey' that is published by the Office of Manpower Economics. The most recent results relate to a single week in March 2006. The survey showed that on average full-time classroom teachers in primary schools spent 14.2 hours on 'Lesson planning/Marking'[1] and 5.0 hours on 'General Admin'[2]. Full-time classroom teachers in secondary schools spent 14.8 hours on 'Lesson planning /Marking'[1] and 3.0 hours on 'General Admin'[2].

We expect that the results of the 2007 survey will be published in the next couple of months.

[1] Lesson planning / Marking includes: planning/preparing lesson, practical test or assessment (including gathering materials); assessing/marking pupil work (including exam/test); writing reports on pupil progress (e.g. end of term report); other non-contact activities relating to a class or lesson.

[2] General admin includes: keeping records on pupil performance (e.g. for National Curriculum, school records, examination boards etc.); keeping records or department records (excluding those on pupil performance); organising resources and premises (e.g. building, equipment, books, computers); displaying / mounting pupils' work or information for pupils; setting up / tidying classroom, lab or other teaching area; simple clerical activity (e.g. photocopying, filing, routine form filling/database entry); other kinds of administrative activities.

Teaching Methods

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contact his Department has had with Applied Scholastics since 1997. [147190]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

HEALTH Care Homes

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of (a) state funded and (b) privately funded care home places in (i) Cornwall and (ii) England per head of population. [146644]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Neither the Department nor the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) collects data on population numbers. Information on the number of care and nursing homes and registered places is collected by CSCI as part of its registration and inspection activities.

The Office for National Statistics has supplied data on numbers of adults aged 18 and over in England and the Cornwall county council area. Numbers of care and nursing home places, in England and Cornwall as percentages of the numbers of adults aged 18 and over are shown in the table.

Care home places are not registered as state or privately funded; care is funded in a variety of ways. Depending on their circumstances, residents may fund their own care, or be partly or wholly supported by councils or the national health service, or organisations such as charities and previous employers. As a result, the same place may, at different times, be state or privately funded depending on the circumstances of the resident occupying it.

Area	Places[1]	Number of adults aged 18 and over[2]	Number of places as a percentage of adults aged 18 and over[3]
England	440,038	39,383,400	1.12
Cornwall	5,480	411,500	1.33

[1] Numbers include residential homes for older people and for younger adults (aged 18-64).
[2] Figures rounded to the nearest 100. These data are Crown copyright.
[3] Percentages rounded to two decimal places.

Care Homes: Cornwall

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many extra care housing places there are (a) taken up and (b) available in Cornwall. [146643]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 June 2007]: This information is not collected centrally.

Dental Services: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what spare capacity expressed in patient numbers is available for (a) under 18, (b) over 18 fee paying and (c) over 18 charge exempt people who want to register with an NHS dentist in Milton Keynes, broken down by dental practice. [146707]

Ann Keen [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Information is not available in the format requested. Since April 2006 patients have no longer been required to register with a particular dentist.

Information is held centrally on the number of patients broken down by adults and children who received care or treatment from a national health service dentist in the most recent 14 months. As at 31 March 2007 53.8 per cent. of patients in Milton Keynes Primary Care Trust had seen an NHS dentist at least once in the previous 24 months, for adults this was 47.0 per cent. and for children this was 74.6 per cent.

Departments: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of staff in her Department were over 60 years of age in each of the last three years. [145682]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is shown in the following table.

Date	Percentage of staff over 60
31 March 2005	1.0
31 March 2006	1.4
31 March 2007	1.7

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people aged (a) over 55 years of age and (b) over 60 years of age have been recruited by her Department in each of the last three years; and what percentage in each case this is of the number of new recruits in each year. [145704]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is shown in the following table.

	2004-05		2005-06		2006-07
Age group	Recruits	Percentage	Recruits	Percentage	Recruits	Percentage
55 and over	5	4	14	5	1	1
60 and over	0	0	3	1	1	1

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in her Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145976]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The percentages of sick leave recorded on our sickness absence database in each of the last three years under a category defined as mental health, including depression, anxiety and potential stress related problems, were 32 per cent. for 2004-05, 22 per cent. for 2005-06 and 24 per cent. for 2006-07.

Departments: Written Questions

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Parliamentary Questions were tabled to his Department between 1 January and 30 June 2007, broken down by (a) Ordinary Written and (b) Named Day; what percentage of Ordinary Written Questions were answered within 10 working days; what percentage of Named Day Questions were answered substantively by the date named; and what measures he is taking to ensure that Questions are answered within the (i) recommended and (ii) required time. [147021]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer2 July 2007]: Between 1 January and 30 June we answered 839 Named Day Parliamentary questions, of which 497 (59 per cent.) were answered on the day specified. We also answered 3,812 Ordinary written questions, of which 1,296 (34 per cent.) were answered within 10 working days.

We endeavour to answer all parliamentary questions as quickly as possible and have been reviewing our internal processes. We are developing a replacement database which will enable us to better manage the end to end process and are also developing training for all those in the Department who prepare answers for Ministers to consider.

In the run up to the recent Government changes, we made a particular effort to answer outstanding questions and in the week up to 25 June we answered over 550. We will continue to seek improvement in our performance in this important area.

Disabled: Children

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) Cornwall's and (b) England's (i) total, (ii) adult and (iii) child population was registered disabled on the latest date for which figures are available. [146646]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Each local authority is required by law to maintain a register of disabled people living within its area for the purposes of planning and providing social services. However, registration is entirely voluntary, therefore the information held does not accurately represent the prevalence of disability. This information is not held centrally.

Health Services: Finance

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department expects to allocate to (a) the Healthcare Commission, (b) the National Patient Safety Agency, (c) the General Social Care Council and (d) the Commission for Social Care Inspection (i) to promote public engagement in their activities and (ii) for communication purposes in (A) 2007-08, (B) 2008-09 and (C) 2009-10. [146201]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has allocated a budget to its arm's length bodies for 2007-08 and the detailed elements of each are set out as follows.

However, for 2008-09 and 2009-10, while overall indicative budgets have been allocated, the Department and the arm's length bodies have not yet agreed the detailed elements of their expenditure.

Healthcare Commission

The budget for the patient and public engagement team for 2007-08 is £0.775 million. Public engagement is also supported by other departments, as patients and the public are the primary focus of the Healthcare Commission's work.

The rest of the communications budget for 2007-08 is £3.117 million. This also includes public engagement in the form of running consultation events and communicating through written reports and the internet.

National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA)

The NPSA Business Plan for 2007-08 states that the Agency will ensure that patients and the public are involved in its work by developing and implementing an involvement strategy in 2007 that takes account of changes resulting from the review of the organisational arrangements to support patient safety, "Safety First" (December 2006). The sum of budget lines that relate specifically to patient and public involvement is £347,288.

Communications supports the Agency's activity and engagement with the national health service in England and Wales, including feedback reports to each NHS organisation, the work of the National Clinical Assessment Service, the work of the National Research Ethics Service, published guidance on improving medication safety and a high profile patient safety campaign to frontline workers, as well as patients and the public. The total budget for this is approximately £1.7 million.

The General Social Care Council (GSCC)

The GSCC has allocated a budget to its Corporate Communications Directorate in 2007-08 of £1.001 million (as shown in the GSCC Business Plan for 2007-08). However, the GSCC has not allocated this budget between the two criteria that are stated in the question.

The GSCC also has funding within the education support grant that is paid (by the GSCC) to higher education institutes for the involvement of service users and carers in the design and delivery of the social work degree courses. For 2007-08 the earmarked funding is £0.628 million. This funding for this activity is also quoted in the GSCCs Business Plan for 2007-08.

The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI)

Communications and public involvement are a core function of CSCI's role. As a service regulator it is important that every aspect of CSCI's work involves communication with the public in general and, more specifically, with service users, their carers and families and with providers, commissioners and policy makers. By doing this, our work can encourage greater involvement in services, increase awareness of developments and issues in social care and raise the standard of service provision.

Therefore it is not feasible to completely separate the aspects of CSCI's work, and the budgets, which are specifically about public involvement and communication from those which are not.

However, there is a central function from which the core public and user involvement activities of CSCI are co-ordinated with a budget of £1.039 million for the current year. This budget does not cover all relevant expenditure on communications and public involvement, but it does cover the cost of user involvement activities such as experts by experience, involvement in inspections, user participation in improvement boards, conferences, methodology development etc. and accessible communications.

As well as the public and user involvement function, CSCI has a specific communications function which co-ordinates publications, events, marketing and web development. All of these activities are central to informing the public about and involving the public in CSCI's work.

Hearing Impaired: Health Services

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of progress on the Government's target to reduce waiting times for audiology assessments to six weeks by March 2008. [146749]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data published on 13 June 2007 show that, at the end of April, 101,260 people were waiting longer than six weeks for an audiology assessment. This is a reduction of 37,409 since October and represents good progress towards the milestone.

Mentally Ill: Young People

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies he has (a) reviewed and (b) commissioned on levels of mental illness in young people, with particular reference to levels of clinical depression; what assessment he has made of those studies; and what steps his Department is taking to combat depression in young people. [146796]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Office for National Statistics 2004 survey "Mental health of children and young people in Great Britain" looked at the prevalence of mental health disorders. It found that 10 per cent. of young people aged 5-16 years had a clinically diagnosed mental disorder. This includes four per cent. with an emotional disorder (1 per cent. depression and 3 per cent. anxiety disorders).

In September 2005, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence published a guideline on the treatment of depression in children and young people which also included advice on the detection and recognition of depression. It outlined the treatment options available—psychological therapies or medication. It recommended that medication should only be used rarely in the under 11 age group and should only be offered to the 12-18 group in more severe cases in addition to psychological therapy.

"The National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services" (published in 2004), sets the framework for child and adolescent mental services (CAMHS) for the next ten years. It sets the standard that all children and young people, from birth to their eighteenth birthday, who have mental health problems and disorders, will have access to timely, integrated, high quality multidisciplinary mental health services to ensure effective assessment, treatment and support, for them, their parents or carers, and other family members.

In the four years 2004-05 to 2007-08, we have invested over £400 million in additional funding for the development of CAMHS by the national health service and local authorities. It has assisted them in the achievement of the Department's public service agreement standard of a comprehensive CAMHS in every area.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many primary care trusts have led a health economy-wide approach to implementation of the DH Musculoskeletal Services Framework; and how many are on course to complete implementation by autumn/winter 2007; [146711]

(2) how many primary care trusts have led an assessment of health needs of those with musculoskeletal conditions; and how many are on course to complete an assessment by spring 2007; [146712]

(3) how many primary care trusts have mapped current musculoskeletal services and assessed future demand; and how many are on course to complete mapping by spring 2007. [146713]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 June 2007]: This information is not available centrally.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why musculoskeletal services are excluded from the Quality and Outcomes Framework; and whether consideration will be given to including them in the next review. [146714]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Musculoskeletal services are currently not included within the Quality and Outcome Framework. No proposals for musculoskeletal services were taken forward for the 2006 contract changes. As part of the ongoing development of the Framework, indicators will be reviewed in the light of emerging evidence, in the context of a value for money agreement.

New Deal for Carers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) over what time period the funding package announced in the written ministerial statement of 21 February 2007, Official Report, column 49WS, on the new deal for carers will be spent; and how much has been spent; [146530]

(2) on what date she expects the national helpline for carers to be established. [146532]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The funding announced for the new deal for carers announced on 21 February 2007 is for the current financial year. Decisions on funding for future years will be announced following the forthcoming comprehensive spending review.

In October, we will be giving councils their share of £25 million to develop short breaks for carers who are temporarily unable to care because of an emergency or other crisis. In addition, we will soon make up to £1 million available to key national organisations who are working with the Government to help provide greater support for carers.

The Department is working actively to achieve delivery of the national helpline and has been doing so in consultation with the national carers' organisations. It is our intention that the helpline will be in place in next summer.

Osteoporosis: Medical Treatments

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his estimate is of the cost to the NHS of treating patients with osteoporotic fractures of the (a) hip, (b) wrist and (c) vertebrae in the last 12 months for which figures are available; [146656]

(2) whether alternative treatments are available on the NHS to patients at risk of osteoporotic fracture who do not respond to the first line treatment prescribed by their general practitioner; [146657]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) treating an osteoporotic hip fracture and (b) providing treatments likely to prevent such fractures from occurring in the latest period for which figures are available. [146658]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has made no estimate of the overall cost to the national health service of treating patients with osteoporotic fractures. Nor has the Department estimated the individual cost of treating an osteoporotic hip fracture, or the cost of providing treatments to prevent osteoporotic fractures.

In its appraisal of the use of bisphosphonates in post-menopausal women, which was published in 2005, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) estimated that among post-menopausal women, the cost to the NHS of fractures to the hip, forearm and spine was £942 million. Additionally, draft final guidance issued by NICE on 26 June 2007, acknowledged that the cost of treating post-menopausal women with Alendronate, the recommended therapy for both the initiation of primary and secondary prevention of osteoporotic fractures, would be between £95.03 and £301.39 per patient per year.

This new set of guidance, which NICE expects to publish in final form in August 2007, covers the initiation of treatment only. The future NICE clinical guideline on osteoporosis will cover the treatment of women who cannot take or have withdrawn from treatment with Alendronate. Until this guideline is published, we expect NHS organisations to continue to provide treatments based on an assessment of the available evidence.

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the time taken by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to develop guidance on treatments to prevent osteoporotic fractures in post-menopausal women. [146659]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has issued a Final Appraisal Determination on treatments to prevent osteoporotic fractures in post-menopausal women. This is a particularly complex appraisal and has taken longer to complete than would normally be the case. NICE operates a robust appraisal process, involving a full assessment of the evidence and public consultation on its draft recommendations. It is important that in the most complex cases, NICE is allowed to take sufficient time to ensure that final guidance it issues is of a high quality.

Pregnancy: Screening

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many amniocentesis procedures were carried out in each of the last three years; how many of the procedures resulted in a diagnosis for Down's Syndrome (Trisomy 21) or other chromosomal abnormalities; and how many of these resulted in a termination. [147416]

Ann Keen [holding answer 3 July 2007]: Information on the total number of amniocentesis procedures carried out in the last three years is not collected centrally. Information on the number of amniocentesis tests that resulted in a diagnosis of Down's Syndrome and other chromosomal abnormalities and the number of terminations as a result of Down's Syndrome and other chromosomal abnormalities is in the following table.

Abortions performed under Section 1(1)(d) of the Abortion Act 1967 with amniocentesis used in the diagnosis of chromosomal anomalies, residents, England and Wales, 2004-06*

	Abortions performed because of Down's Syndrome	Down's Syndrome diagnosed using amniocentesis	Abortions performed because of chromosomal anomalies other than Down's Syndrome	Chromosomal anomalies other than Down's Syndrome diagnosed using amniocentesis
2006	436	195	336	114
2005	429	199	319	136
2004	419	183	307	104

Notes:

* That there is a substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped.

Amniocentesis used as a method of diagnosis with or without an ultrasound and/or chorionic.

Information about method of diagnosis is missing for about 8 per cent. of abortions performed under Section 1(1)(d)* of the Abortion Act 1967.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Females: Small Businesses

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Minister for Women what work is undertaken by the taskforce on women's enterprise; and what progress has been made towards the recruitment of a national network of 1,000 female entrepreneur ambassadors. [147150]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

If we matched US levels of entrepreneurship there would be 700,000 more businesses run by women in the UK. To help accelerate the UK towards the US levels of entrepreneurship, the Government established the taskforce on Women's Enterprise to advise it on specific steps to increase levels of women's business ownership in the UK. Under the co-chairmanship of Pam Alexander (CEO, SEED A) and Glenda Stone (CEO, Aurora), the taskforce is providing leadership on women's enterprise across Government and the regions, by recommending specific steps to increase women's business ownership. It is working with the Regional Development Agencies to ensure that women have access to the high-quality support and advice they require to start and grow their businesses.

Working alongside the taskforce is the Women's Enterprise Ambassadors' Network (WEAN). This network comprises inspirational women entrepreneurs, who are using their knowledge and experience to inspire more women to consider the option of starting a business. To celebrate the recruitment of the 1000th ambassador the first WEAN National conference, hosted by my right hon. Friend the Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge), the then Minister for Industry and the Regions, took place at Lancaster House on Monday 25 June 2007. The conference was attended by 200 ambassadors from around the country.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

British Telecommunications: Fees and Charges

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the outcome was of discussions between his Department and Ofcom on British Telecom's decision to introduce an additional charge for customers who do not pay by direct debit; and if he will make a statement. [147092]

Mr. Timms: The independent regulator the Office of Communications (Ofcom) announced on 6 June that it will carry out a full review of communications providers' additional charges. Ofcom expects to announce the conclusions of its review in the autumn and progress may be monitored on its website at: www.ofcom.org.uk.

The review will cover charges for non-direct debit payments, as well as other additional charges including late payment, restoration of service and early termination fees. It will cover fixed and mobile operators, and pay TV services. Ofcom will look at the nature and level of charges levied by communications providers and how well signposted and transparent such charges are. It will investigate how far consumers are aware of additional charges, whether they are able and willing to shop around on the basis of core prices and additional charges rather than just core prices, and whether there are certain groups of consumers who are unable to do this and therefore may be disadvantaged.

On investigating this issue it has become clear that it would be wrong to look at BT in isolation. More than 40 per cent. of homes are provided with telephony services by operators other than BT, and the differentials for payment by non-direct debit range from no extra charge to £15 a quarter. Some providers provide no payment option other than direct debit.

Departments: Energy

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many energy saving lightbulbs were purchased by his Department for use on the departmental estate in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [144931]

Mr. Thomas: In the financial year 2006-07 the Department procured and installed 2,770 energy saving light bulbs and holds an approximate stock of 320; the latter will vary dependant on replacement requirements.

During the previous year 2004-05 the Department purchased approximately 4,700 energy saving light bulbs.

The Department installs energy efficient lighting throughout its estate as a part of its strategy to achieve the energy targets set out in the framework for sustainable development in Government.

Energy: Black Sea

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what support his Department has given to UK energy companies developing new energy resources in the Black Sea. [146196]

Mr. Thomas: While UK energy companies have been active for some time in the Black Sea states, UK Trade and Investment is not aware of any UK company involvement in the offshore development of new energy resources in the Black Sea itself. UK companies considering investment in that activity may wish to consider contacting UK Trade and Investment to discuss available assistance.

Information on the types of assistance available from UK Trade and Investment is available via the organisation's website.

Manufacturing Industries: Exports

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what new market opportunities for manufacturing exports were offered by Brazil and India at discussions with the United States and the European Union in Potsdam. [146856]

Mr. Thomas: The negotiations in Potsdam between the EU, US, Brazil and India have not led yet to agreement on the tariff reduction formulae for either trade in agriculture or trade in manufactured goods.

Consequently, discussions about market access for manufactured goods did not lead to new market opportunities being offered.

Minimum Wage

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the level of the national minimum wage was for (a) adults and (b) younger workers (i) at its inception and (ii) at each further increase since then; what the date was of each increase; and what percentage of national average earnings each increase represented. [146574]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The national minimum wage rates are set in response to recommendations by the independent Low Pay Commission. The rate for workers aged 16-17 was introduced in 2004 in response to a Low Pay Commission recommendation. The rates have increased since inception as follows:

Post Offices: WH Smith

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what studies the Post Office has undertaken into the impact on surrounding sub-post offices of establishing post offices in WH Smith branches. [146115]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook the managing director has been asked to reply direct to the right hon. Member.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when details will be announced of the compensation to be made to sub-post offices whose businesses are adversely affected by the opening of post offices in nearby WH Smith branches. [146806]

Mr. McFadden: Decisions on the location of post office branches and franchise agreements are operational issues for Post Office Ltd.

Postal Services: EC Action

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had (a) with ministerial colleagues and (b) at the European level on (i) the timetable for liberalisation of postal services across the European Union and (ii) the effect of liberalisation on the future of the Royal Mail. [146679]

Mr. McFadden: The Department's Ministers and officials have regular discussions with other Government Department colleagues on matters relating to the liberalisation of postal services. We also maintain ongoing dialogue with both the institutions of the European Union and the other member states.

The Government support the European objective of implementing a single market for postal services by 2009: by opening up the sector to competition in a gradual and controlled way, within a regulatory framework that ensures the sustained provision of a universal service.

Royal Mail management has welcomed the introduction of competition in postal markets. The Government have recently agreed a finance framework for Royal Mail to enable the company to modernise and improve its efficiency so that it can compete successfully in a liberalised market.

Trade Unions: Ballots

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library copies of the scrutineers' report on union ballots on political fund retention, held by the Certification Officer, from the last 12 months. [146877]

Mr. McFadden: There have been no union ballots on political fund retention in the last 12 months.

World Trade Organisation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made for the future of the World Trade Organisation Doha Round following discussions between the United States, the European Union, Brazil and India in Potsdam. [146851]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government regrets that G4 members failed to agree a common platform in the DDA negotiations. However, Pascal Lamy, the WTO Director General, has made it clear that negotiations will continue in Geneva. We hope that all WTO members will now work with Pascal Lamy and the Chairs of the Negotiating Groups to try to take the negotiations forward. We are encouraging all WTO members to engage positively and constructively and to show the flexibility and commitment necessary to bring the negotiations to a successful conclusion, and remain committed to achieving an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the DDA.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Voluntary Work: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will visit the Kettering voluntary network to discuss the challenges faced by the third sector in Kettering. [146394]

Phil Hope: Organisations like the Kettering Voluntary Network play a key role in supporting local third sector organisations and helping people to volunteer, and are an example of how local government and voluntary organisations can work together to improve local communities.

The Government are committed to developing an environment which enables the third sector to thrive and the Office of the Third Sector in the Cabinet Office works with the sector and other government departments to break down barriers which prevent people from volunteering.

I have asked an official from the Office of the Third Sector to contact Kettering Voluntary Network to arrange a visit to discuss the challenges faced by the third sector in Kettering.

Construction Industry

9. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, what discussions he has had with employers' organisations and trade unions on skills shortages in the construction industry. [147644]

Mr. Timms: I have had no such meetings with the industry though I am looking forward to having discussions with them on a range of issues. My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge), discussed skills and other matters with the industry and trade unions on many occasions.

Post Office Closures

10. Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, how many voluntary and compulsory closures of post offices there will be over the next two years; and if he will make a statement. [147645]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have set out a policy framework for the future of the post office network and announced up to £1.7 billion to set the network on a more stable footing. Post Office Ltd. will need to make strategic changes to the network including the compensated closure of up to 2,500 sub-post offices by the end of 2008. The Post Office will carry out the programme on a compulsory basis to ensure that it meets the Government's objectives of maintaining a truly national network providing the right services in the right places.

Regulation

11. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, what plans he has to reform the process of regulation. [147646]

Mr. Hutton: We have set out a range of measures to reduce the burden of regulation on business, the public sector and third sector. Further measures will be announced shortly.

The World Bank ranks us sixth in the world and first in the EU for ease of doing business.

Enterprise

13. Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, what recent measures he has introduced to encourage and support people who wish to start their own enterprise. [147648]

Mr. Timms: This Government continue to encourage and support people who wish to start their own enterprises via Business Link branded services. Business Link assisted 183,000 pre-starts in the year ending March 2007.

Mr. Thomas: We regret that G4 members failed to agree a common platform in the DDA negotiations last week in Potsdam. We welcome Pascal Lamy's intention to continue negotiations in Geneva. We continue to encourage all WTO members to work constructively with Pascal Lamy and the Chairs of the Negotiating Groups to try to take the negotiations forward to achieving an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha Round.

Insolvency Service

15. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the performance of the Insolvency Service; and if he will make a statement. [147653]

Mr. McFadden: The performance of the Insolvency Service is assessed by Ministers following the submission of a quarterly report by the Agency Chief Executive, the most recent report being received in May 2007. Ministers also assessed the performance of the agency in setting its targets for 2007-08. The targets set for 2007-08 were announced in the House by way of ministerial statement on 29 March 2007.

Departmental Contracts

16. Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what mechanisms are in place to reduce the risk of corruption in the award or approval of contracts by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [147654]

Mr. Thomas: The Department is committed to meeting its legal and best practice obligations as set out in "Government Accounting" and the Public Contracts Regulations 2006. The Department has a zero tolerance policy for fraud and corruption.

Asphalt

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what volume of asphalt was produced in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and what estimate his Department has made of the volume of asphalt which will be produced in the next five years. [147895]

Mr. Timms: The Office for National Statistics publishes data on natural bitumen, natural asphalt, asphaltites and asphaltic rocks as part of its annual publication 'Product Sales and Trade PRA 14500: Other Mining and Quarrying'. However, data for UK manufacturer sales are suppressed as being statistically disclosive.

The Quarry Products Association estimates that the asphalt industry produces more than 26 million tonnes of asphalt every year.

Carbon Sequestration

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what work his Department is undertaking on the research and development of carbon sequestration in the United Kingdom. [147157]

Mr. Hutton: The Government announced in the Budget in March 2007 that a competition to build the UK's first commercial scale demonstration of carbon capture and storage will take place. As indicated in the recent "Energy White Paper", the competition is expected to launch in November and we intend that it will be up and running sometime between 2011 and 2014. Current indications are that we will be among the first—if not the first—in the world to do this.

The Government are also working towards a regulatory regime which will manage the safe and reliable storage of CO2 and does not conflict with international agreements. We currently expect to consult on UK regulation of CCS in November.

Regulatory work also includes amendments to international conventions and working towards the inclusion of CCS in the EU ETS. The UK has already taken the lead in proposing and securing amendments to the London convention and OSPAR treaties which legalise CO2 storage beneath the seabed, a major step towards enabling the implementation of CCS.

With Norway we have established a taskforce to establish the underlying principles for CO2 storage in the North sea basin. The work of the taskforce is progressing well and has already produced its first deliverable, a report on a set of common principles for the regulation and management for storing CO2 in geological formations beneath the seabed.

DBERR also supports research and development for carbon capture and storage (CCS) through the Technology programme. During 2005-06 some £3.5 million was set aside for Carbon Abatement Technologies of which £2.3 million has been allocated to CCS. This funding will continue through 2007 at which stage the new arrangements for the Technology Strategy Board and Energy Technologies Institute will be introduced.

Additionally £35 million has been allocated for the demonstration of components for CCS technologies. To date some £1.4 million of those funds has been set aside for one project.

Funding is also made available by the Research Councils. The following table outlines their expenditure on CCS research to date:

2000-01	23,000
2001-02	42,000
2002-03	78,000
2003-04	30,000
2004-05	966,000
2005-06	1,072,000

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147610]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that no payments have been made to Common Purpose in any of the financial years 2003-04 to date.

Further information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146328]

Mr. Thomas: The DTI introduced a new finance system during 2003-04 and obtaining figures prior to 2003 from the old system would be at disproportionate cost.

(a): Yearly expenditure figures for management consultancy, since 2003

2003-04	1,223,423
2004-05	24,586,199
2005-06	48,571,422
2006-07	40,188,012

(b): Yearly expenditure figures for external consultants and advisors since 2003

2003-04	25,386
2004-05	8,662,643
2005-06	22,704,241
2006-07	17,658,011

Over the same period the Department did not spend £10 million or more on any single contractual consultancy service.

Government procurement exercises above £500 are subject to fair and open competition. We ensure that we follow procurement practices laid down by HM Treasury to achieve value for money.

Departments: Foreign Workers

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which agencies of his Department maintain offices overseas; in which countries each agency maintains an office; how many staff work in each; and what the cost of each office was in 2005-06. [144921]

[redacted] Thomas: I can confirm that my Department's [redacted]es do not have any offices overseas.

[redacted]re UK trade and investment operate overseas, the[redacted]dings are maintained and managed by the Fore[redacted]and Commonwealth Office.

Homosexuality: Intimidation

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps are being taken by the Government to tackle homophobic bullying in the workplace. [146397]

Mr. McFadden: The Government believe that workers should be able to work without fear of being bullied or harassed in the workplace. The Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003 provide specific protection against discrimination, victimisation and harassment in the workplace on the grounds of sexual orientation. Individuals who feel that they have been treated unfairly on those grounds may make a claim to an Employment Tribunal.

ACAS has published guidance on the legislation and provides a nationwide telephone advice line offering assistance to employers and employees on bullying and other employment issues.

The Department's Partnership at Work Fund has made available £1 million to a project involving Amicus, BT, Legal and General, BAE Systems and Royal Mail to address the issue of bullying in the workplace. The project promotes best practice and workplace initiatives to tackle bullying.

Post Offices: Cash Dispensing

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many free-to-use cash machines have been installed in sub-post offices. [147222]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook the managing director has been asked to reply direct to my right hon. Friend.

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many voluntary and compulsory closures of post offices he expects there to be over the next two years. [147649]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) earlier today.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) voluntary and (b) compulsory Post Office closures there will be over the next two years; and if he will make a statement. [147869]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have set out a policy framework for the future of the post office network and announced up to £1.7 billion to set the network on a more stable footing. Post Office Ltd. will need to make strategic changes to the network including the compensated closure of up to 2,500 sub-post offices by the end of 2008. The Post Office will carry out the programme on a compulsory basis to ensure that it meets the Government's objectives of maintaining a truly national network providing the right services in the right places.

Post Offices: Finance

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much of the funding allocated to the post office network by the Government have been allocated for (a) training, (b) new equipment and (c) marketing. [147219]

Mr. McFadden: The Government's investment of up to £1.7 billion for the post office network announced on 17 May 2007, (Official Report 17 May 2007, column 753) covers network change, continued annual subsidy and network losses. Decisions on funding for training, new equipment and marketing are commercial matters for post office management.

Post Offices: Stafford

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many representations Post Office Ltd. received in response to its consultation on the moving of the Stafford Crown Post Office to WH Smith; and how many of the responses raised problems about access. [147714]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. Alan Cook, the Managing Director has been asked to reply direct to my hon. Friend.

Postal Services: Buses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much subsidy was provided by local authorities for Postbus services in the last year for which figures are available. [146842]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 July 2007]: It is entirely a matter for individual authorities to decide any subsidy for Postbus services. I understand that the amount of subsidy provided by local authorities to support the Postbus service for the year ending 2006-07 was £442,000.

Power Stations: Peterhead

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column

144W, on Power Stations: Peterhead, what additional sequestration projects might be approved in the next (a) three months and (b) six months. [147821]

Malcolm Wicks: None. Any projects which go ahead following the competition to build the UK's first commercial-scale demonstration of Carbon Capture and Storage, announced in Budget 2007, will have to satisfy the relevant regulatory, planning and environmental requirements. In addition, the Energy White Paper committed Government to consult on what their power station consents policy should be with regard to carbon-capture readiness by the end of the year.

Productivity

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he plans to take to improve UK productivity over the next 12 months. [147652]

Mr. McFadden: Over the past decade the Government have placed the objective of improving the UK's productivity performance at the heart of economic strategy and the policy agenda, which has successfully narrowed the productivity gap with our major industrial competitors.

Going forward, a wide programme of reforms has been designed under the Government's framework of five drivers of productivity in order to make further progress. My Department contributes to policies under all five drivers of productivity, but has particular responsibility for taking forward reforms under the enterprise and competition drivers. For example, under the enterprise driver, ongoing work on the Better Regulation Agenda and the Simplification programme, which my Department is leading, will help to create a better framework within which business can operate. Implementing the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which received Royal Assent last year will also contribute to reducing the administrative burdens on business, and at the same time, increase transparency and improve confidence of investors in the UK economy.

We will work closely with other Departments to take forward the productivity agenda.

Safety: Furniture

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures the Government are taking to stop sofas and chairs which do not meet the fire safety regulations from being imported into the UK. [146802]

Mr. Timms: Liaison between local authority Trading Standards officers and HM Revenue and Customs on furniture imports has resulted in furniture being detained and convictions obtained for non-compliance with the Furniture and Furnishings (Fire) (Safety) Regulations 1988. HM Customs issued an Intelligence Trend Alert in December 2006 to its detection enforcement staff to raise their awareness of the potential risks posed to the public by sofas consigned from Poland. Also, officials from my Department have twice visited Poland to increase awareness of the FFRs and the Polish embassy has written to Polish manufacturers to do the same.

(3) how many children of primary school age were classified as (a) at risk and (b) in need in each of the last five years. [147617]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 4 July 2007]: The available data are shown in the tables.

Table 2 provides information on the number of children and young people on the child protection register in England in the last five years by age.

The majority of children in need do not enter the child protection system so the figures shown in Table 2 represent a subset of those children in Table 1.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who is responsible for workforce development on physical education and sport; and if he will make a statement. [147265]

Jim Knight [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Training and Development Agency for Schools has a remit to support the continuing professional development of teachers. Funding for this area is devolved to schools, which are best placed to decide what activities meet the needs of the school and the individual teachers working there. Additional support is available through the PE and School Sport Professional Development Programme which allows schools to draw, free of charge, from a menu of resources to help teachers raise the quality of the PE and school sport they provide.

Primary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1158W, on primary education: teaching methods, (1) how much has been allocated to provide one-to-one tuition for 300,000 pupils in (a) English and (b) mathematics over the comprehensive spending review period; [147162]

(2) what the Department's planned trajectory is for the provision of one-to-one tuition in (a) English and (b) mathematics to 300,000 pupils by 2010-11. [147164]

Jim Knight: In the CSR it was announced that, by 2010-11, 300,000 pupils across both primary and secondary will be receiving one-to-one tuition in English and a further 300,000 pupils in maths.

The Department will make further announcements on the allocation of its CSR settlement, and on the planned trajectory for the provision of one-to-one tuition, in due course.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent per pupil in Stockton-on-Tees in each year since 1997. [147289]

Jim Knight: The revenue funding figures per pupil in Stockton-on-Tees in each year since 1997 are provided in the following table:

Year	£ Funding per pupil
1997-98	2,360
1998-99	2,580
1999-2000	2,680
2000-01	2,910
2001-02	3,260
2002-03	3,550
2003-04	3,820
2004-05	4,080
2005-06	4,430

Notes:
1. The combined LA and school based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in LA maintained establishments and pupils educated by the LA other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school based expenditure and all elements of central LA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA). A sector breakdown for combined LA and school based expenditure is not available from 2002-03 and consequently this table shows the total LA recurrent expenditure (except youth and community) per pupil by LA since 1995-96.
2. 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the Section 52 Outturn forms collected by the DfES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) and the associated restructuring of the Outturn tables. The change in sources is shown by the line.
3. Pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under 5s funded by the LA and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools are taken from the DfES Annual Schools Census. Private voluntary and independent (PVI) under 5 pupil numbers are taken from the Early Years census but are only included for 1999-2000 onwards. For 1998-99 onwards other LA maintained pupils are included in the pupil count. This includes all pupils attending schools not maintained by the authority for whom the authority is paying full tuition fees, or educated otherwise than in schools and pupil referral units under arrangements made by the authority drawn from Form 8b submitted to the DfES. Also included as other LA maintained pupils are all pupils attending pupil referral units who are not registered at a maintained school drawn from the DfES Annual School Census. All pupil numbers are adjusted to be on a financial year basis.
4. Figures are rounded to the nearest £10 and are subject to change by the LA.

Pupils: Qualifications

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) to how many GCSEs (a) a CACHE Foundation Award in Caring for Children and (b) a CACHE Level 2 Certificate in Child Care and Education are considered to be equivalent for the purposes of GCSE performance tables; [147307]

(2) to how many qualifications included in the secondary school (GCSE and equivalent) performance tables are considered to be equivalent to (a) three, (b) four and (c) five or more GCSEs. [147308]

Jim Knight: Information on the equivalence of all qualifications used in the achievement and attainment tables is published by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in the National Database of Accredited Qualifications at:

http://www.ndaq.org.uk/

Runaway Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the outcome was of the review of refuge for runaway children; and when he will publish the report of the review. [147419]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 3 July 2007]: This review was carried out by Barnardo's. Their report on the six community-based refuge pilots, and a separate "Lessons Learned" summary, will be published shortly. Officials are working closely with Barnardo's to finalise the report, including updating the text to reflect the Department's new name. Copies of the final versions will be placed in the House Library.

Schools: Sport

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the allocated budget is for school sport at non-specialist sports colleges. [147264]

Jim Knight [holding answer 3 July 2007]: Every school in England receives funding to deliver the Physical Education National Curriculum as part of their core funding through the Dedicated Schools Grant—£28.3 billion in total in 2007-08. In addition, investment in the National School Sport Strategy has been £978.5 million in the five years to 2008, covering every maintained school in England. It is for schools and School Sport Partnerships to decide how they allocate their funding.

Teachers: Stockton-on-Tees

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) teaching assistants were employed in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in Stockton-on-Tees in (A) 1997 and (B) at the latest date for which figures are available. [147292]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of teachers and teaching assistants employed in Stockton-on-Tees local authority maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools in January 1997 and 2006, the latest year for which figures are available.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments: Durham

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list all (a) consents and (b) refusals of consent since 1 May 1990 under the Allotments Act 1925 for the disposal of allotment land or its use for other purposes, involving allotment sites in the district of Derwentside. [147414]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 3 July 2007]: Derwentside district council has not submitted any applications to the Secretary of State under the Allotments Act 1925 for the disposal of allotment land in their area since 1 May 1990.

Council Tax: Students

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the liability for council tax is of a full-time student sharing one dwelling with three others. [148285]

John Healey: Properties occupied wholly by students, who meet the criteria set out in the Council Tax (Discount Disregards) Order 1992, are exempt from council tax under Class N of the Council Tax (Exempt Dwellings Order) 1992.

Where a property is shared by students and non-students then the students are disregarded under the provisions of the Council Tax (Discount Disregards) Order 1992 for the purpose of calculating whether a single person discount should apply. By virtue of section 6(4) of the Local Government Finance Act 1992, as amended by section 74 of the Local Government Act 2003, the students are not jointly and severally liable for any council tax bill, but it is a matter for the occupiers to determine how any council tax costs should be shared.

Liability for any council tax due on a property occupied in part by students will fall to the landlord, rather than occupants who are not students, if the property is deemed to be a house in multiple occupation within the meaning of Class C of the Council Tax (Liability for Owners) Regulations 1992.

Local Government: Somerset

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations of (a) support and (b) opposition have been received for the unitary bid for Somerset local government from (i) hon. Members, (ii) district councils in Somerset, (iii) parish councils, (iv) the public through polls or opinion surveys, (v) businesses and (vi) other organisations in Somerset; and if she will make a statement. [146608]

John Healey: Our stakeholder consultation ended on 22 June and we are now analysing the responses received. All representations will be taken into account before decisions are made on which proposals should proceed towards implementation. The Government will publish a summary of consultation responses and copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to support Local Sector Independence Day on 4 July. [147214]

John Healey [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Department has updated information about the third sector on our website, with a link to the Commission for the Compact website and information about Local Sector Independence Day.

We have worked with Compact Voice in preparing a third sector strategy discussion document, on which we are inviting comment by 20 September 2007, which recognises the importance of effective local relationships with an independent voluntary and community sector. As part of this approach Compact Voice are running a workshop for departmental officials on local Compacts.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Gambling: Licensing

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how his Department plans to discharge its commitment to review the premises licence fees charged by local authorities under the Gambling Act 2005; and if he will make a statement. [148283]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are currently collating the information from licensing authorities on the fees they have set under the Gambling Act 2005 and associated statutory instruments. We intend to publish this information in due course.

This will help the Department reach a view on whether the maxima have been set at the right level and whether they need to be adjusted, up or down, before the next financial year.

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's estimate is of the average premises licence fee charged by local authorities under the Gambling Act 2005; and what the maximum fee level is. [148284]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are currently collating the information from licensing authorities on the fees they have set under the Gambling Act 2005 and associated statutory instruments. We intend to publish this information in due course.

Maximum fees levels were set in the Gambling (Premises Licence Fees) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports he has received on recent conflict in the Myanishen district of Kandahar province; whether the Taliban is in control of this district; and if he will make a statement. [145100]

Des Browne: Myanishen district centre is under Afghan Government control after a short period of Taliban occupation.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopters are dedicated for medical lift in Afghanistan. [145197]

Des Browne [holding answer 25 June 2007]: The UK does not fit helicopters specifically for the medical role but rather has dedicated and fully equipped specialist medical teams that can use any helicopter. There is always a helicopter available to deploy these teams in an emergency. In addition UK forces have access to the medical evacuation capabilities of ISAF and coalition partners in Afghanistan.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the average time for medical evacuations in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [145198]

Des Browne [holding answer 25 June 2007]: The time taken to give treatment to wounded soldiers is more relevant than evacuation time as some life saving treatment can be delivered before an evacuation takes place. The Department is undertaking an audit on the time taken to deliver treatment in accordance with UK and NATO guidelines which are as follows:

Battlefield advanced trauma life support within one hour of injury.

Damage control surgery should be started within two hours of injury.

Primary surgery should be started within four hours of injury.

I will write to the hon. Member once the result of this audit is available and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the capacity of medical facilities and supplies in Afghanistan to respond to an event with significant numbers of casualties. [145199]

Des Browne [holding answer 25 June 2007]: The medical planning undertaken by UK forces has put in place appropriate procedures and sufficient resources in Afghanistan to handle incidents producing significant numbers of casualties.

Armed Forces: Training

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Defence Training Rationalisation Programme will support up-skilling throughout (a) Wales and (b) the rest of the UK beyond the Armed Forces; and what discussions his Department has had on supporting up-skilling. [146844]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Ministry of Defence is actively participating in a cross-departmental committee to assess how the Defence Training Review Programme can link with the Government's broader skills agenda. As much of what the armed forces do on a daily basis is vocational, we aim to ensure that training is accredited to nationally recognised vocational qualifications. On 14 June the armed forces signed a Skills Pledge confirming its commitment to support its employees to gain the skills and qualifications that will support their future employability, not only in Wales, but across the UK.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will require the Defence Training Review preferred bidder to hold discussions with Persimmon Homes and Barratts on planning gains for the Defence Military Academy at MOD, St. Athan from the development of Llandow Newydd. [147278]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: To date no decision on the procurement option for service families accommodation has been made. The options to be considered will include a solution from the preferred bidder alongside in-house options and any opportunities in the local market.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where he expects the new accommodation for trainees and military and civilian staff at the military training academy MOD St. Athan to be located. [147281]

Derek Twigg: Work to agree specific site plans of the proposed MOD St. Athan site is ongoing. All single living accommodation will be located within the MOD St. Athan boundary; however the location of service families accommodation is still to be determined.

Army Board: Expenditure

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenses incurred by partners of members of the Army Board may be claimed for from his Department; and how much was spent on those expenses in 2006, broken down by type. [130547]

Derek Twigg: Spouses may, exceptionally, accompany Service personnel and civil servants to official functions or events in the UK or overseas, where there is a clear public interest in doing so.

In 2006, a total of £12,769.83 was paid by the Department for air travel relating to attendance at official representational events overseas by spouses of the non-ministerial members of the Army Board. No other expenses were incurred.

BAE: Contracts

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received from the US Administration on the subject of contracts obtained by BAE Systems; and if he will make a statement. [147211]

Des Browne [holding answer 3 July 2007]: None.

Departments: BAE Systems

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officials from his Department applied to join BAE under the business appointments procedure in each of the last 10 years. [146952]

Des Browne: The number of staff (both civilian and military) from the Department who have submitted applications under the business appointments process to join BAE over the past 10 years is as follows:

	Number of business applications where BAE quoted
1997	14
1998	14
1999	7
2000	13
2001	17
2002	21
2003	7
2004	7
2005	9
2006	21
2007 (to June)	17
Total	147

This information has been compiled from manual historic records of business appointment applications where 'BAE' has been quoted in the record and a date given. It is therefore possible that some cases may not be included in these figures.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146991]

Derek Twigg: The number and value of non-pensionable bonuses awarded to members of the senior civil service (SCS), to fixed term appointees and to civil servants below the level of SCS covered by the MOD Main pay deal (excluding Trading Funds and Agencies) over the past three years, are listed in the following Tables 1 to 4. The Ministry of Defence also awards special bonuses to individuals and teams for exceptional performance in a specific task or for the achievement of professional qualifications which benefit MOD and the individual; these are shown in Table 4.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146915]

Derek Twigg: There were no members of the senior civil service who did not perform satisfactorily in the 2006-07 reporting year. Staff below the senior civil service who are performing less than satisfactorily are separately identified. This process operates from the end of the reporting period for the pay band/skill zone (February to April) through to late July 2007. As the process is not yet complete it is too early to provide the information. I will write to the hon. Member when the data are available and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list his Department's top level budget holders and their related management groupings in each financial year since 1997. [146960]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is available in the 'MOD Organisation and Resource Account Code Hierarchies' document, which is produced annually. Copies are available in the Library of the House covering the period from 2000-01, when the Chart of Accounts was first adopted for financial management purposes in the Ministry of Defence.

Depleted Uranium: Irish Sea

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many depleted uranium shells were fired into the Irish Sea and the waters feeding into the Irish Sea in each of the last 30 years. [146891]

Derek Twigg: No depleted uranium (DU) shells have been fired into the Irish Sea. DU projectiles have been fired from Kirkcudbright into the Solway Firth since 1982 and the numbers fired to date are shown in the following table.

In addition, during 1988 and 1990, 100 and 215 rounds of depleted uranium ammunition respectively were fired into Luce Bay, West Freugh, as part of experimental firings to examine the ricochet effects of ammunitions from the Phalanx weapons system following first water impact.

The table has been compiled from individual entries in a daily log maintained at Kirkcudbright. While preparing this table, differences were noted between the annual totals obtained on this occasion and the information published in Hansard on 12 March 2001, Official Report, column 411W, in answer to a similar question. The reason for the discrepancies is because some preparatory rounds, which did not contain DU, were included in the earlier data.

Depleted Uranium: Peacekeeping Operations

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much depleted uranium ammunition has been used by British forces in (a) Operation Telic and (b) Operation Herrick since 2003. [147526]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on the 28 June 2007, Official Report, column 831W.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Government plans to extend the eligibility for the HM forces Veterans' Badge to the Royal Observer Corps. [147398]

Derek Twigg: The armed forces Veterans Badge was introduced for all those who had served in HM armed forces. We are currently considering the position of the Royal Observer Corps in this respect and I will write to my hon. Friend when this work has been completed and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Iraq: Casualties

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK service personnel have been (a) injured and (b) killed in Iraq since March 2003. [147354]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence publishes data on battle and non-battle fatalities and casualties that have resulted from our operations in Iraq since March 2003: details can be found on the Ministry of Defence website:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

This information is updated on a two weekly basis in arrears. Since January 2006, improvements in reporting mean that more detailed information can be made available. Work continues to verify and validate data for aeromedical evacuations and field hospital admissions in Iraq prior to January 2006. Once this data is compiled it will be added to the website.

As at 2 July 2007, a total of 156 British armed forces personnel or MOD civilians have died serving on Operation Telic since March 2003. Of these, 121 are classed as Killed in Action or Died of Wounds. 35 are known to have died either as a result of illness, non-combat injuries or accidents, or have not yet officially been assigned a cause of death pending the outcome of an investigation.

Over the same period, centrally available records show that 60 UK military personnel were categorised as Very Seriously Injured from all causes and 117 were categorised as Seriously Injured from all causes (in both cases excluding disease).

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the rate by which (a) vehicles, (b) helicopters and (c) fixed-wing aircraft in service in Iraq and Afghanistan are not lasting for their expected life-span. [145104]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 17 May 2007 on an issue related to the Grievance Appeal Panel. [146710]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 29 June 2007]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 5 July 2007. I apologise for the delay in responding.

Military Bases: Wales

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to secure the future operation and maintenance of the runway at MOD St. Athan. [147286]

Derek Twigg: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the maintenance of the runway at MOD St. Athan. MOD continues to operate and use the runway as part of the Airfield Management Agreement between the two parties. These arrangements are currently under review.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans the preferred bidder for the Defence Training Academy, MOD St. Athan has to re-open St. Athan Halt or construct a new railway station. [147287]

Derek Twigg: A decision on the provision of a new or refurbished railway station is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government. An application for planning permission to develop Defence Training Review Facilities at St. Athan is being prepared by the preferred bidder in conjunction with the Welsh Assembly Government and the Vale of Glamorgan Council. A traffic impact assessment study and green travel plan will also be prepared. The proximity of the site to the revitalised Cardiff-Bridgend railway line is a considerable asset in the consideration of sustainable development at St. Athan.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will require the Defence Training Review preferred bidder to make an assessment of the impact of the new build at the Defence Training Academy, MOD St. Athan on the surface water and drainage in the immediate locale, with particular reference to the village of Boverton. [147288]

Derek Twigg: An Environmental Impact Assessment will be carried out to support the preferred bidder's planning application to develop the MOD St. Athan site. This assessment will include, among others, the impact of development on surface water and drainage to the surrounding area.

NATO: Military Bases

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to move NATO joint headquarters from Rheindahlen to RAF Innsworth; and if he will make a statement. [147239]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Innsworth site is one of several options being assessed as a possible UK base for the Headquarters of the Allied Command Europe Rapid Reaction Corps, currently based at Rheindahlen, Germany. A final decision will not be made before this autumn, and a move would not take place until 2009 at the earliest.

Service Personnel: Psychiatric Care

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what facilities are available for psychiatric treatment of troops on return to Stockport after service in Iraq and Afghanistan. [147260]

Derek Twigg: Our mental health services are configured to provide community-based mental health care in line with national best practice, providing assessment and treatment in line with the guidelines and standards set by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence and the National Service Frameworks. We do this primarily through our 15 military Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH) (plus satellite centres overseas), which provide out-patient mental healthcare. The geographical location of care is dependent on many factors, including the clinical need and where the service man or women is currently serving. The geographically closest DCMH to Stockport is situated at Donnington near Telford.

In-patient care, when necessary, is provided in psychiatric units belonging to the Priory Group, through a central contract with MOD. The geographically closest Priory Group Facility used by the MOD is the Priory hospital, Altrincham.

Any mobilised servicemen or women injured on operational deployment is entitled to, and will receive the same level of medical treatment and support, irrespective of whether they are members of the regular or reserve forces.

Once demobilised it is a long established tradition that reserve forces' medical welfare becomes the responsibility of their own local NHS primary care trust and the majority of veterans' physical and mental health needs are met by these provisions. However, the MOD recognises that it has an expertise to offer in certain specific circumstances, and in November 2006 launched the Reserves Mental Health programme.

The RMHP is open to any current or former member of the UK Volunteer and Regular Reserves who has been demobilised since 1 January 2003 following an overseas operational deployment as a reservist, and who believes that the deployment may have adversely affected their mental health. Under the RMHP, we liaise with the individual's GP and offer a mental health assessment at the Reserves Training and Mobilisation Centre in Chilwell, Nottinghamshire. If diagnosed to have an operational-related mental health condition, we then offer out-patient treatment at one of the DCMHs (e.g. Donnington). If more acute cases present, the Defence Medical Services will assist in obtaining access to NHS in-patient treatment.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with (a) NATO, (b) European Union and (c) UN colleagues on the ending of offensive Sudanese flights over Darfur. [147434]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 4 July 2007]: The Government are giving consideration to a number of measures to the monitoring of air activity over Darfur. We need to assess the logistical challenges of implementing any measures and their impact on the humanitarian effort. We are working with partners in the UN Security Council to press both the African Union and the UN Panel of Experts to notify the UN Sanctions Committee of any instances of offensive military flights in Darfur. The Defence Ministers have not held formal discussions with NATO, EU or UN colleagues on this issue.

Territorial Army: Recruitment

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the level of recruiting has been to the Territorial Army for other ranks for the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many of these recruits passed their phase 1 and 2. [146765]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In 2006-07, there were 6,400 enlistments to the Territorial Army ranks. Ex-regular soldiers and TA who rejoin are exempt from phase 1 training due to their previous experience, and some specialists e.g. medics undertake separate training in support of their civilian professional qualifications. Moreover, some personnel take more than 12 months to complete their training. There is, therefore, no direct correlation between enlistments and phase 1/phase 2 passes in any given period.

In 2006-07, 1,279 non-infantry TA personnel completed phase 1 training and 567 infantry personnel completed their combined phase 1/phase 2 training. Output figures for non-infantry phase 2 training are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Olympic Games: Greater London

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the Cabinet Office's responsibilities with regard to the 2012 Olympics. [147844]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the written statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 28 June 2007, Official Report, column 39WS.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Shows: Minsterley

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to visit the Minsterley Show in 2007. [147669]

Jonathan Shaw: Decisions have not yet been taken on which shows Ministers will attend.

Energy: Conservation

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the contribution of energy supply companies to energy efficiency. [147651]

Mr. Woolas: Energy suppliers play a key role in delivering energy efficiency to household consumers through the Government's Energy Efficiency Commitment (EEC) scheme, which requires them to meet targets for promoting improvements in household energy efficiency. Of the 4.6 million tonnes of carbon (MtC) savings identified in the 2006 Climate Change Programme for the household sector, suppliers will be responsible for 1.9 MtC.

The first phase of the EEC ran from 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2005, delivering 0.3 MtC annually by 2010. The second phase of the EEC runs from 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2008 and is expected to save 0.5 MtC annually by 2010. We are currently consulting on the third phase, now known as the Carbon Emissions Reductions Target (CERT), which is expected to deliver a further 1.1 MtC annually by 2010.

The 2007 Energy White Paper reaffirms the Government's commitment to maintain some form of obligation on household energy suppliers until at least 2020, with an ambition level at least equal to that under the forthcoming CERT. This will save around 3-4 MtC over the decade from 2011.

Pesticides: Health Hazards

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the likelihood of the acute reference dose for pesticides being exceeded by an individual consumer. [146792]

Mr. Woolas: The Pesticide Residues Committee conducts annual programmes to monitor pesticide residues in food and publishes consumer risk assessments for residues which are found to exceed the acute reference dose. They are available at http://www.pesticides.gov.uk/prc_home.asp

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to advise consumers of the importance of washing or peeling fruit to reduce herbicide and pesticide ingestion; what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on the health risks of pesticide ingestion; and if he will make a statement. [146793]

Mr. Woolas: The Advisory Committee on Pesticides advises Ministers on matters relating to pesticides. The Committee has concluded that washing or peeling fruit is not required as a protection against pesticide residues. When deciding whether pesticides should be approved for use in the UK, the Committee makes no assumption that fruit will be washed or peeled. Moreover, monitoring of fruit and vegetables (both UK-produced and imported) indicates that the pesticide residues which occur in these foods are highly unlikely to pose a risk to human health.

Pesticides: Residues

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the maximum residue level for commonly used pesticides was last reviewed. [146571]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Maximum residue levels (MRLs) for pesticide active substances are set on a wide range of crops under a European Community programme. The most recent changes were implemented into national law by the Pesticides (Maximum Residue Levels in Crops, Food and Feeding Stuffs) (England and Wales) (Amendment) Regulations 2007. Separate but similar legislation was implemented in Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account is taken of individual fruits having levels high enough to exceed the acute reference dose when determining the safe maximum residue levels for pesticides. [146572]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The variability of residues in individual pieces of fruit differs between commodities and pesticides. It is taken into account when setting maximum residue levels (MRLs) for each pesticide active substance either by using data specific to that active substance in each commodity or, where no specific data are available, by using internationally agreed default values.

MRLs may be amended in light of new or revised acute reference doses, to ensure that expected consumer intakes of residues remain within toxicologically acceptable levels.

Rural Development Programme

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the advice and guidance given by his Department to regional development agencies on axes 1 and 3 of the Rural Development Programme. [147348]

Jonathan Shaw: Regional plans for the Rural Development Programme for England 2007-13 have been developed by the regional development agencies (RDAs), Natural England and the Forestry Commission, in consultation with stakeholders and partners. In devising their plans, regions were asked to reflect the national priorities for the programme, on which we consulted early last year.

The regional plans informed the content of the draft programme document which has been submitted to the EU Commission for approval. This document sets out priorities for action, details of which rural development regulation measures we plan to use, as well as how we plan to use them. It therefore sets out the broad framework of guidance within which RDAs will have devolved responsibility to deliver axes 1 and 3 in line with the regional plans. The draft programme document is available on our website.

The programme document might, in due course, have to be supplemented by further guidance to aid consistent interpretation of the EU rules.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Detainees

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he plans to make to the United States on Guantanamo Bay. [147540]

Dr. Howells: The Government have long held that the circumstances in which detainees are held indefinitely at Guantanamo Bay are unacceptable and that Guantanamo Bay should be closed. The US Government are fully aware of our position. We will continue to discuss detainee-related issues with the US Government and will raise humanitarian and human rights concerns about detentions at Guantanamo Bay where necessary.

Burma: Armed Forces

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the use that the Army and Air Force in Burma will make of military material and training recently provided by India; [147686]

(2) what plans he has to make representations to the government of India on its proposed training of Burma Army personnel in India. [147687]

Meg Munn: We have made no such detailed assessment, but we raise Burma with the Indian authorities as part of our regular dialogue with the Indians on regional security and they are aware of our concern. We ask the Indian authorities to use their influence with the Government of Burma to encourage them to respect human rights and to restore democratic rule. We are concerned that the Government of Burma continues to spend scarce resources on weaponry for its 400,000-strong army, while expenditure on health and education is at minimal levels.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147599]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office paid Common Purpose £3,750 in financial year 2003-04 to enable a senior official to participate in a Common Purpose Matrix Leadership programme.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146336]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) annual expenditure on external consultants is published in the Department's annual reports, copies of which are in the Library of the House. The two most recent annual reports also contain details of expenditure on the top five consultancy suppliers. The FCO spent in excess of £10 million over the seven financial years from April 2000 to March 2007 with each of the following consultancy companies:

Fujitsu Consulting
Logica
Parity Resources
PA Consulting
Hewlett Packard
3M UK
Cap Gemini Ernst and Young

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials in her Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146096]

Mr. Jim Murphy: There are approximately 95 officials working on EU matters in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Europe Directorate in London. In addition, a number of officials, including from other Government Departments, work on EU matters in the United Kingdom Permanent Representative to the EU and elsewhere in the overseas network. Providing a detailed breakdown as requested by the hon. Member would incur disproportionate cost. The FCO also has one official seconded to the European Commission and one in the Council Secretariat.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146987]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) paid the following bonuses to staff in 2006 and 2005:

(Pay Round)	Number of recipients	Annual performance related bonus awards	Devolved bonus scheme	Total bonus payments
2006	6,076	6,204,363	348,925	6,553,288
2005	5,097	5,589,900	399,200	5,989,100

The processes for determining annual pay and bonus awards for FCO staff follow a timetable which reaches a conclusion in late July. We will not therefore be in a position to supply figures for annual bonuses paid during the 2007 pay round until August. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as this information is available and will place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

The FCO uses non-consolidated, non-pensionable, performance-related bonuses to encourage high performance. Since 2002, we have paid annual bonuses to staff in the delegated grades based on appraisal evidence of annual performance. The highest bonus for staff in these grades will be £1,850 in 2007. Managers may also nominate staff in the delegated grades to receive small awards, devolved bonuses, for particular exceptional achievements in year.

Bonus arrangements for staff in the senior management structure (SMS) have followed a framework set for Whitehall Departments by the Cabinet Office since 2004. We use SMS bonuses to reward excellent performance during the year. They are based on a judgment by pay committees of how well an individual has performed relative to their peers. Those who have delivered the best results, and shown real leadership in doing so, receive the biggest bonuses. Those who have delivered least receive nothing. In accordance with the Cabinet Office guidelines, Departments may spend a sum equivalent to 7.6 per cent. of their SMS pay budget on non-consolidated bonuses for SMS staff in 2007.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147330]

Mr. Jim Murphy: 563 members of staff (9 per cent.) in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension entitlements they have accumulated to date together with a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service up to the scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension. We also provide information about these options to new recruits and to other staff who seek advice.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146919]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Under the Department's performance improvement procedures, unacceptable performance has to be addressed as soon as it occurs rather than waiting for the appraisal cycle to be completed. In the period 2006-07, 22 staff were subject to these procedures. Annual report markings, which only record cases of poor performance current at the end of the appraisal year, for the period 2006-07 are not yet available.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147326]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has 2,620 staff based in our two Whitehall buildings and 1,200 staff at Hanslope Park, Buckinghamshire. The majority of our London staff commute by public transport, whereas the majority of those at Hanslope Park come by private car, because public transport is not available. The travel plan we are introducing for Hanslope Park encourages car sharing. About 200 staff cycle to the London buildings and 20 to Hanslope Park.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147056]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The numbers of Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff taking two, three, four and five or more periods of recorded sick absence of less than five days during the 12 months to 31 May 2007 are set out in the following table.

	2 periods	3 periods	4 periods	5+ periods
Number of staff	315	132	76	108

We have recently revised our sickness absence policy in order to tighten the procedures for handling short-term sickness absences. Subject to agreement from our trades unions, we plan to implement the new policy from September.

Ethiopia: Treason

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made by the Government on the progress of the treason trials in Ethiopia; and if he will make a statement. [148182]

Meg Munn: We continue to make representations to the Government of Ethiopia to ensure that the trial of opposition political leaders, civil society representatives and journalists is swift, transparent and fair, and that their individual human rights are respected.

Our Ambassador in Addis Ababa has raised this with Prime Minister Meles Zenawi on several occasions, most recently on 28 June.

On 11 June, judges in the trial ruled that those individuals who chose not to defend themselves were all guilty of one or more charges brought against them by the prosecution. Sentencing is scheduled for 9 July. Cases of those who have chosen to defend themselves started on 18 June.

We continue to monitor the ongoing trial and urge the government and all political parties in Ethiopia to commit themselves to resolving their differences through dialogue.

European Constitution Treaty

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Ministers took part in discussions of the Amending Treaty agreed at the June European Council in the two months prior to the agreement. [146188]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friends the former Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair), the former Foreign Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) and the former Minister for Europe now the Secretary to the Treasury, my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon) had discussions with EU partners on the subject of EU institutional reform in the period leading up to the June European Council.

Within Government, the Joint Ministerial Committee (Europe) met on 5 June to discuss the June European Council.

Group of Eight: Africa

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions Ministers in his Department held with African leaders during the recent G8 meeting in Germany. [147552]

Meg Munn: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers did not attend the G8 summit in Heiligendamm on 6-8 June. In an outreach session involving G8 members and African countries, my right hon. Friend the former Prime Minister (Mr Tony Blair) held discussions with African Heads of State from Egypt, Algeria, Nigeria, Senegal, South Africa, Ethiopia, Ghana and also the Chairman of the Commission of the African Union. The leaders discussed a number of issues with specific reference to Africa, including peace and security, aid for trade, debt relief, good governance, investment, support for the healthcare sector and the effects of climate change in Africa. A summary of their discussions can be found in Chapter II of the Chair's Summary at:

http://www.g-8.de/Content/EN/Artikel/__g8-summit/2007-06-07-summit-documents.html.

Iraq: Weapons

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will consider further the merits of releasing into the public domain the draft of the September 2002 dossier on Iraq written by John Williams. [147785]

Dr. Howells: This issue is the subject of an ongoing appeal to the Information Tribunal following a recent decision by the Information Commissioner. However, as I recently made clear in the House on 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 296WH, the Government believe it is vital to provide "thinking space" for officials and others involved in drafting policy documents. They should not feel constrained in presenting their ideas because they fear these will be made public. This principle is specifically recognised in the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

Jamaica: Entry Clearances

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects Ms Vanessa Ann Marie Brown, date of birth 17 May 1979, of Jamaica to receive student entry clearance arising from her successful appeal in February (Appeal No. OA/36531/2006); what the reasons are for the delay; and what procedure is used to inform posts abroad when an appeal has been upheld. [147726]

Dr. Howells: To conform with the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998, the details of any ongoing visa application are always treated as confidential to the applicant and his/her authorised representatives.

A backlog of appeals cases at our High Commission in Kingston was identified in January; a programme was immediately put into place to reduce the backlog, with assistance from other visa posts. Significant progress has been made, however there may still be a delay between receipt of the appeal determination and the issue of the visa.

When an appeal is allowed, the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT) will forward the Tribunal's determination to the applicant, the applicant's representative and the Respondent (the Home Office). The AIT aims to do this within 12 working days of the hearing.

Palestinians: Politics and Government

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on governmental relations with Hamas if its policy towards Israel does not change; and if he will make a statement. [148189]

Dr. Howells: We have repeatedly made clear that we are ready to engage with Hamas if they follow the Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) principles: renunciation of violence; recognition of Israel; and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap. Hamas has a role to play in the peace process. As I told the House on 3 July 2007, Official Report, column 812

"we have never denied that Hamas should play a part, but it must be a constructive part. I would very much like it to play that role, which I believe the Palestinian people elected it to play. However, we cannot treat Hamas in the same way as other players in the region if it supports suicide bombers and if it plays a game of violence, and does not take a peaceful approach to the problem. There is no question but that Hamas was the democratic expression of the majority of the Palestinian people in the elections-that is not disputed—we cannot deal with a Government with elected representatives who advocate terrorism as a way of achieving some kind of political settlement in such a sensitive area".

Poland

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to visit Poland. [147673]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's overseas engagements are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm. Because of the unpredictable nature of world events, final decisions on overseas visits are often not possible until very shortly before the day of travel.

Robert Tweyambe

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the (a) health and (b) ability to access medical treatment of the detained Uganda Forum for Democratic Change supporter Robert Tweyambe; and if he will make a statement. [147538]

Meg Munn: We have not received any specific reports on the health of Mr Robert Tweyambe, or his ability to access medical treatment.

However, we continue to raise our concerns about the detention of the Peoples' Redemption Army suspects with the Government of Uganda. Most recently our High Commissioner in Kampala raised this with President Museveni on 10 May.

We understand that Mr Tweyambe is due to appear before Mbarara High Court on 9 July to hear the outcome of his bail application on murder charges. We will continue to make further representations to the Government of Uganda calling for court proceedings to be expedited in a fair and just manner.

Uganda: Oppression

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the deaths in Makindye military barracks of three Forum for Democratic Change members, Denis Nabilema, Moses Dramani and David Oboma; and if he will make a statement. [147539]

Meg Munn: We are aware of reports in Uganda, including by the media, and the claims by the leader of the Forum for Democratic Change, Dr Kizza Besigye, that three of his party's supporters died in detention; and the comment by the Ugandan People's Defence Force spokesman confirming that David Oboma died recently at Mbuya Military hospital. However, we have not yet received information to confirm this. We will seek further clarification from the Government of Uganda and I shall write to the hon. Member once we have received further information. I will also place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Bishop Auckland Hospital

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the future of the accident and emergency unit at Bishop Auckland General Hospital. [147020]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 2 July 2007]: It is a matter for the local national health service to ensure that there is appropriate provision of urgent and emergency care services to meet the needs of local people. In planning local provision of urgent and emergency care services, health communities are expected to observe the general principle that all urgent and emergency care should be delivered as close to home as is compatible with clinical safety. There is a requirement for trusts to involve and consult the public on the planning for provision of health services.

Bishop Auckland has a consultant led accident and emergency department and there are currently no plans to change this provision.

Colorectal Cancer

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were diagnosed with cancer of the bowel in each year since 2001, broken down by acute trust; and if he will make a statement. [147438]

Ann Keen [holding answer 4 July 2007]: The information requested by acute trust is not held centrally. Figures of the number of newly diagnosed cases of colorectal cancer for England, broken down by Government Office of the Region, are published in 'Cancer Registration Statistics Series MB1', which can be found at:

Additionally, the number of colorectal cancer cases broken down by strategic health authority for the years 1993 to 2003 provided by the Office for National Statistics are available on the National Centre for Health Outcomes Development website at:

www.nchod.nhs.uk/.

Health Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) patient and public interest groups and (b) professional healthcare regulators have met (i) Ministers and (ii) officials from his Department to discuss the White Paper "Trust, Assurance and Safety"; and if he will publish written representations made. [146197]

Mr. Bradshaw: There has been extensive consultation leading up to the publication of the White Paper 'Trust, Assurance and Safety'. The response to the consultation was published in February.

Further involvement in the implementation of the White Paper will be through the working groups which we announced at the stakeholder conference for the professional regulation reform implementation on 5 June. The conference was attended by over 200 stakeholders and my noble Friend the Minister of State for Health (Lord Hunt) and officials from the Department were able to discuss aspects of the White Paper with most of them during the day. We will be publishing the terms of reference and membership of the working groups shortly.

Health Services: Finance

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department expects to allocate to the Council for Healthcare Regulatory Excellence (a) for communication purposes and (b) to promote public engagement in their four country business plan, with particular reference to his Department's priority work themes arising from the White Paper Trust, Assurance and Safety. [146202]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department of Health and the Council of Healthcare Regulatory Excellence (CHRE) have not made any final decisions on the allocation to CHRE, in relation to the additional work set out in the White Paper 'Trust, Assurance and Safety'. CHRE's Business Plan will be agreed soon.

Health Services: Private Sector

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budgetary allocation is for expenditure by the Government on healthcare from private sector providers in 2007-08. [146191]

Mr. Bradshaw: National health service spend on private healthcare providers will be determined by the choices made by patients and those who commission services locally on their behalf.

As financial plans for 2007-08 are still subject to final validation and sign-off, it is not yet possible to provide a robust estimate for this category of expenditure in 2007-08.

Patient Choice Schemes

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the rules governing the choose and book system allow for the names of individual clinicians within a particular service and their indicative waiting times to be passed on to GPs and their patients. [146963]

Mr. Bradshaw: Yes.

United Health Group

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2199W, on United Health Group, in which salary band Mr Channing Wheeler's salary falls; whether his employment contract allows for performance bonuses; and what period the contract covers. [147830]

Dawn Primarolo: The post of director general for the commercial directorate falls within Senior Civil Service (SCS) payband 3, and performance bonuses will be payable in line with the Department's SCS pay strategy. The contract is a fixed term for three years.

Written Questions

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 1 May to the Minister of State about Nexavar. [146709]

Ann Keen [holding answer 29 June 2007]: A reply was sent on 25 June 2007.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders imposed at magistrates' courts in each of the last three years were overturned on appeal. [146972]

Mr. Coaker: The data are not available yet but will be published shortly, once their quality has been assured.

Children: Abuse

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what discussions she has had with those hosting social networking sites on adopting mechanisms to prevent child abuse; [147381]

(2) what discussions she has had with those hosting social networking sites on child protection issues. [147383]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are aware of the wider concerns that social networking websites have raised. Although they enable young people to share their interests with other young people, clearly there is a potential for misuse.

Some of the major social networking services have been invited to join the Home Secretary's taskforce for child protection on the internet. In addition, a sub-group of the taskforce, which includes representatives from social network providers, law enforcement and children's charities, has been set up to look at the safety issues for children caused by the development and growth of social networking sites and develop good practice guidelines.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the likely impact of serious crime prevention orders proposed in the Serious Crime Bill, if enacted, on the posting of child abuse images on social networking sites. [147384]

Mr. Coaker: We believe that serious crime prevention orders will make a significant impact in the fight against all types of serious crime. They will allow law enforcement to apply for orders which will put in place reasonable and proportionate conditions upon those who have been involved in serious crime, in order to prevent any future involvement.

We have ensured that contained within the list of serious crimes set out in schedule 1 is, among other similar offences, the offence under section 50 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (arranging or facilitating child prostitution or pornography). This will mean that it will be open to the applicant authorities to seek an order to prevent such criminal activity where an order would be effective and appropriate. This will not, of course, alter in any way our commitment to investigate and prosecute those who have already been involved in this criminal activity. These orders will be a means of preventing future harm before it takes place.

Homicide: Religion

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were convicted of so-called honour killings in each of the last 10 years, broken down by nationality. [147445]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests and (b) convictions for so-called honour killings there were in each of the last 10 years. [147446]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what strategy her Department has in place to tackle so-called honour killings; and how long it has been in existence. [147447]

Mr. Coaker: The National Delivery Plan for Domestic Violence, which was issued in 2005, includes workstreams to tackle honour based violence, including homicide. In addition, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) national working group on honour based violence will shortly publish for consultation its proposals for a national action plan to respond to honour based violence.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Females

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans the Government have to increase the number of disadvantaged young women entering apprenticeships. [146389]

Mr. Lammy: We want to expand the apprenticeships programme so that in 2013 any suitably qualified young person will be entitled to an apprenticeship place. We are therefore working with partners including the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), sector bodies and employers to address the needs of learners who are typically under-represented in apprenticeships, either generally or in particular occupational sectors and whether by gender, ethnicity or disability. We aim to attract apprentices from a wide range of backgrounds through targeted marketing activity, by creating more flexible apprenticeship opportunities and by improving careers advice and guidance, including by offering opportunities for non-stereotypical "tasters" from the age of 14.

Foundation Degrees: Public Sector

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many and what proportion of those qualifying with foundation degrees were employed by local authorities in each of the last five years for which figures are available, broken down by local authority area; [146409]

(2) how many and what percentage of students who completed foundation degrees went on to employment in (a) schools, (b) hospitals, (c) the police or armed forces and (d) the public sector in the last five years for which figures are available. [146410]

Bill Rammell: The available information on employment of graduates is taken from the Destination of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey which is carried out annually by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA). The DLHE survey records the activity of the student six months after qualifying.

The latest available figures are given in the table and show the full list of occupations for those students who obtained employment. The destinations data do not allow identification of qualifiers employed in individual local authorities. Figures for 2005-06 will be available in mid-July.

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) low-participation neighbourhoods and (b) socioeconomic classes 4-7 (i) applied and (ii) were accepted to (A) Oxbridge, (B) Russell Group and (C) other universities for (1) physics, (2) chemistry, (3) biochemistry, (4) psychology, (5) sports science, (6) biological sciences excluding biochemistry and (7) all other science subjects in each of the last five years to which figures are available. [146408]

Bill Rammell: The available information is shown in the tables. The figures are taken from data collected by the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) which are limited to students who apply to full-time undergraduate courses via the UCAS application system. The figures do not therefore cover part-time students, nor those full-time students who apply directly to higher education institutions.

Figures for Oxford and Cambridge Universities are not available because, for confidentiality reasons, UCAS do not release combinations of variables through which the data of individual institutions, or small groups of institutions, might be identifiable, beyond those already in the public domain.

UCAS do not hold information on students from low-participation neighbourhoods.

Intellectual Property: India

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made on the UK/India intellectual property rights programme since its signing in 2004. [147639]

Ian Pearson: The Joint Statement of Intent was signed in June 2006. Under the JETCO (Joint Economic Trade Committee) agreement between India and the UK, we are currently developing a bilateral action plan with the Indian IPR authorities in order to put in place a technical assistance programme for Indian government officials dealing with IP.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to discourage farmers in Afghanistan from growing opium for use in illegal drugs. [147303]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government support the Afghan National Drug Control Strategy (NDCS) whose goal is to secure a sustainable decrease in cultivation, production, trafficking and consumption of illicit drugs, with a view to complete and sustainable elimination. The NDCS sets out four national priorities: disrupting the drugs trade by targeting traffickers and their backers; reducing the demand for illicit drugs and treatment of problem drug users; developing state institutions at the central and provincial level vital to the delivery of the overall counter-narcotics strategy; and strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods that free farmers and other rural workers from dependence on poppy cultivation.

DFID has lead responsibility within HMG for delivering the fourth NDCS priority, providing £77 million from 2005-07 to support the development of legal rural livelihoods. The majority of these resources have been channelled through the Government of Afghanistan's own National Priority Programmes. This helps to ensure that other measures designed to discourage poppy growing are effective.

There is no one single crop which will replace poppy, and therefore DFID has provided £3 million to support research into a range of alternatives including high value crops such as mint and saffron. Traditional alternatives include crops such as wheat and onions.

But alternatives to poppy come not only in the form of different crops. They can often be non-farm activities such as clothes-making and shopkeeping. The Government of Afghanistan's Microfinance Investment Support Facility of Afghanistan (MISFA) have provided over £133 million worth of small loans to 364,786 Afghan families to help them invest in their own licit businesses. MISFA operates in 23 provinces, including Helmand. DFID has provided £15 million to MISFA since March 2004. Nearly 75 per cent. of those receiving loans are women.

DFID also provided £18 million in 2005-06 to the Government of Afghanistan's National Rural Access Programme (NRAP), which has so far built or repaired over 9,000 km of roads—essential for rural farmers to access markets. So far the programme has generated over 13 million days of labour for Afghans. NRAP operates in all 34 provinces.

DFID has also provided £42.6 million in total for the National Solidarity Programme (NSP) and is providing £10.6 million to roll out NSP in Helmand province (2006-09). NSP is helping elected Community Development Councils (CDCs), representing over 17,000 communities across Afghanistan, identify development priorities in their areas and then receive grants to undertake the work. This broader social development can help instil essential trust in the Government of Afghanistan among poppy farmers. NSP has funded over 28,000 projects in agriculture, education, health, irrigation, power supply, transport, and water supply. NSP currently operates in all 34 provinces.

DFID is making a contribution of £22.7 million over three years (as part of an overall UK Government contribution of £30 million) to the Government of Afghanistan's Counter Narcotics Trust Fund. The fund is designed to bring funding for counter narcotics into the national budget, and give Afghans greater responsibility for managing the drugs problem.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147605]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has provided the following funding to Common Purpose in each of the last 5 years.

2002	35,792
2003	117,644
2004	27,897
2006	0

This funding was provided through our Civil Society Challenge Fund in support of a three-year project in South Africa which ended in 2004.

This project provided training programmes designed to build the capacity of leaders from all sectors to undertake civic leadership and management roles more effectively.

An independent evaluation conducted in February 2005 found that the project met all its objectives.

Developing Countries

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what criteria are used to determine whether a country is a heavily indebted poor country. [146684]

Mr. Thomas: To be eligible for debt relief under the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) initiative, as defined by the international system, a country must:

have unsustainable debts (debt-to-export levels above 150 per cent. or debt-to-government revenues above 250 per cent.) after the application of traditional debt relief measures, such as those offered by the Paris Club group of government creditors;

only be eligible for assistance on highly concessional terms from the International Development Association (IDA) at the World Bank, and the International Monetary Fund's (IMF) Poverty Reduction and Growth Facility; establish a track record of reform and implement a Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper, using the savings from debt relief to reduce poverty; and have cleared any outstanding arrears to the International Financial Institutions.

Each heavily indebted poor country has to decide whether or not to seek debt cancellation under the HIPC initiative. Those that complete the HIPC process are granted complete cancellation of their debts to the IMF, IDA and African Development Fund under HIPC and the Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative.

Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contact his Department has had with Applied Scholastics since 1997. [147456]

Mr. Thomas: DFID staff have not had any direct contact with Applied Scholastics in the course of our support to education in developing countries since 1997.

Gambia: Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much money from the public purse has been provided to the Gambian Government for education programmes (a) by the Government directly and (b) through other institutions in each year since 1997. [146939]

Mr. Thomas: DFID did not provide any aid directly to the Gambian Government for education over the period 1997-98 to 2006-07. Most aid for the education sector in Gambia is delivered in the form of technical co-operation.

UK funding to multilateral institutions cannot be directly attributed to any country or sector.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the Gambian education system's adoption of the Applied Scholastics programme. [147365]

Mr. Thomas: We have not undertaken such an assessment in the absence of a Gambian Government request for DFID to consider. We understand that the current Department of Education is much less enthusiastic about developing this approach throughout the Gambia than its predecessors.

Namibia: EU Aid

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the European Commission over EU aid to Namibia. [146999]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has made no representations to the European Commission regarding EU aid to Namibia.

Nepal

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when the most recent visit took place by a Minister in his Department to Nepal; and what the outcomes were of the visit. [147134]

Mr. Malik: My hon. Friend the Member for Harrow, West (Mr. Thomas) Under-Secretary of State for International Development visited Nepal from 2 to 4 April 2007, a day after the formation of the eight-party interim government in Nepal. During the visit he met politicians from all parties, including the Maoists, representatives from excluded groups and visited DFID-funded programmes. He also had discussions with the UN Mission in Nepal.

The visit focused on the need for credible, free and fair elections, the importance of a well targeted peace dividend and improved government basic service delivery in the post conflict environment and the need for an inclusive political process. My hon. Friend also announced significant increases in UK development support including £13 million for the government-managed Peace Trust Fund and £23.5 million in multilateral debt relief for the period up to 2015.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid was provided to Nepal in each of the last five years, broken down by sector; and if he will make a statement. [147135]

Mr. Malik: The total DFID bilateral expenditure to Nepal in each of the last five financial years, broken down by sector, is given in table 1 as follows:

Table 1: total DFID bilateral aid to Nepal by broad sector

UK funding to multilateral institutions cannot be directly attributed to any country or broken down by sector. However, table 2 contains estimates of the UK's imputed shares of multilateral aid to Nepal, based on the UK's total funding to multilateral institutions and the percentage share of aid from the multilateral pool that went to Nepal. These estimates are only available on a calendar year basis.

1. Data for 2006 are not yet available.

The list of multilateral organisations used in the production of these data is not exhaustive; the multilateral analysed are those that provide the Development Assistance Committee with detailed information about their distribution of funds to Nepal and to whom the UK provided funds over the period.

Nepal: International Assistance

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what national programmes his Department funds in health and education which reach Jiling, Nuwakot in Nepal. [147271]

Mr. Malik: DFID is helping to fund the Nepal Health Sector Programme (NHSP). Under this programme the communities of Jiling village have received preventive health service and basic curative care from an Auxiliary Health Worker and a Maternal and Child Health Worker delivered through a sub health post. Mothers in Jiling will have benefited from a maternal grants scheme which provides financial incentives for pregnant women to use skilled birth attendants.

Under the DFID funded Education for All (EFA) programme, 11 schools are receiving funding support in the Nuwakot district. Of the 11 schools, one is a higher secondary school, three are lower secondary schools and seven are primary schools.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department is providing to people living in Jiling village in Nuwakot district in Nepal. [147272]

Mr. Malik: DFID funded support to infrastructure, health services and education have brought benefits to Jiling village in Nuwakot district.

DFID is funding the work of Helvetas, a Swiss NGO working in Nepal. Under this programme, two short span trail bridges have been constructed which have improved access to health and education services as well as to vegetable and agricultural markets based at the District Headquarters. Approximately 850 households have benefited from this construction programme

DFID is helping to fund the Nepal Health Sector Programme (NHSP). Mothers in Jiling will have benefited from a maternal grants scheme which provides financial incentives for pregnant women to use skilled birth attendants. DFID have provided finance for this scheme through support for a National Safer Motherhood programme.

Similarly, under the DFID funded Education for All (EFA) programme, eleven schools are receiving funding support in the Nuwakot district. Of the eleven schools, one is a higher secondary school, three are lower secondary schools and seven are primary schools.

Pakistan: Storms

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the situation caused by the cyclone in the Balochistan province of Pakistan; and what assistance his Department is making available to the people affected. [147723]

Mr. Malik: DFID has been closely watching the developing humanitarian situation in south and west Pakistan as a result of the recent cyclone and heavy monsoon rains. These have had a significant impact on parts of Sindh, Balochistan, North West Frontier Province and the Federally Administered Tribal Areas.

A grant of up to £1 million has been approved for immediate support. A team of two DFID humanitarian specialists has now been deployed into Pakistan to assess the situation and potential DFID support. A UN specialist team is also deploying, two of whose five team members are being supported by DFID.

We will keep the situation under very close review, as further heavy rains are expected.

Sierra Leone: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on illegal uses of aid funds in Sierra Leone. [146855]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development has received no representations on illegal uses of aid funds in Sierra Leone.

Somalia: Asylum

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his estimate is of the number of Somalian refugees living in (a) Ethiopia and (b) Kenya; and what assistance is being provided to these countries to assist with Somalian refugees. [146861]

Mr. Thomas: The United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) estimates that there are 19,572 Somali refugees residing in Ethiopia and 182,000 in Kenya.

DFID has provided funding to UNHCR, the United Nations agency responsible for protecting and supporting refugees. In 2006 the UK was the seventh largest donor to UNHCR providing $51.99 million. Further UK support is given through the UN Central Emergency Revolving Fund (CERF), which contributed $5.6 million and $2.1 million to UNHCR for refugee support in Kenya and Ethiopia respectively.

In November 2006 DFID Kenya provided £1.2 million to UNHCR for its refugee programme in North Eastern Kenya. We have also recently approved a grant of £850,000 to Action Against Hunger, an NGO providing emergency feeding for malnourished children including those in refugee camps. We have also approved £650,000 to the MENTOR Initiative for malaria control in north eastern Kenya including indoor residual spraying in the refugee camps.

In Ethiopia DFID is supporting the Humanitarian Response Fund managed by the United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs. This fund, to which DFID has contributed £5 million in 2006, can be used to assist refugees if this is deemed a humanitarian priority.

JUSTICE

Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects the database under development by the Pre-Release Section to be operational. [147784]

Mr. Hanson: A new database for the Public Protection Unit in the National Offender Management Service in the Ministry of Justice is currently in development. For the Pre-Release Section in that unit, the database will allow, among other things, information to be recorded accurately relating to the tariff, Parole Board reviews and release of indeterminate sentence prisoners. There will need to be substantial data migration and testing of the new database, and this means that it is not likely to be operational until at least the end of the year.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147592]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice was created on 9 May 2007. In the former DCA, the decision to fund Common Purpose was made at a regional level from discretionary budgets. Information on any allocation made was not held centrally. Information is not currently available on expenditure on Common Purpose for those who joined the new Ministry from the Home Office.

High Court: Ceremonies

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the purpose was of the ceremony he attended at the High Court on 4 July; what undertakings he gave; what oaths he swore; and if he will make a statement. [147831]

Mr. Straw: On 4 July I attended a formal ceremony of the public acclamation of my appointment to the office of Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain at the Royal Courts of Justice in London. At that ceremony I took the Oath of Allegiance, the Official Oath of Office as required by the Promissory Oaths Act 1868 ("the 1868 Act") and the new Oath required by section 17 of the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 ("the CRA 2005") in open Court in the presence of the Lord Chief Justice of England and Wales and the senior judiciary. The Oaths were:

Oath of Allegiance:

I John Whitaker Straw do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second, her heirs and successors, according to law.

Official Oath:

I John Whitaker Straw do swear that I will well and truly serve Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second in the Office of Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain.

The new Oath:

I John Whitaker Straw, do swear that in the Office of Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain I will respect the rule of law, defend the independence of the judiciary and discharge my duty to ensure provision of resources for the efficient and effective support of the courts for which I am responsible. So help me God.

Prior to the coming into force of the CRA 2005 the Oaths taken, were those prescribed in Part 1 of the 1868 Act. The Oath of Allegiance and Official Oath are still taken in accordance with sections 2, 3 and 5 of the 1868 Act. However the requirement that the Lord Chancellor take the Judicial Oath in the form prescribed by section 6 and the second part of the Schedule to the 1868 Act was obviated by section 17 and Schedule 17 of the CRA 2005 which prescribed a new Oath as set out earlier in this answer. The long-standing format of the ceremonial was therefore amended to take account of the legislative changes which reflect the fact that the holder of the office of Lord Chancellor is no longer head of the judiciary and safeguards the interests of the judiciary as set out in the new Oath.

Legal Aid Scheme: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how legal aid funding was spent across Wales through the Crown courts in each of the last seven years, broken down by (a) the lowest possible geographical areas for which figures are available, (b) the type of case and (c) the nature of the work for which the legal aid was paid; and if he will make a statement. [147362]

Maria Eagle: The information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of legal cases in Wales were in receipt of legal aid in each of the last seven years, broken down (a) to the lowest possible geographical areas for which figures are available, (b) the type of case and (c) the nature of the work for which legal aid was paid; and if he will make a statement. [147363]

Maria Eagle: The information is not available.

Police Custody: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much Welsh police forces have spent on housing prisoners under Operation Safeguard in each month since it began; and if he will make a statement. [147386]

Mr. Hanson: Police forces participating in Operation Safeguard charge NOMS for the cost of making police cells available to accommodate prisoners. To date, just over £400,000 has been invoiced and paid to police forces in Wales for housing prisoners since October 2006. As different police forces may submit monthly, bi-monthly or consolidated invoices in arrears that cover more than one month, the cost of Operation Safeguard in each month is not centrally held.

Prison Accommodation

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice why different targets have been set for prisons run in the (a) public and (b) private sectors for the percentage of prisoners held in accommodation units intended for fewer prisoners. [147356]

Mr. Hanson: The difference in these targets reflects a number of differences between publicly and privately operated prisons. Prisons operated by the private sector are generally of newer design and construction and have larger cells that can accommodate extra beds: many older public sector prisons have smaller cells that cannot accommodate extra beds. Some privately operated prisons were designed with scope to increase regime facilities in case of overcrowding while many public sector prisons have limited capacity to increase regime services. The private sector also has, proportionately, more local prisons, which have traditionally been more overcrowded than other types of prison.

Prison Service: Prison Officers' Association

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost to the public purse has been of the recent case brought by the Prison Service against the Prison Officers Association; what response he has made to the judgment; and what steps he has taken to improve the relationship between the Service and the Association. [147270]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service's legal costs in the contempt of court case brought by the Service against the Prison Officers Association (POA) in May were estimated by Treasury solicitors to be about £16,000. Administrative and staffing costs within the Service are not able to be broken down to the level of detail required.

Following the settlement of this case on 8 May 2007, the Service received notice from the POA of their withdrawal from the Joint Industrial Relations Procedural Agreement. The Secretary of State met the POA on 6 June to discuss their withdrawal. I had a constructive meeting with the POA on 26 June to identify options for substantive talks to improve industrial relations.

Prisons: Psychology

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of living increase in 2007 will be for forensic psychologists (in training) in the prison service. [147818]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service has received a number of inquiries about the lack of a cost-of-living increase for psychology and other specialist grades in 2006. However, those staff who did not receive a cost-of-living increase could still have benefited from a progression-related pay increase of up to 3 per cent. Negotiations with the trade unions for the 2007 pay award are continuing.

Re-offenders

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps he is taking to ensure that information about a defendant's status as a persistent and prolific offender is disclosable to the court prior to sentencing. [146391]

Bridget Prentice: Guidance to the courts on handling Prolific and other Priority Offender (PPO) cases was issued by the Senior Presiding Judge in April 2005.

This sets out that it is inappropriate for any person to inform a court that a defendant is alleged to be a PPO and that such an allegation is not relevant to the sentence of the court.

A sentencing court will however be provided with full details of offending history, previous sentences, current circumstances and a risk assessment, together with the sentencing options available.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Leader of the House how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in her Office in each year between 1997 and 2006; and at what total cost. [146586]

Helen Goodman: Following the recent machinery of Government changes which saw the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons transfer from the Privy Council Office to the Cabinet Office, we are currently unable to provide a substantive answer to this question.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Flexible Working

20. Lynda Waltho: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the merits of encouraging employers to advertise posts as available for flexible working to help lone parents and carers back into the workplace. [147658]

Ms Harman: The benefits of advertising posts as available for flexible working are to give employers access to a bigger pool of talent. Jobcentre Plus are looking at various ways of improving services for carers, including the possibility of recording vacancies where flexible working is an option.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of levels of awareness of flexible working rights amongst eligible parents. [147661]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Third Work Life Balance employee survey 2006 found that 65 per cent. of parents with children under six are aware of the right to request flexible working.

This compares favourably with other new employment rights.

Local Authority Employment

21. Julie Morgan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the reasons for the under-representation of women on local authorities. [147659]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

The Government set up the Councillors Commission to, among other things, look at the underrepresentation of women in local government. It aims to report in November 2007 and will make recommendations to help address the imbalances.

At present women make up 29.3 per cent. of councillors in England. Only three per cent. Of them are from ethnic minorities. I am committed to improving these figures.

Ethnic Minorities

22. Jim Sheridan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government are taking to tackle inequalities affecting ethnic minority women in the workplace. [147660]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

As the EOC's investigation revealed Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Black Caribbean women often struggle to get jobs and progress within them. The Ethnic Minority Employment Task Force will take steps to enable ethnic minority women to address this problem. The establishment of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights will help address instances of multiple discrimination.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 5 June, Official Report, column 327-8W on alcoholic drinks: young people, when he expects the Police Service of Northern Ireland Community Safety Branch to publish its first set of statistics outlining the number of incidents of underage drinking in public places. [146805]

Paul Goggins: PSNI have advised that data are currently being collected about the number of young people who are detected drinking alcohol and dealt with through the Youth Diversion Scheme.

This statistical information will be available for issue in January 2008.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147597]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office paid £4,395 to Common Purpose during the 2006-07 financial year as part of the Department's Leadership Development Programme for senior managers. The outcome will be evaluated later this year to determine the extent to which the Common Purpose Programme met the identified development needs and contributed to meeting NIO business objectives.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146923]

Paul Goggins: Within the Northern Ireland Office six members of staff did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147053]

Paul Goggins: The details requested on sick leave in the last 12 months are shown in the following table:

	Number of staff
Five or more periods of sick leave	7
Four periods of sick leave	13
Three periods of sick leave	52
Two periods of sick leave	183

Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 17-18W, on sexual offences, what assessment he has made of the reasons for the 31 per cent. rate of successful prosecutions for rape. [146810]

Paul Goggins: Rape and serious sexual assaults are some of the most serious crimes that police have to investigate, especially with regard to the traumatic effect it has on the victims. Historically there have been a significant number of victims who initially report rapes to police but who later decide they do not wish to pursue the investigation through to court. These cases therefore form a major element of the number not proceeding to the Public Prosecution Service (PPS). In addition a significant proportion of those that do proceed to the PPS subsequently fail and go no further due to lack of evidence.

PSNI are seeking to improve performance in such investigations in a number of ways:

PSNI have recently contributed to a multi-agency sexual violence strategy. One important aspect of this work is the proposed establishment of a specialist sexual assault referral centre. The improvement in services and support to victims, together with the more effective ways of retaining forensic evidence, is expected to increase the number of prosecutions;

An internal review has recently been carried out into the way the child abuse and rape enquiry (CARE) teams carry out their investigations. As a result, the PSNI are planning later this year to restructure these investigations by establishing specialist teams whose sole task will be to investigate rape and other serious sexual assaults;

PSNI and the Public Prosecution Service have recently begun to analyse a number of rape investigations in order that they continue to develop models of best investigative practice. In particular, attention will focus upon case building and the significant number of cases that currently do not make the threshold for prosecution.

Smuggling: Fuels

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland were prosecuted for smuggling fuel into Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [146945]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

In the year 2004-05 there were four prosecutions for smuggling fuel into Northern Island resulting in two convictions. In 2005-06 there were five prosecutions, but no resulting convictions. In the same year there were two successful prosecutions for dealing with fuel on which duty had not been paid. In 2006-07 there were five prosecutions resulting in five convictions.

PRIME MINISTER

Ministers: Pay

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Prime Minister which Ministers are unpaid; and if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of the provision of facilities for them to carry out their ministerial duties. [147822]

The Prime Minister: The cost of the provision of facilities for Ministers who are unpaid will be met from existing departmental budgets.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147603]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has made no payments to Common Purpose in the last five years.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147337]

David Cairns: The staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice and remain on the payroll of their parent Department. The Scotland Office does not hold information on which staff avail themselves of AVCs.

Energy Supply

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the First Minister on security of the energy supply (a) to and (b) in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [147717]

David Cairns: I have not yet had the opportunity to discuss this matter with the First Minister. The Government's Energy White Paper, published in May this year, sets out how we will approach ensuring secure, clean and affordable energy supplies while tackling climate change by reducing carbon dioxide emissions. Many of the policies in the White Paper apply to the UK as a whole, although some key areas, such as planning consent for new power stations, are devolved to the Scottish Executive.

Ministerial Duties

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what procedures he will adopt to determine how to prioritise his responsibilities as Secretary of State for Scotland against his other ministerial responsibilities. [147786]

David Cairns: The previous two Secretaries of State for Scotland have both undertaken a combined role, holding two portfolios in the Cabinet. It is a tried and tested model and has worked well in the past four years. The approach involves managing priorities and structuring work loads, working in close liaison with ministerial colleagues in both Departments.

TRANSPORT

Bus Services: Concessions

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether free concessionary travel will be available to older and disabled passengers on open-top tourist buses registered as local bus services under the proposed national scheme. [146469]

Ms Rosie Winterton: An eligible pass holder will be able to travel for free in the off-peak on any registered local bus service anywhere in England from April next year. Although the Concessionary Bus Travel Bill does not change the definition of what is an eligible service for the statutory concession, we are considering whether changes should be made via an Order in the future if it is decided that clarification is required. In the interim, it will remain for operators and local authorities to assess which services are covered in accordance with the criteria set out in the current legislation.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he has taken to allocate the £212 million additional funding being made available to local authorities for the 2008 English National Concessionary Fares Scheme to local authorities according to the costs of each local authority scheme. [146468]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government will be providing up to an extra £250 million per year for the national bus concession (£212 million after Barnett allocations). We are confident this will be sufficient overall to cover the total extra costs to local authorities.

The extra funding will either be distributed via the formula grant system (as is the case for current funding of mandatory concession) or specific grant. A decision on the funding route will be made in due course.

Bus Services: Technology

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the cost of introducing smartcard readers to the English bus fleet; and what discussions she has had with representatives of (a) small and (b) large bus operators on the schedule for implementing such a scheme. [146466]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no accurate estimate available for the cost of introducing smartcard readers to the English bus fleet. There would be a wide range of cost estimates depending on the number of eligible buses, the number and scope of back office systems, the extent to which the whole life cost of bus equipment was borne upfront and the impact of higher production volumes on costs.

Discussions have taken place with bus operators, and local authorities, on the possibility of specifying ITSO compliant smartcards as the format of the pass for the new national bus concession commencing in April 2008. However, these have not covered the schedule for any introduction of smartcard readers.

Car Sharing

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many high occupancy vehicle lanes have been brought into use since 1997. [147153]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Three high occupancy vehicle lane schemes have been brought into use in England since 1997. These are on the A370 Long Ashton Bypass in North Somerset, the A647 in Leeds, and the A4174 Avon Ring Road in South Gloucestershire.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many officials in her Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146087]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Officials throughout the Department for Transport are involved in the full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in the Europe, International and Better Regulation Division total 15. The Department currently has four officials seconded to the UK Permanent Representation in Brussels and seven to the European Commission. In the Department as a whole, including its Agencies, resourcing must respond to the level of EU business. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in her Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146926]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 47 staff in the Department for Transport did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which projects originally valued at more than £5 million her Department has funded since 1997, broken down by Government Office region; and what (a) the cost at inception and (b) the outturn cost at project completion was of each. [147089]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the following NAO publications, which give initial and outturn costs for the West Coast Main Line and Channel Tunnel Rail Link, as well as all Highways Agency schemes:

HC321 2006-07—Estimating and monitoring the costs of building roads in England;

HC22 2006-07—The Modernisation of the West Coast Main Line; and HC77 2005-06—Progress on the Channel Tunnel Rail Link.

Copies are available from the Libraries of the House.

The compilation of comparable information for the Department's remaining projects could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Driving Under Influence

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what data her Department has on the number of accidents in each year from 1997 to 2005 that were caused by drivers whose blood alcohol level was (a) over 80ml, (b) between 80 and 50ml and (c) under 50ml; and if she will make a statement. [147469]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Blood alcohol content level information is only available for cases in which a driver was killed. Additionally, the blood alcohol content information is only available for approximately two thirds of these driver fatalities. In these cases, the number of reported road accidents involving at least one driver or rider with a blood alcohol level of (a) over 80ml, (b) between 50 and 80ml, and (c) under 50ml is shown in the table.

Number of accidents

Blood alcohol level	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004
Under 50ml	866	857	881	907	941	892	1,051	926
50-80ml	25	28	26	21	25	24	34	26
Over 80ml	193	166	185	212	219	224	251	261

Final figures for 2005 are not yet available.

The report of the second three-year review of the Government's road safety strategy, published in February 2007, explains that we are planning a public consultation process on drinking and driving later this year, including ways in which enforcement of laws against drinking and driving might be made easier for the police.

Galileo Project

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Galileo project will have the functionality to facilitate the implementation of a national road-pricing scheme; and if she will make a statement. [146871]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Global Navigational Satellite Systems (GNSS), including both GPS and Galileo, can support a wide range of applications. However, no decisions have been taken on whether to proceed with the introduction of a national road pricing scheme or on the technology that might be used to support such a scheme.

M6: Lancashire

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which routes Lancashire county council submitted to the Government in July 2005 as part of the county council's major business case for the Heysham to M6 link. [147897]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Lancashire county council's major scheme business case for the Heysham to M6 Link, submitted in July 2005, included details of the Northern Route (the Preferred Option), the Western Route (as the Next Best Option) and online improvements to the existing highway network (as the Lower Cost Option).

M60: Road Signs and Markings

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 727W, on M60: road signs and markings, whether legislative changes are necessary in order for Highways Agency traffic officers to use scrolling arrows in their vehicles to direct traffic on the M60. [147357]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Legislative changes would be required to prescribe scrolling arrows for use as traffic signs. It would be possible in principle to authorise these specially for use on the M60, but the chevron symbols are very small, and there are concerns about their safety and effectiveness on high-speed roads. Officials are considering how this might best be assessed.

Public Transport: Urban Areas

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the contribution of late night public transport to public safety, particularly from town and city centres; and if she will make a statement. [147394]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Local authorities are addressing crime and fear of crime issues in order to promote public transport use (including for the growing night time economy) through their Local Transport Plans.

The Department is also currently assessing how the latest Crime and Disorder audits and strategies are addressing transport crime issues, including the public safety of passengers and staff using public transport at night.

TREASURY

Al-Yamamah Project

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 362W, on the Al-Yamamah project, how many different bank accounts were examined as part of budgeting and accounting activities undertaken by his Department in relation to the management fee received by the Ministry of Defence from the Saudi Arabian government as part of the Al-Yamamah programme; and how many staff from his Department were involved in those activities. [147751]

Andy Burnham: The Treasury did not examine any bank accounts as part of these activities.

Buildings: Cabinet Office

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions his Department has had with the Cabinet Office on Project George in the last 12 months. [146870]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials engage with their counterparts in other departments, including the Cabinet Office, on a regular basis to discuss a range of issues.

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was allocated to offsetting the carbon dioxide emissions estimated to have arisen from his Department in respect of flights in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and how many tonnes of carbon equivalent were estimated to have arisen from such flights in each case. [147106]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 7 February 2007, Official Report, column 1027W. This year, the Treasury is contributing £18,286 to the DEFRA-run Government Carbon Offsetting Fund, which will offset 1,845 tonnes of carbon emissions from official and ministerial flights from April 2006 to April 2007.

Departments: Property

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1881W to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on Departments: property, from which organisations his Department received letting income in each financial year from 2003-04 to 2006-07; and how much was received from each organisation. [146489]

Angela Eagle: The income the Treasury has received from the subletting of space in the 1 Horse Guards building since 2002-03, by organisation, is given in the following table:

£000

	Financial year
Organisation name	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Cabinet Office[1]	67	-47	150	215	1,095
Exchequer Partnership	—	227	162	163	162
Office of Government Commerce	—	—	67	189	185
Royal Mint	18	19	19	18	22
Economics in Government Unit	—	—	—	53	—
Independent Review of NHS Pathology Services	—	—	—	—	19
Foreign and Commonwealth Office	—	—	2	2	6
National Association of Pension Funds	—	—	—	6	—
Home Office[2]	175	-175	—	—	—
Others (received less than £5,000 and corrections)	17	-10	15	12	6
Total	211	14	415	658	1,495

[2] The 2003-04 figure cancels the invoice from the previous year.

It has been drawn to my attention that a written answer given on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1881W by the former Financial Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey), to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) was incorrect in respect to the income received from the subletting of space in 2002-03. The earlier answer reported the total for that year to be nil. However, this figure was net of a transfer of excess income to another account. Before the transfer, the income received from subletting space in the 1 Horse Guards road building during 2002-03 was £277,000. The Treasury very much regrets this inadvertent error.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147055]

Angela Eagle: The numbers of staff that have taken periods of sick leave of less than five days for the period 1 January 2006 to 31 December 2007 are as follows.

Number of episodes	Number of staff
4	28
3	45
2	109

Departments: Telephone Numbering

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-geographic telephone numbers are in use by each of his departmental agencies; and what revenue was received from them in each year since 2001. [147167]

Angela Eagle: The following table lists the number of non-geographic telephone numbers in use by each of the agencies and what revenue was received in each year since 2001. In the case of those departmental agencies where numbers are not listed, the information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Name	Number of non geographical numbers	Revenue for period requested (£)
OGC	9	0
NS and I	9	0
HMRC	n/a.	0
ONS	n/a	n/a

General Practitioners: Conditions of Employment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment HM Treasury had made of the cost of a new GP contract prior to his 2002 Budget announcement that the new funding settlement for the NHS would pay for a new contract for family doctors. [146525]

Andy Burnham: Discussions took place between Treasury and Department of Health officials on a range of issues before the 2002 Budget.

Health Spending Team

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the objectives are of his Department's Health Spending Team. [146526]

Andy Burnham: The Treasury's Health spending team contributes to the Treasury's objectives. These can be viewed at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/about_aimsobject.cfm

Industrial and Agricultural Building Allowances Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many representations he has received on the changes proposed in the Budget to the industrial and agricultural building allowances scheme; and what assessment he has made of the future impact of such changes on agricultural spending. [147093]

Jane Kennedy: By 29 June, the Treasury has received 48 individual representations on the withdrawal of industrial and agricultural buildings allowances.

A general impact assessment will be published in advance of the relevant legislation, which will be included in Finance Bill 2008.

The withdrawal of IBAs and ABAs is not an isolated measure. The Budget also announced cuts in both the basic rate of income tax and the main rate of corporation tax and the introduction of a new annual investment allowance (AIA) of £50,000 for business investment from 2008. The specific impact that these reforms will have on agricultural spending, or spending in any other industry cannot therefore be easily assessed or viewed in isolation. Taken as a whole, however, these reforms to the business and personal tax systems are designed to deliver increases in investment and growth overall.

Inheritance Tax: Edinburgh

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much was raised from inheritance tax on estates within the City of Edinburgh local authority area in each year since 1996; [147720]

(2) how many estates within the City of Edinburgh local authority area were subject to inheritance tax in each year since 1996. [147721]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for estates paying inheritance tax and amounts of tax paid are not available at local levels.

NHS: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007 to the hon. Member for Rayleigh, Official Report, column 1313W, on NHS: consultants, which of his Department's Ministers were involved in these discussions. [146550]

Andy Burnham: Treasury Ministers and officials have frequent discussions with their counterparts at the Department of Health as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Public Expenditure: Home Office and the Ministry of Justice

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of annual average real growth is for the budget of (a) the Home Office and (b) the Ministry of Justice for the years covered by his Comprehensive Spending Review. [146548]

Andy Burnham: The departments concerned are bound by the combined totals agreed by the Home Office and the Department for Constitutional Affairs at their early settlements announced at Budget 2006 and the pre-Budget report 2006 respectively. They are currently in discussions about the transfers of functions and resources associated with the Machinery of Government changes announced on 29 March. Full details of the settlements for all departments, including those involved in Machinery of Government changes, will be announced in the Comprehensive Spending Review.

Public Expenditure: Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what total Government spending was for (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham, (b) Worcester and (c) Telford constituency in 2006. [147666]

Andy Burnham: Information on total identifiable expenditure per capita for each region of England is set out in the HM Treasury publication, 'Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 2007', May 2007. This provides outturn data for 2005-06 and planned outturns for 2006-07. The PESA publication is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spending_statistics/pes_publications/pespub_pesa07.cfm.

The Government do not currently disaggregate spending data below regional level.

Taxation: Domicile

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will place in the Library the results of the research commissioned by his Department in April 2005 on the economic and fiscal effects of non-domicile exemptions; and if he will make a statement; [143029]

(2) when he last collected information on changes to the residence and domicile rules and related economic effects; and if he will make a statement; [143031]

(3) if he will place in the Library the results of research commissioned by his Department since April 2005 on the economic and fiscal effects of non-domicile tax exemptions; and if he will make a statement; [143032]

(4) when he last collected information on numbers of people who indicated non-domicile status on their self-assessment tax returns; and if he will make a statement. [143034]

Jane Kennedy: The review of the residence and domicile rules that govern personal taxation is on-going; as such, information is collected to support the continuing policy development process as and when necessary. No research has been formally commissioned from external sources.

The most recent statistics available on the number of people who indicated non-domicile status on their self-assessment tax returns relates to the tax year 2004-05. In that year 112,000 people indicated non-domiciles status.

Taxation: Overseas Residence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which officials in his Department are responsible for the ongoing review into non-domicile taxation; [147011]

(2) which external advisers are involved in the ongoing review into non-domicile taxation; [147012]

(3) on which dates the review group for non-domicile taxation has met since the review began; [147013]

(4) whether there (a) has been and (b) will be an external consultation period as part of the ongoing review into non-domicile taxation; [147014]

(5) what the cost was of the review group into non-domicile taxation in each year since 1997; [147077]

(6) what evidence the review into non-domicile taxation has collected about comparable tax regimes in overseas countries; and if he will make a statement; [147078]

(7) how many submissions the review group into non-domicile taxation has made to Ministers; and on which dates; [147079]

(8) if he will publish external submissions to the review for non-domicile taxation. [147080]

Jane Kennedy: The review of the residence and domicile rules that govern personal taxation is being led by officials from Her Majesty's Treasury.

The Background Paper 'Reviewing the residence and domicile rules as they affect the taxation of individuals' published at Budget 2003 outlined research into how other countries' tax personal systems operate. The Background Paper also invited stakeholders to share their views on how the residence domicile rules operate. In addition Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs conducted a series of listening sessions with stakeholders between 2003 and 2005.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration the Office of Government Commerce has given to procurement of waste treatment and disposal services. [146783]

Angela Eagle: The OGC Kelly Report to the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, 'Improving Competition and Capacity Planning in the Municipal Waste Market', was published in May 2006. It made recommendations designed to tackle procurement barriers in the waste market. This study was conducted with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) and the Office of Fair Trading (OFT). DEFRA established the Waste Infrastructure Development Programme to take forward the recommendations. The work of this programme is detailed in DEFRA's 'Waste Strategy for England 2007', which was published in May 2007.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit (a) maladministration and (b) consolatory payments were made in each month between October 2006 and June 2007. [147367]

Jane Kennedy: The circumstances in which HM Revenue and Customs will make compensation payments to its customers are explained in the Department's fact sheet, "Complaints and Putting Things Right", which is available at: www.hmrc.gov.uk

The Department will pay compensation for reasonable costs incurred as a direct result of its mistakes or delays and to recognise worry and distress caused by those mistakes and delays. It does not keep separate details of compensation payments made specifically due to "maladministration" or "poor service". The number of compensation payments made in each month between October 2006 and May 2007 is shown in the following table. The number of compensation payments made in June 2007 is not yet available.

	Number
October 2006	614
November 2006	663

	Number
December 2006	581
January 2007	728
February 2007	739
March 2007	834
April 2007	530
May 2007	813

WALES

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147346]

Mr. Hain: People's travelling patterns vary, and we do not collect information systematically, but we estimate that 75-80 per cent. of Wales Office staff walk, cycle or use public transport to commute to and from work.

Police: Driving Under Influence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many police officers in Wales were (a) prosecuted, (b) disciplined and (c) dismissed for drink driving related offences in each of the last three years. [147402]

Mr. Hain: This information is not collected centrally.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disability living allowance claims have been made in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [146660]

Mrs. McGuire: From June 2006 to May 2007, approximately 438,620 claims for disability living allowance were received.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disability living allowance claims have been turned down in the last 12 months; how many of these have gone to appeal; how many cases have won their appeal; and if he will make a statement. [146661]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Disability living allowance (DLA) claims and appeals 2005-06

	Number
DLA claims refused	228,050
DLA appeals lodged	82,990
DLA appeals cleared in favour	35,490

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been asked to attend a disability living allowance medical examination in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [146665]

Mrs. McGuire: 74,013 people were asked to attend a disability living allowance medical examination between June 2006 and May 2007.

Employment Schemes: Advertising

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in which publications his Department will be placing advertising as part of the Employability Initiative. [146847]

Mrs. McGuire: The Employ Ability campaign will be piloted in four cities before further rollout across the UK next year. These cities are Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds and Bradford. Our primary target audience is small to medium sized employers.

The Employ Ability campaign is still in development stages and media plans have not been fully finalised. The following regional publications have been provisionally chosen for their relevance with our target audience:

Metro - Liverpool, Manchester and Yorkshire editions

Liverpool Daily Post

Manchester Evening News

Yorkshire Evening Post

Bradford Telegraph & Argus

Business Insider - North West and Yorkshire editions

EN Magazine - North West

Business Link - Yorkshire and Lincolnshire

It should be noted that these titles may be subject to change.

Jobcentre Plus

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what percentage of jobs advertised through Jobcentre Plus referred the applicant to (a) an employment agency and (b) an employment business in the last month for which figures are available; [146555]

(2) what criteria an employment agency or business must meet to have one of their positions advertised through Jobcentre Plus; [146556]

(3) what proportion of the agencies and businesses advertising positions through Jobcentre Plus have signed the Diversity Matters pledge. [146557]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 5 July 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to rely to your questions about employment agencies and employment businesses that advertise vacancies through Jobcentre Plus; and what proportion of those agencies and businesses have signed the Diversity Matters pledge. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The number of vacancies placed by employment agencies and businesses in May 2007 was 23,414. This equates to 38.2 per cent. of all jobs notified to Jobcentre Plus. We do not differentiate between employment agencies and employment businesses for the purpose of recording vacancies.

Jobcentre Plus will only accept vacancies from recruitment agencies if they sign a Service Level Agreement (SLA) agreeing to the terms for using our services.

The SLA specifies that:

only genuine vacancies will be advertised through the Jobcentre Plus website;

the vacancy is compliant with all UK legislation and employment law;

the vacancy has not been placed with the intention of compiling a register;

the agency has a contract with the employer in respect of the vacancy;

the agency must supply details of pay, conditions and the end employer; and no charges will be made to our customers as a result of applying.

Jobcentre Plus takes these conditions very seriously and will investigate any complaints that individual agencies are not complying with the terms of the SLA. This ultimately could lead to us terminating service with a recruitment agency in breach of their agreement.

Since its launch in October 2005 around 600 agencies have signed up to the Diversity Matters Pledge administered by the Recruitment and Employment Confederation. However, we do not know how many of the agencies use Jobcentre Plus to advertise their vacancies and therefore are not able to specify the proportion using Jobcentre Plus that have signed the Diversity Matters pledge.

I hope this is helpful.

TRANSPORT

Cycleways

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many dedicated cycle routes have been brought into use since 1997. [147152]

Ms Rosie Winterton: These figures are not collected centrally. A cycle route is often made up of a combination of cycle lanes, cycle tracks and the local road network.

Some data on the number of cycle tracks and cycle lanes constructed since 2001-02 are held although they are not complete. Local authorities outside London have reported through their local transport plans they have built the following number of new cycle lanes and cycle tracks:

	Total number of cycle lanes and cycle tracks built
2001-02	810
2002-03	991
2003-04	999
2004-05	956
2005-06	[1]744
Total	4,500

[1] 2005-06 data are yet to be audited and from this year the "good" and "excellent" rated authorities do not have to supply the above data.

Similar figures are not available for London boroughs but Transport for London report that 531km of the London Cycle Network+ were completed by May 2006 with a target of 900km due for completion by end 2010.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what percentage of staff in her Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps she has taken in the last year to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147340]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 344 members of staff in Department for Transport (1.8 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in her Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147052]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of staff in the Department for Transport who have taken periods of sick leave of less than five days during the financial year 2006-07 are:

Periods of sick leave	Number of staff
5 or more periods	614
4 periods	581
3 periods	1,201
2 periods	2,749

The Department is committed to managing sick absence effectively and continues to look at initiatives to help reduce absence levels. The management process includes early intervention by Occupational Health and conducting return to work interviews with staff.

Driving Offences: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people in the West Chelmsford area had nine points on their driving licence at the most recent date for which figures are available. [148080]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This information is not readily available from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Driving Offences: Fines

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was raised in fines from traffic cameras in (a) the Chelmsford local authority area and (b) Essex in each of the last five years; and how much of those monies was spent on road safety plans in each year. [148077]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available for the Chelmsford local authority area. The audit certificates for the Essex Safety Camera Partnership for the last five financial years outlined in table A show the fine revenue from conditional offer of fixed penalties for offences detected by speed and red light cameras operating under the then National Safety Camera Programme.

Table A

2001-02	3,524,120
2002-03	5,672,220
2003-04	5,137,740
2004-05	4,710,300
2005-06	4,732,860

Under the then netting off funding arrangements, safety camera partnerships reclaimed expenditure directly attributed to the prevention, detection and enforcement of offences. The amounts reclaimed by the Essex partnership in these financial years is set out in table B. The surplus was returned to the Consolidated Fund.

Table B

2001-02	3,179,304
2002-03	5,150,286
2003-04	5,037,293
2004-05	4,622,413
2005-06	4,257,190

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were fined for speeding in (a) Chelmsford local authority area and (b) Essex in each of the last five years. [148079]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available for the Chelmsford local authority area. The information on the number of people fined for speeding in Essex in the last five years for which information is available is set out in the following table and has been provided by the Home Office. This shows all speeding offences in Essex including those detected outside the then National Safety Camera Programme.

	Fixed penalty tickets	Fines (court proceedings)	Total
2000	46,300	2,800	49,100
2001	81,900	6,500	88,400
2002	98,100	12,200	110,300
2003	64,500	7,400	71,900
2004	65,300	6,700	72,000

Exhaust Emissions: Pollution Control

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the merits of (a) selective catalytic reduction and (b) exhaust gas recirculation technologies as measures to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from vehicles. [148041]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Both Selective Catalytic Reduction (SCR) and Exhaust Gas Recirculation are effective methods for reducing Nitrogen Oxide (NO_X) emissions from diesel vehicles. Exhaust Gas Recirculation is effective at low-medium engine load and can deliver moderate reductions in NO_X emissions. Selective Catalytic Reduction is effective up to full engine load and can deliver substantial NO_X reductions, but at higher cost than Exhaust Gas Recirculation.

Exhaust Gas Recirculation is already widely used on diesel cars and vans. Selective Catalytic Reduction is fitted to the majority of new Heavy Goods Vehicles (HGVs) and buses.

Selective Catalytic Reduction relies on the use of a consumable reagent to reduce NO_X. From November 2007, new HGV and bus engines are required to monitor emission control systems and limit engine power in the event of their failing to operate. This is essential to encourage operators to keep the systems maintained and the SCR reagent topped up, and so ensure that NO_X savings are actually delivered in operation.

The Department for Transport takes into account the capabilities and costs of specific technologies when developing the United Kingdom's negotiating position on EU vehicle emission standards, but does not prescribe which technology industry should use to meet tighter emissions standards. Our Regulatory Impact Assessment on car and van Euro 5 emissions standards considered both of these technologies and can be found at http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/emissionstandardseuro5/

The Department is currently examining different potential scenarios for future HGV and bus emissions standards and will consider the future capabilities of both of these technologies in this exercise.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from vehicles. [148042]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Legislation to limit the emissions of pollutants from vehicles (including nitrogen oxide emissions) was first introduced in the 1970s. Particularly stringent standards, known colloquially as "Euro 1" were adopted in the early 1990s.

Since then, successive standards have progressively tightened emissions limits with new vehicles currently having to meet Euro 4 standards. The Department for Transport has fully engaged with the European Commission, European Parliament, other member states and stakeholders in developing these standards.

Between 1990 and 2004, these standards reduced the total quantity of oxides of nitrogen emitted from heavy duty vehicles by some 37 per cent. and from light duty vehicles (cars and vans) by 70 per cent.[1]

[1] Table 4.15—UK Emissions of Air Pollutants 1970 to 2004, AEA Energy and Environment December 2006

However despite these reductions nitrogen oxide emissions from road vehicles, in particular diesel vehicles, continue to be an air quality concern in the UK and throughout the EU. For this reason at the end of 2005 the European Commission published a proposal for tighter Euro 5 emissions standards for cars and vans. I am pleased to be able to state that, not only have these standards been recently adopted by the European Council and Parliament, but that the UK also successfully secured a further (Euro 6) round of standards which tighten diesel NOx limits by 68 per cent. compared to current Euro 4 standards. This will put the permitted levels for diesels close to the very low levels of petrol engined vehicles.

We expect the European Commission to come forward with proposals to further tighten heavy duty vehicle emission standards late this year or early next. As usual the Department will fully engage in the negotiation of these standards.

In order to bring forward further improvements in air quality the Government offer financial incentives to purchase vehicles built to more stringent emissions standards in advance of the standards becoming mandatory. The Government offer such incentives through the Reduced Pollution Certificate scheme. This will, from October 2007, offer heavy duty vehicle and bus operators a reduction in Vehicle Excise Duty of up to £500 per annum for vehicles which are fully compliant with the next level of standards in advance of their mandatory application in 2009.

Motorways: Closures

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the M1 motorway was closed in both directions in South Yorkshire on 26 June; on whose authority such closure was made; and if she will make a statement. [148004]

Mr. Tom Harris: South Yorkshire police closed the M1 on 26 June between junctions 32 and junctions 34 northbound and junctions 36 and 32 southbound in response to the threat posed by the possible failure of the dam at Ulley reservoir in South Yorkshire.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what systems are in place to ensure that motorways are not unnecessarily closed for precautionary reasons when no incident, emergency accident or disaster has taken place; and if she will make a statement. [148005]

Mr. Tom Harris: The safety of our roads and customers who use them is paramount.

For each unique occasion (such as recently on the M1) a full and detailed risk assessment is carried out and supported by consultation and advice taken from all appropriate parties, including the police, fire service, local authorities and the Highways Agency Traffic Officer Service. Consideration is given to all contributory factors to determine the level of potential risk posed to both public and workers' safety should no action be taken. Any full or partial precautionary road closure deemed necessary would follow where the risk to safety is calculated to outweigh the effect of disruption.

National Roads Telecommunications Services Project

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1461W, on the National Roads Telecommunications Services project (NRTS), whether the NRTS will have the capacity to be used for (a) the detection of speeding and issuing of fines, (b) traffic and parking enforcement and (c) road pricing or congestion charging. [146885]

Mr. Tom Harris: The NRTS network has the capacity to support existing speed detection and other traffic enforcement systems as required to implement the Highways Agency's operational regimes such as active traffic management.

No allowance has been made to support road pricing in the current NRTS network capacity calculations. If required, the network capacity could be increased to support such an initiative. However, no decision has been taken on any national road pricing scheme.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1461W, on the National Roads Telecommunications Services project (NRTS), whether the NRTS will interface with the automated number plate recognition infrastructure. [146886]

Mr. Tom Harris: The NRTS solution is flexible enough to connect to a wide range of external devices which could include automated number plate recognition (ANPR).

Ports: Planning

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what objections were lodged by statutory consultees to port applications in respect of (a) London Gateway, (b) Dibden Bay, (c) Liverpool and (d) Harwich; and which of these objections were withdrawn during the application process. [148037]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. There are no statutory consultees in respect of harbour revision and harbour empowerment orders for ports. Statutory organisations have the opportunity to make objections to draft harbour orders on the same basis as any other objector.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many objections from local residents and third parties were submitted in respect of port applications in respect of (a) London Gateway, (b) Dibden Bay, (c) Liverpool and (d) Harwich. [148038]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is not possible to disaggregate precise figures for numbers of objections made in each case. The approximate numbers of objections made to the applications for harbour orders, including those by statutory organisations as well as local residents and third parties, were (a) 225 for London Gateway, (b) 6,140 for Dibden Bay, (c) 36 for Seaforth River Terminal at Liverpool and (d) 500 for Bathside Bay, Harwich.

Railways: South Wales

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations her Department has received on the train services operated by Great Western between London and south Wales. [147221]

Mr. Tom Harris: Department for Transport has received approximately 30 letters and e-mails on First Great Western rail services between London and south Wales since January 2007.

South West Trains: Fares

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the terms of South West Trains' franchise are on penalty fares; what assessment she has made of the company's compliance with its franchise on penalty fares; and if she will make a statement. [147834]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Railways Act 1993 Section 130 is the basis for charging penalty fares on National Rail. The subsequent (Penalty Fares) Regulations 1994 allowed for by the 1993 Act in turn provided for the creation of Penalty Fares Rules. These Rules were last revised in 2002 and under them any operator wishing to charge penalty fares must submit a scheme for the approval of the Secretary of State. South West Trains currently have an approved penalty fares scheme.

Tankers: Oil

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment she has made of the potential for pollution along the east coast arising from the transfer at sea of oil from small carriers to bulk ocean-going tankers. [147797]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has not made any recent assessment of the potential for pollution along the east coast of Great Britain arising from the transfer at sea of oil from smaller tankers to larger tankers.

Town and Country Planning Order 1995

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times the Highways Agency has used powers under Article 14 of the Town and Country Planning Order 1995 on her behalf; and if she will place in the Library a list of these instances. [147088]

Mr. Tom Harris: With the sole exception of proposals for advertisements, all of the Highways Agency's responses to planning applications are issued under Article 14 of the General Development Procedure Order 1995. From May 2006 to May 2007 (last full year available) 2,672 article 14 responses were issued by the Agency to the local planning authorities. Details of each case can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bass: Conservation

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to increase the minimum landing size for bass. [146910]

Jonathan Shaw: I plan to make an announcement shortly on whether and when to introduce an increased minimum landing size for bass.

Biodiversity: Cooperation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether a partnership body has been established to coordinate work between the Forestry Strategy and the Biodiversity Action Plan. [148093]

Joan Ruddock: I have asked the Forestry Commission and Natural England to prepare a joint action plan for implementing the recently published "Strategy for England's Trees, Woods and Forests". No new body is being created, but this partnership will ensure good coordination with the Biodiversity Action Plan.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Woodland Trust and Natural England on the potential loss of European woodland to bio-fuels production. [147691]

Joan Ruddock: No specific meetings have been arranged to discuss this topic. However, both bodies responded to the Department for Transport's recent consultation on the Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation Order and were reasonably supportive of it, provided there were strong sustainability safeguards. Although both organisations were concerned about deforestation in a global context, they did not specifically mention European woodland. The Woodland Trust, in particular, saw the increased demand for bio-fuels as providing an opportunity to regenerate ancient woodlands.

Views from these two organisations will continue to be taken into account when developing policy in this area.

Carbon Emissions: Pollution Control

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received since the launch of the Act on CO_2 calculator; and what assessment he has made of the impact that the calculator will have on people's long-term energy habits. [147156]

Mr. Woolas: There were 86,104 visitors to the Act on CO_2 calculator during its first week. We have asked people to comment on how to improve the current public trial version of the calculator and have had more than 300 e-mail responses from members of the public. We will take these suggestions on board as we introduce improvements to the calculator over the next few months.

The Action Plan at the end of the calculator gives tailored recommendations to users on how to reduce their overall carbon footprint by 20 per cent. The recommendations include looking at energy consumption in the home and cover both one-off and habitual behaviour changes.

Coastal Erosion: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether additional funds will be allocated to Hengistbury Head in Bournemouth for coastal protection. [147898]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has overall policy responsibility for flood and coastal erosion risk management in England. It funds most of the Environment Agency's flood-related work and grant aids individual capital improvement projects undertaken by local authorities and internal drainage boards. DEFRA does not carry out works, nor direct the authorities on which specific projects to undertake.

Bournemouth borough council are the coast protection authority responsible for Hengistbury Head and they have been monitoring coastal erosion at this location. The Environment Agency has asked all operating authorities for their medium term plans for 2008-09 onwards. It is for Bournemouth borough council to decide on the inclusion of this, or other works, in their response to the Agency.

We will use new Outcome Measures from next year to set out more clearly what we wish our overall programme to achieve. Ministers will set targets and the Agency will make decisions on how best to deliver these by applying a prioritisation system agreed with DEFRA. Any scheme at Hengistbury Head will have to be considered as part of this prioritisation system and against the many other worthwhile coastal schemes.

English Nature: Judicial Review

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many judicial reviews brought against English Nature between 1997 and 2007 in the (a) High Court, (b) Court of Appeal and (c) House of Lords (i) were successful and (ii) resulted in an order for costs being made against English Nature; and what costs were awarded in each case. [146956]

Jonathan Shaw: There were no judicial reviews brought against English Nature between 1997 and 2007 in the High Court, Court of Appeal or the House of Lords.

Farms: Land Drainage

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what statutory duties relating to surface water drainage are placed upon farmers. [148335]

Mr. Woolas: There are no such statutory duties placed upon farmers with regard to surface water drainage.

Landowners with frontages along a watercourse have a number of rights and responsibilities in relation to watercourses which flow through their land. These include a responsibility to ensure that water flows without obstruction through their land.

Fisheries: Conservation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his (a) Belgian, (b) Dutch, (c) German, (d) Norwegian and (e) Danish counterparts on the management of fishing stocks in the North Sea. [147004]

Jonathan Shaw: UK Fisheries Ministers have regular discussions with their EU partners at Agriculture and Fisheries Council on matters relating to the management of stocks in the North sea. Occasional meetings also take place with Norwegian Ministers on areas of mutual interest.

Fly Tipping: South Eastern Region

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many incidents of fly-tipping were reported in each local authority in the South East of England in each of the last four years for which figures are available; what the estimated cost was of dealing with such incidents; and how many (a) prosecutions and (b) successful prosecutions there were for fly-tipping in each local authority in the South East of England in each year for which figures are available. [147094]

Jonathan Shaw: As it is quite lengthy, I have arranged for the information requested to be placed in the Library of the House.

Ivory: Trade

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking on the international trade of ivory; and what discussions he has had with his counterparts in the (a) Chadian, (b) Kenyan and (c) Indian governments on the matter. [147142]

Joan Ruddock: The UK continues to take very seriously the threat to elephant conservation posed by ivory poaching. In recent years the UK, along with EU partners, has supported the establishment of baseline data to monitor illegal killing and trade in elephants and their ivory by providing funds to support the MIKE and ETIS programmes under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES). During the preparations for the 55th CITES Standing Committee on 2 June 2007, where approval of the stockpile sale was agreed in line with previously set criteria, the UK played an active role in considering the evidence.

At the subsequent 14th Convention of the Parties to CITES which took place in the Hague in June, a longer term agreement was reached among African range states on ivory trade. Following a one-off sale of an amount of stockpiled ivory increased to take account of the passage of time, the proceeds of which are to be used for conservation purposes, it is now agreed that there will be a nine year resting period on any further sales of ivory. This will allow the effects of the one-off stockpile sale to be properly assessed. The agreement also includes the establishment of an African elephant Trust Fund to address elephant conservation issues across the continent. The UK fully supported this proposal when it was presented to the CITES Parties, and will be looking to monitor the reported impacts of the stockpiled ivory sales, and broader elephant conservation measures, particularly in its newly elected position as a member of the CITES Standing Committee.

There have been no bi-lateral meetings at a Ministerial level with Chad, Kenya or India specifically on this issue although my predecessor spoke to Julius Kipng'etich (the Head of the Kenyan Wildlife Services) and Prof. Kivutha Kibwana (the Minister of Environment and Natural Resources) in the margins of the Ministerial event at the Conference in June to assure them of our support for elephant conservation and to agree to meet later in the year to discuss this further.

Lighting: Waste Disposal

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what plans he has made for the safe disposal of mercury-containing energy-efficient light bulbs when the changeover from filament bulbs occurs in 2009; [148374]

(2) what provisions he has made to encourage householders to dispose of energy efficient light bulbs in a safe and environmentally-friendly manner. [148375]

Joan Ruddock: In the UK, we have agreed an ambition with manufacturers and retailers to phase out the sale of inefficient light bulbs by 2011. The UK will be one of the first European countries to remove inefficient bulbs from stores; saving approximately 1.2 million tonnes of carbon by 2012, as well as saving consumers money on their energy bills. We also continue to support the European Commission in working towards regulating against inefficient bulbs by 2010, with a phase out over the following years.

There is no requirement for waste energy efficient light bulbs to be separately collected from households. However, since 1 July, energy efficient light bulbs have been required to be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations. Householders will be able to take waste energy efficient light bulbs to designated collection facilities, in the main local authority civic amenity sites. From this point, producers will be financially responsible for their onward collection, treatment and recycling, where most of the mercury can be recovered.

Retailers have obligations under the WEEE Regulations to provide consumers with information on:

(i) the collection and take-back systems available to them;

(ii) their role in contributing to the reuse and recycling of WEEE;

(iii) and the potential effects on the environment and human health as a result of the presence of hazardous substances in electrical and electronic equipment.

Under the WEEE Permitting Regulations, mercury must be removed from energy efficient light-bulbs where they are collected separately. A minimum of 80 per cent. by weight of the materials must be recycled or recovered.

Energy efficient light bulbs contain a small amount of mercury (less than 5 milligrams per lamp) and should be disposed of responsibly. There is increasing evidence that the mercury in each energy efficient bulb is considerably outweighed by the mercury put into the atmosphere through the additional electricity generation required to operate a traditional bulb.

Nappies

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the revised life cycle assessment (LCA) for disposable and reusable nappies in the UK will be published; and what plans his Department has for publicising the revised LCA on nappies. [146504]

Joan Ruddock: The Environment Agency expects to publish a further report on nappies by the end of the year. This study is part of the Agency's science programme and will be published on their website in the same way as other scientific reports. Any further publicity will be considered jointly with DEFRA and the Waste and Resources Action Programme, who are jointly funding the study.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if his Department will reassess the adequacy of financial support for the promotion of reusable nappies following the conclusion of the revised life cycle assessment; [147206]

(2) what progress has been made in setting up a stand-alone organisation to take over running of WRAP's Real Nappy Campaign; and what financial contribution his Department will provide to it. [147207]

Joan Ruddock: The Real Nappy Programme budget for the April 2003 to March 2006 period was £2.3 million, with some funding continuing in 2006-07 to allow the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) to meet existing commitments. No further direct funding is planned over 2007-08.

WRAP intends to hand over the work on real nappies to other interested parties during the course of this financial year. WRAP is currently discussing with a range of interested parties the possible arrangements for the future management of the Real Nappy Programme. Once WRAP has established the options, including funding needs, for taking forward this work, it will discuss them with DEFRA. It is, therefore, not yet possible to state DEFRA's future financial contribution, if any, to the Real Nappy Programme.

Pollution: Liverpool Bay

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what total tonnage of sewage sludge was dumped in Liverpool Bay in each of the last 30 years; what assessment he has made of the long-term impact of sewage sludge dumping on the marine environment; and if he will make a statement. [146896]

Jonathan Shaw: My predecessor's reply to the hon. Member's similar question on 20 November 2003, Official Report, 1230W, estimated that a total of 40-50 million tonnes of sewage sludge was deposited by water companies, and predecessor water authorities, in the north east Irish Sea/Liverpool Bay in the 30 years up to 31 December 1998. This practice was banned after that date.

The following table sets out the readily available information (1976 to 1998) on the annual quantities (tonnes) of sewage sludge disposed of in Liverpool Bay.

	Wet weight (tonnes)
1976	1,587,615
1977	1,753,633
1978	1,646,097
1979	1,357,645
1980	1,759,883
1981	1,692,680
1982	1,642,410
1983	1,299,200
1984	1,282,800
1985	1,487,595
1986	1,541,456
1987	1,626,036
1988	1,629,123
1989	1,645,609
1990	1,735,805
1991	1,879,500
1992	1,901,447
1993	1,983,241
1994	1,955,551
1995	2,012,667

	Wet weight (tonnes)
1996	1,934,356
1997	1,874,975
1998	1,218,289

Monitoring of the historic sewage sludge disposal site in Liverpool Bay has continued since the end of disposal in 1998 under the auspices of the National Marine Monitoring Program, now the Clean Seas Environment Monitoring Program. I understand the disposal of sewage sludge in Liverpool Bay has appeared to have very little effect on the receiving marine benthic environment of the area.

A reduction in marine invertebrate community variability was observed during disposal activities and an increase in variability after the end of the activity. When reference and disposal site sediment samples were compared no statistical differences in sediment characteristics were identified.

Tin: Irish Sea

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent assessment he has made of the effect of tribulyte tin from the bulk of ships on the marine environment in the Irish Sea; [146890]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the impact of nutrients discharged by rivers on (a) estuaries, (b) beaches adjacent to estuaries and (c) the Irish Sea; [146892]

(3) what pollution incidents involving more than 0.01 tonnes of spillage occurred in the Irish Sea in each year since 2003; on what date each occurred; what the size was of the spillage; and which company (a) reported and (b) was responsible for each; [146893]

(4) what the cost was of monitoring pollution levels in the Irish Sea in each of the last 30 years; [146895]

(5) which (a) statutory and (b) non-statutory bodies monitored pollution levels in the Irish Sea in each of the last 30 years; [146897]

(6) what assessment he has made of the effect of polychlorinated biophenyls on the marine environment in the Irish Sea over the last 30 years; [146898]

(7) if he will make a statement on the recent co-operation between the UK Government and the Irish Government on monitoring pollution in the Irish Sea; [146899]

(8) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Jonus project in environmental monitoring; [147223]

(9) what level of funding has been given to the Jonus project in each year of its existence; [146908]

(10) what estimate he has made of the quantities of (a) synthetic chemicals, (b) mercury, (c) cadmium, (d) lead, (e) zinc, (f) nickel and (g) arsenic released into the Irish Sea from establishments in the UK in each of the last 30 years; what recent changes there have been in the reduction targets in each case; and if he will make a statement. [146906]

Jonathan Shaw: England and Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic will all have their specific mechanisms for monitoring and reporting on pollution in the Irish sea.

The main joint working on the state of the Irish sea is carried out within the framework of the Oslo and Paris (OSPAR) Convention for the Protection of the North East Atlantic to which the UK and the Republic of Ireland are contracting parties, where regular assessments are done, information gathered by the various organisations is brought together and assessments are made and published in the OSPAR Quality Status Report (QSR). The last QSR was published in the year 2000, and included a regional report on the Celtic seas. The next QSR will be published in 2010.

The UK has also recently published "Charting Progress" which provides the first integrated assessment of the state of the seas across the whole of the UK continental shelf. "Charting Progress" includes a feeder report on Marine Environment Quality which focuses on the impacts of human activities on the marine environment and its resources, and provides assessments of the status and trends based on current knowledge and information. Much of the information given below is derived from the OSPAR QSR and "Charting Progress".

The Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS), together with colleagues in the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development for Northern Ireland and the Fisheries Researeh Services in Scotland have carried out studies on the effects of tributyl tin (TBT) on dogwhelks in the seas around the UK, including the Irish sea. The results, based on surveys between 1994 and 2003, show that effects on reproduction only appear to be significant within a few hundred metres from point source discharges of TBT.

Regarding the impacts of nutrients, the UK completed an Assessment of the Eutrophication Status of UK Marine Waters in 2002 which found that the only eutrophication problem areas in the Irish sea were (a) the Inner Belfast Lough and tidal Lagan impoundment, and (b) Quoile Pondage in Strangford Lough. A further eutrophication assessment of UK marine waters, which is based on observations made between 2000 and 2005 and includes estuaries, is under way and will be published in 2008. The Environment Agency also monitors the eutrophication status of surface waters under the nitrates and urban wastewater treatment directives.

With regards to pollution incidents involving more than 0.01 tonnes of spillage which have occurred in the Irish sea, the Environment Agency's pollution incident database shows that there were 237 recorded incidents on or close to the Irish sea coast between 2004 and 2006. These cover a range of incident types and severities. Not all of these spillages or releases will have entered the waters of the Irish sea.

The monitoring of pollution in the Irish sea is carried out by a number of organisations in England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Funds are generally allocated on a national basis and it is not possible to distinguish the specific amount of money allocated to monitoring pollution levels in the Irish sea.

The UK statutory bodies which monitor or fund the monitoring of pollution levels in UK marine waters are as follows: Defra, the Department of the Environment Northern Ireland, Welsh Assembly Government, Scottish Executive, the Fisheries Research Services in Scotland, the Environment Agency, the Scottish Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development in Northern Ireland, the Department for Transport, the Department of Trade and Industry and the Marine Coastguard Agency. Most of these will deal with some aspects of monitoring in the Irish sea.

A number of non-statutory bodies will also monitor pollution levels in the Irish sea, including marine institutes, universities, industries, and non-governmental organisations, but Defra does not hold records on this.

We are not aware of any recent assessments of specific direct effects of polychlorinated biphenyls (CBs) on the marine environment in the Irish sea. However, CB concentrations in sediments were measured at a number of sites around the UK between 1999 and 2002, with a number of samples in estuaries exceeding the ecotoxicological assessment criteria for CBs. Work is continuing on possible effects on marine mammals.

The UK Government cooperate with the Irish Government in the framework of the OSPAR Convention for the Protection of the North East Atlantic through participation in its Joint Assessment and Monitoring Programme. Regular joint assessments of the status of the various regions of the North East Atlantic are made and, in the year 2000, a Quality Status Report (QSR) on the Celtic seas was published by OSPAR, which involved sustained contact between officials and scientists from all countries bordering the Celtic seas in providing the various assessments. Preparations are under way for the next QSR in 2010, and the cooperation continues.

The Joint Nutrient Study (Jonus) was a research programme carried out in the 1990s, which ended in 1999. The first phase of the programme established the extent of loss of nutrients (nitrogen, phosphorus and silicon) from the water that passes through estuaries from the land to the sea. The programme established some general rules that could be applied in nutrient budgeting and how this knowledge could be used in the management of marine eutrophication. The second phase of the programme compared two sea areas in terms of the impact on aspects of marine biology associated with land based nutrient input. The programme established a basis for further understanding the need to manage nutrient inputs and the criteria that could be used to distinguish any undesirable disturbance resulting from anthropogenic nutrient enrichment. This knowledge has been deployed in support of assessments under the relevant EC directives and for the OSPAR Convention.

Information help by Defra on the funding for the JONUS programme (Joint Assessment of Nutrients Study) shows that between 1990 and 1995, for JONUS1, there were two main funding components with the Department of the Environment (DoE)/ Department for Environment, Transport and the Regions (Detr) contributing approximately £0.5 million a year and the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) contributing about £0.6 million a year. JONUS2 took place between 1996 and 1999. The broad levels of funding for each year were £0.8 million, £0.95 million and £0.25 million respectively.

Information on UK loads of lindane, mercury, cadmium, lead, zinc, lindane and PCBs is held centrally only for the period 1990 to 2005 and is reported to the OSPAR Convention for the Protection of the North East Atlantic. Defra does not hold information on loads of nickel and arsenic.

Between 1990 and 2005, the estimated riverine and direct loads of cadmium, mercury, lead, zinc, lindane and PCB to the Irish sea (based on an average of the upper and lower values reported) reduced as shown in the following table. The figures include both naturally occurring sources of the metals and anthropogenic releases from point and diffuse sources.

	1990	2005
Cd (tonne)	27.84	1.48

Urban Areas: Land Drainage

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department allocated to (a) researching and (b) implementing sustainable urban drainage systems in each year since 2000. [148337]

Mr. Woolas: Since 2000, the Department has funded research relating to sustainable drainage systems as follows:

2005-06	12,000
2006-07	35,000
2007-08-2009	20,000

In addition, DEFRA is funding 15 pilot projects across England looking at integrated urban drainage issues in a broader context. Several of these include consideration of issues relating to sustainable drainage systems. The total project value is £1.7 million.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department has given on the content of core strategies for waste disposal and waste treatment. [146785]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Waste Strategy for England 2007, published on 24 May, sets out a range of measures to achieve the key objectives of less waste, more recycling and recovery of energy from waste and better treatment of residual waste. The strategy and its annexes contain a wealth of information and advice that should inform the development of more local strategies on waste—by organisations in both the public and private sectors. The strategy is available at www.defra.gov.uk/waste/strategy and in the Library of House.

The Government expects all local authorities to have in place a fit for purpose and up-to-date Municipal Waste Management Strategy. In some two-tier areas this is a statutory requirement. Local authorities can be exempt from this requirement where they have met their recycling targets and obligations under the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme (LATS), or for achieving an excellent or four star rating in their Comprehensive Performance Assessment. The Government have published two guidance documents to assist local authorities, setting out what Government expect strategies to contain and providing advice on the production of a strategy. Both documents are available from the waste pages of the Defra website.

Advice and support on business resource efficiency, including on reducing waste and recovering value from waste that is produced, is provided through the Business Resource Efficiency and Waste (BREW) programme. This programme funds organisations such as the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), the Environment Agency, Envirowise, National Industrial Symbiosis Programme (NISP) and Business Links to support businesses in effectively reducing and managing their waste.

Waste Disposal: Domestic Wastes

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department will be taking to reduce the amount of household waste not re-used, recycled or composted by 29 per cent. by 2010 as set out in the Revised Waste Strategy; and if he will make a statement. [146505]

Joan Ruddock: "Waste Strategy for England 2007", published on 24 May 2007 sets out a number of measures which will support the achievement of this target.

Examples of measures in the strategy that will drive waste reduction include:

(i) a consultation on proposals to remove the ban on local authorities introducing financial schemes to incentivise households waste reduction and recycling; and

(ii) establishing material and sector-based voluntary agreements with businesses, such as the agreement with the Direct Marketing Association to develop an opt-out for unaddressed direct mail to reduce the amount of unwanted direct mail.

Examples of measures that will increase the amount of waste re-used, recycled and composted include:

(i) reducing single use shopping bags through a retailer commitment to a programme of action to reduce the environmental impact of carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008;

(ii) extending national information and awareness campaigns to promote waste reduction and re-use measures; and

(iii) continued support for the Waste and Resources Action Programme's home composting scheme, which will distribute a further one million supported compost bins by 2008 alongside engagement with householders to promote the on-going use of their compost bins.

These, and other measures set out in the strategy, will collectively help to achieve the target of a 29 per cent. reduction in the amount of household waste not re-used, recycled or composted by 2010 in England.

Further details on these measures are available in the strategy which is available on the Defra website and in the Library of the House.

Whales: Conservation

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the outcome of the 59th annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission. [146218]

Jonathan Shaw: At this year's annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC), the UK and other anti-whaling countries were able to sponsor and secure several key resolutions: calling on Japan to halt its lethal "scientific" research programme; promoting the non-lethal use of cetaceans; and reaffirming the continued need for the IWC moratorium on commercial whaling. This last resolution subsequently served us well in the Conference of Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, enabling us to defeat proposals aimed at eventually allowing trade in whale products to take place.

My hon. Friends and ministerial predecessors, the hon. Members for Brent, North (Barry Gardiner) and for Exeter (Mr. Bradshaw) respectively, have recently jointly written to all hon. Members to inform them about the outcome of this year's IWC meeting.

Wildlife: Trade

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will provide funding for the workshop on wildlife trade on the internet to be established following the fourteenth meeting of the Conference of Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. [146497]

Joan Ruddock: The UK presented the proposal to convene a workshop to look at the scope of the problem of wildlife trade on the internet at the recent CITES Conference of Parties. The proposal was adopted by consensus by CITES Parties. DEFRA also announced at the Conference that it would be providing £15,000 towards the cost of organising the workshop once the initial data-gathering exercise on the scale of the problem of illegal trade on the internet has been completed.

Wood: Procurement

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to bring forward measures to require timber procured for use in the (a) public and (b) private sector to come from sustainable sources. [148127]

Joan Ruddock: Central Departments in England are already required to seek to purchase timber and timber products that derive from legally harvested trees grown in sustainably managed forests. They are advised to do this by making the supply of legally harvested timber a condition of contract and by giving preference to sustainably produced timber if offered. From April 2009 Departments will be required to demand that timber from sustainably managed forests or timber licensed under the Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade scheme only be supplied. From April 2015 Departments will be required to demand that timber from sustainably managed forests only is supplied.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs will continue to promote responsible timber procurement to the wider public sector and to the private sector at home and abroad whenever suitable opportunities arise.

WALES

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last year to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147318]

Mr. Hain: No Wales Office staff are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions, but a small number of staff are buying added years through deductions from pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact of the education maintenance allowance on recruitment to work-based learning programmes; and if he will make a statement. [147837]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

The Learning and Skills Council has commissioned a review of the effect of the extension of education maintenance allowance to work-based learning programmes through the Association of Learning Providers. The objectives of the review were to liaise with learning providers and key partners in the regions to identify key issues, areas of good practice and how these can be expanded to national level.

The review identified that although starts on the Entry to Employment (E2E) programme were down nationally at the beginning of the 2006-07 year in comparison to the same period in 2005-06, these have now recovered and recruitment is in line with 2006-07 projections,

A series of dissemination events took place to share good practice with the work-based learning provider network. The Learning and Skills Council will be undertaking an evaluation of the first year of extension of education maintenance allowance to young people in non-employed work-based learning and a full report is expected to be available in January 2008.

Nanotechnology

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1823W, on nanotechnology, what the split is between specialist and directed (managed programmes) nanotechnology funding and responsive mode nanotechnology funding within the research councils. [147470]

Mr. Denham: The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) commits on average £30-35 million each year on nanotechnology in responsive mode, and in 2006-07 EPSRC supported £5.5 million of managed activity focused on nanotechnology.

The National Environment Research Council (NERC) currently supports grants on nanotechnology worth approximately £0.5 million from responsive mode and approximately £1 million through two separate directed programmes: the environmental nanoscience initiative (jointly funded by DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the national environmental research (NERC) and the environment and human health programme—jointly funded from NERC; the Medical Research Council (MRC); Wellcome Trust; the Economic and Social Research Council; the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC), EPSRC, MoD, DEFRA and the Environment Agency.

In 2005-06, the BBSRC spent £3.328 million on nanotechnology through responsive mode and £1.039 million via directed initiatives. In addition, BBSRC funds research into the six nanotechnology application areas electronics, communications and informatics; drug delivery systems; instrumentation, tooling and metrology; novel materials; sensors and actuators; tissue engineering, medical implants and devices. Expenditure on these applications in 2005-06 was £8.868 million via responsive mode and £5.331 million via directed initiatives. BBSRC also funds nanotechnology and related research via core strategic grants to institutes and through studentships, to a value of £4.817 million in 2005-06.

All Medical Research Council and Economic and Social Research Council funding for nanotechnology has been in responsive mode.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department classifies responsive mode nanotechnology funding in the same category as direct nanotechnology funding. [147471]

Mr. Denham: The research councils are responsible for determining the classification of their funding into various categories, including the distribution between responsive mode and directed/managed funding. The technology programme funding is through directed/managed programmes.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many long-term grants for nanotechnology of (a) over four years duration and (b) over £5 million in value the Government has funded in the last 10 years. [147472]

Mr. Denham: The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council has funded seven grants over four years in duration. The Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council has funded 17 nanotechnology or related grants in the last three years, which have a duration of more than four years. It has also funded 12 institute core strategic grants projects with spend in four or more years on nanotechnology or related research. The Medical Research Council funds four long-term programmes of research in its institutes on nanotechnology. The technology programme has funded 18 nanotechnology grants of over four years duration.

The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council has funded seven nanotechnology grants worth over £5 million, and the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council has funded one large nanotechnology-related grant over £5 million value in the last three years. The technology programme has funded two grants over £5 million.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much of the £100 million invested in nanotechnology on collaborative research and development since 2005 was associated with (a) nanotechnologies and (b) micro-technologies. [147473]

Mr. Denham: The Technology Strategy Board micronano technology initiative has invested under two themes:

A portfolio of 56 collaborative research and development projects, broadly divided into 30 micro technology projects and 26 nanotechnology projects (although some have a cross-shared interest). The approximate division of support is £16.4 million (against £333 million project costs) for micro technology and £14 million (against £32 million project costs) for nanotechnology; and

The network of 24 UK based micro/nano technology centres with a total budget of £54 million where all of the centres address both micro and nano technology.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of responsive mode funding for nanotechnology research on the research base; [147749]

(2) what benchmarking he has conducted of non-responsive mode funding streams for nanotechnology research in the UK against other countries in each of the last 10 years. [147750]

Mr. Denham: The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) undertook an analysis of the nanotechnology research base at its nanotechnology theme day in 2005. This led to the development of the EPSRC nanotechnology strategy. The theme day report is available on the EPSRC website, http://www.epsrc.ac.uk.

The Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC) Tools and Resources Strategy Panel is responsible for the BBSRCs strategy for bionanotechnology. It considered BBSRC's remit and investment in this area in December 2004. BBSRC has also contributed to development of the EPSRC nanotechnology strategy. In 2007, the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) published a report on "Nanotechnology: from the science to the social" which presents an overview of the research landscape (available on ESRC website at http://www.esrcsocietytoday.ac.uk/).

The Taylor report commissioned by Lord Sainsbury in his capacity as Science Minister reviewed other countries' expenditure. Following the publication of that report officials undertook a series of visits to micro and nanotechnology centres of excellence and businesses in the US and Europe between 200land 2003 to investigate the range of funding mechanisms used. As a result the micro and nanotechnology manufacturing initiative was launched in February 2004.

Schools: City Academies

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what role his Department will play in helping the Government to meet their targets on creating trust schools and academies. [147739]

Mr. Denham: A number of universities and colleges are already working with academies and trust schools. The Department is looking forward to working with the Department of Children, Schools and Families to raise awareness among universities and colleges of the opportunities to work with trust schools and academies, and the benefits that school partnerships can bring to both schools and their partners.

Students: Fees and Charges

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what representations he has received on raising the cap on university top-up fees. [147738]

Bill Rammell: A number of views about the future of tuition fees and the financing of universities have been expressed to the Government. We promised at the time of the 2004 legislation that the fee cap would not be lifted in real terms until an independent commission had examined evidence from the first three years of the new fees regime. That remains the case. Draft terms of reference for the commission were published in January 2004.

Students: Loans

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the (a) average and (b) maximum student loan was in (i) Cornwall, (ii) the south-west and (iii) England in each year since 1997. [147506]

Bill Rammell: The available data are given in the following table.

Students domiciled in Cornwall local authority, the south-west Government office region, and England, academic years 1999-2000 to 2005-06

	Average value of income-contingent loan (£)

Student Loans Company

The maximum amount of maintenance loan to which a student is entitled is dependent upon where they are living during their study, rather than their domicile, The rates are given in the following table:

Maximum student loans for maintenance in 2006-07

Location of study	Full year rates	Final year rates[1]
Students living away from their parents' home and studying in London	Up to 6,170	Up to 5,620
Students living away from their parents' home and studying elsewhere	Up to 4,405	Up to 4,080
Students living at their parents' home (London and elsewhere)	Up to 3,415	Up to 3,085

[1] The amounts of loan are lower in the final year as students leave higher education at the end of the summer and will not need financial support over the summer holiday.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the Government expect the average debt to be of university students graduating in each of the next five years. [147522]

Bill Rammell: The Student Income and Expenditure Survey 2004-05, published on 30 March 2006, is a comprehensive study on students' income, expenditure, borrowing and debt. It showed that English domiciled full-time students graduating in the academic year 2004-05 anticipated, on average, a total debt of £7,918. For those commencing courses after the introduction of variable fees in the 2008-07 academic year we expect average student debt of around £15,000.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many university students received student loans in (a) England, (b) the South West and (c) Cornwall in each year since 1997. [147541]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 July 2007]: The available data are given in the table.

Train to Gain Programme

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what plans he has to expand the number of businesses making the Skills Pledge in relation to Train to Gain; whether there is a minimum standard of training for such businesses; and if he will make a statement; [147789]

(2) what proportion of businesses making the Skills Pledge employ fewer than (a) 20 and (b) 500 people; [147790]

(3) what web-based tools are provided by the Government to employers making the Skills Pledge. [147792]

Bill Rammell: On 14 June the Government launched the Skills Pledge with commitments from 157 employers with more than 1.7 million employees. Since the launch, businesses have continued to register their interest in the Skills Pledge through the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) Train to Gain website and helpline. The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for the operational aspects of the Skills Pledge, including the size and location of every employer making a skills pledge. I have asked Mark Haysom to write to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Every employer that makes a skills pledge is given access to a skills broker who will work with them to ensure that they better understand the skills needs of their business and to help them source the highest quality provider to meet those needs. As part of our ongoing drive on quality the Government launched, in June, a new standard for employer responsiveness and vocational excellence in providers. The new standard will be an improvement tool for providers and will offer employers a single employer-verified badge to look for when sourcing workforce development provision. This will help employers to get best value for money from their investment in training by both reducing the time taken to source the highest quality provision and improving the quality of provision overall.

The Government continue to develop new and innovative web based tools to support employers in all their business aspects. There is already a web based registration process for employers to register their details and the LSG are currently reviewing a range of diagnostic tools with a view to posting or referencing these on the Skills Pledge website. Skills Brokers, as part of their business analysis, will help employers find e-tools that will enable them to help themselves, including Investors in People interactive— a web based tool provided through our support for Investors in People which will be available from November 2007 and the Business Performance Diagnostic which is available through Business Link. In line with the Government's e-strategy we shall continue to develop further tools where employers tell us there is a real demand.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what training and qualifications skills brokers in the Train to Gain scheme must have. [147791]

Bill Rammell: Train to Gain is a new service that reached national coverage in August 2006 and is a critical part of the drive to make this country's skills world class. Skills brokers are contracted for and performance managed by the Learning and Skills Council. It is a contractual requirement that, within 12 months of their appointment, every skills broker meets the new independently assessed City and Guilds accredited skills broker standard as part of the Business Support Profession.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

City Academies

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his targets for academies are on (a) the total number of (i) institutions and (ii) pupil places and (b) geographical distribution. [147742]

Jim Knight: The Government are firmly committed to establishing 400 academies. There are no pre-determined targets relating to pupil places or their geographical distribution. The academies programme targets areas of inadequate educational attainment. Some academies are brand new schools in areas which need the extra places but most academies replace weak or under-performing schools. Academies will be established in areas where the need is greatest and we expect that this will produce a wide geographical distribution.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many academies he expects to be opened in each of the next five years. [147743]

Jim Knight: There are now 47 open academies. By September 2007 we expect there to be 82 open academies, and a further 50 are projected to open in September 2008. The number of academies that open in subsequent years will depend on the final allocation of the Department's comprehensive spending review settlement.

Departments: Buildings

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which buildings his Department occupies; and which buildings were occupied by the Department for Education and Skills on 26 June 2007. [147809]

Kevin Brennan: The Department for Children, Schools and Families occupies the following five buildings:

Sanctuary Buildings, Great Smith street, London;

Caxton House, Tothill street, London;

Moorfoot, Sheffield;

Castle View House, Runcorn;

Mowden Hall, Darlington.

The same five buildings were also occupied by the Department for Education and Skills on the 26 of June 2007.

Departments: Marketing

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost was of creating signs displaying his Department's name for ministerial offices. [147808]

Kevin Brennan: There are no signs displaying the Department's name on ministerial offices, and therefore no costs were incurred.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date a new sign for his building was commissioned. [147874]

Kevin Brennan: We commissioned a new sign for the Department for Children, Schools and Families on 28 June 2007.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on external consultancy fees involved in the (a) relocation and (b) re-branding of his Department, broken down by (i) company involved and (ii) services provided since 26 June. [147875]

Kevin Brennan: There was no spend on consultancy relating to relocation or re-branding.

Departments: Missing Persons

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether (a) he and (b) Ministers or officials from his Department attended the meeting of the National Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group on 27 June; what steps his Department is taking following the meeting; whether he expects to attend the next meeting; and if he will make a statement. [148110]

Kevin Brennan: The Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group is chaired by the Association of Chief Police Officers and is primarily supported by Government through the Home Office. DCSF officials attend by invitation, and one of my officials attended the last meeting on 27 June. Officials will continue to attend future meetings, reporting back to me through the usual management channels.

At the June meeting, provisional recommendations from our joint work with The Children's Society on young runaways were discussed. We expect to be discussing these further with The Children's Society over the weeks to come, along with any other options for further action that the report presents.

Education: Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which responsibilities of the former Department for Education and Skills his Department holds; whether responsibilities have been transferred to his Department from any other department; and what (i) agencies and (ii) other bodies his Department is responsible for. [147748]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member for Havant to:

the Prime Minister's written ministerial statement of 28 June 2007, Machinery of Government—Departmental Organisation; and the document, 'Machinery of Government: Departmental Organisation', available on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/reports/government_changes/index.asp.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many Portacabin classrooms are in use in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each local education authority area in England. [147815]

Jim Knight: Temporary buildings data supplied to my Department by local authorities do not show the names of manufacturers.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. The bulk of schools capital is now allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local priorities, including the replacement of decayed temporary accommodation, on which we have set a high priority. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to replace temporary buildings where they are considered to be unsuitable.

Modern, high quality mobile or demountable buildings provide a good environment for teaching and learning where there is short-term need. They might, for instance, be needed to cope with a short-term increase in pupil numbers, or where extensive remodelling or rebuilding of permanent accommodation means providing temporary accommodation on the school site, rather than transporting children elsewhere.

Schools: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to set a target for clearing repairs to school buildings identified as required but unfunded in the Asset Management Planning data collected from local education authorities in 2005. [148139]

Jim Knight: Together with any backlog maintenance, the asset management planning condition data supplied to the Department by local education authorities show future requirements over a five-year period. The backlog component is not specifically identified, but it is estimated that future requirements account for the majority of the costs shown in the data. All buildings suffer dilapidation and maintenance is regularly needed to counter this. It is not viable to eliminate future maintenance requirements, but the backlog is being tackled and the cost of urgent work has reduced by approximately 30 per cent. against the data received in 2001.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. The bulk of schools capital is allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local priorities, including maintenance. While reducing maintenance requirements is a long-term aim, the primary objectives for funding are to raise educational standards and tackle local deprivation. A substantial proportion of capital funding is targeted at transformational programmes, such as Building Schools for the Future and the Primary Capital Programmes. Over time, these programmes will significantly reduce future maintenance requirements.

Secondary Education: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions officials in his Department have had with Essex local education authority on secondary education provision in Colchester constituency; and if he will make a statement. [147863]

Jim Knight [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Senior officials from the Department of Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) including the Schools Commissioner, have met officers from Essex county council to discuss, among other issues, secondary school provision in Colchester. There is continuing concern about standards at Alderman Blaxill School, Sir Charles Lucas Arts College and The Thomas Lord Audley School and Language College, all of which are currently in special measures.

DCSF officials and council officers are therefore urgently considering plans for improvement at all these schools. The Department will also work with the local authority on its future strategy for secondary provision in the area, including objectives of securing greater diversity of provision associated with school rebuilding under the Building Schools for the Future programme

Agriculture: Taxation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the financial value was to the agricultural industry of the agricultural building tax relief in the years between 2000 and 2006. [147984]

Angela Eagle: The corporation tax benefit of agricultural buildings allowances is estimated to have been £5 million in 2002, £6 million in 2003, £7 million in 2004 and £6 million in 2005. Figures for other years are not available.

The corresponding figures for unincorporated businesses cannot be reliably estimated separately from industrial buildings allowances.

Average Earnings

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the percentage of average earnings growth in each month of financial year 2006-07 which was attributable to bonuses. [148561]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the percentage of average earnings growth in each month of the financial year 2006-07 which was attributable to bonuses. I am replying in her absence. (148561)

The information you have requested is not available from the systems used to compile the Average Earnings Index. However, it is possible to see the effect of bonuses by comparing the growth rates for the two series 'Average Earnings—including bonuses' and 'Average Earnings—excluding bonuses' published in Tables 15 and 16 respectively of the Labour Market Statistics First Release. The information is presented below for convenience.

Note that in March 2007 the growth rate for the including bonus series showed lower growth than the growth rate for the excluding bonus series. This means that in March bonuses were growing at a lower rate than regular pay.

Bacterial Diseases: Death

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many deaths (a) clostridium difficile, (b) MRSA and (c) acinetobacter has been reported as (i) contributing to and (ii) causing death. [148479]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking in how many deaths (a) clostridium difficile, (b) MRSA and (c) acinetobactor has (i) been reported as contributing to and (ii) causing death. I am replying in her absence. (148479)

Special analyses of deaths involving MRSA and Clostridium difficile are undertaken annually by ONS for England and Wales. These are published annually in Health Statistics Quarterly.

The latest year for which such figures are available is 2005. These data were released in "Health Statistics Quarterly 33" which is available in the House of Commons library and on the National Statistics website.[1,2,3] These reports contain tables of the number of deaths where MRSA and Clostridium difficile were reported as the underlying cause of death or were mentioned anywhere on the death certificate.

There are no routine statistics on deaths involving the gram negative bacterium acinetobacter. Doctors completing death certificates are asked to state the diseases, for example pneumonia, meningitis or septicaemia, which caused or contributed to death. They sometimes specify the micro-organism responsible for such infectious diseases, for example meningococcus, streptococcus pneumoniae etc, but are not required to do so. Indeed, they may not know the organism responsible when certifying the death, or there may be more than one. In addition, causes of death are classified using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). As its name implies, this is a classification of diseases not micro-organisms.

It includes codes for only a limited range of common pathogens. There is no code in any revision of the ICD for acinetobacter.

Bank Services

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people aged (a) 0 to 18, (b) 18 to 24, (c) 25 to 50, (d) 50 to 65, (e) 66 to 84 and (f) 85 years and over held current bank accounts in each region covered by the regional development agencies at the latest date for which figures are available. [148073]

Kitty Ussher: The most recent data available that allows assessment to be made of levels of bank account holding is the Family Resources Survey from 2005-06. The information in the survey is at household level, not individual level.

This data is broken down to Government office regional level and age of the household reference person (the owner of the household property, or the household member with the highest income).

Census: Carers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure that the number of carers is counted in the 2011 Census. [148072]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking that the number of carers is counted in the 2011 Census. I am replying in her absence. (148072)

The inclusion of a question on carers on the 2011 Census is still being considered and the importance of the topic and the value of the data are recognised. Its inclusion is dependent upon space available on the census questionnaire and the requirements from statistics users for competing questions. Consultation on the content of the 2011 Census has identified demand for about six pages worth of questions per person. However, cost constraints and the burden on respondents are likely to limit space to three pages of questions per person and so there are difficult choices to be made.

The final decision on the content of the 2011 Census will ultimately be for Parliament to make.

Crown Dependencies

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) financial aid and (b) assistance was provided by the Government to each of Her Majesty's Crown dependencies in 2005-06. [145718]

Kitty Ussher: The Treasury itself made no such payments in 2005-06. In April 2006 it made a payment of some £585,000 to Jersey. This was a refund of Crown hereditary revenues that Jersey had previously paid into the Consolidated Fund. The refund of such receipts is a long-standing arrangement required by the Jersey and Guernsey (Financial Provisions) Act 1947. The Treasury has no knowledge of any payments to the Crown dependencies by other Government Departments.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147606]

Angela Eagle: The payments made by the Treasury to Common Purpose in each of the last five years were as follows:

2002-03	4,230
2003-04	4,764
2004-05	3,525
2006-07	8,166

The payments were for training courses and events. Records of the outcome of the expenditure are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148020]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury has one completed PFI project which relates to the 1 Horse Guards Road building. There are no other projects commissioned or under way. Full details of the 1 Horse Guards Road PFI project have been included in the Treasury's resource accounts in each year since the project's inception in 2002-03. The Treasury's 2006-07 Annual Report and Accounts, including the resource accounts, are available from http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/departmental_reports/annual_report07.cfm. and the resource accounts for earlier years are available from www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/resourceaccounts/resourceaccounts_index.cfm. The 1 Horse Guards Road project is also included in the list of signed PFI deals at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm, which projects total unitary charge payments, including capital repayments and services, up until 2033-34. The projections for service costs are conditional on the performance of the private sector contractor.

Employment: Mothers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many mothers are in employment. [148462]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many mothers are in employment. I am replying in her absence. (148462)

Estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) show that in the three months ending June 2006, there were 4.84 million working-age mothers in employment who had dependent children. Dependent children are defined as children aged under 16 and those aged 16-18 who are never-married and in full-time education. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

ICT: Manpower

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the regional distribution was of software-related employment according to the Labour Force Survey (a) in 2001 and (b) in the most recent period for which figures are available. [148074]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about software-related employment by region, I am replying in her absence. (148074)

The attached table gives the numbers of people employed in software-related occupations by region for the three months ending December for both 2001 and 2006. For the purpose of this question, software related occupations have been defined as information and communication technology managers, IT strategy and planning professionals, software professionals, IT operations technicians, IT user support technicians, database assistants and clerks, computer engineers installation and maintenance. The data are not seasonally adjusted.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty. This is particularly true for some 4-digit occupational codes given in the table.

Jane Kennedy: I have replied to the right hon. Member.

Overseas Aid

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what continuing financial commitments the UK has towards countries which gained independence from the British Empire. [147511]

Meg Munn: I have been asked to reply.

Upon independence from the UK, financial (and all other) responsibility passed to the independent country's government.

Stamp Duties: Edinburgh

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised from residential stamp duty on properties within the City of Edinburgh local authority area in each year since 1997. [147719]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Estimates of amounts of stamp duty payable on residential transactions for 2005-06, broken down by each local authority, were deposited in the House of Commons Library last June.

The number of transactions bearing stamp duty will be lower than the number shown in the non-zero bands due to the use of various reliefs, e.g. disadvantaged area relief, group relief, registered social landlord relief etc. There are also some lease transactions which fall in the 0 per cent. band on account of consideration, but which bear stamp duty on the lease rental.

Unemployment: North East Region

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many working age workless households with couples without dependent children there were in the north east region in each year since 1992. [148209]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 July 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about workless couple households without dependent children in the North East region. I am replying in her absence. (148209)

The attached table gives the information requested. The figures in the table are estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS), for the three month period ending in May of each year from 1992 to 2006.

A household is defined as a single person, or a group of people living at the same address who have the address as their only main residence and either share one main meal a day or share the living accommodation (or both). A workless working-age couple household is one that is headed by a married/cohabiting couple and that includes at least one person of working age and in which no-one aged 16 or over is in employment. Couple households without dependent children may include non- dependent children, and/or members of other family units, whose economic status affects the combined economic status of the household (i.e. whether it is classified as workless or not).

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Workless working-age couple households without dependent children[1] [2], [3]: north east region: spring (March-May) 1992 to 2006, not seasonally adjusted

[1] A workless couple household is a household that is headed by a married/cohabiting couple and that includes at least one person of working age and in which no-one aged 16 or over is in employment. Couple households without dependent children may include non-dependent children, and/or members of other family units, whose economic status affects the combined economic status of the household (i.e. whether it is classified as workless or not).
[2] Working-age includes men aged 16-64 and women aged 16-59.
[3] Dependent children are those aged under 16 and those aged 16-18 who are never-married and in full-time education.
[4] Estimates have not been adjusted for households with unknown economic activity status.
[5] Workless working-age couple households without dependent children as a percentage of all working-age couple households without dependent children. Base for percentages excludes households with unknown economic activity status.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what sample size was used for 2004-05 tax credit awards to check the level of tax credit fraud and error; and if he will make a statement. [147366]

Jane Kennedy: The sample size used by the HMRC random enquiry to check the level of tax credit error and fraud in 2004-05 is around 4,500.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1890W, on welfare tax credits: overpayments, from how many people who have been declared bankrupt the Tax Credit Office is claiming back tax credit overpayments in the format in which the information is available. [147462]

Jane Kennedy: Since May 2004 HM Revenue and Customs is aware of around 550 cases where claimants have notified the Department that they are bankrupt.

Information is not available for the number of claimants who have notified the Department they are bankrupt but are continuing to pay back an overpayment of tax credits.

If any claimant disputes HMRC's decision to recover an overpayment from them, then HMRC will suspend the recovery of the overpaid tax credits while the reasons for the dispute are looked into.

JUSTICE

Family Courts

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on the openness of proceedings in the family courts; and if he will take steps to increase access to such proceedings. [147718]

Bridget Prentice: The consultation paper "Confidence and confidentiality: Improving transparency and privacy in family courts" was published in July 2006. 245 formal responses were received to the consultation, and over 200 children and young people contributed their views. There was a material difference of opinion in the responses: the media supported the Government's proposal to allow the media into family courts as of right, but children and young people and the groups who support and protect them disagreed. However, children and young people said that they trust the court to make the decision on whether the media should be allowed to attend on a case by case basis. An overview of responses is available at:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/consult/courttransparencyll06/response-cp1106.pdf

The Government therefore have taken a new approach to openness in family courts. Instead of increasing access into such proceedings, they have decided to increase the amount of information coming out of the court. In certain cases, information will be given to the people involved, it will be retained for people who were involved in family proceedings as children to help them understand how decisions were made about them, and it will be made available in an anonymous format for public scrutiny.

A further public consultation was published on 20 June which outlined this new approach, and also asked questions on changing the rules on disclosure of information and whether the identity of a child should be protected after the end of proceedings. The consultation closes on 1 October 2007. It is available at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/cp1007.htm

Family Law: Legal Aid Scheme

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 346W, on family law, legal aid scheme, how much of the legal aid bill for family law cases since 2005 can be attributed to contributions towards the costs of residential assessments in care proceedings. [147485]

Bridget Prentice: Information on the cost to legal aid of residential assessments in care proceedings is not recorded centrally. Further work is being done to isolate these costs through a review of closed files at the moment.

Graffiti: Prosecutions

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions were made and (b) fixed penalty notices were issued by (i) each police force and (ii) each local authority for graffiti under the (A) Criminal Damage Act 1971, (B) Clean Neighbourhood and Environment and Neighbourhoods Act 2005 and (C) Anti-Social Behaviour Act 2003 in each of the last 10 years. [147997]

Mr. Hanson: Graffiti is not a specific offence under the Criminal Damage Act 1971, the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 or the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005.

Prosecutions for graffiti under these acts would be included with other offences, for example under the Criminal Damage Act 1971 it is likely these offences would be prosecuted under 'other criminal damage'. It is therefore not possible to separate graffiti offences from other acts of criminal damage.

Data on the number of environmental fixed penalty notices issued for graffiti-related offences are held by the Department for the Environment, Food, and Rural Affairs (DEFRA). The following table provided by DEFRA shows the number of fixed penalty notices issued for offences relating to graffiti by local authorities under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 as amended by the Clean Environment and Neighbourhoods Act 2005, for the years 2004-05 and 2005-06. DEFRA do not hold this information broken down by police force area.

Local authority	Number of fixed penalties issued 2004-05
Blyth Valley BC	1
Gateshead BC	26
LB Barking and Dagenham	6
Newcastle upon Tyne CC	5
Sheffield CC	1
Stockton-on-Tees DC	8
Total	47
2005-06
Newcastle upon Tyne CC	1
Peterborough CC	2
Solihull BC	14
Southampton CC	2
Total	19

Under the penalty notice for disorder (PND) scheme, a fixed penalty of £80 may be issued for criminal damage up to a value of £500. While some PNDs issued for criminal damage may actually be for acts of graffiti, it is not possible to identify how many of these were issued for graffiti. This detailed information is only held by individual police forces.

Home Detention Curfews

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to increase the number of offences that fall within the Home Detention Curfew Scheme. [148196]

Mr. Hanson: The Home Detention Curfew Scheme is kept under careful review but at present there are no plans to make changes to the eligibility criteria of the scheme.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for which offences prisoners may be included in the Home Detention Curfew Release Scheme. [148197]

Mr. Hanson: Eligible prisoners primarily serving sentences of three months or more but less than four years may be considered for early release under the Home Detention Curfew scheme (HOC).

Certain categories of prisoners are statutorily excluded from HOC, including prisoners subject to the registration requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (formerly Part 1 of the Sex Offenders Act 1997) and prisoners serving extended sentences for violent offences. In addition, prisoners with any history of sexual offending or serving sentences for certain serious offences are presumed unsuitable for release on HDC unless there are exceptional reasons to grant release. The categories of offences are: homicide, including manslaughter and causing death by dangerous driving; certain explosives offences; child cruelty; possession of a firearm with intent; possession of an offensive weapon and racially aggravated offences.

Prisoners who are not excluded or presumed unsuitable are eligible to be considered for HDC but are not granted release under the scheme unless they have a suitable release address and pass a careful risk assessment. Full details of the eligibility criteria and assessment process are contained in Prison Service Order 6700 which is available on the HM Prison Service website.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 910-11W, on home detention curfews, how many of those prisoners were returned to prison under the terms of a home detention curfew for committing (a) murder, (b) rape, (c) burglary, (d) grievous bodily harm and (e) actual bodily harm. [148291]

Mr. Hanson: From Table 10.7 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005, there were 402 recalls in 2003, 464 recalls in 2004, and 327 recalls from Home Detention Curfew during 2005 where the offender was charged with a new offence but it is not possible to give a full breakdown by offence because of disproportionate cost. This publication can be found in the House of Commons Library and the table can be accessed at:

http://www/homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1806section10.xls

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Legal Aid Scheme: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many law practices in Wales received funds through the Crown courts in Wales for (a) legal aid advice and assistance and (b) legal aid including representation, in each of the last seven years, broken down by (i) the lowest possible geographical areas for which figures are available, (ii) the type of case and (iii) the nature of the work for which the legal aid was paid; and if he will make a statement. [147361]

Maria Eagle: The following tables show the number of solicitor offices that received funding for proceedings in the Crown court by category of offence and geographical location of the solicitors' offices in Wales, for each of the last six years. Figures for 2000-01 are not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate costs.

In addition to receiving payments directly from the Crown court, the Legal Services Commission also pays solicitors' offices directly under individual cases contracts for proceedings in the Crown court in cases expected to last more than 40 days at court.

The following tables show the number of solicitors' offices that had received these payments by category of law and geographical area within Wales. These solicitors offices may have also received payments directly from the Crown courts for other cases.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many law practices in Wales received funds through the Legal Services Commission for (a) legal aid advice and assistance and (b) legal aid including representation, in each of the last seven years, broken down by (i) type of case and (ii) the lowest-level geographical areas for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [146846]

(3) how much legal aid funding was provided by the Legal Services Commission in each of the smallest geographical areas of Wales for which figures are available in each of the last seven years, broken down by (a) the type of case and (b) the nature of the work for which the legal aid was paid; and if he will make a statement; [146911]

(4) how many legal cases in Wales received legal aid in each of the last seven years, broken down by (a) the lowest possible geographical areas for which figures are available, (b) the type of case and (c) the type of work for which the legal aid was paid; and if he will make a statement. [147010]

Bridget Prentice: There are 22 bid zones within Wales, and seven categories of work. The categories include Legal Help, CLS Direct, civil representation, Criminal Lower, Criminal Higher, Criminal Case Contracts and CDS Direct.

Each type of work will have its own further category of law (an average of 10 categories). Providing this information over seven years would produce an answer which would include more than 10,000 items of data. The information requested is therefore not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Magistrates Courts

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the average time was between the first hearing after charge in the magistrates' court and the date when magistrates committed a case for trial at the Crown court in the last 12 months; [147955]

(2) how many and what proportion of cases listed for a committal hearing at magistrates' courts were not effective and adjourned to another day in the last 12 months; [147956]

(3) in how many adjourned committal hearings adjournment was sought by the (a) prosecution and (b) defence in the last 12 months; [147957]

(4) in how many cases adjournment was sought in committal hearings because papers for the committal were prosecution papers not ready to be presented to the court in the last 12 months; [147958]

(5) what the average length of adjournment was in cases where hearings listed for committal were adjourned for another committal hearing on another day in the last 12 months; [147998]

(6) what the average length of adjournment between a defendant's first appearance in court after charge and the first listing for a committal hearing was in the last 12 months; [147999]

(7) what records are kept of the reasons for adjournment of committal hearings; [148000]

(8) how many cases in magistrates' courts in England and Wales were listed for committal more than (a) once and (b) twice in the last 12 months; [148001]

(9) how many committal hearings were listed in magistrates' courts in England and Wales in the last 12 months; [148002]

(10) whether he has made an estimate of the cost to (a) defendants, (b) their employers and (c) others involved besides the Court and the prosecution of non-effective committal hearings. [148022]

Maria Eagle: The following table presents key statistics on the progression of committal proceedings in the magistrates courts.

No centrally-collated information is available on the reasons for, or the costs arising from, adjournments in committal proceedings. However, in the year ending March 2007, there were 3,057 magistrates courts trials that were ineffective because the prosecution was not ready (1.7 per cent. of all recorded trials in the period), and a further 4,218 ineffective because the defence was not ready (2.3 per cent. of recorded trials). Equivalent figures are not available for committal proceedings.

No information is available on the total number of committal hearings listed in the magistrates courts in England and Wales. However, the table shows that:

there were around 98,000 cases in the magistrates courts in 2005 which were disposed of through committal or sending to the Crown Court there were an average of 2.6 listings per case in 2006 (covering the whole duration of these cases in the magistrates courts)

On this basis, it can be estimated that cases committed or sent to the Crown Court account for an approximate total of 255,000 listings per year in the magistrates courts.

Notes:
1. Data on the total number of cases is taken from the Home Office publication "Criminal Statistics 2005". This is the most recent full year for which published data are available. All other date are taken from the Time Intervals Survey (TIS) in the magistrates courts. The TIS is a sample survey that produces estimates of the average time taken between stages of proceedings for defendants in completed criminal cases in magistrates' courts. More Information on TIS is available from the Ministry of Justice website.
2. All 'committals' statistics shown above include cases which were sent to the Crown Court for trial without committal proceedings, under section 51 of the Crime and Disorder Ad 1998. The above figures relate to both adult and youth defendants, and include both summonsed and charged cases. This TIS data relates to indictable and triable either way cases only, and therefore excludes the small number of summary cases that are committed to the Crown Court However, these cases will be counted in the total number of cases per year.
3. "First listing" refers to the first listed hearing of the case in the magistrates courts Figures for adjournments relate to the whole duration of the case in the magistrates courts, and will therefore count adjournments to other hearings besides the committal hearing. Figures are not available on the number of adjournments by hearing type. The number of adjournments in any given case is defined as being one less than the number of times the case was listed. A listing refers to any occasion when the case was considered by the court. The average number of adjournments is the average across all cases, including those which were completed at first listing and where no adjournments occurred. The average length of adjournments is calculated by dividing the duration of a case (from first listing to completion) by the number of adjournments that occurred.

Prisoners: Facilities

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 912-3W, on prisoners: facilities, how many prisoners categorised as vulnerable have been held in police and court cells since January 2006; [147976]

(2) how many prisoners have been held in (a) court cells and (b) police cells for two or more successive nights over the last 12 months; [148053]

(3) through which bodies food is provided to prisoners housed in police and court cells; [148054]

(4) how many prisoners have spent their first night in custody in a police or court cell since January 2006; and (a) where, (b) by whom and (c) at what point in custody such prisoners' (i) drug treatment, (ii) detoxification and (iii) wider health needs were assessed. [148055]

Mr. Hanson: All efforts are made to avoid housing prisoners vulnerable to self harm or with drugs or health needs in police cells under Operation Safeguard and in court cells. The information requested is not held centrally. Those identified as at risk of self-harm or self-inflicted death will have that identified on their PER (Prisoner Escort Record) form.

The number of prisoners who have spent two or more successive nights in police cells under Operation Safeguard is not centrally held. Since January 2007, 35 prisoners have been held exceptionally in court cells for two successive nights.

The provision of food to prisoners held in police or court cells is the responsibility of the individual police force or custody contractor.

The number of prisoners who spent their first night in custody under Operation Safeguard or in court cells is not held centrally.

Prisoners: Learning Disability

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what support there is from within the Probation Service for people on probation with learning disabilities; [148112]

(2) what support there is from within the Prison Service for prisoners with learning disabilities. [148115]

Mr. Hanson: People with learning disabilities have the same rights as other citizens. To help ensure they receive the extra support to which they entitled under the under the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, the Care Services Improvement Partnership (CSIP), part of the Department of Health, has produced the document 'Positive Practice, Positive Outcomes; A handbook for Professionals in the Criminal Justice System working with offenders with learning disabilities' (CSIP, 2007).

This sets out the support that must be provided by the police, the courts, in prisons and on probation.

A copy has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prisoner on prisoner and (b) prisoner on officer assaults were recorded in each month in each year since 2002, broken down by prison establishment; and if he will make a statement. [147387]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, I refer the hon. Lady to the table of annual figures that I have placed in the Libraries of the House.

Young Offenders: Restraints Techniques

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how often the (a) figure of four hold and (b) double basket hold was used in each secure training centre in each of the last seven years. [147708]

Mr. Hanson: To provide the information requested would require secure training centres to review every individual incident report to identify which techniques were used in the course of incidents, therefore the information is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The double embrace technique used in the seated position was withdrawn by the Youth Justice Board in June 2004, and subsequently discontinued on the advice of the expert panel.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what response was made by (a) the Youth Justice Board and (b) the Home Office to the representations from NCH on the risks of restraint in secure training centres. [147710]

Mr. Hanson: A report was commissioned in 2003 by the Youth Justice Board from the National Children's Bureau. The report raised no specific risks related to restraints in the secure training centres, but raised a number issues affecting the whole of the juvenile secure estate.

In response to the report, the Youth Justice Board developed a code of practice for managing challenging behaviour in all parts of the secure estate. It has also instituted a behaviour management programme, which deals with a number of the issues raised in the report.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions pain distraction techniques to the (a) nose, (b) thumb and (c) rib were used in each secure training centre in each of the last five years. [147711]

Mr. Hanson: The available information, provided by the Youth Justice Board, is given in the following table.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions the Youth Justice Board has placed in the Library statistics on the use of restraint in secure training centres other than in response to a parliamentary question in the last five years. [147712]

Mr. Hanson: Following a request from the Joint Committee on Human Rights, we agreed to place quarterly statistics in the Library. So far, data for the final three quarters of 2006 have been placed in the Library.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions the Youth Justice Board has released information about the use of restraint other than in response to a parliamentary question in the last five years. [147713]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board has replied to numerous requests for information about use of restraint and it supplies quarterly statistics which are placed in the Library of the House. As the information requested covers an extended period, it could not be collated without disproportionate cost.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment was made of the level of risk to trainees in incidents of restraint in secure training centres examined by an external expert reporting to Northamptonshire police following the death of Gareth Myatt. [147896]

Mr. Hanson: The expert witness concerned raised a number of issues related to the system of restraint used in secure training centres. After considering the expert's report the Youth Justice Board suspended use of the double embrace technique in June 2004.

Modifications to the approved holds were subsequently assessed by the panel of experts advising the Youth Justice Board. These modifications were adopted in 2005 and the double embrace technique was permanently withdrawn.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on what occasions the expert panel advising the Youth Justice Board on restraint met between 1996 and 2007. [147709]

Mr. Hanson: An expert panel advising the Home Office on restraint techniques met on 27 January 1998. Expert panels advising the Youth Justice Board met on 25 November 2004, 10 March 2005 and 21 December2006.

Voting Behaviour

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of voter turnout among people with English as a second language. [147766]

Mr. Wills: The Government have not made any estimation of election turnout rates among those eligible voters whose first language is not English. The Electoral Commission has the role of evaluating election turnout, and published its report 'Election 2005: Turnout. How many, who and why?' in October 2005. That report indicated, based on research polls, that the turnout rate of BME groups was 47 per cent. (lower than the overall turnout of 61 per cent.). However,, this figure does not include any consideration of English as a second language, and the Commission has not included any research into this issue within its report. Such research would undoubtedly prove difficult to undertake, since it would not be clear from any direct recorded source whether an eligible voter uses another language, other than English, as his first language.

The Government, however, have taken steps to ensure that all eligible voters, including those with English as a second language, should have access to the electoral process. Sections 36 and 37 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 enable local electoral officers to provide certain documents and guidance to voters in alternative languages.

Some authorities have taken advantage of these new powers to provide guidance in a number of languages. However, ballot papers are exempted from the documents that can be translated, as this would breach secrecy rules.

Witnesses: Children

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what arrangements there are in relation to the conduct of court cases in EU countries involving minors from other member states intervention in (a) countries and (b) circumstances where it is considered the relevant court is not suitably competent; and if he will make a statement. [146934]

Bridget Prentice: Ministers have no powers to intervene in court proceedings in the UK or in the courts of other countries.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what duty of care the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission owes to parents with care in respect of maintenance entitlement; and if he will make a statement. [146139]

Mr. Plaskitt: The responsibility for paying child maintenance lies with the non-resident parent in each case, not with the administrative body (whether CSA now or the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission in the future). It follows that CMEC will not have a common law duty of care to its clients in respect of child maintenance.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of non-resident parents each year who would be eligible for an adjustment to their child maintenance under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission to reflect their incomes being (a) higher and (b) lower than in the previous tax years if the threshold for re-assessment was set at (i) 10, (ii) 15, (iii) 20 and (iv) 25 per cent.; [146181]

(2) what estimate he has made of the proportion of non-resident parents who will have their maintenance amended using the previous year's HM Revenue and Customs income data under the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [146193]

Mr. Plaskitt: With the increased focus on voluntary arrangements and the ending of the requirement that parents with care on benefit be treated as applying for child maintenance, not all of the current Child Support Agency caseload will choose to use the statutory maintenance service. Since we do not know the precise composition of the resulting caseload, it is not possible to estimate how many non- resident parents will be eligible for an adjustment.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission: Fees and Charges

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his policy is on charging parents with care an upfront fee to use the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement; [146433]

(2) what reasons he has made it his policy that charges applied for the use of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission should only fall on the non-resident parent; what level of charges is planned; what the purpose of the charges is; and if he will make a statement. [147109]

Mr. Plaskitt: The final arrangements for charging have not yet been decided. The Secretary of State will be responsible for laying regulations on the specific arrangements for any charging scheme following advice from the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

I refer the hon. Member to paragraph 5.48 of the White Paper: A new system of child maintenance [Cm 6979] and to paragraph 5.43 of the White Paper Consultation Response [Cm 7061].

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to exempt non-resident parents using the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission from paying fees if they have (a) standing orders or direct debit arrangements and (b) good levels of compliance; and if he will make a statement. [146436]

Mr. Plaskitt: The final arrangements for charging have not yet been decided. The Secretary of State will be responsible for laying regulations on the specific arrangements for any charging scheme following advice from the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

I refer the hon. Member to paragraphs 5.48 and 5.49 of the White Paper: 'A new system of child maintenance' [Cm 6979].

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to give the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission powers to pursue maintenance from non-resident parents who have moved abroad; and if he will make a statement. [146444]

Mr. Plaskitt: As is currently the case with the Child Support Agency, the Commission will not usually have jurisdiction to make or pursue a maintenance liability where the non-resident parent moves abroad.

The Ministry of Justice does however operate a system for administering international child and spousal maintenance cases; this is known as the reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders (REMO).

Where a parent with care applies to their local magistrates' court or family proceedings court, details of the maintenance liability can be referred to the foreign jurisdiction—where the non-resident parent now resides—whom will be able to apply their domestic collection and enforcement mechanisms in order to recover the amount due. They will then refer this money back to the UK REMO administrators.

The UK has reciprocal maintenance agreements with over 100 states and territories.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what analytical mechanism underlies the choice of the shares of gross income which will be applied to calculate the child maintenance amounts under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [146607]

Mr. Plaskitt: A tax benefit model was used to convert a range of gross incomes to equivalent net incomes based on expected tax and national insurance structures for 2009-10. Different percentages were applied to these levels of gross income. The rates were chosen so that the resultant liabilities were broadly the same as liabilities under the post 2003 scheme at the equivalent net income levels.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what budget will be allocated to the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission to assist and enable parents who have broken up to establish private maintenance arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [146609]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to his question on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 444W.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission: Powers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons his Department plans to give the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission the power to seek curfews; and if he will make a statement. [146606]

Mr. Plaskitt: Introducing this new compliance measure provides the Commission with a wider range of powers while strengthening the message that the non-payment of maintenance is a serious matter.

Where other, more direct methods of enforcement have been tried but maintenance remains outstanding, we need adequate measures in place to encourage compliance from those who wilfully refuse or culpably neglect to pay child maintenance. And we believe that, in the right cases, applying to the court for a curfew order against the non-resident parent will indeed encourage that compliance.

We consider curfew orders to be an effective alternative to committal; it will create a strong incentive for the non-resident parent to comply but will not impede his or her ability to do so by causing him or her to lose his or her job.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of children in families receiving child maintenance (a) before and (b) after the introduction of the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [146442]

Mr. Plaskitt: The overall impact of the measures in the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill 2007 are set out in the Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) which was published alongside the Bill. The number of parents with care estimated to receive maintenance, currently and post implementation of the measures in the Bill is set out in table 6 of the RIA. This equates to an increase from around 1 million children benefiting from maintenance currently to around 2 million children in steady state.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to place a legal duty on non-resident parents to report a change of income which is above the threshold for revised maintenance assessment as part of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission operations; and if he will make a statement. [146632]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have no plans to place such a legal duty on non-resident parents.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether it will be necessary, under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, to carry out an annual income variation review for the majority of non-resident parents; and if he will make a statement. [146633]

Mr. Plaskitt: The intention is that each case will be subject to an annual review in order to keep maintenance calculations up to date with the parent's circumstances, including the income of the non-resident parent.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has periodically to review the standard percentage rates of income for child maintenance under the New Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [146634]

Mr. Plaskitt: We will review the standard percentage rates during the course of each Parliament.

Child Support Agency: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will provide his assessment of the Child Support Agency's performance against its performance targets in the 12 months to 31 May 2007. [146622]

Mr. Plaskitt: Secretary of State performance targets have been set for April 2007 to March 2008 and published in the Child Support Agency business plan. Progress against these targets for the quarter ending June 2007 will be available in the July publication of the Child Support Agency (CSA) Quarterly Summary Statistics, a National Statistics publication. A separate set of targets and levels were set for the period April 2006 to March 2007 and published in the Child Support Agency business plan for that year. Performance against the 2006-7 targets is available in the March 2007 publication of the Quarterly Summary Statistics.

Copies of Quarterly Summary Statistics can be found at www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/csa.asp

Copies of the Child Support Agency business plans for 2006-07 and 2007-08 can be found at Copies should also be available in the House of Commons Library.

Child Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the merits of collecting child maintenance directly from earnings as an addition to the pay as you earn system of taxation; and if he will make a statement. [146630]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are not considering moving the core functions of Child Maintenance to HMRC. We asked Sir David Henshaw to assess the merits of collecting child maintenance directly from earnings as part of the pay as you earn system. He concluded that this is not a sensible approach.

I refer the hon. Gentleman to paragraphs 123-6 of "Recovering child support: routes to responsibility, Sir David Henshaw's report to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions", and to paragraphs 45-6 of "A fresh start: child support redesign—the Government's response to Sir David Henshaw".

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons he plans to allow enabling consent orders for child maintenance made by a court to be overridden by a Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission calculation after 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [146702]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have no plan to change the current rules whereby, consent orders for child maintenance, of more than 12 months duration, may be set aside by the Child Support Agency if a parent applies for a maintenance calculation. The 12 month rule works well, encouraging courts to record fair and consistent levels of child maintenance and ensuring that if circumstances change or agreements break down, parents have a quick route into the Child Support Agency and maintenance continues to flow to children.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimates he has made of the expected reduction in caseload under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and what proportion of the reduced case load is expected to be accounted for through (a) maintenance arrangements made privately, (b) maintenance arrangements through the courts and (c) no maintenance arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [146704]

Mr. Plaskitt: The exact composition of the future case load is subject to significant behavioural uncertainties and is entirely dependent on the choices that parents make. The following table shows the expected composition of the future case load once all of the policy changes have fully bedded in:

	Percentage
Statutory maintenance service	40
Voluntary arrangements	30
Courts	5
No arrangement	25

The Department for Work and Pensions is currently conducting further research to assess the choices that parents are likely to make through the Relationship Separation Survey which is due to be published in spring 2008. This survey will be used to develop and test these estimates further.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what threshold has been set for shared care to affect a child maintenance assessment under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [147107]

Mr. Plaskitt: The shared care rules will remain largely as they are now. A non-resident parent will be entitled to a reduction in statutory maintenance if they care for a qualifying child for on average at least one night per week.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is on shared care arrangements in relation to child maintenance payable under the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; whether a shared care maintenance reduction can be allowed in cases where no long-term shared care agreement is available; and if he will make a statement. [147108]

Mr. Plaskitt: Maintenance will be reduced to take account of shared care arrangements where a non-resident parent has overnight care of the children on average for at least one night per week.

Provisions in the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill will allow for regulations to provide that a reduction in maintenance could be based either on past evidence of shared care, or on an agreement for future shared care arrangements. Other provisions will allow for regulations to provide that in cases where both parents have agreed that care of the children will be shared, but they have not yet reached an agreement on the pattern or frequency, the Commission will be able to proceed and reduce maintenance for a certain period on the basis of an assumption about shared care.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what penalties will be applied by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission when false information is supplied by non-resident parents in relation to child maintenance calculations; and if he will make a statement. [147110]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are two criminal offences in relation to the supply of information in child maintenance cases. These are knowingly providing false information and failing to provide information where a request is made. A person guilty of either offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine of up to £1,000.

It is envisaged that these offences will be applied by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission in the same way that they are currently applied by the Child Support Agency.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons the Government are delaying the increased child maintenance disregard to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [146688]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Government expects to extend the £10 disregard to parents with care on benefit covered by the old scheme rules by the end of 2008. This should benefit 40,000 parents with care and 55,000 children. It is essential that children can benefit from maintenance that parents provide. The White Paper makes clear that, from 2010-11, the Government will significantly increase the amount of maintenance that all parents with care on benefit can keep before it affects the level of benefit they receive. This timescale enables further analysis to be undertaken on the potential impact of different levels of disregard on child poverty, compliance rates and work incentives.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of lone parents (a) in employment (b) out of employment are receiving child maintenance in the UK. [146691]

Mr. Plaskitt: Analysis of data from the 2005-06 Family Resources Survey shows that around 40 per cent. of eligible lone parents in employment and around 15 per cent. of eligible lone parents who are not in employment report that they receive child maintenance.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps are being taken to ensure that a greater proportion of non-compliant non-resident parents face enforcement action; [146719]

(2) what steps are being taken to increase the proportion of females receiving payments from non-resident parents. [146720]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 9 July 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to ensure a greater proportion of non-compliant, non-resident parents face enforcement action. [PQ146719] and

You also asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what steps are being taken to increase the proportion of females receiving payments from non-resident parents. [PQ146720]

The Agency is now in the second year of a three year Operational Improvement Plan. The first year of the Operational Improvement Plan focused on the organisational and operational restructuring of the Agency, and the training of our people to increase our capacity and capability.

Although we made no commitments in the first year of the Operational Improvement Plan, some early improvements are evident, and more money is already getting to more children. In the year to March 2007, the number of parents with care receiving maintenance saw an increase of 9% from 429,000 to 466,000, benefiting 635,000 children.

The second year of the Operational Improvement Plan, focuses on resolving the remaining computer system difficulties, and improving rates of compliance and the collection of child maintenance. Improvements to the computer system will help to further boost productivity, aid debt and legal enforcement activities and contribute to an increase in levels of case compliance. Building on the increase of our people, including quadrupling those employed in enforcement work, there will be stronger focus on the collection of debt. We will continue to work with debt collection agencies.

The Agency is also working to counter a culture of non-compliance among some non-resident parents. In March this year we launched the first phase of a sustained maintenance enforcement campaign, which highlighted the significantly increased enforcement action undertaken through the courts in the past year. The Agency has increased the use of liability orders, County Court Judgments and bailiff action, taking the total number of court actions to 34,000 in the year to January 2007 an increase of 36% from 25,000 in the previous year.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Employment

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of how many jobseeker allowance recipients have refused jobs on grounds of (a) conscientious and (b) religious objections. [146251]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave him on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 478W.

Gender

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been issued with gender recognition certificates in the last 12 months. [147736]

Mr. Wills: I have been asked to reply.

In the period from 4 July 2006 to 3 July 2007, the Gender Recognition Panel issued 542 full gender recognition certificates and 26 interim gender recognition certificates. Interim certificates are issued to people who are in an existing marriage or civil partnership. They allow the holder to apply to the courts for his or her existing marriage or civil partnership to be annulled or dissolved and for a full gender recognition certificate to be issued signifying full legal recognition of the acquired gender.

Of the 26 interim certificate-holders, seven people have proceeded to obtain full certificates and five are currently going through the annulment or dissolution process. Some full certificates will also have been issued by the courts in this period following the issue of interim certificates by the panel prior to 4 July 2006. The exact number of these cases is not immediately available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information his Department has received from the Rent Service on the impact on housing benefit rates of the switch from using the median to the mean when calculating the relevant rates. [146047]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Rent Service has provided the Department with estimated median local housing allowance rates for a selection of local authorities. These were based on their existing market evidence database and were intended to be illustrative only and not an indication of what median local housing allowance rates will be for the 2008 roll-out.

The Rent Service have since set up dedicated teams of rent officers to lead a programme of analysis and collection of rental data to ensure that the local housing allowance rates remain robust and are representative of the private rented sector market.

The Rent Service has committed to providing indicative median local housing allowance rates to all local authorities in October 2007, providing provisional median local housing allowance rates in January 2008 and providing the live median local housing allowance rates to all local authorities in March 2008.

The national local housing allowance rate in the private rented sector will be set at the median of market rents, while the pathfinder model of the local housing allowance set the rate at the midpoint of market rents.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the introduction of the local housing allowance on differences between housing benefit received and rent paid by claimants subject to a single room rent/shared room restriction. [146048]

Mr. Plaskitt: Any shortfall between the housing benefit received and contractual rent at the time of national roll-out of the local housing allowance will depend on the trends in local rent levels, the accommodation choices made by tenants and the tenant's income. It is currently hard to predict each of these aspects up to the point of national roll-out of the local housing allowance. We will be monitoring shortfalls between the shared room rate and contractual rent as part of the two year review of the national roll-out of the local housing allowance.

The shared room rate under the national roll-out of the local housing allowance covers a broader definition of what can be counted as shared accommodation than the single room rent restriction. Additionally, as the shared room rate will be set at the median of local market rents, this ensures that 50 per cent. of the shared properties on the Rent Officers' database will be affordable at the shared room rate. Since the rates are published, tenants will also be aware of their maximum housing benefit entitlement in advance and be able to make an informed decision about what accommodation they can afford.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether rent officers are required to take into account actual rent levels when setting (a) broad market rental area boundaries and (b) local housing allowance rates. [146049]

Mr. Plaskitt: The definition for broad rental market area (BRMA) is laid down in statute and it does not require rent officers to have any regard to rent levels. It relates primarily to access to facilities and services for health, education, recreation, personal banking and shopping. The BRMA must contain a mix of property types held on a variety of tenancies.

When setting local housing allowance (LHA) rates rent officers must have regard to rents in the broad market rental area. Under the current pathfinder scheme the LHA is calculated by gathering evidence of rents for properties of the appropriate size and excluding those that are exceptionally high or low to determine a high rent and low rent. The high and low rents are then added together and divided by two to produce the LHA.

Under the Welfare Reform Act 2007, we are introducing a new way of calculating the LHA based on a median rent that does not require the rent officer to exclude any rents from the evidence.

Immigration: Social Security Benefits

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average amount of benefits taken up by an immigrant from (a) a European Union country and (b) another country in the last 12 months. [146103]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Learning Disability: Social Security Benefits

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential effect of loss of benefits by people with a learning disability wishing to take up work on their ability to do so; and if he will introduce measures to ensure flexibility in the benefits system for such people. [147399]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are aware that people with severe or specific learning difficulties are one of the groups least likely to move off state benefits and into sustained work. We recognise that part-time work can be important to well-being, to developing self worth, and a stepping-stone to sustained work and a life independent of the benefit system. That is why we already have the permitted work rules in the current incapacity benefits system which enable a person on incapacity benefit to work up to 16 hours and earn up to £86 per week, for an initial period of up to 52 weeks, to allow engagement with the labour market. For people on income support the earnings disregard is currently £20 per week.

We are bringing these rules forward into the new employment and support allowance (ESA) However, within the new ESA we will be aligning the existing permitted work earnings limits. This means that anyone claiming ESA will be able to earn up to £86 per week for up to 52 weeks without it affecting their benefit entitlement.

Linking rules are designed to give customers security when they leave benefit for work or training. If the job or training does not work out, they will receive the same cash level if they return to benefit within a specified period. We know that the security that linking rules provide is important to many people and we will continue to have linking rules in ESA.

We believe these rules are a valuable element of the current benefit system and, combined with the rules we have on unlimited voluntary work while on incapacity benefits, provide customers with a wide range of opportunities to try out work themselves. We will continue to look for other ways of helping people take up opportunities to work and increase their options without fear of their benefits being immediately affected.

Pensioners: Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners in Warrington who received energy efficiency grants in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [147360]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

During the 2006-07 financial year, the Government's warm front scheme provided grants to 645 pensioner households in Warrington. Of these, 327 households were in the Warrington, North area and 318 in Warrington, South.

Recruitment: Internet

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of online job searches made via Jobcentre Plus facilities in March resulted in placements. [147728]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is not available.

Social Security

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of income support back to work bonus payments in each year since their creation. [146222]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. The available information about back to work bonus payments is in the following table.

Income support customers paid back to work bonuses: Great Britain

PRIME MINISTER

Olympic Games: Departmental Responsibilities

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he had with Olympic stakeholders before making the decision to move the Olympics Minister to the Cabinet Office. [148081]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

Public Appointments

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to invite Parliament to have confirmation hearings for major public appointments. [147099]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to my statement on 3 July 2007, Official Report, columns 815-20.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants: Low Pay

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants (a) are receiving the minimum wage and (b) earn less than £6 per hour. [147101]

Gillian Merron: Departments have delegated authority to determine pay arrangements for their own staff below the senior civil service that meet their own business needs. Under the delegated arrangements, information on salaries of individual members of staff and the hours that they work, which is necessary to calculate hourly rates of pay, is not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what percentage of staff in the Prime Minister's Office are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps the Prime Minister's Office has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147336]

Gillian Merron: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office and therefore the answer provided is for the whole of the Cabinet Office including the Prime Minister's Office.

144 members of staff in Cabinet Office (9.3 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in his Office have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147046]

Gillian Merron: The number of Cabinet Office staff with periods of sick absence lasting less than five days for the calendar year 2006 are as follows:

	Number
(a) five or more absences	67
(b) four absences	42
(c) three absences	76
(d) two absences	157

Disadvantaged: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many families in Blackpool, South have been classified as at risk as part of her Department's Families at Risk review. [146451]

Gillian Merron: The Families at Risk Review found that in 2005, around 2 per cent. of families in Britain experienced five or more disadvantages. For example, those with parents lacking any qualifications. This was based on analysis using the Families and Children Study (FACS), which is representative of families with children in Britain. At the local council level, the number of families with five or more disadvantages in the FACS is very small, and it is therefore not possible to accurately estimate how many families are at risk in Blackpool, South or indeed in any other specific areas.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many projects in Blackpool have received funding from her Department since the launch of the Social Exclusion Plan. [146452]

Gillian Merron: None. The Social Exclusion Task Force does not deliver services itself and therefore does not directly fund projects.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which board positions were filled by Government Ministers on (a) the Olympic Board, (b) the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games, (c) the Olympic Delivery Authority and (d) MISC 25 as at 26 June; and which Ministers now fill such positions. [147843]

Tessa Jowell: As at 26 June, I co-chaired the Olympic Board and sat on the MISC 25 Committee as Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport. My right hon. Friend, the Member for Sheffield, Central also attended the Olympic Board and MISC 25 Committee as part of his duties as Minister for Sport.

I continue to co-chair the Olympic Board as Minister for the Olympics. The new Minister for Sport will also attend the Olympic Board.

The MISC 25 Committee is yet to be formally reconstituted following the appointment of the Prime Minister.

There is no ministerial representation on the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) Board.

As at 26 June my right hon. Friend, the Member for Sheffield, Central, sat on the Board of the London Organising Committee for the 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG). I will nominate a new Government representative to sit on the LOCOG Board in due course.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which civil servants are responsible for the Government's London 2012 Olympics budget; how many civil servants work on the project; in which (a) Departments and (b) directorates they are based; and what mechanisms exist to co-ordinate the work with officials in the Cabinet Office and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. [147851]

Tessa Jowell: The civil servants responsible for the London 2012 budget remain in the Government Olympic Executive (GOE), which is based in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport but reports to me. The Accounting Officer remains the Permanent Secretary at DCMS. Officials in other parts of DCMS and in other Departments across Whitehall continue to work on specific policy aspects of the Olympic programme—all of which are co-ordinated by GOE. There are currently 51.5 full-time equivalent staff working in GOE and three full-time press officers working on the Olympics. I also have a small private office in the Cabinet Office.

Policy Review

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1831W, on policy review, for what reason the Economic Dynamism group did not produce a final report. [147032]

Edward Miliband: The work of the Economic Dynamism strand of the Policy Review, is informing a wide range of Government business including the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, which will be published in the autumn.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answers of (a) 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 543W and (b) 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1831W, on the policy review, if he will make an estimate of the cost of the policy review, separately identifying costs of (A) producing presentations, (B) designing, printing and distributing reports, (C) website costs, (D) consultancy fees and (E) staff time. [147038]

Edward Miliband: External costs of the full Policy Review process, covering six major policy areas, were £93,000 for producing reports, £10,000 for a web site and e-mail alerts, and £90,000 for the deliberative exercise, a total of £193,000. On the cost of presentations and staff time I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 543W.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Energy: EU Law

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) for what reasons the Government have recommended the use of real time displays in its proposals for meeting the Energy Services Directive; [146647]

(2) what consideration the Government have given to introducing smart meters with displays in May 2008 prior to the implementation of the Energy Services Directive. [146648]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 2 July 2007]: In the Energy White Paper, the Government made clear their view that display devices could give gas and electricity customers information to help them make early reductions in their energy use. At present, information available to the Government suggests that smart meters are not yet cost-effective. We expect this to change, and further activity in respect of smart metering is being undertaken by interested parties to improve understanding of the costs and benefits. In setting out their White Paper proposals on display devices, the Government indicated that they would consult on the implementation of these proposals in the context of its ambitions to see a roll-out of smart meters within 10 years.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147335]

Paul Goggins: 53 members of staff (2.6 per cent.) are making additional voluntary contributions (AVCs). Pension packs for new entrants, which include information on AVCs, are given to staff as part of the Department's induction process.

In addition, existing members have been informed that information about the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme, including information on AVCs, is available on the following websites:

for Northern Ireland civil service members of staff and www.civilservicepensions.co.uk for Home civil service members of staff.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147315]

Mr. Woodward: My Department carried out a survey of staff travel habits in 2005. Approximately 1,500 staff in Belfast were surveyed, and 11 per cent. said they use public transport to commute to work.

My Department intends to produce a work place travel plan by the end of 2007.

Northern Ireland Public Appointments Commissioner: Public Appointments

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what directorships have been declared by the Commissioner for Public Appointments in Northern Ireland. [148582]

Mr. Woodward: This matter is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departments: Ministerial Responsibility

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Solicitor-General which Minister has overall responsibility for the Government's policy to reduce fraud in the public sector. [148434]

The Solicitor-General: All Ministers have a responsibility to reduce the incidence of fraud in Departments and agencies for which they have responsibility.

In addition the Government have accepted the main recommendations of the Fraud Review, which include the development and delivery of a national fraud strategy, through the establishment of a National Fraud Strategic Authority and measurement unit. It is envisaged that the national fraud strategy will cover both the public and private sectors.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Opium

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to assist farmers in Afghanistan who were once involved in cultivation of opium. [147147]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: DFID is implementing a range of programmes to assist farmers who were once involved with cultivation of poppy. Our core approach is to improve access to credit, while improving the range and viability of alternative legal livelihoods.

Alternatives to poppy come not only in the form of different crops. They can often be non-farm activities such as clothes-making and shopkeeping, which is why DFID is supporting the Government of Afghanistan's Microfinance Investment Support Facility of Afghanistan (MISFA). This programme has provided over £133 million worth of small loans to 364,786 Afghan families to help them invest in their own licit businesses. MISFA operates in 23 provinces, including Helmand. DFID has provided £15 million to MISFA since March 2004. Nearly 75 per cent. of those receiving loans are women.

Overall, DFID has provided £77 million from 2005-07 to support the development of legal rural livelihoods, much of which has been channelled through the Government of Afghanistan's own National Priority Programmes.

DFID has given £18 million to the Government of Afghanistan's National Rural Access Programme (NRAP), which has built or repaired over 9,000 km of roads so far—essential for rural farmers to access markets. So far the programme has generated over 13 million days of labour for Afghans. NRAP operates in all 34 provinces.

DFID has also provided £42.6 million in total for the National Solidarity Programme (NSP) and is providing £10.6 million to roll out NSP in Helmand province (2006-09). NSP is helping elected Community Development Councils (CDCs), representing over 17,000 communities across Afghanistan, identify development priorities in their areas and then receive grants to undertake the work. NSP has funded over 28,000 projects in agriculture, education, health, irrigation, power supply, transport, and water supply. NSP currently operates in all 34 provinces.

Outside the Government of Afghanistan, DFID is funding two projects implemented by the Food and Agriculture Organisation, which are supporting villages in Bamyan, Balkh and Herat to make a legal living. The activities they support include poultry and fish rearing, silk production, and carpet weaving. DFID has also provided £3 million to support research into a range of legal livelihoods, including high value crops such as mint and saffron.

Burma: Overseas Aid

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how UK funds previously directed through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in Burma are being allocated since the closure of ICRC offices in Burma. [147986]

Mr. Malik: In 2006 DFID allocated £500,000 to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in Burma, approximately two-thirds of which was used to provide humanitarian and protection assistance to internally displaced people (IDPs) in Eastern Burma. All of these funds have been spent and accounted for. The ICRC has not requested further funding. In 2007 DFID is providing support to internally displaced people in Burma through a grant of £400,000 to support community-based groups (mostly Christian and Buddhist networks) working inside Burma who are able to provide humanitarian assistance in the short term to IDPs who would otherwise receive no help. This complements the assistance to IDPs cross-border from Thailand which we also support.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147333]

Mr. Malik: 225 members of staff in the Department for International Development (12 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

DFID plans to issue annual benefit statements later in the year, the statements show the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

In addition, DFID has a page dedicated to Civil Service Pensions on our intranet site, this contains information on the pension schemes and the aim is to increase awareness of pensions among our staff. As well as useful pension information, the page contains links to the Civil Service Pensions website and various information booklets.

Indian Ocean Tsunami: Reconstruction

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on progress in reconstruction in Sri Lanka following the 2004 tsunami. [147971]

Mr. Malik: In January 2007 almost all children in affected areas apart from the North East are attending school. Attendance in the North and East is now severely affected by the security situation. Almost all families previously in camps now have access to sturdier transitional shelter. Of the families whose homes were affected, 72 per cent. are now back in their own houses following reconstruction and repair work. Over 75 per cent. of people who lost their main source of income have regained some source of income.

Permanent homes are under construction. Prior to the tsunami the public sector normally built only 5,000-6,000 new homes. Only with all public and private sector housing workers performing at full capacity would a 50,000 annual target be reached. According to Sri Lankan Government figures about 98 per cent. of the permanent housing requirement in the south has been fulfilled, although in the east of Sri Lanka there are still significant shortfalls.

The resurgence in the conflict has meant severe access restrictions for delivery partners in the North and East, which was the most affected region. Moving materials and skilled labour has become particularly problematic. Lack of humanitarian space has made it difficult to ensure that assistance is delivered equitably and in a timely manner to affected communities. UK officials will continue to work closely with the Sri Lankan authorities, NGOs and UN. We see progress towards peace and reconciliation as essential to enabling and sustaining post tsunami recovery and broader development in Sri Lanka. We hope that all parties will renew efforts to make progress in this direction.

DFID has focussed its policy during the reconstruction phase on improving the capacity of partner governments to mobilise resources and undertake reconstruction efforts themselves.

In Sri Lanka we have provided £2 million to improve the management of recovery and reconstruction, with a focus on building the capacity of the north and eastern councils in Sri Lanka.

Nepal

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid his Department is providing to help the peace process in Nepal. [147133]

Mr. Malik: DFID is providing specific support to the Nepal peace process through its bilateral development programme and through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP). In 2006-07 a total of £5.35 million was disbursed in direct support of the peace process. This included financial support to the Peace Trust Fund, the UN mission in Nepal, UNICEF, OCHA and support to ICRC.

We plan to provide further support in 2007-08 in line with Government priorities and during the run up to Constituent Assembly elections currently scheduled for November 2007.

The central objective of DFID strategy in Nepal is to work towards a sustainable and inclusive peace. In 2006-07 total DFID bilateral expenditure in Nepal was £42.8 million. This support is making a direct contribution to supporting peace in Nepal.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Ms Harman: None.

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Office in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146983]

Ms Harman: Following the recent machinery of Government changes which saw the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons transfer from the Privy Council Office to the Cabinet Office, we are currently unable to provide a substantive answer to this question.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many staff in her Office did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146922]

Ms Harman: None. All the staff in my private office are high achievers.

Departments: Public Transport

Ms Harman: All of my staff regularly use public transport to commute.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many staff in her Office have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147045]

Ms Harman: The number of Leader of the House of Commons staff with periods of sick absence lasting less than five days for the calendar year 2006 are as follows:

	Number
(a) five or more absences	0
(b) four absences	0
(c) three absences	2
(d) two absences	0

Ms Harman: On 4 July 2007 I confirmed the new questions rota until the summer recess. This includes 10 minutes to the Olympics Minister. The rota will be reviewed during the summer recess.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Construction

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of council houses which will be built in 2007-08. [147864]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 5 July 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Islington, North (Jeremy Corbyn) on 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 535W.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has for the large scale resumption of building council houses; and if she will make a statement. [147867]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Local councils have a vital role in the delivery of more social and affordable housing, working in partnership with developers and housing associations, using to the full their planning and other powers, and the use of their own land, to deliver the homes needed locally.

We are encouraging innovative ideas from local authorities to increase the supply and improve the quality of social housing, including through more direct development.

We expect housing associations to continue to deliver the majority of new social homes, as they can bring in significant additional independent borrowing. But we also see the potential for local authorities to make a bigger contribution towards meeting the housing needs of current and future generations.

Council Housing: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council homes were built in Essex in each year since 1997. [147369]

Yvette Cooper: There have been no reported local authority dwellings built in Essex local authorities since 1997.

Between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 2006, the following units of affordable housing (social rent and intermediate (e.g. low cost home ownership)) were built or acquired on behalf of Essex local authorities and the unitary authorities of Southend-on-Sea and Thurrock.

	Essex county council	Southend-on-Sea	Thurrock

Essex county council local authorities comprise of Basildon, Braintree, Brentwood, Castle Point, Chelmsford, Colchester, Epping Forest, Harlow, Maldon, Rochford, Tendring and Uttlesford.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people are waiting for council homes in (a) Essex and (b) the London borough of Havering. [147408]

Yvette Cooper: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households on the waiting list for social housing in (a) Essex and (b) the London borough of Havering as at 1 April each year is published on the Communities and Local Government website in table 600. The link for this table is given as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1163853

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the Government's target is for numbers of new council homes to be built in (a) Essex and (b) Romford; [147368]

(2) how many new council homes are planned to be built in the London borough of Havering in the next period for which figures are available. [147385]

Yvette Cooper: There are no Government targets for the provision of new council home in Essex or Romford.

The East of England Plan, the Regional Spatial Strategy, is expected to be published in autumn 2007 and states that a minimum of 98,620 new homes will be built in Essex between April 2006 and March 2021—with the expectation that some 35 per cent. are affordable. The London Plan, the Regional Spatial Strategy for London, sets a 10 year target for the London borough of Havering of 5,350 net additional homes between 2007-08 and 2016-17. There is a strategic target in the London Plan that 50 per cent. of all additional housing London-wide should be affordable.

Council Housing: Sales

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average level of discount on council homes was in (a) Essex and (b) England when bought under the right-to-buy scheme in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006. [147404]

Yvette Cooper: The average market values and levels of discount awarded on council homes sold through the right to buy scheme, in Essex, England and the unitary authorities of Southend-on-Sea and Thurrock are tabulated as follows, Essex county council local authorities comprise of Basildon, Braintree, Brentwood, Castle Point, Chelmsford, Colchester, Epping Forest, Harlow, Maldon, Rochford, Tendring and Uttlesford.

Emergency Services: Floods

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what duty fire and rescue authorities are under to respond to calls for assistance from the general public to incidents of flooding. [147753]

Mr. Dhanda: Fire and rescue authorities have a general power to respond to emergencies under section 11 of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004: this encompasses responding to calls for assistance to flooding incidents.

Fire and rescue authorities have duties to conduct risk assessments of their area as part of their integrated risk management plan process, and under the Civil Contingencies Act 2004. If they conclude there is a flooding risk in their area they may procure resources to respond to that risk. In practice, fire and rescue authorities do respond to flooding incidents, as demonstrated so clearly in the June floods. Great use was made by the fire and rescue service of the high volume pumps, provided under Communities and Local Government's New Dimension programme.

Fire Services: ICT

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will assess the relevant experience held by the contractors designing the new computer systems for the proposed regional fire and rescue control centre in the East of England in the design and delivery of projects funded by the public purse. [146791]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The contractor is EADS Defence and Security Systems Ltd.

Their relevant experience, as evaluated as part of the procurement process, is detailed in the following table.

Country	Summary of works	Key features
Estonia - Ministry of Interior	Design and infrastructure deployment for border surveillance.	Various remote radar system installations connected to regional and national security centres.
France – French Gendarmerie	Design and implementation of national wireless voice and data communications system for Gendarmerie and special forces along with an associated logistical support programme.	Encrypted radio communications, secure identification systems, national control rooms.
France - Ministry of Defence	Design and implementation of unmanned aerial Vehicle (UAV) "tracker" systems for border and hot-spot surveillance and command and control tactical systems for mobile patrol deployment.	Silent running short-range UAV automatic video surveillance system, CIS, Integrated voice and data communications.
France - Ministry of Interior	Design and implementation of multi-agency integrated dispatching and communication system for fire services and police forces.	Digital radio communications. control rooms, automatic vehicle location through GPS, GIS.
Germany - Ministry of Defence	Design and implementation of an operational battalion Command and Control system.	Advanced CIS, messaging. Automatic vehicle location, digital radio communications
Germany - Ministry of interior of Different Landers	Design and implementation of major integration programmes between the police and fire brigades control centres in Frankfurt and Munich	Emergency call taking, dispatching, resource management, Computer aided dispatch, CIS (geographical Information system), communications (voice and data), video monitoring centre
Mexico – Federal Government and States	Design and implementation of a national forces integrated communications network, uniting the 30 states into a single unified network.	Encrypted radio communications, secure identification systems, national control rooms
Mexico - Secretaria de la Defensa Nacional(SEDENA)	Design and implementation of a sophisticated network of sensor monitoring systems integrated with the national SEDENA Command and Control Centre for reduction of illegal activities, such as smuggling.	CIS, fixed radars (high and low altitude), airborne sensors, data mining, communications, resource management
Portugal - Ministry of Interior	Design and implementation of coastal vessel monitoring system	Various remote radar and other sensor systems connected to resilient national control centre.
Spain - Police and Guardia Civil	Design and implementation of a coordinated local/national communication and deployment system for more effective operational management.	National infrastructure backbone, digital radio communications, control rooms, automatic vehicle location systems
UK - Ministry of Defence	Design and build secure communications satellite system	Skynet satellites, ground control stations, upgraded communication systems

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the delivery of software and information systems for the regional fire control centres. [147507]

Mr. Dhanda: The contract for delivery of software and information systems was signed on 30 March 2007 with EADS Defence and Security Systems Ltd. The contractor is mobilising resources and working closely with the Department to ensure successful delivery of this important project. The contract has a series of delivery milestones; so far, the contractor has met all that are due. The first Regional Control Centre is planned to go live in October 2009 and the final Fire and Rescue Authority cuts over in September 2011.

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in full-time equivalent terms will be required for each Regional Fire Control Centre. [147508]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 20 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1858-59W.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how she intends to resource those tasks currently undertaken by staff in existing fire control centres which will not be handled by new regional centres. [147509]

Mr. Dhanda: Some tasks which are currently performed in existing control rooms will lie outside the scope of the new regional control centres. It is for Fire and Rescue Authorities to decide whether these 'out of scope' tasks should continue to be performed under the new control arrangements, and how best to deliver them. The business case for the FiReControl project shows that the costs of delivering a control service under FiReControl should be substantially lower than at present. The business case takes into account the costs of continuing to deliver these 'out of scope' tasks.

Fire Services: Procurement

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what total costs have been incurred by Firebuy since its launch as the procurement arm of the fire and rescue service in November 2005 in (a) salaries for its full-time staff,

(b) expenses for its non-executive chair and board of directors and (c) on work on the Integrated Clothing Project. [146695]

Mr. Dhanda: The costs incurred by Firebuy Ltd. since it was established in April 2006 until the end of June 2007 are (a) £1,099,877 for salaries for the full-time staff, (b) £11,092 on expenses for the non-executive chair and board of directors and (c) £1,047,124 for the Integrated Clothing Project, including salary costs associated with the project.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the preferred bidder proposals for Firebuy's first 15-year Integrated Clothing Project contract; what steps she is taking to ensure continuous best value for the fire and rescue service from that contract; and if she will make a statement. [146696]

Mr. Dhanda: Detailed assessments have been undertaken by Firebuy Ltd. in the decision to award the contract for Integrated Clothing Project to a single service provider for 15 years. These included economic viability, service delivery, independent garment trials and best value.

Best value encompasses the principles of the Most Economically Advantageous Tender (MEAT) and considers the whole life costs as well as the purchasing price. The kit offers improvements in firefighter safety as well as making a positive contribution towards reducing barriers to recruitment and achieving efficiencies as part of the overall Government agenda.

Fire Services: Trade Unions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the proposed regional fire and rescue control centre in the East of England; and what discussions she has had with the Fire Brigades Union on the matter. [146794]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Since the publication of the White Paper "Our Fire and Rescue Service" in June 2003 the Department has had representations about the proposed regional fire and rescue control centres from a wide range of stakeholders, including all English Fire and Rescue Authorities, Regional Management Boards, the Local Government Association, the Chief Fire Officers' Association, the Institute of Public Finance, the Practitioners' Forum, the Business and Community Safety Forum, the Fire Brigades Union, Network of Women in the Fire and Rescue Service, the Retained Firefighters Union, Fire Officers Association, GMB and Unison. Responses to the various consultation exercises run by the Department can be found on the web at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1125649

A number of very positive and useful meetings have taken place, at both ministerial and official level, with the Fire Brigades Union and other staff representation bodies to discuss the implications for staff of the Fire Control Project.

Flood Control

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of building houses on run off and flash flooding areas; and if she will make a statement. [146213]

Yvette Cooper: New planning policy (PPS25 Development and flood risk) published in December 2006 directs development away from areas at risk of flooding from all sources. Local planning authorities should undertake a Strategic Flood Risk Assessment in line with PPS25 policy to identify the risks from all forms of flooding (including surface water run-off). Where there are particular surface water drainage problems they should use the Strategic Flood Risk Assessment to inform the development of surface water management plans, as part of their Local Development Frameworks, to manage the risks through development opportunities and avoid inappropriate development in those areas. Some of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pilot studies on integrated urban drainage are examining the consequences of new development for surface water run-off and the options available for mitigating these effects.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will consider making it a condition of section 106 planning agreements to improve drainage in order to reduce the effect of flash flooding in areas that have been affected; and if she will make a statement. [146214]

Yvette Cooper: New planning policy (PPS25 Development and flood risk) published in December 2006 promotes the use of sustainable drainage systems and development of surface water management plans. Planning obligations (or 's106 planning agreements') are mechanisms to allow developers and local planning authorities to make acceptable development which would otherwise be unacceptable in planning terms. Where the need to improve drainage to reduce the risk of flooding is a material consideration, a planning obligation may be an appropriate mechanism to secure the agreement of the developer to undertake the necessary drainage improvements. The construction and maintenance costs of surface water drainage systems serving a development should be fully funded by the developer, and a planning obligation may be appropriate to secure this.

Floods: Chemicals

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) for what reasons Annex D of Planning Policy Statement 25: Development and Flood Risk included a list of substances classed as hazards under the Chemical Hazards Information and Packaging Regulations; and what related consultation was carried out: [148047]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number and percentage of storage facilities for materials classed as hazardous under the Chemical Hazards Information and Packaging Regulations located in Flood Risk Zone 3 areas. [148048]

John Healey: Annex D of PPS25 does not list substances classed as hazards under the Chemical Hazards Information and Packaging Regulations. However it classifies installations requiring hazardous substances consent as 'highly vulnerable', potentially limiting their location in areas of high flood risk. This was set out to help planners match the vulnerability of development to the degree of flood risk to avoid inappropriate development in flood risk areas.

There was wide consultation in preparing PPS25, and the Department continues to work closely with stakeholders to implement the policy to avoid inappropriate development in areas at risk of flooding and to direct development away from areas at highest risk, while recognising that where the need for development clearly outweighs the flood risk, it is safe.

No central estimate of the number and percentage of storage facilities for such materials in Flood Zone 3 areas is available.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether clients of property location agents will be required to put a home information pack in place; and if she will make a statement. [146663]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Act 2004 makes it clear that the responsibility to obtain a home information pack is on the person responsible for marketing the property. Section 150 of the Housing Act 2005 states that a person, or business located in England or Wales, acts as an estate agent if he does anything in pursuance of marketing instructions from the seller to carry out activities designed to introduce a potential buyer to the seller or to sell the property by auction.

Housing Associations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what Government affordable housing schemes administered by housing associations are in operation. [147968]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (UIN 147377).

Housing: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new dwellings were built in the Chelmsford local authority area in each year between 2000 and 2007. [146652]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The numbers of new dwellings built in the Chelmsford local authority area in each financial year since 2000-01 are in the following table. Figures shown are as reported by local authorities.

House building completions: Chelmsford

	Dwellings
2000-01	542
2001-02	519
2002-03	838
2003-04	863
2004-05	764
2005-06	440
2006-07	533

Housing Construction: Eco-towns

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the contribution of the five planned eco-towns towards the Government's target of building 200,000 net additional homes per year by 2013. [146393]

Yvette Cooper: Eco-towns will be key to delivering the Government's target of building additional homes. Further decisions about the programme, including potential funding support, more detailed criteria, and potential locations will be taken following detailed assessment work, and the outcome of the Comprehensive Spending Review. We hope to announce these later this year.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the 10,000 to 20,000 new homes in each planned eco-town will be social homes. [146401]

Yvette Cooper: Eco-towns, as announced in the Government statement of 7 March 2007, should be sustainable communities, supporting a mix of housing types and tenure. Subject to the outcome of the comprehensive spending review decisions about the programme, including potential locations and the proportion of social housing will be taken following further assessment work. We hope to make an announcement about these later in the year.

Housing: Cornwall

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the number of dwellings sold in Cornwall, broken down into those sold (a) as second homes, (b) for buy-to-let, (c) to Cornish inhabitants and (d) to people moving into Cornwall in the last 12 months. [146645]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Housing: Electricity and Water

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households do not have access to (a) mains power and (b) piped water supply. [146167]

Yvette Cooper: The English House Condition Survey monitors the provision of basic amenities and services to homes. However the numbers of homes lacking mains power and piped water supply is too small to provide precise estimates from a sample survey. A residual number of mainly isolated rural homes may lack mains power or piped water supply, as do some vacant properties that are waiting or undergoing renovation at the time of the survey.

Housing: Energy

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of homes in England do not have any cavity walls. [146281]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 28 June 2007]: 31 per cent. according to the 2005 English House Condition Survey Annual Report (Table 4.1, page 28) published on 6 June 2007.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings built in Chelmsford between 2000 and 2007 were classified as affordable housing. [146653]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2006, in Chelmsford, 850 units of affordable housing were built or acquired. Affordable housing includes both social rent and intermediate housing (e.g. low cost home ownership). Figures on affordable housing supply in 2006-07 are not yet available.

Source: Statistical returns from local authorities (P2, HSSA), Housing corporation.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Government-run affordable housing schemes, administered by housing associations, are in operation. [147377]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation provides Social Housing Grant under section 18 of the Housing Act 1996 and Section 27 of the Housing Act 2004 to housing associations and other bodies to provide affordable housing. This grant is used to provide both social rented homes and those for sale on low cost home ownership terms. Homes provided can be new build or acquired and refurbished.

The Government' HomeBuy programme offers three low cost home ownership products based on equity sharing. All three are administered by HomeBuy Agents, who are Housing Associations that provide a one-stop shop for Low Cost Home Ownership products, with Government funding provided by the Housing Corporation.

Social HomeBuy enables tenants of local authorities and housing associations to buy a share in their current home at a discount. New Build HomeBuy (including the First Time Buyer' Initiative) enables people to buy a share of a newly built property, while paying rent on the unowned share, and Open Market HomeBuy enables people to buy a property on the open market with the help of equity loans.

There is also an 'intermediate rent' option for eligible individuals that cannot sustain the costs of home ownership, even on our low cost schemes. People can rent a new build property on an assured shorthold tenancy and pay rent at a level between that charged by social and private landlords.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to create an Affordable Housing Strategy Group; and if she will make a statement. [147873]

Yvette Cooper: The Department already meets regularly with stakeholder groups which discuss affordable housing. We keep these arrangements under review.

Housing: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of key workers living in the Peterborough city council area. [144066]

Yvette Cooper: The Department does not hold data on the number of key workers living in the Peterborough city council area.

However, since April 2004, 43 key workers in Peterborough city council have received assistance through the Government's key worker housing programme, Key Worker Living (KWL). KWL is one element of the Government's HomeBuy scheme which will expand the opportunity for home ownership to over 120,000 households by 2010.

Housing: Utilities

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for planning permission in respect of houses designed to be operated unconnected to mains electricity, gas and water supply there have been since 1997; and of these how many were (a) approved without an appeal and (b) rejected. [146790]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Key Worker Living Scheme: Civil Servants

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many civil servants are eligible for the key worker discount on housing; and how many have used the discount over the last five years. [148347]

Yvette Cooper: None. Civil servants working within Government Departments are not classed as key workers for the purposes of the key worker living scheme.

Landlords: East Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of absentee private landlords in (a) Pendle and (b) east Lancashire; and how many there were in (i) 2002 and (ii) 1997. [145740]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no estimate of the number of absentee private landlords in Pendle or east Lancashire or how many there were in 2002 and 1997. This is an issue for Pendle and the other authorities in east Lancashire to consider.

Landlords: Licensing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have brought in schemes to license private landlords in designated areas. [145741]

Mr. Iain Wright: Four local authorities, Salford, Middlesbrough, Manchester and Gateshead, have brought in schemes under powers within the Housing Act 2004 to license private landlords in designated areas.

Mobile Homes: Surveys

Mr. Osten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were surveyed in the Park Homes Commission Consultation; and how many votes were cast for each of the three proposed options. [147025]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The consultation paper on the Park Home Commission Rate was published on 10 May 2006. It was sent directly to all key stakeholders and was publicised within the sector. It sought comments on options for reforming the commission payable on the sale of a mobile home. This was a consultation exercise rather than a vote.

We received 1,250 responses to the consultation. The number of responses that supported each option were:

Option 1. No change to the current maximum rate of 10 per cent.—161 responses.

Option 2. A reduction in the maximum commission rate payable for new and existing agreements from 10 per cent. to 7.5 per cent. with a prohibition on a compensatory increase in pitch fees—834 responses.

Option 3. Reducing the maximum rate of commission on the sale of a park home for new agreements to 0 per cent. without a limitation on a compensatory increase in pitch fees—eight responses.

In addition, the consultation paper explained that we favoured the option of a lower commission rate (7.5 per cent.) with no increase in pitch fees for existing agreements while prohibiting the charging of a commission and placing no limitation on a compensatory increase in pitch fees for new agreements. Only one respondent supported this option.

218 respondents suggested alternative proposals and 28 respondents did not give a view on any option.

Multiple Occupation

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the quality of information gathering and collation of data on houses in multiple occupation by local authorities; and if she will make a statement. [146747]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Department has worked closely over the past 12 months with local authorities in England in the development of a data collection system for houses in multiple occupation, the register of licensable houses in multiple occupation (ROLHMO). This commenced operation in April 2007 and data has been collected from May. It is, therefore, too early to make an assessment of the system's effectiveness. However, the Department is keeping the system under review.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the toolkit of good practice guidance for local authorities in respect of houses in multiple occupation to be available for use; and if she will make a statement. [146748]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Department has resourced the local authorities coordinators of regulatory services to provide practical advice and assistance to local authorities on private sector housing provisions in the Housing Act 2004, including licensing of houses in multiple occupation. The Department funded the Chartered Institute of Housing to produce a toolkit—The Ways and Means Report—to assist local authorities in their application of the powers under the Act. The Department will be publishing non-statutory guidance on the licensing provisions in the Act during the summer, to reflect best practice in light of local authorities' experiences since implementation in April 2006.

Planning Permission

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications were approved against Environment Agency advice in each year since 2000. [148336]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following data on planning applications permitted by local planning authorities contrary to Environment Agency advice are contained in the report to Communities and Local Government and Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs prepared annually by the Environment Agency and Local Government Association on the impact of the technical advice given to English local planning authorities: No comparable data is available before 2001.

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Applications permitted by LPAs contrary to Environment Agency advice[1]	283	221	323	248	136
Major applications permitted contrary to Environment Agency advice[2]	50	24	21	29	10

[1] Permitted contrary to sustained objections by the Environment Agency, or with conditions which only partially met/mitigated EA concerns.
[2] Major development is defined in this report as one in which the number of dwellings to be constructed is 10 or more, or the site area is equal to or greater than 0.5 Ha. Non residential developments are defined as major if they involve a floor space equal to or greater than 1,000m², or a site area equal or greater than 1 Ha.
Figures from 2006 High Level Target 5 (HLT5) report

To set these figures in context the following table gives the percentage of applications permitted by local planning authorities against Environment Agency objection (from table 3 of the 2006 HLT 5 report).

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Percentage of applications permitted by LPAs against Environment Agency objection[1]	38	11	12	8	5

[1] Decisions made by LPAs (where they notified the Environment Agency) permitted contrary to sustained objections by the Environment Agency, or with conditions which only partially met/mitigated EA concerns.

Since 2001 there has been a significant fall in the number and percentage of planning applications which has been permitted against sustained Environment Agency advice. 95 per cent. of planning decisions on applications in flood risk areas to which the Environment Agency had objected were in line with the Environment Agency's advice compared with 62 per cent. in 2001-02.

In 2001 Planning Policy Guidance Note 25 (PPG25) was published in response to the floods of Easter 1998 and autumn 2000. These figures reflect the positive impact that PPG25 has had, but also support consultation which showed that while PPG25 had succeeded in raising the profile of flooding in the planning process more was needed to get planning authorities to implement its core policy. Responding to this, we published the new, stronger Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25) in December last year to replace PPG25.

Planning Policy Statement 25

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications subject to Planning Policy Statement 25 were referred to the Secretary of State in each year since 2000; and how many of them were subsequently approved. [148333]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not separately record how many of the planning applications that have been called in by the Secretary of State were referred because of issues relating to Planning Policy Statement 25.

Planning: Recycling

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will issue guidance to planning authorities on the provision of recycling points in new developments. [147389]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our planning policies on waste management are set out in Planning Policy Statement 10 (PPS10). These state that planning authorities should ensure new development makes sufficient provision for waste management and promote designs and layouts that secure integration of waste management facilities without adverse impact on the street scene or, in less developed areas, the local landscape. The standard application form for planning applications, which comes into use across England in October, will require developers to set out the arrangements made for the separate storage and collection of recyclable waste.

PPS10 also highlights that good design and layout in new development can help secure opportunities for sustainable waste management, including matters relating to kerbside collection and community recycling. The Manual for Streets, a joint publication by the Department for Transport and Communities and Local Government, provides practical advice for designers.

Rented Housing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the building of housing for rent by local authorities; and if she will make a statement. [147872]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Islington, North (Jeremy Corbyn) on 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 535W.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many cases of squatting were reported by local authorities in England between June 2006 and June 2007. [146194]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to regional government offices and the Planning Inspectorate on the content of local authority core strategies for waste disposal. [146784]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 5 July 2007]: A comprehensive guidance document has recently been produced by the Planning Inspectorate and is available on their website. This draws out the lessons learnt from examining over 100 development plan documents, the majority of which have been core strategies. The Planning Inspectorate's document incorporates a note provided by Communities and Local Government on the waste content of core strategies. The note sits within the policy framework provided by extant planning policy statements (in particular, PPS10 Planning for Sustainable Waste Management and PPS12 Local Development Frameworks) and their supporting practice guidance. Government offices and inspectors who will undertake the examination of development plan documents have had the guidance document drawn to their attention.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many mosquito nets are available to troops in Afghanistan; and how many are required; [147803]

(2) how often mosquito nets provided to troops deployed in Afghanistan are replaced. [147804]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Over the past year, some 25,000 individual nets have been provided to support operations in Afghanistan. This number is sufficient to meet requirements.

A mosquito net is issued to each individual deploying to Afghanistan, suitable for use when sleeping in field conditions. They are designed to be used for one deployment and are disposed of locally. A new net will be issued if the same individual deploys again. In the event that a net is damaged, for whatever reason, a new one is issued in theatre.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many rounds of ammunition have been purchased for grenade machine-guns since they have been in use; and how many of them have been provided to troops in Afghanistan. [147807]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Approximately 160,000 rounds of ammunition have been purchased for grenade machine guns since they came into use. This includes ammunition for operations and training.

I am withholding details of how much ammunition has been delivered to Afghanistan as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces. In-theatre stocks of ammunition, however, are currently assessed as adequate.

Alderman Blaxill School: Closures

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what discussions officials in his Department have had with Essex Local Education Authority on the proposed closure of the Alderman Blaxill School in Colchester; and if he will make a statement; [147865]

(2) what recent discussions officials in his Department have had with Essex Local Education Authority on the involvement of the Ministry of Defence in the establishment of a city academy in Colchester; and if he will make a statement. [147866]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Officials from Colchester Garrison were briefed on 26 June by Essex county council on issues relating to the placing of Alderman Blaxill School in special measures. At the meeting Essex county council also confirmed that a full consultation process will be implemented in the autumn concerning the proposals for an academy in Colchester and the MOD as an interested party will be invited to participate.

Armed Forces: Training

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what progress he has made on the Defence Training Review since his statement of 17 January 2007, Official Report, columns 787-802, on Defence Training Review; and if he will make a statement; [147275]

(2) when he expects to sign the Maingate contract for the Defence Training Review rationalisation project; [147276]

(3) when he expects to take a decision on making the provisional preferred bidder for package 2 of the Defence Training Review programme the preferred bidder. [147277]

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will make an assessment on the outcome of the Whole Programme Solution negotiations with regard to the Defence Training Rationalisation Programme. [146845]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 3 July 2007]: In January this year the Metrix Consortium were declared the Preferred Bidder for Package 1 of the DTR Programme, but in view of significant remaining affordability challenges, only Provisional Preferred Bidder for Package 2. Our aim has been to develop a Whole Programme Solution (WPS) by exploring with the Bidder possible synergies and economies of scale across the whole Programme.

Although significant work has been completed since January we are not yet in a position to confirm whether or not the WPS can be made affordable. We still plan to make a further announcement later this year.

Army Board

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of claims made for expenses by the (a) Adjutant General, (b) Chief of the General Staff and (c) Army Board in 2006. [127567]

Derek Twigg: The personal claims made by members of the Army Board for reimbursement of expenses incurred in relation to official duties in 2006 are shown in the following table. These figures do not include those costs attributed directly to Ministry of Defence budgets covering, for example, official travel and entertainment activities.

Army: ICT

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many laptop computers are available to (a) officers and (b) other ranks in the army. [147805]

Derek Twigg: Precise information is not held centrally but it is estimated that around 8,000 laptop computers are currently in use across the Army as a whole.

The implementation of the Defence Information Infrastructure (Future) (DII(F)) programme includes an initial provision of some 4,000 laptops for use by the Army. Further incremental provision may add a further 10,000 laptops. The allocation of laptops may be made to a named individual for his or her sole use, regardless of rank, or to a single point of contact within a team for use by any member of that team.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes he intends to make to the availability of laptop computers to the army to facilitate the new system of pay. [147806]

Derek Twigg: The Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) programme is modernizing the way the services carry out personnel and pay administration. Laptops are one of a number of devices which have been provided to enable service personnel to access JPA which as one of its functions, requires input of information for pay purposes. The need for access to the JPA system is determined in detail on a site-by-site basis and the most appropriate solution has been supplied in each case.

Clyde Submarine Base

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will consider the recommendations of the naval base review in respect of Faslane, when published, from the point of view of his role as (a) Secretary of State for Defence and (b) Secretary of State for Scotland; and if he will make a statement on resolving potential conflicts of interest. [147521]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 July 2007]: Defence is a reserved matter and, as such, all decisions relating to military capability, including the naval base review, are taken on the basis of what is best for defence and what provides value for money for the taxpayer.

Departments: Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by staff in his Department via departmental (a) credit, (b) procurement and (c) fuel cards in each of the last three years. [145289]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information extracted from the Financial Management Shared Service Centre database covering spend on departmental credit, procurement and fuel cards in each of the last three financial years is set out below.

In November 2006, the MOD withdrew its Corporate Credit Card facility and replaced it with the Government Procurement Card. The credit card figures provided in the following table reflect this policy decision and show payments for and the Corporate Credit Card up to December 2006 only.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 168W, on departments: manpower, whether any staff in his Department are classified as people without posts. [146889]

Derek Twigg: The Department operates a successful system of redeployment for staff who became surplus and ensures that those staff are given priority consideration for posts for which they are suitable and apply. Information on those classified as without a post is not held centrally.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147051]

Number of occurrences less than five days	Non-industrial headcount	Industrial headcount
Two periods	8,460	1,860
Three periods	4,930	1,120
Four periods	2,720	580
Five or more periods	3,400	680

Hercules Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 17 May 2007, Official Report, column 845W, on Hercules aircraft, what percentage of Hercules C-130K aircraft has (a) returned to the front line within 44 days and (b) developed fuel leaks following the installation of the foam; and if he will make a statement. [140664]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In order to improve overall aircraft availability to the Front Line Command (FLC), the Hercules C-130K Explosion Suppressant Foam (ESF) modification has been combined with scheduled maintenance wherever possible. All of the aircraft that have been fitted with ESF in conjunction with scheduled maintenance have been returned to the FLC within an agreed timeframe. One aircraft was modified on a standalone programme and the fitment of ESF was completed in 46 days.

Of the C-130Ks that have been modified with ESF, 75 per cent. have subsequently developed fuel leaks. However, all were repaired by the contractor under warranty and returned to flying. RAF Hercules aircraft are designed and certified to strict airworthiness and safety standards. These fuel leaks did not compromise the safety of the aircraft.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when definition of (a) torture and (b) abuse he uses in the context of the activities of British armed forces in Iraq; and what account he took of the advice of the Attorney General in formulating this definition. [147891]

Des Browne: The definition of torture derives from section 134 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 which makes it an offence for a public official to commit torture. Article 1 of the United Nations Convention Against Torture outlines what is considered torture for the purposes of the convention. We are also guided by, among other sources, judgments of the European Court of Human Rights and those of our own domestic courts.

Peace Keeping Operations: Casualties

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many injured British service personnel were returned from (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each of the last 12 months. [148158]

Derek Twigg: The number of personnel who are returned from Iraq and Afghanistan following injury or illness (aeromedically evacuated) is published on the Ministry of Defence website:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

This information is updated on a two-weekly basis in arrears and hence data for June 2007 are currently available only from 1 to 15 June.

Princess Royal Barracks

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department has taken to discuss the implementation of the recommendations from the Deepcut Review with Sir Nicholas Blake QC, in the period since its publication in March 2006; and if he will make a statement. [147065]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Subsequent to the publication of the Deepcut Review in March 2006, MOD officials and my predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for East Kilbride Strathaven and Lesmahagow (Mr. Ingram) engaged with Sir Nicholas Blake QC on the Government's response to the Review. They also subsequently corresponded on the Government's update to Parliament in a written ministerial statement on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 91-5WS, which set out the progress made on implementing the recommendations made in the Review.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will request publication of the contents of the Devon and Cornwall Police review into Surrey Police's handling of the investigation into the deaths at Deepcut Army Barracks; and if he will make a statement. [148013]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This matter is being considered by the Information Commissioner and it would therefore be inappropriate for me to comment at this time.

Transport: AWE Burghfield

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was transported in the convoy which moved from AWE Burghfield to RAF Brize Norton on 11 June 2007; what the destination was of the transported goods; and what escorts for the convoy were in place. [147953]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made towards meeting his Department's public service agreement target to increase significantly the take-up of arts opportunities by new users from priority groups; and what the change in numbers of users has been from each priority group over the period of the agreement. [147198]

Margaret Hodge: The baseline estimates against which progress will be measured were reported in December 2006. They are:

Attendance at two different types of arts events by priority groups during the past 12 months:

23.5 per cent. of people from black and minority ethnic groups;

24.1 per cent. of people with a limiting disability;

17.4 per cent. of people from lower socio-economic groups (C2DE).

Participation in two different types of arts activities by priority groups during the past 12 months:

20.8 per cent. of people from black and minority ethnic groups;

18.9 per cent. of people with a limiting disability;

15.3 per cent. of people from lower socio-economic groups (C2DE).

The first progress report was published on 29 June 2007, and showed no statistically significant change among any of the priority groups. Progress on the target will be monitored on a regular basis until the final assessment is available in late 2008.

Arts: National Lottery

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 25 June

2007, Official Report, column 39W, on Arts: National Lottery, how much National Lottery (a) heritage, (b) sport and (c) BLF funding (i) Northern Ireland, (ii) Scotland, (iii) Wales and (iv) England received per capita in each of the last five years. [147487]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 4 July 2007]: The per capita figures for grants awarded during the last five completed financial years for Northern Ireland, Scotland, Wales and England are set out in these tables. The population figures used are the mid-2005 estimates of the Office for National Statistics.

The Big Lottery Fund came into existence on 1 December 2006, although prior to that an administrative merger between the New Opportunities Fund (NOF) and the Community Fund had been operating. The figures given for the Big Lottery Fund include grants attributed to the Fund and exclude those attributed to NOF or the Community Fund.

The figures are derived from information submitted by the relevant distributors to the Department's National Lottery Grants Database as well as directly by some distributors, including UK Sport whose awards are included where they are attributable to a particular home country.

Big Lottery Fund

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, columns 740W, on Big Lottery Fund, what (a) proportion and (b) percentage of Big Lottery fund grants to the voluntary and community sector have been made to charities registered with the Charity Commission in each of the last three years. [146811]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The information requested is as follows:

Year ending	Percentage (monetary)	Percentage (awards)
31 March 2005	76	57
31 March 2006	79	68
31 March 2007	71	58

These figures do not include Awards for All and Veterans, and the Charity Commission only covers England and Wales.

Departments: Buildings

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions his Department's offices were refurbished in each of the last five years; what work was carried out; and what the (a) original budget and (b) final cost was in each instance. [147199]

Margaret Hodge: In the last five years offices of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport have been refurbished as follows:

2-4 Cockspur street, London 2006-07

renewal of the heating, ventilation, air conditioning, lighting, fire alarm and under floor power; replacement of the IT infrastructure, including a new data centre, and network and telephone cabling; removal of cellular offices and new open plan layout, including decoration, carpets and construction of meeting rooms;

new furniture.

The agreed budget for the refurbishment project was £8.6 million, work is still in progress and current expenditure is within budget. This includes removal costs associated with relocating staff from other DCMS buildings into Cockspur street.

Queen's Yard, Tottenham Court road London

Air conditioning;

Electrical works and cabling;

Fit-out;

New furniture.

The budget for the project was originally set at 186, 000 but with the final total cost amounting to £243, 898.25. This included costs associated with relocating staff from other DCMS buildings into Queen's Yard.

The overspend was due to the need to house additional staff in the building.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147598]

Margaret Hodge: In 2002 DCMS paid for two of its employees to attend the Common Purpose Spring Programme, at a total cost of £8,460 in order to further develop their leadership skills.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147530]

Margaret Hodge: 28 members of staff in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (5.34 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Information is also available in the departmental staff handbook about boosting your pension.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or underway. [148017]

Margaret Hodge: All DCMS PFI projects are local authority library and leisure projects to which DCMS allocate PFI credit. For contract costs please refer to the signed deals list on HM Treasury's website, http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm, which contains details of all PFI deals with the unitary charges stated.

Please note that unitary charge payments are projections covering more than the repayment of the capital value of a project and are conditional on the performance of the private sector contractor.

All other procurement costs are borne by local authorities; DCMS do not have details of those budget costs.

Departments: Public Participation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the total cost was of all consultations held by his Department in the last 12 months. [148830]

Margaret Hodge: Over the 12 months to end June 2007, DCMS launched 36 formal public consultations in order to inform the Department's policy development. Information on the total cost of all consultations could be provided only at disproportionate cost. All consultations are available on the departmental website:

www.culture.gov.uk.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many consultants have been employed by (a) his Department, (b) the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and (c) the Olympic Delivery Authority to work on the London 2012 Olympics in (i) the last 12 months and (ii) 2006-07. [145077]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not employed consultants to work on the 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games in the current financial year (2007-08). In 2006-07, my Department employed two consultancy firms on Games-related work.

The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) employed 53 consultancy firms in the last financial year 2006-07, adding one further consultancy firm to date in 2007-08 to reach a current total of 54.

The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is a privately funded commercial organisation and is therefore not obliged to make available this level of detail about their staffing arrangements.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department consulted Ministers at HM Treasury before approving the logo for the 2012 Olympics. [146535]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

The development and approval of the new London 2012 brand was the responsibility of the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) which is a privately funded organisation. I was invited by LOCOG to view the brand, of which the logo is one element, prior to its launch on 4 June. However, it was not for Government to approve the brand. DCMS did not consult HM Treasury about the brand prior to the launch.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games, whether the cost review had reached its conclusions by 25 April 2006. [146539]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

The cost review had not reached its conclusions by 25 April. Further work on specific areas of the budget continued to be undertaken.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games, which other Ministers attended meetings of the cost review group chaired by the Minister for Sport; and which meetings each Minister attended. [146543]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

No other Ministers attended the cost review group chaired by my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn).

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1179W, on the Olympic Games, what output the cost review group produced. [146544]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

The output of the cost review group was the identification of savings and potential savings in different areas of the budget. This work was taken forward to inform:

changes to the new Olympic Park Masterplan announced on 7 June 2006 and; continuing work on the development of the costs package which I announced to the House on 15 March.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games, at which of the meetings (a) powerpoint and (b) oral presentations were given by KPMG on their work. [146751]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

KPMG made oral contributions on their work at the cost review group meetings as part of the discussions. They did not give powerpoint or formal presentations.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which sites have been identified in London to manage (a) building waste from and (b) refuse arising from or created as a consequence of the 2012 Olympic Games; and if she will make a statement. [146752]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply as Minister for the Olympics.

Waste is one of the five themes identified in the London 2012 Sustainability plan and is an important element of delivering a sustainable Games.

The Olympic Delivery Authority has committed to re-use or recycle 90 per cent. of material arising from demolition works and, to date, has achieved over 95 per cent. Building waste and refuse from construction of the Olympic Park will be subject to a tender process, as will refuse arising from the 2012 Games. Therefore, no sites have been identified at this time for refuse related to the Games. My officials are working with waste authorities to ensure that the needs of the Games are integrated with waste-infrastructure provision.

Playing Fields

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate his Department has made of the change in the number of playing fields of an area of less than 0.4 hectares in each year since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [148825]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) on 1 November 2006, Official Report, column 421W. Figures for changes in 2005-06 will not be available until the autumn.

Sports

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether representatives of (a) UK Sport, (b) Sport England, (c) Youth Sport Trust and (d) English Institute of Sport plan to attend the Labour Party event at Wembley National Stadium on 12 July 2007. [147262]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 3 July 2007]: As my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield Central (Richard Caborn) made clear in his reply to the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid Kent on 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1833W, these organisations will play no role in this event, including any official representations.

Sports: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on progress in raising the £100 million from the private sector for elite sport announced in the 2006 Budget; and which Minister is responsible for that matter. [148083]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government, supported by UK Sport, continue to consider ways in which to raise £100 million from the private sector to help support our most talented athletes. This is in dialogue with the London Organising Committee for the Olympic games.

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport is responsible for this matter.

Youth Sport Trust: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) current and (b) anticipated future budget of the Youth Sports Trust is; and from which sources it draws its funding. [147263]

Mr. Sutcliffe: [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Youth Sport Trust is not a non-departmental public body sponsored by the Department and therefore receives no direct funding. It is a registered charity and as such draws its regular funding from a range of corporate sponsors and from a number of grant-making trusts and foundations. In its capacity as an important partner in the delivery of sport for children and young people in schools the Youth Sport Trust receives Exchequer and lottery funding from a number of Government Departments and organisations which include the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), the Department of Health, Sport England, the Big Lottery Fund, and V, an independent charity championing youth volunteering in England.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Burma: International Red Cross

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what action he is taking to urge the Burmese military regime to permit unhindered access to prisons in Burma by the International Committee of the Red Cross; [147984]

(2) what action he is taking to urge the Burmese military regime to re-open the offices of the International Committee of the Red Cross. [147985]

Meg Munn: We share the deep concerns of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) over the large-scale violations of international humanitarian law committed by the Burmese Government against civilians.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for International Development released a joint statement on 29 June condemning the Burmese Government's failure to co-operate with the ICRC in its efforts to alleviate the suffering of the ordinary people of Burma and to assist mine victims and prisoners. The statement can be found at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front/pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029391629&a=KArticle&aid=1183540269106&year=2007&month=2007-06-01

The European Commission has also issued a press statement expressing its concern about restrictions on the work of the ICRC in Burma. The statement can be found at:

http://europa.eu/rapid/pressReleasesAction.do?reference=IP/07/1012&format=HTML&aged=0&language=EN&guiLanguage=enhttp://europa.eu/rapid/pressReleasesAction.do?reference=IP/07/1012&format=HTML&aged=0&language=EN&guiLanguage=en

We regularly raise our concerns with the regime about the serious humanitarian and human rights situation in Burma and will continue to emphasise the importance of the ICRC's humanitarian assistance in Burma.

Burma: Sanctions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the objectives are of the EU sanctions against Burma; and what assessment he has made of progress made towards meeting these objectives. [147482]

David Miliband: The EU's sanctions, as set out in the EU common position on Burma, are an expression of the EU's disapproval of the Burmese regime and its policies and are intended to apply pressure for change. The common position includes a visa ban and assets freeze aimed at the Burmese leaders, their families and associates who formulate, implement or benefit from policies that impede Burma's transition to democracy.

The common position has two strengths: firstly, it delivers a message to the regime that the EU condemns the regime's actions towards the Burmese people; secondly, it is a unified position supported by all members of the EU and thus delivers a common and united EU message to the regime.

We are disappointed that the Burmese Government has so far failed to respond to the pressure and encouragement of the international community to embrace substantive democratic change and national reconciliation.

While we do not believe that sanctions used in isolation will bring about political change in Burma, we take the view that targeted measures aimed at senior members of the regime and their associates, applied in combination with the engagement of the UN and our international partners in the region, provide a clear incentive for substantial political change.

Chechnya: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with international counterparts on the political situation in Chechnya. [148300]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government remain deeply concerned about the situation in Chechnya. This issue is raised regularly in the context of both UK-Russia and EU-Russia Human Rights Consultations. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I will also continue to discuss Russia in conversations with our international counterparts. I fully expect that these discussions will cover both internal and external issues.

European Constitution Treaty

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to discuss the new EU treaty with his (a) Czech, (b) Polish and (c) Dutch counterpart. [147670]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will have regular contact with all his EU counterparts and looks forward to meeting the Polish and Czech Foreign Ministers. He will discuss many issues with them, including the Reform Treaty.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met his Dutch counterpart on 5 July. They discussed a number of issues, including the Reform Treaty.

Gibraltar

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with his Spanish counterpart on the future sovereignty of Gibraltar in (a) March, (b) April, (c) May and (d) June 2007. [147001]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have yet to have the opportunity to meet our Spanish counterparts since taking up our new positions, but look forward to doing so. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the then Minister for Europe (Mr. Hoon) to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) on 4 June, Official Report, column 236W. As regards sovereignty discussions, it remains the position that the Government would not enter into a process of sovereignty negotiations with which Gibraltar was not content.

Human Trafficking: Conferences

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2205W, on human trafficking: conferences, how many people attended the conference; how many were front-line practitioners; how many were from the UK; how many Members of Parliament from each EU country attended; what conclusions and recommendations emerged from the conference; and what further action is planned. [148195]

Dr. Howells: The Wilton Park conference entitled "Human Trafficking: how best to stem the flow" was attended by 61 people from 28 countries and international organisations, with 19 of the participants from the UK (including one hon. Member). Data protection rules prohibit the release of delegates' personal information. The range of participation is reflected in the speakers shown on the conference programme and included policy makers, practitioners, politicians, academics and law enforcement experts and is available on the Wilton Park website at:

http://www.wiltonpark.org.uk/documents/conferences/WP854/pdfs/WP854prog.pdf

A Conference Report will be sent to all participants and will be available on the Wilton Park website within one month. The report will be a summary of the main points and conclusions of the conference without attributing remarks. The conference and the subsequent report will be used by participants to inform international policy-making.

Iran: Politics and Government

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Iran; and if he will make a statement. [147573]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned by recent political developments in Iran, in particular the increase in restrictions on freedom of expression and peaceful assembly. We also continue to have concerns about Iran's nuclear and ballistic missile programme; its malign interference in Iraq and elsewhere in the region; and its support for terrorism.

We would welcome dialogue and engagement with Iran as it develops its economy and society and we would remind Iran that, to be a respected member of the international community, Iran has to abide by its international commitments, for example the Nuclear Non-Proliferation treaty and it needs to use its regional influence constructively.

Irian Jaya

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Indonesian Government on their decision not to allow Congressman Faleomavaega to visit West Papua. [148525]

Meg Munn: We are aware of reports that US Congressman Faleomavaega was denied access to Papua by the Indonesian authorities, who have said they cannot guarantee his safety. We understand that a number of Papuan representatives including members of the MRP (Majelis Rakyat Papua/Papuan People's Council), the Papuan tribal council and Governors Suebu and Atururi travelled from Papua to meet with Congressman Faleomavaega in Jakarta.

We have not raised this with the Indonesian authorities. The UK's policy on Papua is that we support the territorial integrity of Indonesia and therefore do not support independence for the province of Papua. We believe that the best way to resolve the complex issues in Papua is through promoting peaceful dialogue between Papuan groups and the Indonesian Government. We believe that full implementation of existing Special Autonomy legislation is the best way to proceed towards a peaceful, stable and prosperous Papua province.

Kyrgyzstan: Radioactive Wastes

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance is being given by the UK and international agencies to Kyrgyzstan to help it manage its nuclear waste. [148491]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK provides funds to the World Bank and International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which are the leading international agencies providing assistance to Kyrgyzstan in managing its nuclear waste. The World Bank provides financial support to reduce the danger from uranium wastes in the Ferghana Valley following an earlier study by the European Commission of the potential threat posed by mine wastes at the Mailuu-Suu uranium mine. The IAEA has provided technical assistance in the assessment of the radiation situation at the former uranium mine site. The IAEA has also funded a number of regional projects in central Asia which cover Kyrgyzstan. These include improvement of radiation waste management infrastructure, quality assurance, radiation protection, establishment of national capabilities for response systems, training personnel in radiation safety and management of residues from former mining and milling activities.

Libyan Arab Republic

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to visit Libya. [147672]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the then Prime Minister (Mr. Blair), visited Libya on 29 to 30 May. His visit sealed the transformation of UK/Libya relations since Libya's renunciation of terrorism and weapons of mass destruction in 2003. He met Colonel Gaddafi and Prime Minister Baghdadi, and discussed the wide range of areas in which we are co-operating, including trade, health and education. I also discussed these issues during my visit in June 2006.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no current plans to visit Libya. His foreign engagements, and those of other Ministers, are kept under constant review.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK officials will be seconded to support the work of the Quartet representative as set out in the Quartet statement of 27 June 2007; and if he will make a statement. [147479]

David Miliband: We welcome the right hon. Tony Blair's appointment as the Quartet's middle east representative. As Prime Minister, he demonstrated his commitment, over the years, to advancing the middle east peace process. He is exceptionally well placed to take on this role. We understand that details of Mr. Blair's role and how he and his team will operate are being worked out now. We are currently considering how we can support Mr. Blair's work.

The Quartet's efforts to find a peaceful resolution to the Arab/Israeli conflict are vital not only for the region but for the wider international community. The middle east peace process is one of our top priorities. We will continue to support the Quartet and their new representative in their work.

Somalia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial assistance is being made available to aid the (a) Ethiopian military and (b) infrastructure reconstruction in Somalia from (i) the UK and (ii) the EU. [146859]

Meg Munn: Neither the Government, nor the EU, is providing financial assistance to aid the Ethiopian military's operations in Somalia.

The Government, through Department for International Development funding, is providing a limited amount of support for infrastructure reconstruction in Somalia through its health and education programmes.

This includes:

rehabilitation of key government buildings in Baidoa/Johwar (£200,000); construction of Hargeisa prison (£150,000); construction of Hargeisa Police stations (£130,000); construction of Ghardo Prison (£50,000); construction of Armo Police Training Academy (£7,500); and equipping and renovations of civil service/public administration training institutions and support to selected ministries equipment/renovations (£200,000).

The European Commission is providing approximately €50 million per year of reconstruction through its health; education; rural development; governance, water and sanitation and food security programmes. These programmes include elements of infrastructure support.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the (a) Sudanese Liberation Movement and (b) Justice and Equality Movement on seeking peace in Darfur. [147973]

Meg Munn: A renewed political process is the only solution to the crisis in Darfur. We remain in close contact with the African Union and UN envoys, who are leading the renewed political process. Officials are in contact with a range of Sudanese rebel representatives based outside Darfur including the Sudanese Liberation Movement and the Justice and Equality Movement. Access to military commanders within Darfur is more difficult, but officials from our embassy in Khartoum are in contact with groups on the ground.

We use our contacts with the rebels, as with the government of Sudan, to press them to stop fighting and to engage in the political process; to respect international humanitarian law; and to provide safe and unrestricted access to humanitarian agencies. We have made clear that if they do not fulfil their commitments then we will impose further tough measures in the UN Security Council.

Sweden: NATO

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential for (a) Swedish and (b) Finnish membership of NATO; and if he will make a statement. [148301]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government have made no assessment of the potential for Swedish and Finnish membership of NATO as neither country has requested NATO membership. NATO operates an open door policy and would respect the sovereign decision of any country in the Euro-Atlantic area wishing to apply for membership. Any application would be subject to the consensus approval of the North Atlantic Council.

Uganda: Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what role he expects British police officers to have in Uganda (a) before and (b) during the Commonwealth Conference; and if he will make a statement. [147554]

Mr. Jim Murphy: At the request of the Ugandan Government police officers from the United Kingdom have been involved in training and advising Ugandan security staff in preparation for the state visit of Her Majesty The Queen and the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting. I expect that support to continue until the event.

Uganda: Group of Eight

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department received representations on whether President Museveni of Uganda should have been invited to the latest G8 meeting. [147838]

Meg Munn: We did not receive any such representations. It is for the sitting G8 presidency to decide which non-G8 leaders to invite to the annual summit. We welcomed the attendance of many African leaders at Heiligendamm as it gave G8 leaders an opportunity to discuss with them the issues of key importance to Africa today and into the future.

Uganda: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the 2005 constitutional amendment in Uganda on the position of that country's President. [147841]

Meg Munn: The Ugandan Parliament voted in 2005 to lift the constitutional two-term limit on the office of President to allow incumbents to serve an unlimited number of terms. This enabled President Museveni to stand in the February 2006 elections, when he was re-elected. The next presidential elections are scheduled for 2011.

UN Resolutions: Frontiers

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1719, on UN resolutions: frontiers, how many further notifications have been received by the UN Security Council Committee established pursuant to UN Resolution 1737 (2006) from states reporting the entry into or transit through their territories of designated persons. [147480]

David Miliband: The answer of 2 May given to the right. hon. Member by my right. hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Margaret Beckett) Official Report, column 1719, noted that two notifications had been received from member states of travel by individuals designated in the Annexes to UN Security Council Resolutions (UNSCR) 1737 (2006) and 1747 (2007), in March. No further notifications have been received by the UN Security Council Committee, established pursuant to UNSCR 1737 (2006), from states reporting the entry into or transit through their territories of designated persons.

HEALTH

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 230W, on blood: contamination, what (a) written and (b) verbal communications his Department has had with the UK Haemophilia Centre Directors Organisation to date on the inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if he will make a statement. [147951]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not had any formal written or verbal communication with the United Kingdom Haemophilia Centre Doctors' Organisation about the Lord Archer Inquiry.

Breast Cancer: Portsmouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in Portsmouth (a) did not accept an invitation to routine breast screening, (b) did not attend appointments made, (c) were diagnosed with breast cancer and (d) died from breast cancer in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [146496]

Ann Keen: Data on how many women in Portsmouth who did not accept an invitation to routine breast screening is not collected centrally.

Data on how many women in Portsmouth who did not attend appointments made (or where the result was inadequate) is shown in the table.

Breast screening programme: Women invited for routine screening by Portsmouth Breast Screening Unit and their attendance each specified year

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06

Data on how many women in Portsmouth died from breast cancer is shown in the table.

Number of deaths with an underlying cause of breast cancer, females, Portsmouth Unitary Authority, 2003-05[1]

	Deaths (Females)
2003	35
2004	30
2005	36

[1] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year. Notes: 1. Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) code C50.
2. Based on unitary authority boundaries as of 2007.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what account he has taken of trends in the demographics of Portsmouth in the operation of the NHS Breast Screening programme there; [146502]

(2) what the average intervals are between routine screening appointments for breast cancer in Portsmouth. [146495]

Ann Keen: The Department takes the issues of maintaining the three year interval for breast screening and the demographic challenges facing the breast screening programme over the coming years very seriously. This is why Professor Mike Richards, National Cancer Director, wrote to the chief executives of all 10 strategic health authorities (SHAs) in England on 9 February 2007 on behalf of the Department's Cancer Programme Board.

The letter to the chief executive of South Central SHA (the SHA area covering Portsmouth), pointed out the demographic challenges facing local breast screening services to help local commissioners plan their service over the coming years. By 2008-09, South Central SHA will have to carry out 185,350 screenings per year (an additional 74 per cent. of its 2004-05 level, inclusive of women in the extended age range of 65-70) in order to achieve and/or maintain the three year screening interval. By 2015-16, 207,250 screenings per year will be needed, a 95 per cent. increase on 2004-05 activity.

The letter also highlighted the importance of maintaining a three-year screening interval. Between January and March 2007, 99.1 per cent. of women served by the Portsmouth Breast Screening Unit were screened within 38 months of their previous screen. 51 per cent. of women had been screened within three years of their previous screen.

The Portsmouth Unit are working hard to ensure that all women are screened within three years of their previous screen.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in Portsmouth were invited for breast screening on a routine basis in 2006-07; how many such invitations he expects to be issued in (a) five and (b) 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [146503]

Ann Keen: The data on the number of women invited for breast screening on a routine basis in 2006- 07 will not be published until February 2008. Data provided, therefore, is for 2005-06. Information on the number of invitations expected to be issued in the next five and 10 years is neither forecast nor collected centrally.

The table shows the latest data available.

Breast screening programme: Women invited for routine screening by Portsmouth Breast Screening Unit, 2005-06

	Number

Cancer

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's cancer strategy is for the next decade; and if he will make a statement. [148453]

Ann Keen: The Department is currently developing a new Cancer Reform Strategy to build on the successes of the Cancer Plan published in 2000. The work is being led by the National Cancer Director, Professor Mike Richards CBE. More than 1,000 representatives, including patients, clinicians, charities and other independent experts have been involved. The strategy is expected to be published before the end of 2007.

Cancer: Drugs

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual expenditure per capita was on cancer drugs in each of the last 10 years; and what benchmarking analysis she has undertaken of expenditure on cancer drugs in other EU countries. [146759]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect information centrally on annual expenditure per capita on cancer drugs. However national health service reference costs returns from the NHS for 2005-06 show that over £460 million is spent on in-patient chemotherapy treatment and drugs. This excludes out-patient costs and excess bed days where patients spend longer in hospital than expected.

In addition, data from the Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) System and IMS Health show that annual spend on cancer drugs dispensed in hospitals and the community from 2002 to 2006 increased from £459.6 million to £729.1 million as set out in the following table.

	Combined hospital and community data[2,5]
	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Anti-cancer drugs[1]	459.6	537.9	611.4	631.2	729.1

[1] Anti-cancer drugs include cancer drugs appraised by National Institute for Clinical Excellence, standard cytotoxic drugs (non-NICE), drugs used for cancer and other conditions, endocrine drugs used for cancer and supportive care drugs used for cancer.

[2] Prescription information has been taken from:

a. the Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) system, supplied by the Prescription Pricing Division of the Business Services Agency. This is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in the community i.e. by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors, and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered in England. Also included are prescriptions written in Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Isle of Man but dispensed in England. The data do not cover drugs dispensed in hospitals, including mental health trusts, or private prescriptions

b. IMS Health—IMS collect hospital dispensing information from most hospitals in England. 97 per cent. of acute English hospitals supply data to IMS about all medicines dispensed in hospitals. Figures are grossed up to give England level estimates on the basis of bed numbers.

IMS hospital dispensing data is released on a regular basis. Each IMS dataset includes data for 24 months and may include updates to earlier data. The datasets used in this table were: data prior to July 2005—the dataset issued in early 2006; July 2005 onwards—the dataset issued April 2007.

[3] Cost is given in £ million and is the cost of the drugs at NHS list price. It is the basic cost of a drug. It does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.

[4] IMS data includes all drugs dispensed in NHS hospital regardless of patient, so will include drugs dispensed to private patients in private wards within NHS hospitals as long as they have been dispensed via the hospital pharmacy (extent of this varies from hospital to hospital).

[5] The list of drugs used to compile the totals given in this table consists of drugs used in the treatment of cancer in early 2006. There may have been some additions to this list since that time which will not be included in this analysis.

As part of the development of the cancer reform strategy we are looking at where money is currently being spent in cancer services, where cost pressures will come from in the future and how we can get best value for money. As part of this work, we are considering available data on cancer spend including comparisons with other countries. This work is not yet complete.

Cancer: Low Incomes

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to tackle financial hardship affecting cancer patients. [148533]

Ann Keen: There are a number of ways in which the Department is working to support people in financial hardship with the costs associated with their health care.

The NHS Low Income Scheme provides support for people in financial difficulties with prescriptions charges, dental treatment, sight tests and glasses and travel to receive national health service treatment through the Hospital Travel Costs Scheme. Financial support is available to those who are eligible through the benefits system, including disability living allowance and attendance allowance.

The Department is working to make people more aware of the financial support available through information prescriptions, which will be available for everyone with a long term condition by the end of 2008. This commitment is part of the 2006 White Paper "Our Health Our Care Our Say".

We are piloting information prescriptions in 20 sites during 2007, including in four sites focusing on cancer (County Durham PCT, Nottingham university hospitals NHS Trust—Mid Trent Cancer Network, university hospitals Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust and the Royal Marsden NHS Foundation Trust). These pilots are being run in partnership with voluntary organisations like Cancerbackup and Macmillan Cancer Support. Information prescriptions will guide people to the relevant websites, telephone numbers and support groups for their condition, including information about benefits.

Further information is made available locally through Patient Advice and Liaison Services, and policies are being developed locally to routinely offer information throughout the cancer patient pathway.

Cardiovascular System: Screening

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to issue guidance on abdominal aortic aneurysm screening; and if he will make a statement. [146668]

Ann Keen: The United Kingdom National Screening Committee (NSC) has advised that screening for men aged 65 for abdominal aortic aneurysms (AAA) can be recommended in principle subject to further work, particularly on the appropriate configuration of treatment services and the provision for men to make an informed choice about whether to undergo screening. The NSC is considering the practical implications that would be involved in implementing a screening programme for AAA. Further detailed work under the auspice of the NSC is being undertaken on a number of practical issues. These include developing standard operating procedures, programme standards, quality assurance procedures and training requirements. The Department's officials will be kept informed on how this work develops.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she is taking to ensure that mortality rates for abdominal aortic aneurysm operations are reduced prior to the introduction of a national screening programme; and if she will make a statement; [146674]

(2) what the mortality rate is in each strategic health authority in England for elective abdominal aortic aneurysm operations; and if she will make a statement. [146675]

Ann Keen: Commissioners of care and hospitals providing services have responsibility for ensuring quality of care, taking account of the Report published in October 2005 from the National Confidential Enquiry into Patient Outcome and Death, "Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm: A service in need of surgery?". The report is available at:

www.ncepod.org.uk/2005report2/

The information requested regarding mortality rates for elective AAA operations by strategic health authority is not held centrally.

Care Homes: Infectious Diseases

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) cases of healthcare-acquired infections and (b) deaths where the death certificate refers to a healthcare-acquired infection in care homes there were in each of the last three years for which figures are available, broken down by (i) type of infection and (ii) type of care home. [147022]

Ann Keen [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The information requested on the number of health care associated infections in care homes is not collected.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) publish figures on deaths with MRSA (meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus or Clostridium difficile) mentioned on the death certificate each year. These include figures on the type of place in which the deaths occurred. Information about where the infection was acquired is not collected at death registration and may be different from the place of death. The following tables provide figures for the past three years by type of care home in which the deaths happened.

Number of death certificates mentioning C.difficile[1], by place of death[2], 2003-05[3]

Dental Services

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average unit of dental activity value is in each primary care trust. [147887]

Ann Keen: Data collected by the Department centrally does not identify the value of units of dental activity or provide a basis for comparisons of such values between primary care trusts (PCTs). PCTs set contract values and service level requirements locally. Each contract specifies an annual contract value and the number of units of dental activity (which are a weighted measure of the courses of treatment given to national health service patients) to be provided over the courses of the year. This relationship between contract values and annual units of dental activity will vary because of a number of factors, including differences in treatment patterns and treatment needs in different areas, the contract values negotiated locally by PCTs and dental practices, and the degree to which PCTs and practices may have agreed service outputs that cannot be measured through patient courses of treatment.

Dental Services: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much NHS funding was allocated to dentistry provision in Stockport in each year since 1997. [147250]

Ann Keen: Primary care trusts (PCTs) assumed full responsibility for local commissioning of primary care dentistry and received devolved budgets with effect from 1 April 2006. The following table shows the Primary Dental Service Resource Allocations for Stockport PCT for 2006-07 and 2007-08.

£ million

Financial year	Net allocation	Indicative patient charge revenue	Indicative gross budget
2006-07	11.232	5.463	16.695
2007-08	11.972	5.452	17.424

Prior to April 2006, most primary dental services were provided under former General Dental Service (GDS) arrangements. These were demand led services where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice, and how much national health services work they chose to undertake. PCTs were not given fixed GDS funding allocations. In a number of areas, Personal Dental Service (PDS) pilots were also established, where some former GDS dental practices and some directly managed dental services converted to locally commissioned arrangements to test new ways of working and new forms of contract remuneration. PDS pilots were introduced in 1998 and were funded by PCTs from supplementary allocations issued by the Department of Health.

The following table shows the available data on expenditure on the former GDS and PDS services for Stockport PCT for 1997-98 to 2005-06. The difference between gross and net expenditure is the contribution to costs from dental charges collected directly from patients.

Note that reliable data on PDS expenditure are available only for the financial years 2004-05 and 2005-06. Therefore, the figures shown for gross GDS and PDS and net GDS and PDS before 2004-05 may be lower than the true total GDS and PDS spend. Changes from year to year may be affected by the shift from GDS to PDS in 2004-05.

Core GDS and PDS Dental Payments within Stockport PCT, 1997-98 to 2005-06[1, 2, 3, 4, 5]

Gross GDS	9.031	9.602	9.823	10.475	11.142	11.356	10.571	7.236	4.928

Net GDS and PDS	5.783	6.132	6.240	6.687	7.207	7.451	7.046	9.450	11.159

[1] Gross GDS payments include adult fees (including item of service and continuing care payments), child fees (including item of service and capitation payments), commitment payments and point of treatment check payment training (in 2001 only), seniority payments, maternity/paternity/adoptive leave payments, long-term sick leave payments, continuing professional development allowances including travel hours, reimbursement of business rates, vocational training grants and clinical audit payments. The following costs are excluded from these data: employer's superannuation costs, vocational trainee salaries and national insurance contribution costs, clinical audit convenors, clinical audit secretarial support costs and travel expenses, and costs associated with any salaried general dental practitioners and emergency dental services.

[2] PDS payment data are included from 2004-05 onwards only and relates to baseline payments or the agreed regular monthly payments made to PDS practices. Reliable PDS data at practice level are not available prior to 2004-05. The data cannot identify the cost of any PDS services that are directly managed by local NHS trusts, such as certain dental access centres.

[3] In the immediate aftermath of dental practices converting from GDS to PDS pilots, there can be a period of overlapping expenditure as time lags in submitting GDS treatment claims can mean that clearance of GDS arrears coincides with the start of regular PDS payments.

[4] Payments to dental practices are assigned to areas on the basis of practice postcode data. The practices themselves may draw patients from a wider catchment area.

[5] Net payments represent the balance of payments due after taking account of NHS dental charge income collected from patients by dental practices.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there are working in Stockport; and how many there were in each year since 1997. [147251]

Ann Keen: Numbers of national health service dentists within Stockport Primary Care Trust (PCT) as at 31 March 1997 to 2006 are available in Annex E of the NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006.

This information is based on the old contractual arrangements. This report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006.

Numbers of NHS dentists within Stockport PCT as at 30 June, 30 September, 31 December 2006 and 31 March 2007 are available in Table G of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England Q4: 31 March 2007 report. This report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalq4.

The figures for quarter four and the earlier quarters in the year are provisional and are subject to revision. The final work force figure for 2006-07 will not be available until August 2007 when the Information Centre (IC) will publish an end year report on the first 12 months of the new contractual arrangements.

This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements and is not directly comparable with earlier information.

In both sets of figures, no account is taken of the level of service, if any, that each dentist provides.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dental surgeries there are in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area; and how many of these are accepting new NHS patients. [147252]

Ann Keen: The number of dental surgeries that are accepting new national health service patients is not collected centrally.

As at 29 June 2007, there were 61 NHS dental surgeries within Stockport Primary Care Trust (PCT).

The areas have been defined using practice postcodes within the PCT area. The figure provides a snapshot of the number of addresses with a contract at the specified date.

No account is taken to the level of service, if any, that each dentist provides.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients are registered with NHS general dental practitioners in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area. [147253]

Ann Keen: Registration data no longer form part of the data available under the new national health service dental contractual arrangements. The new measure is patients seen in the previous 24 months and is not comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

Numbers of patients seen, by adult and child, in the previous 24 months ending 31 March, 30 June, 30 September, 31 December 2006 and 31 March 2007 in Stockport Primary Care Trust, are available in Section F1 of Annex 3 of the 'NHS Dental Statistics for England Q4:31 March 2007 report'. This report is available in the Library.

Information is as at England, strategic health authority and PCT level and the report, published by The Information Centre for health and social care, is also available on-line at:

Diseases: Thyroid Gland

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the diagnosis and management of hypothyroidism. [148576]

Ann Keen: Representations on the diagnosis and management of hypothyroidism have been recently received from a small number of health professionals and members of the public, and from members of parliament on behalf of their constituents.

These representations have raised concerns over the over-reliance on blood tests in the diagnosis of hypothyroidism, and the possibility of under diagnosis of this condition.

At present, it is considered good medical practice to confirm a diagnosis of hypothyroidism though physical examination, clinical history and blood tests.

Doctors: Training

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many specialty training posts will be available in round 2; and how many of those are (a) run-through training posts and (b) fixed-term specialist training appointments; [147823]

(2) how many junior doctors from the foundation year 2 cohort have not (a) received and (b) accepted offers of training places in round 1; [147824]

(3) what proportion of posts have been filled by junior doctors in round 1, broken down by (a) specialty and (b) level. [147825]

Ann Keen [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The information requested is in the final stages of validation and will be published shortly.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will create further specialty training posts for autumn 2007 beyond the 215 extra specialty training posts already announced. [147826]

Ann Keen [holding answer 5 July 2007]: There are no plans to create further run-through specialist training posts for 2007 beyond the 215 already announced. However, for those who have successfully completed the Modernising Medical Careers foundation training programme and who demonstrate their ability to progress, there will be new training programmes through one-year fixed term appointments. There will also be a range of educational grants available to enable doctors either to get an additional year's experience in their chosen specialty or to choose to gain experience in a different specialty, thus giving them all a better chance to apply and secure a training programme next year.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether junior doctors who failed to obtain a run-through training post this year will be able to apply for them in subsequent years. [147827]

Ann Keen [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Provided they meet the eligibility criteria for the year in which they apply junior doctors will be able to apply for posts advertised in that year.

Hazardous Substances: Transport

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Best Practice Guidance on the Transport of Infectious Substances published on his Department's website on 1 June 2007, Gateway reference 8334, whether his Department is aware of any occasions on which cultures containing (a) Escherichia coli (verocytotoxigenic), (b) Mycobacterium tuberculosis and (c) Shigella dysenteriae have been sent via Royal Mail. [147575]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not monitor the transportation of infectious substances but recommends that cultures containing (a) Escherichia coli (verocytotoxigenic), (b) Mycobacterium tuberculosis and (c) Shigella dysenteriae are transported by a specialist courier company. Details are found in Transport of Infectious Substances—Best Practice Guidance for Microbiology Laboratories, Gateway reference 8334.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) cases of C. difficile and (b) deaths where the death certificate refers to C. difficile there were in each acute hospital trust in England in the most recent period for which figures are available. [147023]

Ann Keen [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) publishes mandatory surveillance data for Clostridium difficile infection on its website. The scheme began in January 2004 and up until 31 March 2007 all acute national health service trusts had to report all cases of C.difficile infection for patients aged 65 years and over. Annual data for individual trusts for the first three years (2004, 2005 and 2006) are available on the HPA website at www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hai/C_diff_annual_Apr_2007.xls A copy of the tables has been placed in the Library.

No figures on numbers of deaths as recorded on death certificates are routinely available by NHS trust.

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of cases of clostridium difficile that were caused by in-hospital contamination in each of the last three years. [147460]

Ann Keen: The Health Protection Agency publishes data on the mandatory surveillance scheme for Clostridium difficile infection (CDI) on its website, www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hai/Mandatory_Results.htm.

The scheme began in January 2004 and up until 31 March 2007, all acute national health service trusts in England had to report all cases of CDI for patients aged 65 years and over. The annual national figures are shown in the following table.

Annual cases of GDI in England

	Annual cases[1] of CDI
January to December 2004	44,314
January to December 2005	51,767
January to December 2006	55,681

[1] Cases are defined as all diarrhoeal specimens that test positive for C. difficile toxin (where the patient has not been diagnosed with CDI in the preceding four weeks).

Note:

The data collected do not include information on where the infection was acquired, thus we do not know how many of these cases are acquired in hospital.

Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1920W, on the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation, when the minutes are likely to be agreed. [147463]

Dawn Primarolo: The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation minutes have now been agreed and copies are available in the Library and at:

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/jcvi/mins140207.htm

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/jcvi/mins-hpv-280207.htm

Maternity Services: Midlands

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many additional nursing posts were created in the neonatal units at (a) Stoke, (b) Wolverhampton and (c) Shrewsbury hospitals in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007; [146563]

(2) how many nurses were employed in the neonatal units at (a) Stoke, (b) Wolverhampton and (c) Shrewsbury hospitals in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006; and how many are now employed. [146564]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not available in the format requested.

The Department centrally collects staffing data in an annual survey at acute trust level. Therefore, data is not available by individual hospital or for a geographical area of the country. The data collected reflects the number of staff rather than the number of posts. While the data can be broken down to maternity services area of work, it is not possible to separate out data for neonatal units.

Data on NHS hospital and community health services: Qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff in the maternity services area of work, as at 30 September for 2005 and 2006 (latest data available), is shown in the table. The trusts within the table are those within the geographical areas requested.

Trust	2005	2006
University hospital of North Staffordshire NHS trust	299	297
The Royal Wolverhampton hospitals NHS trust	147	140
Shrewsbury and Telford hospital NHS trust	303	277

Notes:
More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total workforce figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures (and negligible for full-time equivalents). This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends over time.

Maternity Services: Royal Shrewsbury Hospital

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the impact of proposed changes to neonatal care at Royal Shrewsbury hospital on babies born under 27 weeks' gestation currently cared for at the hospital. [146511]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 7 June 2007, Official Report, columns 656-57W.

MRSA: Disease Control

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance is issued to hospital trusts on whether patients with MRSA infections should be nursed in single rooms. [146841]

Ann Keen [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Guidance on the management of patients with methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) infections was drawn up by a joint working party of the British Society of Antimicrobial Chemotherapy, the Hospital Infection Society and the Infection Control Nurses Association. It was published in the Journal of Hospital Infection in March 2006[1].

The guidance makes clear that patient isolation for those infected or colonised with MRSA will be dependent on the facilities available and the associated level of risk. Isolation should be in a designated closed area that should be clearly defined; in most facilities, this will be either single-room accommodation or cohort areas/bays with clinical hand-washing facilities. The guidance also states that consideration should be given to the provision of isolation wards to contain MRSA spread.

In addition to the guidance referred to above, the Health Act 2006, Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Health Care Associated Infections, requires trusts to have policies on allocation of patients to isolation facilities based on local risk assessment.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of using ozone to combat the threat of MRSA; how many representations on the subject he has received; and if he will make a statement. [147475]

Ann Keen: The Rapid Review Panel, convened by the Health Protection Agency at the request of the Department, has reviewed seven products that use ozone and none of these demonstrate that their use reduces infection rates. The use of ozone to reduce methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus infections is unproven.

NHS: Finance

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 278W, on NHS finance, whether rates of clostridium difficile were taken into consideration during the allocation of grants under the capital challenge fund scheme; [147465]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 278W, on NHS finance, what factors were taken into account in the decision to allocate funds to hospitals under the capital challenge fund scheme. [147476]

Ann Keen: All acute trusts were offered an allocation of £300,000 under the Capital Challenge Fund in order to enable investment in tackling infections to be increased quickly. All applications for funding up to that level were approved in full. There was no need for additional factors, including rates of Clostridium difficile infection to be taken into account. For national health service foundation trusts (NHSFTs), the Capital Challenge Fund offered a potential addition of £300,000 to public dividend capital. In order to receive the addition, NHSFTs had to meet the general rules for entitlement to public dividend capital.

NHS: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost of required maintenance in the NHS was in each financial year since 1997-98; and what this figure was for 2006-07, broken down by NHS organisation. [148153]

Mr. Bradshaw: The summary information requested is in the table.

Investment to reduce backlog maintenance will be prioritised locally based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources. The majority of the backlog maintenance relates to low priority work which will be undertaken through ongoing maintenance programmes. Where higher risks are present, work will be undertaken as a priority.

	Total backlog maintenance (£ million)
1997-98	2,836
1998-99	3,027
1999-2000	3,108
2000-01	3,242
2001-02	3,378
2002-03	3,517
2003-04	3,193
2004-05	3,142
2005-06	3,684

The data is as provided by the national health service and has not been amended centrally. Its accuracy and completeness is the responsibility of the provider organisation. A list of the latest available figures broken down by NHS organisation has been placed in the Library.

Sight Impaired: Low Incomes

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assistance is available for (a) the elderly and (b) people on low income who need spectacles; what the eligibility criteria are; how much was (i) allocated for such assistance and (ii) received on average by claimants in 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [146905]

Ann Keen: Individuals aged over 60 who are in receipt of Income Support, income-based Job seeker's allowance, or tax credits and meeting qualifying conditions, or who qualify for help under the National Health Service Low Income Scheme, can get help with the cost of glasses or contact lenses via an NHS optical voucher. Individuals under 60 and on low incomes may also be entitled to NHS optical vouchers. NHS optical vouchers provide eligible groups with flexibility over which glasses or contact lenses they choose and where they buy them.

There are nine voucher bands with vouchers ranging from £34.60 to £190.90, depending on the patient's prescription.

Expenditure on NHS optical vouchers is demand-led and not subject to a cash limited allocation.

Figures for expenditure in 2006-07 are not yet available. In 2005-06, 65 per cent., of vouchers reimbursed were for adults receiving income support, income-based job seeker's allowance, tax credits, or those eligible for help under the NHS Low Income Scheme. It is not possible to estimate how many of these vouchers were for people aged over 60 alone.

The estimated total cost of vouchers and repairs and replacements for these groups in 2005-06 was around £104 million, based on a total spend of £159 million for all eligible patients.

Vaccination: Side effects

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) deaths and (b) other adverse reactions to vaccines were reported in each of the last 30 years; and whether there were any deaths in each year from 1964 to 2007 attributed to vaccination. [146430]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table lists the numbers of reports of suspected adverse reactions (ADRs) to vaccines submitted to the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) via the yellow card scheme between 1 January 1964 and 31 December 2006.

It is very important to note that the report of a suspected ADR via the yellow card scheme and inclusion in this list does not necessarily mean that the event was caused by the vaccine. Yellow card reports are suspicions that a vaccine or medicine may have caused an event and are not proof of a causal association.

The increase in total reports in the year 2000 was due to the meningitis C immunisation campaign during which more than 18 million doses of the vaccine were administered in just over a year.

Data from the yellow card scheme is continually reviewed to identify new safety issues with medicines and vaccines, and where issues are identified appropriate action is taken to protect public health.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Serious and Organised Crime Agency

10. Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency. [147912]

Mr. McNulty: The Serious Organised Crime Agency has just published its first annual report, which highlights significant achievements for an organisation that has only been in existence for just over a year.

This report identifies how SOCA has performed against their strategic imperatives—in response to the priorities laid down by the Home Secretary—and incorporates illustrations of operational successes.

Child Trafficking

11. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department If she will make a statement on the findings of the Child Exploitation Online Protection Centre scoping project on child trafficking in the UK. [147913]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office commissioned this report in 2006 to improve our knowledge of the nature and extent of child trafficking in the UK. We are most concerned about the plight of child victims revealed in the findings and welcome the recommendations which are being actively pursued as part of the Government's Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking.

Immigration Review

12. Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on the implementation of her Department's immigration review. [147914]

Mr. Byrne: Good progress has been made since the IND review was published last year, meeting almost all of the milestones we had set to achieve by April 2007.

The Border and Immigration Agency was established as a shadow agency in April and has since published its priorities and work programme for 2007-08.

Credit Card Fraud

14. Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to banks on reporting credit card fraud following the changes to the reporting procedures for such fraud which came into force in January. [147916]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has been liaising with the UK Payments Association (APACS) on changes in relation to the reporting and recording of cheque and plastic card crime. APACS have notified all of their members of the changes prior to 1 April 2007.

DNA Database

15. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances the DNA of children under 10 years old may be included on the national DNA database. [147917]

Meg Hillier: Only when the child's parent or guardian consents to a request from the police to take a DNA sample. 108 children under 10 were on the database at 31 January 2007.

Public Order Offences

16. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) antisocial behaviour orders and (b) fixed penalty notices were served in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [147918]

Mr. Coaker: The Courts issued some 4,000 antisocial behaviour orders in England and Wales in 2005.

Provisional figures for 2006 show that the police issued some 200,000 penalty notices for disorder in England and Wales. 146,000 were issued in 2005. The payment rate is 53 per cent.

Some 3.5 million fixed penalty notices were also for motoring offences in 2004. The payment rate for these is 88 per cent.

Other agencies, including local authorities may also issue fixed penalty notices—we do not collect data on those.

Deportation

17. Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the new grounds for deporting people for fomenting extremism under the 12 point plan announced by the then Prime Minister in August 2005. [147919]

Mr McNulty: The new grounds introduced in 2005 were an effective clarification of Government policy in dealing with extremism. To date one person has been deported and 52 excluded from the UK on these grounds. In the same period we have deported nine and excluded 124 individuals on national security grounds.

Terrorism

18. Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received on warnings for the public following the recent terrorist attacks. [147921]

Mr. McNaulty: The Home Secretary has not received any representations on warnings for the public following the recent terrorist attacks.

National Identity Card Scheme

19. Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent progress has been made on the National Identity Card Scheme; and if she will make a statement. [147922]

Meg Hillier: The Government remain committed to the introduction of the national identity scheme.

ID cards are essential in combating identity fraud and illegal immigration and in disrupting organised crime and the continued threat of terrorism.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what recent progress has been made on the National Identity Card Scheme; and if she will make a statement. [147915]

Liam Byrne: The Government remain committed to the introduction of the national identity scheme.

ID cards are essential in combating identity fraud and illegal immigration and in disrupting organised crime and the continued threat of terrorism.

Drug-related Crime

20. Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of measures to combat drug-related crime. [147923]

Mr. Coaker: Recorded acquisitive crime—to which drug-related crime makes a significant contribution—has fallen by 20 per cent. since the onset of the Drug Interventions Programme (DIP) and DIP is now getting, on average, over 3x500 drug misusing offenders into drug treatment each month.

Completion rates for Drug Treatment and Testing Orders (DTTOs) and Drug Rehabilitation Requirements (DRRs) have risen significantly from 28 per cent. in 2003 to 44 per cent. in 2006-07. We know that offenders who complete these orders have significantly lower reconviction rates (53 per cent.) than those who do not (91 per cent.). Research findings also show a reduction of up to 10 per cent. in re-offending rates of those engaging in prison treatment, providing there is relevant aftercare provision.

Police: East Midlands

21. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received on the level of funding for police authorities in the East Midlands region. [147924]

Mr. McNulty: A number of police authorities and police forces in the East Midlands, as well as several hon. Members, have made representations.

Police forces in the East Midlands, like all forces in England and Wales, have benefited from sustained increases in funding over the past decade.

Respect Taskforce

22. Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on the work of the Respect Taskforce on reducing antisocial behaviour. [147925]

Jacqui Smith: I have had no formal discussions with the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families prior to 28 June, when, following machinery of Government changes the new Department for Children, Schools and Families assumed responsibility for the Respect Task Force.

Databases: Vandalism

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the merits of creating a national database of incidents of graffiti dealt with by local authorities. [147991]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 9 July 2007]: A national database of graffiti incidents currently exists and is maintained by the British Transport Police and Transport for London. The images held on the database are uploaded by authorised practitioners, such as police officers and local authority officers who can access the database free of charge. The purpose is not to act as either an intelligence or crime recording system but to facilitate communication between partnership agencies that have an interest in sharing information relating to graffiti. My Department is in discussions with the British Transport Police regarding the effectiveness of the current system.

Police Interrogation: Interpreters

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has (a) asked for and (b) received any estimate of the total cost of providing translation facilities in police stations for people being interviewed. [148262]

Mr. McNulty: Code C issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 provides that chief officers of each police force are responsible for making sure that appropriate arrangements are in place for provision of suitably qualified interpreters for people who are deaf or who do not understand English. Information is not collated centrally on the cost of these arrangements.

A survey of nine forces carried out in December 2006 by the Office of Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) showed that some forces do not compile separate records of the costs so no estimate of the total cost is available. However, the Metropolitan police do keep detailed records and their annual costs amounted to £8.8 million in 2005-06. OCJR estimate that the Metropolitan police accounts for about half of the national spend on interpreters.

Police: Airports

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the funding of airport policing. [147692]

Mr. McNulty: The funding of uniformed police at airports was examined last year by an independent review. Since that time both the Home Office and the Department for Transport have been working with representatives from airport operators, ACPO and the police authorities to develop an agreed way forward on the basis of that review's analysis and recommendations.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will consider the merits of his Department compiling and publishing statistics on police complaints in conjunction with the Independent Police Complaints Commission. [146575]

Mr. McNulty: The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) has responsibility for the operation of police complaints system and the publication of statistics relating to police complaints. Arrangements for the collection and publication of complaint statistics work well and there are no plans to change them. The IPCC publishes data on police complaints in its annual reports laid before Parliament by the Secretary of State.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1514W, on police: complaints, if he will make a statement on his meeting with the Independent Police Complaints Commission in March 2007, with particular reference to complaints statistics; and if he will place the minutes of the meeting in the Library. [146693]

Mr. McNulty: The meeting was part of a visit to the IPCC and no minutes were kept.

Police: Driving Offences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to police forces on the prosecution of police drivers who are caught speeding when not on an emergency call; and if she will make a statement. [147777]

Jacqui Smith: Under section 87 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 a vehicle is exempt from speed limits if it is being used for a police purpose and if observance of a limit would hinder that purpose. "Police purpose" is not defined and is therefore not necessarily restricted to emergency responses. Whether or not to rely on section 87 in any particular case is a decision for the police.

Guidance from the Association of Chief Police Officers is that generally no action should be taken when a vehicle is detected speeding if it is using its blue emergency lights. If it is not, the case should be investigated. If the exemption is claimed and there is no evidence to challenge the claim, it should be accepted as valid and no further action taken. If the exemption is not claimed, the case should be processed as normal. If, in the event of a prosecution, the defendant claims the exemption, it will be for the court to decide if the claim is valid.

Police: Driving Under Influence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in each police force were (a) prosecuted, (b) disciplined and (c) dismissed for drink driving related offences in each of the last three years. [147403]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not collected by the Home Office.

Police: Health

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1967W, on police health, when he expects the Police Advisory Board for England and Wales working group to publish its findings on national fitness standards for police officers. [146692]

Mr. McNulty: The Police Advisory Board for England and Wales (PAB EW) working group responsible for looking into police fitness standards is currently planning its programme of work—so it is difficult to say exactly when this will be completed. However, I expect the group to report to Ministers on at least one of the specialist police roles sometime in 2008.

The PAB EW advises Ministers on policing matters and a Government position is arrived at on the basis of that advice.

Police: Labour Turnover

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers left each police force in each year since 2001 due to (a) retirement, (b) resignation, (c) transfer to another force and (d) other reasons. [147894]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are from 2002-03 onwards and are given in the tables.

Details on the number of police officer leavers (including those officers transferring to other forces but not those returning after a period of secondment) are published in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales." The latest available bulletin is available for download from: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb1306.pdf

[4] Data have not been previously published in this format therefore totals may not match totals found in the published data.
[5] Excludes quarter 1, data not available.
[6] Excludes Essex and Gloucestershire, data not available.
[7] Over 1,000 police officers previously working with the National Crime Squad (NCS) and the National Criminal Intelligence Squad (NCIS) left their home force to join the Serious Organised Crime Agency when it vested on 1 April 2006.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to her written answer of 22 June 2007 (145928), on police in Chelmsford, how many full-time equivalent police officers in the Chelmsford basic command unit there were, including officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave on 31 March 1997. [147439]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 July 2007]: Police strength by police basic command unit was collected centrally for the first time for the period beginning April 2002; therefore the requested data are not available.

Police: Protective Clothing

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the EH20 Escape Hood, with particular reference to its use in a (a) chemical, (b) biological, (c) radiological and (d) nuclear incident; and if she will make a statement; [146637]

(2) what assessment she has made of the cost effectiveness of the EH20 Escape Hood; and if she will make a statement; [146638]

(3) what response she has made to the Police Federation's recommendation that EH20 Escape Hoods should be provided to every police officer; [146639]

(4) what guidance the Association of Chief Police Officers has issued to police forces on the EH20 Escape Hood and its use during times of heightened national security; [146640]

(5) what factors were taken into account in the decision to downgrade the EH20 Escape Hood from the list of personal protective equipment issued to all police officers; [146641]

(6) which police authorities have issued their police officers with EH20 Escape Hoods; and if he will make a statement; [146642]

(7) what discussions she has had with the chief constables of (a) the Metropolitan police, (b) Greater Manchester police, (c) North Yorkshire police, (d) South Yorkshire police, (e) West Yorkshire police and

(f) West Midlands police on the purchasing of the EH20 Escape Hood; and if he will make a statement. [146581]

Mr. McNulty: The Association of Chief Police Officers has drawn to the attention of each force the availability of the EH20 Escape Hood although the purchase and issuing of police equipment is a matter for each individual chief constable.

The contract to manufacture the EH20 Escape Hood was awarded following a competitive tender process which included value for money considerations.

Information on the specific purchases for each police force is not publicised for security reasons.

Police: Recruitment

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers were recruited by each police force area in each year since 2001. [147893]

Mr. McNulty: The available data are from 2002-03 onwards and are given in the following table.

Details on the number of police officer joiners (including those officers transferring from other forces but not those returning after a period of secondment) are published in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales". Police: Sports

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to encourage police officers to join police sports teams in order to enhance physical fitness levels; how many police forces currently have sports teams; and if he will make a statement. [146576]

Mr. McNulty: Responsibility for the physical fitness of serving police officers and force sports teams lies with the chief officer of each force. Information on police force sports teams is not held centrally.

Police: Training

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police authorities are equipped with Hydra suites for the training of police officers; what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of police Hydra suites; what plans she has to encourage police authorities to build more Hydra suites; and if she will make a statement. [146578]

Mr. McNulty: The following police authorities are equipped with Hydra suites for the training of police officers:

Metropolitan Police Service (three suites)
National Policing Improvement Agency (3 suites)
Serious Organised Crime Agency
Scottish Police College, Tulliallan
Avon and Somerset police

Greater Manchester police

Hertfordshire constabulary

Kent constabulary

Merseyside police

Police Service of Northern Ireland (two suites)

South Wales police (three suites)

West Midlands police

West Yorkshire police

The Hydra suite and methodology is also being used internationally by a number of other organisations:

Justice Institute of British Columbia, Canada.

Royal Canadian mounted police currently located in Ottawa. Joint plans are being made for training to be extended to manage the winter Olympics 2010, G8 Conference, Papal visit and other major events in the next few years with both agencies.

Paramata, New South Wales, Australia. This was initially built and used to train police commanders and other agencies to prepare their officers to manage the 2000 Olympic games in Sydney. It is currently being used for leadership programmes, domestic and terrorist related hostage negotiation and counter terrorism preparedness.

The methodology has been grown over the last 20 years and has built on research findings through debriefing of such incidents as community confidence following the murder of Stephen Lawrence, outcomes from the foot and mouth epidemic, the international response to the tsunami, multi agency management of counter terrorism related to 9/11, the London bombings, Sharm el Sheikh and Bali bombings as well as the Olympic games in Sydney 2000, the Commonwealth games in Manchester and the G8 summit in Canada.

The Association of Chief Police Officers Terrorism and Applied Matters Committee (ACPO TAM) has commissioned a number of reports on the effectiveness of Hydra, for example a report entitled a Review of Counter Terrorism Exercises in the UK has 13 references to hydra as examples of good practice.

An HMIC report into the UK state of readiness for counter terrorism states Hydra and its associated 10kv debriefing as the way forward for capacity building. There are various HMIC thematic inspections around critical incident management throughout the country that refer to the effectiveness of those forces who are using Hydra.

The Hydra methodology prohibits the use of hydra to directly assess the performance of delegates; this allows the statement "Safe Learning environment" to have real integrity. However there are triangulated methods for assessments that are built into the programs that surround Hydra events that enable individual assessments to be made.

The National Policing Improvement Agency is planning a new suite at Harperley Hall, Durham; HMRC are building a Hydra suite and have appointed a suite manager; Ministry of Defence police are planning a suite at Wethersfield, Essex.

With the regional spread of Hydra suites there is not a direct need for small forces to create their own establishments and with the NPIA plans for Harperley Hall in Durham, consideration should now be given to plugging any holes in the regional map.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which police forces are participating in the Employer Supported Learning scheme; and in which towns the scheme is operating: [147852]

(2) how many people have been recruited to the Special Constabulary through the Employer Supported Learning scheme; and if she will make a statement. [147853]

Mr. McNulty: Responsibility for the policy development within the Special Constabulary now resides with the NPIA.

I understand from the CEO of the NPIA, that the following forces are currently participating in Employer Support programmes:

Metropolitan Police

Hampshire

Kent

Suffolk

Greater Manchester

South Wales

Bedfordshire

Cambridgeshire

Dorset

Data on the towns in which Employer Support programmes are operating and the number of Special Constables recruited from these programmes is not held centrally.

Police: Unitary Councils

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of the creation of new unitary councils on co-terminosity of police basic command units and local authority boundaries. [146455]

Mr. McNulty: The boundaries of basic command units are administrative boundaries determined by chief constables who take into account the boundaries of local authorities in drawing them up. The consultation process should take in to account views of the local police force and authority on the impact of re-structuring proposals.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the co-terminosity of boundaries between police forces and local government structures. [146456]

Mr. McNulty: Current policy maintains that there should only be consequential changes to force boundaries as a result of local government reorganisation. There are no proposals being consulted on that cross police force borders.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of the bids of local authorities shortlisted for unitary status on policing in those areas. [146464]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office has been fully engaged in the local government restructuring process including emphasising the importance of consulting local police and police authorities so that the local impact of the proposals is fully considered. Police authorities and police forces, along with a range of public bodies, have been able to submit their views as part of the consultation.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the local authorities seeking unitary status which appeared on the shortlist published by the Department for Communities and Local Government on 27 March 2006. [146474]

Mr. McNulty: The decision as to which proposals should proceed to stakeholder consultation reflected the collective decision of Government. All the 26 unitary proposals that were received in response to the invitation issued on 26 October 2006 were assessed against the five criteria set out in that invitation. The 16 unitary proposals that have been subject to the stakeholder consultation will now be reassessed against the same five criteria having regard to all the information available including that received in response the consultation.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken in response to the recommendations of the (a) 2002 House of Lords Select Committee Report on Animals in Scientific Procedures, (b) Animals Procedures Committee (APC) 2001 Report on Openness, (c) the APC's 2003 review of Cost-benefit Assessment in the Use of Animals in Research and (d) the APC's 2005 Report on the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals in Scientific Procedures; and if she will make a statement. [147833]

Meg Hillier: Our response to the report of the House of Lord Select Committee on animals in scientific procedures was published in January 2003 (CM 5729) and our responses to the Animal Procedures Committee (APC) reports on openness and the cost benefit assessment have been published in the APC annual reports for 2001 and 2005, respectively. These documents are available in the House Library. We responded to the APC statistics report in January 2006 and a copy of that response is available on the Committee's website.

The main steps we have taken in the light of these reports have been as follows. We have:

established a national centre for the replacement, refinement and reduction of animals in research (the NCSRs);

reviewed section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, the so-called "confidentiality clause", and concluded that it should be should be retained and reviewed again when we have seen the full effect of the safeguards provided by the Freedom of Information Act 2000;

since January 2005, published the details of over 800 project licences granted under the 1986 Act on the Home Office website; begun publishing an Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate annual report and placed copies of the first two reports, for 2004 and 2005, in the House Library; made presentational changes to the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2005 to make them more reader-friendly; identified further presentational changes to be made to the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2006 to be published shortly; and through our on going contacts, worked with the NCSRs and others to identify areas of animal use in which specific gains in the reduction, replacement and refinement of animal procedures might be achievable in the future.

Other changes to the annual statistics publication will be considered later taking account of the recommendations of the Davidson Review of the transposition of European legislation in the United Kingdom and relevant issues raised by the proposed revision of European Directive 86/609/EEC, which the 1986 Act transposes into United Kingdom legislation. Some further information relevant to the cost benefit assessment will also be published when a current judicial review, the outcome of which may be relevant, has been completed.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of (a) producing and (b) publishing the Animals Procedures Committee's (i) 2001 report on openness, (ii) 2003 cost-benefit assessment on the use of animals in research and (iii) 2005 report on the statistics of scientific procedures on living animals; and if she will make a statement. [147839]

Meg Hillier: The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 ("the Act") requires the licensing of any experiment or other scientific procedure carried out on living, protected animals which may cause them pain, suffering, distress or lasting harm. The Animal Procedures Committee (APC) is established under section 19 of the Act to provide the Home Secretary and the Northern Ireland Secretary with independent advice about the Act and their functions under it.

For the financial year 2001-02 the Home Office was allocated in the region of £8,000 for the production of APC reports and related services. In that year the APC produced three reports, its Annual Report and reports on Biotechnology and Openness. For financial year 2003-04, £8,000 was allocated to the Home Office for production of reports, in that year the APC produced its Annual Report and a report on Cost Benefit Assessment. It should be noted that costs are not separately identifiable for the production and publication of such reports.

The Home Office Animals Scientific Procedures Division were charged £1,973 for the printing of forms, and £2,141 for publication of the 2005 Report on the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on living animals, totalling £4,114. The cost of internal resources allocated to producing this report is not separately identifiable.

Asylum

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum legacy cases have been resolved since the establishment of the dedicated directorate within the Border and Immigration Agency. [147763]

Jacqui Smith: Lin Homer, the chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency, wrote to the chair of the Home Affairs Select Committee on 19 February 2007 about the legacy programme. She explained that once reports can be produced on the programme in which Parliament and the wider public can have suitable confidence, Parliament will be updated accordingly. A copy of this letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

Asylum: Children

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children who had applied for asylum in the UK and had their application refused were deported in each of the last five years. [148157]

Mr. Byrne: The available data are given in the table.

Information on the age of persons removed from the UK has only been available since the start of 2004. It is not possible to say what stage in the asylum process people have reached at the time of their removal (e.g. whether their application had been refused), as those departing voluntarily can do so at any stage.

Information on asylum removals is published quarterly and annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Removals, voluntary departures[1], assisted returns of asylum applicants, including dependants, aged under 18[2], 2004 to 2006[3]

	2004	2005	2006[4]
Total removed	1,900	1,640	1,640

[1] Includes enforced removals, persons departing 'voluntarily' following enforcement action initiated against them, persons leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes run by the International Organization for Migration and those who it is established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities (from 2005).
[2] Age at time of removal. This figure may overstate because some applicants aged 18 or over may claim to be younger on their date of removal from the UK.
[3] Figures rounded to the nearest five.
[4] Provisional figures.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to deport failed Iraqi asylum seekers living in Plymouth; how many were deported in each of the last two years; and if she will make a statement. [148160]

Mr. Byrne: Each asylum and human rights application made by an Iraqi national is, as with all other nationalities, considered individually against the background of current information from a wide range of well-recognised sources about the situation in Iraq. Those who are found not to be in need of any international protection and have no legal basis of stay in the UK may return voluntarily to any region of Iraq. Where an individual does not return voluntarily, removal may be enforced. Enforced removals will only be undertaken where we are satisfied the individual has no protection needs. Removal statistics are available in the following table.

Removals, voluntary departures and assisted returns[1] of asylum applicants, including dependants, nationals of Iraq, in 2005 and 2006[2,3]

	Number of principal applicants
Quarter	2005	2006
Total principal asylum applicants removed[4]	1,080	1,830
of whom: removed to Iraq	795	1,640
of whom: removed to other and destination unknown	285	190
Persons removed and voluntary departures[5,6]	320	240
of whom: removed to Iraq	45	65
of whom: removed to other and destination unknown	275	175
Persons leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes[7]	760	1,590
of whom: removed to Iraq	750	1,575
of whom: removed to other and destination unknown	10	15

[1] Includes enforced removals, persons departing 'voluntarily' after enforcement action had been initiated against them, persons leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes run by the International Organization for Migration and those who it is established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities.
[2] Figures rounded to the nearest five, with — = 0, * = 1 or 2, and may not sum due to rounding.
[3] Provisional figures.
[4] Persons who had sought asylum at some stage, excluding dependants.
[5] Includes persons departing 'voluntarily' after enforcement action had been initiated against them and those who it is established have the UK without informing the immigration authorities.
[6] Excludes Assisted Voluntary Returns.
[7] Persons leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes run by the International Organization for Migration. May include some cases where enforcement action has been initiated.

Counter-terrorism

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received on the contents of her oral statement of 7 June 2007, Official Report, columns 421-37 on counter-terrorism; and what response she has made to those representations. [147193]

Mr. McNulty: We have received a small number of representations from members of the public since the statement of 7 June by the previous Home Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Airdrie and Shotts (John Reid).

Crime Prevention: Finance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what grants were provided to the (a) Crime Reduction Partnership in Newcastle, (b) Newcastle city council and (c) the Newcastle Local Strategic Partnership in respect of safety and policing in each year from 2003-04 to 2007-08. [146308]

Mr. Coaker: Grant allocations made to Newcastle city council and available to the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) in each year since 2003-04 are set out as follows:

	Building Safer Communities and ASB Co-ordinators Grant (£)	Safer and Stronger Communities Fund (£)
2003-04	353,000	—
2004-05	385,875	—
2005-06	—	457,225
2006-07	—	457,225
2007-08	—	1,726,483

Since 2005-06, the Building Safer Communities Fund and the Antisocial Behaviour Co-ordinators Grant have formed part of the Safer and Stronger Communities Fund. This is a pooled budget which consolidates a growing number of specific grants contributions from the Home Office and the Department for Communities and Local Government, and forms a funding block to support the delivery of Local Area Agreements (LAAs). As a round three LAA, Newcastle city council and its partners are able to use this grant flexibly to deliver a wide range of outcomes, including reductions in crime, antisocial behaviour and the harms caused by drugs. The 2007-08 figures are not directly comparable with previous years because the pooled budget now includes a larger number of funding streams.

These figures exclude any funding allocated to the CDRP that has been targeted at certain areas, such as the Street Crime Initiative and the Tackling Violent Crime Programme, and any discretionary allocations made by the regional director. This data is not held centrally or would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Crime: Offensive Weapons

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knife crimes were recorded in each police authority area in each of the last five years for which figures are published. [147854]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Jarrow (Mr. Hepburn) on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 977W.

Criminal Investigation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department provides to police on limiting access of the media to information on the removal of material as evidence during the evidence-gathering phase of a police investigation to protect the rights of an accused person. [147970]

Mr. McNulty: The control and management of information during a police investigation is an operational matter for the chief officer of the force concerned. Guidance is provided by the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) Media Advisory Group to the police on working with the media and releasing information about individual cases. The guidance can be found at:

http://www.acpo.police.uk/asp/policies/Data/magguidelines.pdf.

Databases: Genetics

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the number of people whose DNA is held on the national database who have committed no offence. [147920]

Meg Hillier: The National DNA Database does not hold information on whether those on it have committed any offence. This is held on the Police National Computer but detailed cross-referencing between the two systems is not routinely available. Discussions are being held on being able to provide this information routinely in future.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since establishment; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million. [146335]

Mr. Byrne: Following the NAO report "Purchasing Professional Services" OGC issued guidance that re-defined consultancy to include the purchasing of all professional services and not just management consultancy. Professional services were defined as including: management consultancy, IS/IT consultancy, financial/accounting consultancy, property and construction consultancy (including architects and surveyors), project management, procurement, audit, legal services and human resource advice and assistance (including recruitment services).

We do not hold complete records for this entire period and therefore are unable to reliably identify those companies who have individual pieces of consultancy worth in excess of £10 million but from those records we do have we haven't identified any worth in excess of £10 million.

The information held by the Home Office and its Executive Agencies on its spend on consultants, which falls under the aforementioned definition; is as follows:

Financial year	Total spend on consultants (£)	Additional information
2000-01	31,196,722	—
2001-02	24,840,593	—
2002-03	Not held	—
2003-04	113,875,847	—
2004-05	59,828,639	—
2005-06	167,000,000	(Includes contractors and Interim Managers) and excludes spend by Her Majesty's Prison Service (HMPS) National Offender Management Services (NOMS) and Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR).
2006-07	157,000,000	(Includes contractors and Interim Managers) and excludes spend by HMPS, NOMS and OCJR.

For the years 2000-01 to 2006-07, other than where indicated, we are unable to abstract data relating to those areas of responsibility for the Department and its Agencies which have since been transferred to other Government Departments or Agencies under machinery of government changes.

We do not hold information on the Department's total expenditure on consultants for 2002-03 and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

The best information available for the financial year 2003-04, using the Business and Accounting Strategic System (BASS) for the core Home Office spend, indicates that the cost of external consultants to the Department and its Executive Agencies in 2003-04 was £113,875,847.

The best information available for the financial year 2004-05, using the Adelphi Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system Accounts Payable Module for the core Home Office spend, indicates that the cost of external consultants to the Department and its Executive Agencies was £59,828,639.

The Department awards contracts in open competition according to the EU Procurement Regulations based on best value for money. The use of external consultants in the Home Office provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skill, capacity and technical expertise that is not otherwise available in house.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which external consultants have carried out work for her Department under contracts in each year since 1997. [146964]

Mr. Byrne: We do not hold central records of the names of individual external consultants who have carried out work for the Department under contracts in each year since 1997 and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

The Department's Enterprise and Resource Planning (ERP) system is able to identify the names of consultancy companies who have undertaken contracts for Home Office headquarters since May 2004.

Departments: Missing Persons

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) she and (b) Ministers or officials from her Department attended the meeting of the National Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group on 27 June; what steps her Department is taking following the meeting; when she expects the next meeting to take place; whether she expects to attend the next meeting; and if she will make a statement. [148109]

Mr. McNulty: Home Office officials attended the last meeting of the National Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group on 27 June 2007. The Group was formally informed of the proposed transfer of work, including the secretariat function of the Group, to the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) by September 2007. The transfer of policy responsibility is part of the wider programme of enhancement and integration of the work of the Police National Missing Persons Bureau into the NPIA by April 2008. The aim is to provide a fully coordinated approach to missing persons within the police service and to ensure that there is effective working together on this issue with stakeholders at national and local level. The next meeting of the Group is anticipated for October 2007.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146985]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to my reply of 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 714W.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of staff in her Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps she has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147332]

Mr. Byrne: Of those staff paid by Home Office Pay Service, a total of 470 staff currently contribute to additional voluntary contribution (AVC) schemes. This represents 0.55 per cent. of employees. The figures cover the core Department, all agencies, all NDPBs and all other public bodies currently on the payroll and includes HM Prison Service.

Civil service pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension accrued to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Home Office Pensions Service sends out information to new staff or those who rejoin the pension scheme. This includes a leaflet setting out the principles of AVC schemes.

Individual employers within the Home Office may also provide information on the availability of AVCs. Staff in the core Department and the Border and Immigration Agency can access an intranet service which includes pension scheme information and includes links to the civil service pensions website.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147328]

Mr. Byrne: In its adherence to the June 2006 sustainable operations targets the Home Office is committed to deliver carbon savings by reducing carbon emissions from road vehicles used for Government administrative operations. The Home Office also has an ongoing programme of environmental awareness raising that encourages our staff to minimise the impacts of their travel activities, including the provision of interest free loans for cycle purchases. No estimates on staff using public transport to commute are maintained centrally.

Departments: Publications

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to his Department was of the unfinished research paper Review of Current Business Crime Research. [129080]

Jacqui Smith: The research review of Business Crime research was undertaken in November 2003. It was used internally but not placed into a final published report although it has now been released under the Freedom of Information Act. The cost of the research was £6,350.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to his Department was of the unpublished research paper Evaluation of the ACU Mentoring Programme. [129082]

Jacqui Smith: The research into the ACU Mentoring Programme was undertaken between April 2003 and March 2004. It was used internally but not placed into a final published report although it has now been released under the Freedom of Information Act. The cost of the research is estimated to have been £100,000.

Detainees: Transport

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1508W, on detainees: transport, how much was spent on in-country escorts for immigration detainees in each of the last five years. [147771]

Jacqui Smith: The total spent on in-country escorts for immigration detainees in each of the last five years is detailed in the following table. The expenditure covers all in-country escorting activity, not just between removal centres, and includes the operating costs for holding rooms, which form part of the overall in-country escorting contract. The rising costs reflect the greater escorting activity arising from increased removals activity over the last few years.

2006-07	26,346,498
2005-06	26,130,498
2004-05	16,534,992
2003-04	14,229,000
2002-03	19,337,835

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps her Department is taking to investigate misuse of Ritalin and other methylphenidate-based drugs for recreational purposes; [147502]

(2) what discussions she has had with her colleagues in the Department of Health on the use of Ritalin as a recreational drug. [147503]

Mr. Coaker: There have been no steps or discussions as the Home Office has no evidence, other than anecdotal, to suggest that Ritalin is being misused for recreational purposes.

Firearms: Crime Prevention

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed on Operation Trident; what assessment she has made of the merits of rolling out the programme to other large metropolitan cities; and if she will make a statement. [147139]

Mr. Coaker: The Metropolitan police advise that the total number of people employed on Operation Trident is 375, which includes police staff as well as police officers.

We fully support the work of intelligence-led police operations such as Operation Trident and other operations to tackle guns and gangs.

Similar operations have been established in other areas affected by gun crime—for example, Operation XCaliber in Greater Manchester.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether fast track immigration controls apply to individuals travelling by helicopters and private aircraft. [146582]

Mr. Byrne: Fast track immigration facilities are currently only provided at Heathrow Terminals 1, 3 and 4 at the request of airlines and the airport operator, BAA . It is not therefore available to individuals arriving by helicopters and private aircraft.

Immigration Controls: Uniforms

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what formal consultation process was undertaken before deciding on (a) the need for a new uniform and (b) the design of the uniform for border security staff. [147779]

Jacqui Smith: The IND Review set out seven programmes for change. Programme seven states that we will 'Introduce a new visible presence and uniforms at our borders to strengthen deterrence and reassure the public'.

The design of the uniform was informed by a programme of consultation including staff focus groups. Staff representative groups and trade unions have also been fully consulted since the project began. The design took into account staff working conditions, views from staff representative groups and uniforms of like organisations.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Border and Immigration Agency last changed its uniform. [147780]

Jacqui Smith: Frontline Border Control staff within the Border and Immigration Agency will be uniformed for the first time by the end of September 2007.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 5 July 2007]: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 4 July 2007.

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 2 July 2007.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to reply to letters from the hon. Member for Woking dated 26 February, 30 March and 8 June concerning Mr. Lika, ref LR1918010943/1. [147829]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 5 July 2007]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 4 July explaining the details of this case.

National Policing Improvement Agency

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1236W, on the National Policing Improvement Agency, when he expects the Chief Executive of the National Policing Improvement Agency to produce his first report on performance and issues facing the agency; how many times the Chief Executive will produce such reports per year; and whether each report will be published. [146694]

Mr. McNulty: The first report by the Chief Executive of NPIA to ministers on performance and issues facing the agency will be submitted in mid July 2007. The report will be submitted to Ministers on a quarterly basis and will not be a published document. The Chief Executive will produce an annual report published to Parliament soon after April 2008.

Nationality, Immigration and Asylum (Treatment of Claimants, etc) Act 2004

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to publish the Pilot Evaluation Report on the operation of section 9 of the Nationality, Immigration and Asylum (Treatment of Claimants, etc.) Act 2004. [147756]

Jacqui Smith: The evaluation of the section 9 pilot was published on 25 June 2007 and is available on the Border and Immigration Agency website, http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/6353/aboutus/familyasylum.

A written ministerial statement detailing future implementation of the section 9 provision was also published on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 9WS.

[2] Full-time equivalent excludes those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[3] Police community support officers were introduced in statute in 2002, therefore data is not available prior to 2002-03.

Offensive Weapons: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) fatalities and (b) serious injuries were caused by knife attacks in each London borough in (i) 2007 and (ii) each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement on the steps being taken to reduce knife crime, with particular reference to its prevalence among the young. [147486]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 4 July 2007]: Data for the number of fatalities caused by knives and sharp instruments is not available at borough level. The following table gives figures for the Metropolitan and City of London police force areas. Figures for the number of serious injuries caused by knife attacks are not currently available. However, new data collection arrangements from April 2007 will provide more detailed statistics on knife related violence. The British Crime Survey reports that knife crime as a proportion of all violent crime is broadly stable at 6-7 per cent.

There is, of course, grave concern at the recent tragic incidents involving young people and knife crime. Work on tackling knife crime is being taken forward through the Home Secretary's round table on guns, knives and gangs, which has developed an action plan focussing on the themes of policing, powers and prevention. Legislation has recently been tightened in relation to knives, with the doubling of the maximum sentence for possession of a bladed instrument in a public place without good reason from two to four years. In April, a new offence of using someone to mind a weapon (including a knife) was introduced; and in May school staff were given powers to search pupils for knives.

On 26 June, in conjunction with the Association of Chief Police Officers, we published guidance on tackling knife enabled crime, to provide police officers with a menu of options which they might use in their area. We also support police work to tackle knife crime such as Operation Blunt, run by the Metropolitan police, and Operation Shield, run by the British Transport Police, which uses search arches and other technology to search people travelling on the transport network with weapons.

We recognise that policing and legislation are only part of the picture, however, and are also supporting educational projects such as the Be Safe programme, which helps young people understand the risks and consequences of carrying knives, and the Damilola Taylor Trust's "Respect Your Life, Not a Knife" campaign, which is encouraging young people to pledge not to carry weapons. We are also supporting local community organisations working to tackle knife crime through our Connected Fund. The sixth round of the fund was recently completed, and funding is now being provided to more than 100 projects in England and Wales to support local work.

Mr. Coaker: All registered sex offenders are monitored, under the Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements (MAPPA), in line with individual risk management plans.

The MAPPA annual reports for 2005-06 show that, on 31 March 2006, the total number of registered sex offenders in each police force area in Wales were as follows:

Jacqui Smith: The latest available information on the number of arrests resulting from search of a vehicle only is given in the table from 1998-99 to 2004-05.

Where a vehicle and driver occupier are searched simultaneously the search is recorded against the driver (occupant). Any other passengers searched are recorded as occupants. Data given in the table are where an arrest has resulted from a 'vehicle only' search.

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Terrorism: Arrests

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been re-arrested for a terrorist-related offence having previously been released before the end of the 28 days maximum pre-charge detention period under the Terrorism Act 2000, broken down by (a) year, (b) gender, (c) ethnicity and (d) religion. [147176]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The police have supplied the Home Office with detention, arrest and charge statistics under the Terrorism Act 2000 from 11 September 2001 to 31 March 2006. However, the police do not routinely collate the information in the format and breakdown requested and to do so would be at a disproportionate cost. The Home Office is reviewing the future collation and publication of terrorism statistics, the collation of information on re-arrests will also be considered.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000, broken down by (i) year, (ii) gender, (iii) ethnicity and (iv) religion. [147177]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Home Office does not break down the information in the format requested. However, statistics on the number of arrests under the Terrorism Act 2000 are available on the Home Office website as follows.

The UK police terrorism arrest statistics (excluding Northern Ireland) from 11 September 2001 to 31 December 2006 show 1,166 arrests were made:

1,126 arrests under the Terrorism Act 2000

Of the total 1,166 arrested:

3 on police bail awaiting charging decisions

1 warrant issued for arrest

12 cautioned

1 dealt with under youth offending procedures

10 dealt with under mental health legislation

4 transferred to Police Service of Northern Ireland custody

2 remanded in custody awaiting extradition proceedings

652 released without charge.

Of those charged:

40 Terrorism Act convictions to date

180 convicted under other legislation, including murder, grievous bodily harm, firearms, explosives offences, fraud, false documents

98 at or awaiting trial

4 at or awaiting trial for non-terrorism related offences only.

These statistics are compiled from police records by the offices of the National Co-ordinator for Terrorist Investigations. They are subject to change as cases go through the system.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people arrested under the Terrorism Act 2000 have been charged (a) within the first seven days, (b) between days 8 and 14, (c) between days 15 and 21 and (d) between days 22 and 28. [147181]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Home Office does not collate statistics for all the timescales requested. The 14 day detention period came into effect on 20 January 2004 and the maximum period of detention pre-charge was extended to 28 days with effect from 25 July 2006. The following table compiled from police records, provides details of the numbers of individuals charged or released between 25 July 2006- 31 March 2007.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests, (b) charges and (c) convictions have been made for terrorist-related offences after a warrant had been executed under (i) the Terrorism Act 2000 and (ii) the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001. [147182]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 July 2007]: The Home Office does not collate information in this way. Statistics on the number of charges, arrests and charges under the Terrorism Act 2000 and under other legislation are available on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/

Terrorism: Detainees

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) detained, (b) released and (c) charged within the first 28 days of arrest under the Terrorism Act 2000 in each year, broken down by (i) gender, (ii) ethnicity and (iii) religion. [147041]

Mr. McNulty: In the period from 11 September 2001 to 31 December 2006 1,166 people were arrested under the Terrorism Act 2000 or under other legislation where the investigation had been conducted as a terrorist investigation.

Of these 1,166 arrests, 652 were released without charge and 407 were charged with criminal offences including offences under terrorism legislation. A full breakdown of the terrorism legislation statistics can be found on the Home Office website at:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk.

The Home Office does not hold information on gender, ethnicity and religion of those arrested under the Terrorism Act 2000.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases a suspect has been released before the end of the maximum 28 days pre-charge detention period under the Terrorism Act 2000 and then re-arrested following decryption of computer data or completion of other investigative work. [147311]

Mr. McNulty: This data is not centrally collated or stored by the Home Office.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases suspects detained under the Terrorism Act 2000 have been released because of insufficient time to decrypt heavily-encrypted computer data. [147312]

Mr. McNulty: This data is not centrally collated or stored by the Home Office.

Terrorism: Russia

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions her Department has had with the Russian Government on security strategies to deal with terrorist threats. [146248]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 July 2007]: Russia is a key ally in global efforts to overcome terrorism. To that end, we frequently discuss our perception of the current threats and our activity to counteract those threats with our Russian colleagues in international fora such as the United Nations and the G8, among others. The terrorist threat and strategies to counter the threat were key issues of discussion at the G8 JHA ministerial meeting in Munich in May, when the then Attorney General, Lord Goldsmith and I represented the UK. My right hon. Friend, the Member for Sedgefield (Mr. Blair) also attended the G8 Heiligendamm Summit in early July together with Russia's President Putin and other leaders. G8 leaders agreed two counter terrorism statements at the Heiligendamm summit to increase cooperation in meeting the shared challenges of global terrorism.

Terrorism: Stop and Search

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of stop and search there have been under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 in each year, broken down by (a) city or other location, (b) gender, (c) ethnicity and (d) religion. [147203]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on the use of Section 44 powers under the Terrorism Act 2000 are detailed within two annual Home Office publications titled: 'Home Office Statistical Bulletin on Arrests for Recorded Crime (Notifiable Offences) and the Operation of Certain Police Powers Under PACE,' and 'Statistics on Race and the Criminal Justice System—A Home Office publication under Section 95 of the Criminal Justice Act 1991'.

These publications are annual and are available for each year since 2001. Information is available by ethnicity and at police force area level only. Data are not collected centrally by gender or religion. The publications detail Section 44 statistics by police force area and the Section 95 report details these statistics by ethnicity.

UN Convention on Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons were for removing the UK's immigration reservation on the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women in 2004. [147358]

Mr. Byrne: The United Kingdom entered an immigration reservation when it ratified the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women in 1986, in order to ensure that the Convention would not impede immigration policies and procedures in operation at the time. However, preparatory work for the implementation of the Human Rights Act 1998 subsequently ensured that all policies and practices operated by the then immigration and nationality directorate were non-discriminatory on the grounds of sex. An Interdepartmental Review of International Human Rights Instruments was carried out in 2004 and concluded that the reservation for immigration purposes was no longer appropriate and, therefore, the United Kingdom should withdraw its immigration reservation on this Convention.

UN Convention on the Rights of the Child

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will consider removing the UK's immigration reservation on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. [147477]

Mr. Byrne: The UK supports the work that the United Nations is doing in improving standards of care for children in countries where care arrangements are non-existent or poor. In the UK our domestic laws honour the spirit of the Convention in relation to the standards of care and treatment available to children, including asylum-seeking children. The Government believe the reservation remains justified in order to maintain an effective immigration control. The Convention on the Rights of the Child obliges its signatories to put the 'best interests' of the child first in making decisions and there are a number of instances where this may prevent lawful immigration functions being carried out. The Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women obliges signatories to treat men and women equally which creates less of a concern for carrying out immigration functions.

We provide protection to children subject to immigration control via the Children Act and other domestic legislation that requires the authorities to fulfil duties in relation to children; and also through the Human Rights Act.

In addition we are proposing to introduce a code of practice to ensure that in carrying out its functions in the UK the Border and Immigration Agency takes appropriate steps to keep children safe from harm while they are in the UK.

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2007, to question 145164, on Yarl's Wood Detention Centre, when the last occasion was that the (a) Border and Immigration Agency and (b) Independent Monitoring Board (i) scrutinised and (ii) monitored the length of time taken for staff Yarl's Wood Detention Centre to answer outside calls; and if she will make a statement. [147494]

Mr. Byrne: Neither the Border and Immigration Agency nor the Independent Monitoring Board scrutinise or monitor the length of time taken for staff at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre to answer outside telephone calls. The operating contract for Yarl's Wood requires the contractor to install sufficient pay telephones to meet the reasonable demands of detainees and/or dependants. It also includes the minimum number of staff required to operate the switchboard at any given time. Private sector contractors that operate removal centres on behalf of the Border and Immigration Agency are paid in accordance with the contract in that they deliver the service specified for the agreed amount. Any failure to provide the specified service results in a reduction in operating fee.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2007, Official Report, columns 624-5W to the hon. Member for Hendon on Yarl's Wood Detention Centre, if she will place in the Library a copy of the Border and Immigration Agency's requirements in regard to the services to the detainees as outlined in the contract between her Department and Serco. [147773]

Jacqui Smith: It is the policy of the Border and Immigration Agency to deposit copies of the operating contracts, redacted in accordance with Freedom of Information Act, for Immigration Removal Centres in the House of Commons Library. The redacted contracts do not detail the services provided to detainees as they are exempt under Section 31 of the Freedom of Information Act. The Yarl's Wood contract, having recently been re-tendered, will be deposited in the House of Commons Library later this year.

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre: Children

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long each child held at Yarl's Wood Detention Centre had been there as of 2 July 2007. [147760]

Jacqui Smith: The number of children detained with their families solely under Immigration Act powers will change from day to day. However local management information indicates that as at 2 July 2007 there were 24 children detained at Yarl's Wood Removal Centre of which 13 have been detained for less than one month, nine for between one and two months and two in excess of two months.

The figures provided do not constitute part of National Statistics as they are based on management information. This information has not been quality assured under National Statistics protocols and should be treated as provisional.

Quarterly snapshots are published in the quarterly asylum bulletin, showing the number of people detained under Immigration Act powers on the last Saturday of each quarter. Statistics on the total number of persons leaving detention each quarter are also published in the quarterly asylum bulletin.

Published information on immigration and asylum is available on the Home Office's Research Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children aged (a) under five years, (b) five to 12 years and (c) 13 to 16 years passed through Yarl's Wood Detention Centre in each of the last 12 months. [147761]

Jacqui Smith: Information on the number of people who pass through Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records, at disproportionate cost.

Children are detained only in two limited circumstances: first, as part of a family group whose detention is considered appropriate; second, when unaccompanied, while alternative care arrangements are made, and normally just overnight. While the detention of families with children is very regrettable, it nevertheless remains necessary in appropriate cases in order to maintain an effective immigration control and to tackle abuses of the asylum system.

Period statistics covering those leaving detention during each quarter have been published in the Quarterly Asylum bulletin for the periods January-March 2005 to July September 2006, inclusive. These include the last recorded place of detention but not details of each Immigration Removal Centre passed through by the detainee. The Quarterly Asylum bulletins can be found on the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre: Complaints

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many official complaints were received by the operator of Yarl's Wood Detention Centre in each month of the financial year 2006-07. [147759]

Jacqui Smith: In the financial year 2006-07, 172 complaints were received by the operator at Yarl's Wood Detention Centre, broken down as follows:

	Number
2006
April	26
May	21
June	19

Yarl's Wood Detention Centre: Telephone Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why the telephone at Yarl's Wood Detention Centre was not staffed and outside calls were left unanswered between 10.30am and 12.00pm on 28 June 2007. [147553]

Mr. Byrne: The switchboard at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre was fully staffed between 10.30am and 12.00pm on 28 June.

One member of staff gave out incorrect information to a caller stating that the time taken to answer the call was due to staff shortage. The staff operating the switchboard during this period have been reminded of the importance of communication between detainees, their families and legal advisors.

The switchboard at Yarl's Wood is somewhat dated and Serco, the contractor responsible for operating the centre, is looking at various options to help speed up the time taken to answer incoming calls.

TRANSPORT

A21: Repairs and Maintenance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her plans are for the A21 upgrade between Flimwell and Robertsbridge; and if she will make a statement. [148774]

Mr. Tom Harris: None. Under the regional funding allocation process it is for regions to advise the Government on schemes, which in their view, should be prioritised for funding. Ministers then take decisions on whether to accept that advice. In the case of the south east we have agreed in full to the recommendations made by the South East Regional Transport Board (RTB) for the period up to 2016. The proposed A21 upgrade between Flimwell and Robertsbridge has not been prioritised by the South East RTB in that period.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent by her Department on bus subsidy in the North East of England, broken down by (a) local authority and (b) bus operator in each of the last 10 years. [147305]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since 1998, the Department has provided grants to local transport authorities through the Rural Bus Subsidy Grant, Rural and Urban Bus Challenge and Kickstart schemes. The table shows the total paid (in £s) to each authority in the North East region, and the regional total, for each year since the introduction of these grant schemes.

The majority of local authority support for bus services is funded from the Government's unhypothecated Revenue Support Grant and from other sources.

The Department also provides Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) directly to operators of local bus services. Bus routes cross local authority borders and it is not possible to allocate BSOG payments to different local authority areas with sufficient accuracy; information on payments to individual operators is commercially confidential. However, we estimate that BSOG payments to operators in the North East region now total around £24 million annually.

Cycling

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) resource and (b) capital expenditure was made available for improving the convenience and safety of cycling in each of the last five years. [147084]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department provides a central budget for cycling which since 2005-06 has been the responsibility of Cycling England.

The details are:

£ million

	Resource/revenue	Capital
2005-06	1.8	3.2
2006-07	4.0	6.0

It is not possible to provide a split of funding between capital and revenue/resource for earlier years but central expenditure on cycling was as follows and largely related to capital expenditure.

	£ million
2002-03	2.2
2004-05	10.5

Funds in 2002-03 and 2003-04 were for our Cycling Projects Fund while funds in 2004-05 supported additional safe links to school and additional cycle parking at rail stations. In addition the Department provides revenue/resource funds through its Road Safety Grant Challenge Scheme. Details of the cycling grants awarded were as follows:

2002-03	8,473
2003-04	2,676
2004-05	19,800
2006-07	4,600

The majority of expenditure on cycling is spent by local highway authorities who receive capital funding from the Department through the Local Transport Plan system since 2001-02. We have no information on revenue spending. English authorities outside London have informed the Department that their investment in cycle facilities is as follows for the last five years:

	£ million
2001-02	29.6
2002-03	39.9
2003-04	32.1
2004-05	40.0
2005-06	34.1

London boroughs also receive funding from the Department via a block settlement through Transport for London (TfL) and with other revenue streams. TfL has advised the Department that their investment in cycling facilities since 2001-02 is as follows and that around 80 per cent. of this money has been spent on physical infrastructure much of it to support the London Cycle Network+.

	£ million
2001-02	12.5
2002-03	11.6
2003-04	12.7
2004-05	13.1
2005-06	18.3

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147591]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following payments have been made to Common Purpose over the last five years:

2003-04	0
2004-05	0
2005-06	1,161
2006-07	12,053
2007-08 (to date)	6,462

These payments relate to leadership development for senior managers within the Department to meet their individual development needs. Evaluation of the effectiveness of the development in meeting these needs has been, or will be, carried out by the individuals and their managers.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate her Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147344]

Jim Fitzpatrick: An estimate covering the full Department is not currently available, however the most recent survey of our London HQ buildings indicated that 92 per cent. of staff in the London HQ travel to work by cycling, walking or via public transport. The remaining 8 per cent. used a car or motorbike to travel to work.

DfT has plans to carry out new staff surveys as part of a development of site specific travel plans, which are due to be finalised by April 2008.

Driving Offences: Fixed Penalties

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the potential effect on road safety of introducing a sliding scale of penalty points on a driving licence for speeding offences of varying gravity. [148378]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport issued a discussion note inviting comments on this in September 2004. The principle of a graduated scale was supported by the majority of respondents, and the Road Safety Act 2006 provides an enabling power to graduate the fixed penalty points awarded for speeding offences.

The Department's objective is to help drivers to travel at safe and legal speeds at all times. The proposals for graduated speeding penalties are designed to recognise there are considerable differences in the degree of excessive speeding by motorists and for the punishment to better fit the crime. A graduated structure would allow more careful consideration of drivers who through lapses of concentration breach the speed limit by a relatively small amount and where even two penalty points are expected to act as a sufficient deterrent to prevent re-offending. It would also allow for a higher penalty of six penalty points to act as a strong deterrent against more extreme speeders who exceed the speed limit by large amounts.

The proposed final graduated penalty structure will be subject to statutory public consultation before it is considered by both Houses under the affirmative resolution procedure.

Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions she has had with councils on the introduction of low emission zones; [148442]

(2) what discussions she has had with local authorities on the introduction of low emission zones. [148544]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is for individual authorities to decide how best to work towards meeting air quality objectives locally. However, the Department for Transport liaises with local authorities via the Low Emissions Strategy forum, which shares knowledge and best practice to help local authorities to improve air quality, including low emission zones. The Department is also working closely with Transport for London to support the implementation of the Mayor's London Low Emission Zone.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will consider introducing national guidelines for the rules and scope of local low emission zones. [148443]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are currently no plans to produce specific national guidelines on low emission zones for local authorities. However, the Department issued guidance to local authorities about their second local transport plans in December 2004. That guidance indicated that all authorities should consider whether local air quality problems need to be tackled in the transport plan. Where air quality management areas had been declared related to local transport, councils must consider what action to take.

Railways: Finance

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make it her policy to support improvements in the Felixstowe to Nuneaton railway line before the final deadline for proposals for Trans-European Transport Network funding on 20 July. [148775]

Mr. Tom Harris: The development of this scheme overall is not at present sufficiently mature for submission to the EC for TEN-T funds. However, the contribution which Hutchison Ports UK has agreed to make to the Felixstowe-Peterborough element increases the prospects of other elements of the improvements in question being funded from other sources in due course.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions her Department has had with interested parties on proposals to improve the Felixstowe to Nuneaton railway line. [148776]

Mr. Tom Harris: Discussions are continuing with interested parties on proposals for improvements west of Peterborough. Separately, an application has been made to the Secretary of State for an Order under the Transport and Works Act to authorise improvements to the Ipswich-Felixstowe branch line, and Hutchison Ports has agreed to fund these works (if approved) as well as gauge clearance as far as Peterborough.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many and what percentage of staff in her office are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps she has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147334]

Helen Goodman: Currently no members of my private office staff (11 people) make voluntary contributions to their pensions.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on operations for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Keetch: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will ask Parliamentary Information and Communication Service (PICT) to carry out a customer survey of hon. and right hon. Members' satisfaction with the new personal digital assistants supplied by PICT; and if he will make a statement. [148366]

Nick Harvey: The Board of Management surveyed all Members and their paid staff earlier this year. One question asked was how satisfied they were with the quality and reliability of remote access to the parliamentary network using a parliamentary issued handheld PDA. Of the 92 Members who answered the question 8 per cent. were extremely satisfied, 17 per cent. very satisfied, 30 per cent. fairly satisfied, 23 per cent. not very satisfied and 14 per cent. not at all satisfied. A qualitative survey is being planned to explore areas of dissatisfaction in more detail.

Portcullis House

Mr. Allen: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the Commission will bring forward plans to put signage on the entrances to the first floor of Portcullis House to indicate the location of rooms in the building. [147799]

Nick Harvey: The architects of the building, Sir Michael Hopkins and Partners, have been appointed to carry out improvements to the signage, especially on the first floor.

Their initial proposals for consideration include reconfiguring the electronic signage to make it easier to use, as well as the provision of additional signage in the entrance and lavatory areas.

Subject to reaching agreement on the viability and effectiveness of the proposals, the work is scheduled to be undertaken during the financial year 2007-08. As a temporary measure, plans which show the location of rooms have been placed at each corner and on each side of the first floor.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departments: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Solicitor-General what percentage of staff in the Law Officers' Departments were over 60 years of age in each of the last three years. [145687]

The Solicitor-General: The percentages of staff in my Departments over 60 years of age in each of the last of three years, and in the year to-date are shown in the following table:

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Cleaning Services

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his policy is on levying laundry charges on soldiers participating in training exercises, with particular reference to those at Westdown Camp, Salisbury Plain; [146299]

(2) how much was collected in laundry charges from soldiers participating in training exercises at Westdown Camp, Salisbury Plain in 2006-07; and what the cost to each soldier is for the use of (a) washing and (b) drying facilities; [146300]

(3) if he will make it his policy to end charging for the use of laundry facilities for soldiers participating in training exercises at Westdown Camp, Salisbury Plain; and if he will make a statement; [146301]

(4) whether it is a requirement that soldiers (a) participating in training exercises and (b) on active deployment should maintain their clothing in clean and hygienic condition, where facilities are available; and if he will make a statement. [146302]

Derek Twigg: When on training exercises at Westdown Camp (or any other training location), units have the option, during pre-exercise planning, to request that laundry facilities be secured via established contractual arrangements from service providers within the local area. Such services are publicly funded and therefore free of charge to the soldier. It is a matter for Units to decide whether or not to take advantage of these arrangements, they may either utilise the facilities available at Westdown Camp or they may hand-wash and dry their laundry themselves.

The facilities at Westdown Camp are self-operated facilities provided under contract for the convenience of soldiers. During the period January 2006 to June 2007 the income to the contractor arising from the use of the washing/drying machines at Westdown Camp was approximately £7,500. A further £1,500 was taken in commission by the Defence Training Estate Strategic Partner LANDMARC Support Services (LSS). Under established revenue sharing arrangements 70 per cent. of this total (£1,050) was reinvested back into the maintenance of the training estate. The cost to each soldier to use these facilities is £2.00 for washing and £1.00 for drying.

Soldiers are responsible for maintaining their own personal hygiene, and this is instilled through effective training, leadership, education and example setting, particularly by Commanders. Personal hygiene is covered in soldiers Phase One training and reinforced annually through Military Annual Training Test 6 (Values and Standards). It is also covered in all pre-operational and exercise deployment health and hygiene presentations delivered by service environmental health staffs.

Armed Forces: Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make available the most recent review by the Defence Dental Services of dental treatment for service families in the UK, and place a copy of the review in the Library. [145196]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 25 June 2007]: I will write to the hon. Member.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of personnel in the (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Royal Air Force exceeded their separated service guidelines in the last period for which figures are available. [148231]

Derek Twigg: The information is shown in the following table:

	Percentage
Army	12.4
Royal Navy	<1
Royal Air Force	6.2

Departments: Ministerial Powers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence of which ministerial directions his Department has been notified since 22 November 2006. [148221]

Des Browne: I assume that the hon. Member is seeking ministerial directions since the answer given by the Financial Secretary on 22 November 2005, Official Report, column 1910W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice).

There has been one ministerial direction since 22 November 2005. On 29 June 2006, I directed the Accounting Officer to proceed with the formal underwriting of the Armed Forces Memorial (AFM) in the sum of £3.3 million which represented the balance the AFM Trustees required fully to fund the project.

Military Bases: Wales

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) military and (b) civilian personnel he expects will be based at MOD St. Athan when the new military academy is complete. [147282]

Derek Twigg: The scale of the facility to be constructed at St. Athan is dependent upon the outcome of further work with the Metrix Consortium which is exploring the possibility of a Whole Programme Solution.

Nuclear Weapons: Transport

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will (a) instigate a moratorium on transporting nuclear warheads to Scotland by road during the current critical security alert and (b) ensure that any warheads currently ready for delivery are disassembled and remain at the Atomic Weapons Establishment. [147861]

Des Browne: The safety and security of the UK nuclear weapons is paramount. Any transportation is kept to a minimum consistent with operational requirements and all such movements are kept under constant review. This includes an advance evaluation of all relevant factors, including the risks and threats prevalent at the time, and involves close liaison with all appropriate stakeholders, including the civil authorities. Each movement is subject to procedures that are robust and sensitive to changing circumstances and priorities, commensurate with national defence and security requirements.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Products: Prices

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2086-88W, on agricultural products: prices, what the farmgate price was of each product; and where there is no equivalent farmgate price, what steps his Department is taking to ensure that such a comparative analysis is available. [147587]

Jonathan Shaw: The answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1665-66W, provided the farmgate prices for the nearest equivalent products to those for which retail prices were given in the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2086-88W.

There was a close match for many of the items. The nearest equivalent farmgate products for meat cuts are deadweight whole animals. The nearest equivalent farmgate product for flour is milling wheat. Farmgate prices for eggs by size category are not published because of a risk of disclosure of confidential information.

Agriculture in the United Kingdom (Table 7.2 in the 2006 edition) provides an analysis of farmers share of a basket of food items.

Agriculture: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of Cornwall's total gross value added was represented by farming in each year since 1996. [147733]

Jonathan Shaw: Please find as follows figures showing the proportion of GVA for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly that is represented by agriculture. Figures for the South West region have also been provided as background information.

Agricultural gross value added at basic prices

	Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly		South West

Agriculture: Subsidies

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers received single payment scheme payments of (a) between £50,000 and £500,000, (b) between £500,001 and £1 million and (c) over £1 million in 2006. [146243]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The numbers of claimants who have received payments to date for the single payment scheme year 2006 are as follows:

	Number
(a) Between £50,000 and £500,000	6,451
(b) Between £500,001 and £1 million	16
(c) Over £1 million	6

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether all single farm payments for the year 2006 have been paid in full. [146244]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 29 June 2007]: As of 30 June 2007 the total value of payments made under the single payment scheme for 2006 is £1.49 billion, which is 98 per cent. of the estimated total fund of £1.52 billion.

A total of 107,088 customers have received either a full or partial payment. This represents 98.2 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population of 109,000.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of claimants still awaiting payment under the 2005 Single Farm Payment scheme in (a) England, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) Forest of Dean. [148276]

Jonathan Shaw: In England, as of 13 June 2007, 20 claimants have not received a payment for the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS).

As of 30 June 2007 the total value of payments made under the SPS for 2006 is £1.49 billion, which is 98 per cent. of the estimated total fund of £1.52 billion.

A total of 107,088 customers have received either a full or partial payment. This represents 98.2 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population of 109,000.

Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the SPS is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Animal Welfare: Dogs

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to bring forward legislation to ban the use of electric shock collars for dogs. [146584]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no plans to ban the use of electric shock collars. However, we recognise that future research into electric shock collars is a priority. The Department has circulated a new call for research, in the form of a Limited Tender Call, with the aim of taking forward any research on or after April 2007. The aim is to obtain independent scientific evidence so that a decision can be taken as to whether or not there is a need for regulation in this area.

We have also asked the Companion Animal Welfare Council, in its role as advisory body to the Government on companion animal welfare matters, to undertake an independent study of available evidence on the use of electronic training devices. The outcome of this study will help inform DEFRA policy and will complement any separate research that DEFRA commissions into these devices.

If regulation were considered necessary there would be a full public consultation before any regulations were drafted and put to Parliament. All research into these areas commissioned by the Government will be put in the public domain.

Animal Welfare: Education

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Department for Education and Skills on introducing animal welfare education classes to schools. [146583]

Jonathan Shaw: No such discussions have taken place. However, I am aware that in Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE), pupils learn to "take and share responsibility", which can include looking after animals properly. In addition, many local authorities run their own animal welfare education schemes in schools. For example, both Coventry city council and the London borough of Lambeth give regular performances and presentations on animal welfare at primary and secondary schools. The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals also provides teaching resources for animal welfare education for use in classrooms.

Beef: Brazil

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his officials last visited Brazil to check the traceability and identification procedures required for beef exports to the EU. [147423]

Jonathan Shaw: The conditions that apply to beef imported into the EU are set out in EU law and it is the responsibility of the European Commission's Food and Veterinary Office (FVO) to visit exporting countries to ensure that their procedures are adequate to guarantee compliance with EU import conditions.

The last visit to Brazil by FVO inspectors took place in March this year. Commissioner Kyprianou himself visited Brazil in October 2006.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timescale is for the next stage of work of the bovine TB Vaccine Programme Advisory Group. [146620]

Jonathan Shaw: The Vaccine Programme Advisory Group provides advice on the science needed to progress towards a vaccine for use in the field.

The research programme for producing an effective vaccine against tuberculosis in badgers and cattle remains broadly in line with the timetable outlined in the 1997 Krebs Report. This estimated:

I. Years 1 to 5: Identification of candidate vaccines and development of differential diagnostic tests;

II. Years 5 to 10: Experimental investigations of vaccination protocols;

III. Years 10 to 15: Field trials.

The first stage started in 1999 and is ongoing. The second stage has also started. Work on badger vaccines includes a project on developing oral formulations and a three-and-a-half year vaccine field trial to gather safety data and assess efficacy on injectable Bacille Calmette-Guérin (BCG). The cattle vaccine research programme includes a natural transmission study looking at various candidate vaccines.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the research protocol agreed with Warwick university and others to examine the use of the Polymerase Chain Reaction test for the detection of bovine tuberculosis. [147421]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA publishes the objectives of all research projects it commissions on its science website, once the contracts have been signed. This will be the case with the planned project to validate Polymerase Chain Reaction methods to detect bovine tuberculosis to be undertaken co-operatively by Warwick university, the Veterinary Laboratories Agency and University College London.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Research

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department provided for the Woodchester studies of bovine tuberculosis and badgers in each of the last 10 years. [147395]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA fund a range of research work with the Central Science Laboratory's (CSL) research team based at Woodchester Park. The following amount of funding has been provided by DEFRA for the ecological and epidemiological study of the badger population at Woodchester Park:

1997-98: £260,877

1998-99: £278,408

Between 1999-2000 and 2002-03 the study was supported by two DEFRA projects. It has not been possible to disentangle the amounts spent on the ecological and epidemiological study of the badger population at Woodchester Park in 1999-2000 and 2000-01, however CSL estimate the following for 2001-02 and 2002-03:

2001-02: £268,000

2002-03: £268,000

Between 2004-05 and 2006-07 the project that supported this study also supported an investigation of perturbation. The following figures are an estimate provided by CSL of the amount of funding used for the study of the Woodchester Park badger population alone:

2003-04: £273,000

2004-05: £298,000

2005-06: £288,000

2006-07: £294,000

Cattle: Exports

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 380W, on cattle: exports, what the journey time in hours was of all calves aged under 42 days exported to the Netherlands between 1 January and 30 April. [147730]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost to the Department.

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 64W, on cattle: exports, how many UK calves aged under 42 days died during journeys from the UK to Spain between 1 January and 30 April; how many 24 hour rest periods per journey were provided during the transport of calves from the UK to various destinations in Spain; and if he will make a statement. [147731]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost to the Department.

Cheese: Production Methods

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the quantity of cheese manufactured in the UK from imported milk powder. [147420]

Jonathan Shaw: The estimate of the quantity of cheese manufactured in the UK from imported milk powder is unavailable.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146097]

Jonathan Shaw: Officials throughout the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs are involved in a full range of EU business. 11 officials from the Department are currently seconded to the European Commission. The Department does not hold central records of the numbers of officials involved in EU business and a breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 June 2007, Official Report, column 1361W, on Departments: manpower, if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance given to those on the Priority Movers List. [146888]

Jonathan Shaw: A copy has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146418]

Jonathan Shaw: Payment of non-consolidated performance bonuses reflects the principle across the civil service of rewarding performance increasingly through one-off payments rather than increases to basic salary.

Annual performance bonuses are paid to staff in the SCS for high performance sustained throughout the whole year.

Information on annual performance bonuses prior to November 2004 is available only at disproportionate cost, as a result of system changes.

For 2005 and 2006, the number of annual performance bonuses awarded and the total cost of these bonuses was as follows:

	Number of staff awarded bonuses	Total amount of bonuses paid (£)
2005	148	740,877
2006	131	986,632

The data relate to bonuses awarded to those in core-DEFRA and its Executive Agencies (excluding chief executives) in accordance with Cabinet Office arrangements.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146988]

Jonathan Shaw: Data prior to November 2004, is available only at disproportionate cost. For the period from November 2004 to November 2006, I would refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the right hon. Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 7 December 2006, Official Report, column 578W.

For the period from January 2007 to May 2007, I would refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 69W.

For December 2006, the month not covered by the two replies above, In-Year and Annual Performance bonuses totalling £78,218 were awarded to 154 staff below the SCS, covered by core-DEFRA pay arrangements, i.e. staff in core-DEFRA, Animal Health, Pesticides Safety Directorate, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Marine Fisheries Agency and Government Decontamination Service.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147527]

Jonathan Shaw: 126 members of staff in core-DEFRA, Animal Health, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Pesticides Safety Directorate, Marine and Fisheries Agency and Government Decontamination Service (2.2 per cent. of the total number of staff) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146917]

Jonathan Shaw: The 2006-07 Performance Management arrangements for staff in the SCS have been concluded.

For staff below the SCS in core-DEFRA and those agencies covered by the core-Department's performance appraisal arrangements (including Animal Health, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Pesticides Safety Directorate, Marine Fisheries Agency and Government Decontamination Service) the process has still to be concluded.

However, to date (up to 30 June 2007), eight staff had not achieved an acceptable mark in their 2006-07 annual report.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147043]

Jonathan Shaw: The latest sickness absence information available is for the 12 months ending on 31 March 2007. During this period, the number of staff in DEFRA who took sick absences of fewer than 5 days was as follows:

	Number
(a) five or more periods	274
(b) four periods	217
(c) three periods	289
(d) two periods	575

These figures include staff who left the Department during or after this 12-month period and Rural Development Service staff before they transferred to Natural England on 1 October 2006.

Environment Agency: Expenditure

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the expenditure of the Shrewsbury Environment Agency's offices was in (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005 and (d) 2006. [147668]

Mr. Woolas: The Shrewsbury office was the main office for the Upper Severn Area of the Midlands Region of the Environment Agency during the period in question. The catchment extends from Market Drayton and Oswestry in the north, Clywedog and Vyrnwy reservoirs in the west, Dudley and Wolverhampton in the east and south to Worcester and Ludlow.

The analysis of expenditure in the following table is by financial year, which runs from April to March:

	Spend (£ million)
2003-04	13.5
2004-05	16.3
2005-06	15.4
2006-07	13.2

Environment Agency: Flood Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Environment Agency about revising their flood risk assessment models; and if he will make a statement. [147433]

Mr. Woolas: My predecessor met with the chief executive and the head of flood risk management at the Environment Agency on 28 June and visited areas affected by the recent flooding. Risk assessment issues and the protection of vulnerable communities were discussed.

My Department works closely with the Environment Agency on improving assessment models through joint research and development work.

Environment Agency: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cars are (a) owned, (b) leased and (c) hired by the Environment Agency for use by its (i) staff and (ii) board members. [146292]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency has 89 owned cars within its badged fleet and 4,701 leased cars. The agency hired 3,435 cars during the 2006-07 financial year with an average length of hire of 2.6 days.

Farmers: Income

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the average annual earnings of farmers in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) the north-west and (c) the UK in each year since 1979. [147428]

Jonathan Shaw: Information is not available in the precise form requested and the Farm Business Survey is not able to provide figures for (a) Ribble Valley. The following table shows average net farm income per farm in (b) the north-west Government office region and (c) the UK in each year since 1980-81. Net farm income is defined as the return to the principal farmer and spouse for their manual and managerial labour and on the tenant type capital of the business. It excludes all income arising from outside the farm business.

Farmers: Low Incomes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what proportion of farmer households in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England were below the modified low income threshold in each year for which figures are available. [147704]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the number and proportion of farmer households below the modified low income threshold in Cornwall, the South West and England in 2005-06. Farm household income data are not available prior to this. Data for 2006-07 will become available in the first half of 2008.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers there were in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) the North West and (c) the UK in each year since 1979; and what proportion of the total work force they made up. [147431]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the number of farmers and total agricultural work force in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) the North West and (c) England and the proportion of the total UK work force they made up for 1992-2006. These are the figures that are most readily available. Figures for Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland fall under the jurisdiction of the devolved authorities.

[1] Suppressed to maintain confidentiality. 2003 data for total labour in Ribble Valley are taken from a larger published dataset and have been suppressed to protect a total in another area where the value refers to a small number of holdings only.

Notes:

1. Figures prior to 2000 cover main holdings only. Figures from 2000 onwards include main and minor holdings. A minor holding has to meet all the following conditions:
(a) have a total area of less than six hectares
(b) a total labour requirement of less than 100 standard person days
(c) no regular full-time farmer or worker
(d) a glasshouse area of less than a 100 square metres
(e) the occupier does not farm another holding
2. Estimates have been made for holdings not selected or not responding.
3. Office of National Statistics total labour force figures include all work force categories (employed, self-employed, HM forces and Government supported trainees).
4. Agricultural labour force includes:
(a) principal farmers, spouses and business partners
(b) salaried managers, regular and casual/gang workers
5. Due to the introduction of new questions in 1998 figures prior to this year are not directly comparable with earlier years' results.
6. Due to a register improvement exercise in 2001 labour figures prior to this are not directly comparable with later results.

Flood Control: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on flood defences for Shrewsbury in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [147677]

Mr. Woolas: Flood defence spending in Shrewsbury, over the period requested, was as follows:

	Spend (£)
2005-06	6,079,000
2006-07	3,656,000

Expenditure is by financial year, which runs from April to March.

The Shrewsbury office covered the Environment Agency's Upper Severn Area of the Midlands Region during 2005 and 2006.

The catchment extends from Market Drayton and Oswestry in the north, Clywedog and Vyrnwy reservoirs in the west, Dudley and Wolverhampton in the east and south to Worcester and Ludlow.

Expenditure of £134,000 in 2005-06 and £43,000 in 2006-07 was incurred on temporary flood defences for Coton Hill and Coleham Head, Shrewsbury. The £3.5 million Frankwell scheme was completed in 2003-04.

Flood Protection: Urban Areas

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps he is taking to protect city centres against (a) flood events and (b) likely impacts of climate change; [146568]

(2) what steps are being taken (a) in Sheffield and (b) at a national level to improve drainage systems in city centres to cope with (i) flood risks and (ii) climate change. [146569]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Increased flood risk, from both rivers and the sea, is one of the top predicted impacts of climate change in the UK. We are considering the rising risk from climate change as part of our long-term strategy, 'Making Space for Water'. The strategy takes a holistic approach to the management of risk across Government, together with increasing awareness and emergency preparedness within communities to help them better cope with flood events when they occur.

In January 2007, as part of 'Making Space for Water', we announced the start of 15 integrated urban drainage pilot studies around the country. The projects, made possible by £1.7 million of funding from DEFRA, will test new approaches to reduce the risk of urban drainage flooding, both from sewers and storm water.

While the pilot projects will not directly fund capital improvements, they should bring greater clarity on responsibilities for funding urban drainage management between water companies, local authorities, the Environment Agency, internal drainage boards and the Highways Agency. Following completion of the pilot projects in the spring of 2008, DEFRA will produce new guidance on effective partnership working to deliver integrated drainage solutions in high-risk urban catchments and prepare a regulatory impact assessment for any proposed legislative changes.

In addition, water companies' price limits for 2005-10 allowed a programme of nearly £1 billion to safeguard homes against the risk of sewer flooding. This would resolve or mitigate every known high-risk problem of internal flooding from overloaded sewers where companies' plans said is needed by 2010. By then the proportion of properties at risk would reduce to 0.01 per cent. of households.

Floods: Kingston upon Hull

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the planned levels of spending on the flood protection and water drainage infrastructure serving Kingston upon Hull will be re-examined to meet the effects of climate change. [146592]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency has produced a Tidal Flood Risk Management Strategy for the whole of the Humber estuary over the next 100 years. This takes into account anticipated climate change and sea level rise.

The agency study was in the process of being extended to cover river flooding issues in and around Hull. Clearly, in the light of recent events in the city, there will be a need for the Environment Agency, the city council and Yorkshire Water to consider together the adequacy of current drainage systems as a whole and whether any further works need to be planned.

Floods: Safety Measures

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how health and safety advice is being disseminated to those whose homes have recently been flooded and who wish to re-enter and restore their properties. [146615]

Mr. Woolas: Information about health risks from flooding has been published on the Health Protection Agency's website and is being disseminated via primary care trusts.

Floods: Sheffield

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether any flood defence failures occurred in the recent flooding in Sheffield. [146567]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 29 June2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the statement given by the then Secretary of State on 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 163, in which he explained that it is too early to make a full assessment of the recent flooding but that there had been no reported structural failings of flood defences.

Floods: Warnings

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of people in Sheffield whose homes were flooded in June 2007 who were registered with Flood Warnings Direct; at what time and at what stage in the flooding the Flood Warnings Direct warnings went out to those registered; and what steps his Department is taking to encourage people in Sheffield to register with Flood Warnings Direct. [146614]

Mr. Woolas: Information on the numbers of flooded properties and those registered with Flood Warnings Direct (FWD) will be gathered after the current emergency has ended.

Since 2000, the Environment Agency has contacted people at risk of flooding and asked them to register with FWD. The agency has also carried out a series of home visits throughout west Yorkshire to boost the number of registered properties. This is an effective way of increasing the coverage of FWD and the agency aims to repeat the process in south Yorkshire later this year.

Forestry

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much timber was harvested in England in each of the last five years. [148124]

Joan Ruddock: The estimate of timber harvested in England in each of the last five years for which figures are available is given in the table.

	Removals in million green tonnes
	Softwood (from conifer trees)	Hardwood (from broadleaved trees)	Total
2001	1.65	0.56	2.21
2002	1.51	0.54	2.05
2003	1.66	0.49	2.16
2004	1.73	0.45	2.18
2005	1.74	0.52	2.26

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what programmes are in place to replace areas of woodland lost to development with new areas of planting. [148129]

Joan Ruddock: There is no specific programme in place to replace areas of woodland lost to development. Nevertheless, there is significantly more new woodland created in England each year than is lost to development.

Forests: Conservation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether a system is in place to monitor the conservation of ancient woodlands. [148094]

Joan Ruddock: The conservation of ancient woodland is monitored in a number of ways including the National Inventory of Woodlands and Trees, which provides data on area, ownership, species composition, age, regeneration and ecological structure of all woodland. The Ancient Woodland Inventory is updated by Natural England when changes are reported and it is being revised in some of the most well wooded parts of South East England. 15 per cent. of England's ancient woodland is in Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) where their condition is monitored.

GMOs: Potatoes

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if his Department will require BASF to conduct food safety studies of their GM blight resistant potatoes on the same lines as those required by the Irish government for trials in that country; [147246]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential health impacts from contamination of non-GM potato crops resulting from trials of BASF GM blight resistant potatoes. [147245]

Mr. Woolas: The Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment has assessed these trials and is satisfied that they will not have any adverse effect on human health or the environment. Given the limited scale of the trials and the management conditions that have been imposed, it is not expected that there will be any transfer of a GM presence into non-GM potato crops. In that context, and given that the GM potatoes will not be used for food or feed, it would not be appropriate in our view to require detailed food safety studies as a pre-condition for the trials to take place. Such studies will be necessary if BASF decides in due course to seek authorisation to market the GM potatoes for food and feed use in the European Union.

Greyhounds: Animal Welfare

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the greyhound industry on the welfare of retired racing greyhounds. [146635]

Jonathan Shaw: My ministerial predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Exeter (Mr. Bradshaw), met representatives of the industry on 7 November 2007. He informed hon. Members about the meeting on 6 November 2007, Official Report, column 614.

Horses: Animal Welfare

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Jockey Club on the design of racecourses and the reduction of the incidence of injuries to racehorses. [146636]

Jonathan Shaw: There have been no discussions between DEFRA Ministers and the Jockey Club on this matter.

Housing: Environment Protection

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the average (a) energy efficiency, (b) water efficiency and (c) carbon dioxide emissions of homes constructed to operate unconnected to mains electricity, gas and water supply. [146789]

Mr. Woolas: The Government have made no estimate of the average energy efficiency or carbon dioxide emissions from homes unconnected to mains electricity and gas supply. The requirements of part L of the Building Regulations, which set requirements for energy efficiency and carbon dioxide emissions, apply to all homes regardless of whether or not they are connected to mains energy supplies. Nevertheless, developers are reasonably free to determine how to meet the requirements of part L.

The Code for Sustainable Homes and the draft Planning Policy Statement on Climate Change are designed to cut carbon emissions from new homes and promote low and zero carbon homes in the period up until 2016, when the Government have proposed that all new homes will be zero carbon.

It is estimated that there are around 50,000 private water supplies serving about 0.6 per cent. of the population in England and Wales. No estimate has been made about the water efficiency of these dwellings, and they are not subject to the Water Supply (Water Fittings) Regulations 1999.

DEFRA and the Department for Communities and Local Government have jointly consulted on options for regulating for minimum standards of water efficiency in new homes and commercial buildings. If requirements were to be introduced through building regulations they would apply to all new houses irrespective of the type of water supply. The consultation closed on 9 March 2007, and we will publish responses in due course.

Inland Waterways: Pollution

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms the Environment Agency has in place to monitor levels of pollution in (a) the River Severn, (b) public waterways, (c) the sewerage system, (d) Brofiscin Quarry and (e) Maendy Quarry; and what records the agency keeps of the potential sources of pollution. [147899]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency routinely monitors 61 sites within the fresh and estuarine waters of the River Severn. The substances assessed and frequency of monitoring vary between monitoring points. In total the monitoring undertaken covers 134 different substances and parameters.

Many public waterways are included in the Environment Agency's routine monitoring programme. Where possible pollution incidents are identified, depending on severity these are followed up by more detailed investigations.

Water companies are responsible for monitoring the sewerage system. The Environment Agency monitors the quality of discharges from sewage works into the water environment to check compliance with consent requirements.

The Brofiscin and Maendy quarries are in Wales and are therefore a devolved matter.

The Environment Agency keeps a number of records of potential sources of pollution. These include records of consented discharges to surface and groundwaters; waste management licences and authorisations for industrial processes.

Livestock: Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of greenhouse gas emissions from livestock, particularly cattle; and what studies he has commissioned or reviewed into ways of reducing their emissions. [146727]

Mr. Woolas: Agriculture as a whole contributes 7 per cent. of all UK greenhouse gas emissions and 14 per cent. globally. The sector accounts for 37 per cent. of methane and 67 per cent. of nitrous oxide emissions in the UK, but only 1 per cent. of carbon dioxide. About 86 per cent. of this methane comes from enteric fermentation in the digestive systems of animals (mainly cattle, sheep, pigs and horses) and 14 per cent. from animal waste. Methane emissions from agriculture have declined by 12 per cent. since 1990.

DEFRA has established research programmes to help build the evidence on reducing emissions from livestock through nutrition, husbandry, genetics, and nutrient management. We currently have two projects looking at both nutritional and genetic potential for reducing methane and nitrogen emissions from livestock. The first will identify feed strategies in collaboration with industry to ensure knowledge transfer, and the second will identify areas where genetic research can add value. We are also taking a critical look at the configuration of the livestock sector and how this might need to change in order to meet emissions and other environmental targets.

Livestock: Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what records his Department holds on the incidence of MRSA in farm animals; and if he will make a statement. [146837]

Jonathan Shaw: MRSA has not been detected in farmed livestock in the UK and there is no current evidence that food-producing animals form a reservoir of infection in the UK. The organism has been isolated from dairy cows, pigs and chickens outside the UK and an ongoing assessment of the international picture is being maintained. The European Food Safety Authority is looking at the issue of MRSA in food-producing animals and considering what surveillance and other actions would be most appropriate for EU member states to undertake to address the issue. The UK is actively participating in the development of these proposals.

MRSA: Pigs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has commissioned research into the impact of MRSA on pigs following recent cases in the Netherlands. [146618]

Jonathan Shaw: Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) has been isolated from dairy cows, pigs and chickens outside the UK and the international picture is being assessed on an ongoing basis. There is no current evidence that food-producing animals form a reservoir of infection in the UK and the organism has not been detected in farmed livestock in the UK. DEFRA has initiated a study undertaken by the Veterinary Laboratories Agency to test S. aureus isolates obtained from bovine clinical submissions for MRSA. This project commenced in autumn 2006 and, to date, more than 500 samples have been tested, with no MRSA identified.

The issue of MRSA in other livestock species was discussed at a meeting of the DEFRA Antimicrobial Resistance Coordination MRSA subgroup in January. The subgroup was set up to advise on how best the Department can contribute to the knowledge and understanding of the role of MRSA in animals.

Members felt that, at present, broadening the scope of work in this area should only be considered after analysis of the current findings relating to humans in the UK with MRSA infections. The particular, strain of MRSA (ST398) occurring in pigs in some other parts of Europe was not reported to have been detected so far in humans in the UK and this was a key consideration in reaching the decision taken. However, the position will be kept under active review, taking into account the latest findings in humans and animals, as well as developments in Europe and elsewhere.

The European Food Safety Authority is also looking at the issue of MRSA in food-producing animals and considering what surveillance and other actions would be most appropriate for EU member states to undertake to address the issue. The UK is actively participating in the development of these proposals.

National Income: EC Countries

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with EU counterparts on using a possible alternative to Gross Domestic Product for measuring economic welfare. [147180]

Jonathan Shaw: We are not aware that the former Secretary of State had any such discussions with his EU counterparts on this issue.

Organic Food: Pesticides

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which pesticides and herbicides are permitted for use on organic food crops in the UK. [147411]

Mr. Woolas: Organic production in the UK is regulated under the Compendium of UK Organic Standards.

No herbicides are permitted in organic farming.

The use of pesticides is restricted in organic production both in the number of products available and the uses to which they may be put. Organic farmers are encouraged to use management techniques such as rotation, use of appropriate species and protection of natural predators of specific pests. In some exceptional cases, it is recognised that further treatment is needed. In such cases, only those products listed in Annex IIB of the Compendium of UK Organic Standards can be used, subject to the conditions set out therein. I have arranged for copies of the Annex to be placed in the Libraries of the House. Any pesticide used by organic producers in the UK must also have approval from the Pesticides Safety Directorate.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to monitor the contamination of organic food by pesticides and herbicides that are permitted for use on such crops. [147412]

Mr. Woolas: In addition to the standard controls on pesticide and herbicide use, organic producers are subject to the control system outlined in the Compendium of UK Organic Standards.

These include control of the use of external inputs. The Standards are enforced in a number of ways:

(i) By the DEFRA and UK Accreditation Service (UKAS) approved organic inspection body that the farmer must be registered with. The farmer must be subject to at least an annual inspection by a DEFRA approved organic inspector from that body and may also be subject to further unannounced inspection visits. These inspections can (and when appropriate do) include sampling and testing. A positive result for either a non-allowed product, or an allowed product that was either incorrectly used or had not been approved for use as required, would result in the imposition of sanctions ranging from decertification of the product to decertification of the farm dependant on the severity and cause of the case.

(ii) DEFRA organises sample surveillance inspections based on both random and risk based selection to ensure the inspection system is operated correctly by the approved organic inspection bodies.

(iii) The Pesticides Safety Directorate undertakes a residues surveillance programme that includes organic samples, and tests all samples for a wide range of pesticides including some of those allowed in organic production. Any unusual results are passed to the Organic Team in DEFRA who ensure the information is passed to the appropriate inspection body for further investigation.

(iv) Deliberate breaches of standards by organic operators are dealt with under The Organic Products Regulations 2004 (as amended), enforcement is undertaken by Trading Standards Officers.

It should be noted that no herbicides are permitted for use in organic farming, and discovery of their use would result in an automatic sanction.

Pollution: Water

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the level of algal bloom is in Liverpool Bay; what the locations are of algal bloom in UK waters, broken down by order of severity; if his Department will take steps to treat non-toxic algal bloom accumulated on the North Wales coast; and if he will make a statement. [146894]

Mr. Woolas: Levels of algal blooms are recorded continuously at one site in Liverpool Bay and less regularly elsewhere. Relatively high levels of algae occur in Liverpool Bay in spring and summer, in comparison to offshore regions or shallow regions not in the vicinity of major rivers. However, they do not cause a problem and are similar to other regions around the coast of England that are in the vicinity of major rivers. An exact comparison of levels is difficult due to differences in the frequency of measuring algal blooms. They also vary greatly from year to year.

Algal blooms eventually sink to the sea bed, and are consumed by predators or transported by tides and currents to other regions. Certain types of bloom-forming algae can, under certain conditions, be transported onto the shore and may result in visible scums along the shoreline. These present no health hazard to humans and pose a limited threat to organisms that live on the shore.

The Welsh Assembly Government is responsible for water quality in and around Wales.

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 20 November 2003, Official Report, column 1228W.

Research: Biotechnology

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what public funding her Department has made available in each of the last 10 years to (a) the Natural Environment Research Council and (b) other bodies for the purposes of conducting agricultural biotechnology research. [146078]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) does not fund the Natural Environment Research Council (NERC) directly. However, DEFRA does let contracts to NERC-sponsored research institutes. DEFRA research and development (R and D) contracts all research organisations for agricultural biotechnology work are summarised in the table attached.

For this purpose, DEFRA has defined biotechnology as being the application of biological organisms, systems and processes to manufacturing and service industries. This definition covers genetic modification research but goes much wider to include fused cell techniques, protein engineering, fermentation and cell culture techniques, the production of vaccines and monoclonal antibodies and many other techniques. It excludes pathogen characterisation and epidemiology.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which research projects his Department has conducted on agricultural biotechnology in each of the last 10 years; and what the cost was of each. [146231]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 June 2007]: A list of DEFRA research and development (R and D) contracts related to agricultural biotechnology has been placed in the Library of the House. Project titles and costs are included for all relevant R and D projects from the formation of DEFRA to the current financial year.

For this purpose, DEFRA has defined biotechnology as being the application of biological organisms, systems and processes to manufacturing and service industries. This definition covers genetic modification research but goes much wider to include fused cell techniques, protein engineering, fermentation and cell culture techniques, the production of vaccines and monoclonal antibodies and many other techniques. It excludes pathogen characterisation and epidemiology.

Sewers: Water Companies

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date water companies will be obliged to adopt private sewers. [146470]

Mr. Woolas: The Government announced on 22 February that existing private sewers and lateral drains connected to public sewers in England should be transferred into the ownership of the nine statutory water and sewerage companies. The Government undertook to consult on a range of ways the transfer could be implemented and to examine how to prevent the proliferation of new private sewers. The consultation would also pose questions on the scope of assets to be included in the transfer.

The 12 week consultation on implementation options is planned to take place over the summer. Following this, regulations will be drafted, consulted on and amended accordingly. The timing of the process cannot be stated exactly, but the earliest date for regulations to be in force is likely to be summer 2008.

Water Supply

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of miles of English water pipes which need replacing; and how many miles of pipes will be replaced in 2007-08. [146295]

Mr. Woolas: Ofwat, as the economic regulator of the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales, sets price limits every five years. Ofwat's final determination in December 2004 set out the price limits and outputs for each company for the years 2005-06 to 2009-10.

Following the last price review in 2004, each company produced a monitoring plan covering the period up until 2010, containing estimates of the activity levels needed to achieve their outputs. The plans include the estimated length of mains renewal and relining that will be needed. The following table shows the monitoring plan estimates for companies in England for 2007-08 and overall for 2005-10.

	2005-10	Miles 2007-08
Mains renewal	7,100	1,600
Mains relining	3,600	750

Wood: Procurement

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of timber produced in England that is used for the manufacture of (a) paper, (b) chipboard and (c) other building materials. [148126]

Joan Ruddock: Not all the information requested is available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

It is estimated that, in 2005, 277,000 green tonnes of timber harvested in England was used directly by integrated pulp and paper mills out of the UK total use of 714,000 green tonnes of UK roundwood. Use by the panel board industry, which includes chipboard, is only available as a UK total, which is 1.5 million green tonnes.

There are no statistics for wood's use as building materials, but in 2005 construction markets were reported to take 34 per cent. of all sawnwood from larger softwood sawmills in the UK (each producing more than 5,000 cubic metres of sawnwood). Within this UK total the larger softwood mills in England sold 23 per cent. for use in construction. Not all sawn timber produced in England came from logs harvested in England.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Crime: Vandalism

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to introduce the practice of recording incidents of graffiti as a separate sub-category of criminal damage; and if she will make a statement. [147995]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 9 July 2007]: There are currently no plans to record incidents of graffiti as a sub-category of criminal damage.

Information on graffiti is not routinely recorded by all police forces as part of their information on criminal damage. There is also an absence of a precise legal definition of graffiti, which would result in inconsistencies in data that is held by forces.

Currently, the main sub-categories of recorded criminal damage are based on the type of property damaged. They are:

Damage to a dwelling;

Damage to a building other than a dwelling;

Damage to a vehicle;

Other damage;

These four are then sub-classified according to whether the offence is racially or religiously aggravated.

Arson (damage to property by fire, regardless of the type of property); and Threats, or possession with intent, to commit criminal damage.

Police forces may have their own local methods for recording incidents of graffiti. Some local authorities have also made great efforts to make it easier for the public to report graffiti, so any attempt to estimate a total for graffiti would ideally include local authority data.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in her Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146933]

Mr. Byrne: The 2006-07 reporting year ended on 31 March 2007 and we are currently continuing to compile the report markings for staff below the grades of senior civil service. Of those reports compiled, the figures contained in the following table include the returns for unsatisfactory performing staff:

	Number/Percentage
Total reports processed	15,388
of which unsatisfactory	75

Genetics: Databases

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individual records were added to the national DNA database under section 10 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003, in each year since 2003. [146965]

Mr. McNulty: Section 10 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 amended the Police and Criminal Evidence Act to extend the power to take and retain DNA samples to all those arrested for a recordable offence. This legislation came into effect on 1 April 2004.

The number of profiles added to the National DNA Database for each year since 1 April 2004 under this power (including those who were later charged or convicted) is as follows:

	Number
2004-05	468,177
2005-06	607,940
2006-07	661,433

It is currently estimated that 13.7 per cent. of profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, i.e. that a profile for a person has been loaded on more than one occasion (one reason for this is that the person gave different names, or different versions of their name, on separate arrests). Thus these profiles refer to the following estimated numbers of individuals:

	Number
2004-05	404,037
2005-06	524,652
2006-07	570,817

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many profiles were loaded onto the national DNA database in each quarter of each of the last five years. [147783]

Jacqui Smith: The number of profiles added to the National DNA Database (NDNAD) for each quarter of the last five years is set out in the following table. It is currently estimated that 13.7 per cent. of profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, i.e. that a profile for a person has been loaded on more than one occasion (one reason for this is that the person gave different names, or different versions of their name, on separate arrests). Thus, the number of individuals on the database is approximately 13.7 per cent. less than the number of subject profiles. The presence of these replicate profiles on the NDNAD does not impact on the effectiveness and integrity of the database. Nonetheless, a long-term exercise is under way to identify issues associated with the removal of all such redundant replicate profiles.

Number of profiles added

	First quarter	Second quarter	Third quarter	Fourth quarter
2002-03	127,915	125,899	113,383	121,322

Police: Pay

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to make changes to the system of police pay. [147911]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Effective and affordable pay arrangements are essential for a modern police service. I announced to the House last November a review of police pay arrangements. We are working with ACPO, the APA and the staff associations and trade unions in the police to progress this.

Stop and Search

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Taunton, of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 977W, on stop and search, what data are held on the offences for which people were arrested. [147768]

Jacqui Smith: The section 44 Terrorism Act 2000 Stop and Search aggregated collection, held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, records resultant arrests either in connection with terrorism or for other reasons. The specific offences for which persons are arrested are not recorded.

Stop and Search: Forms

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what regulations or guidance there is on the design of forms issued by police forces to people who are stopped and searched under counter-terror legislation. [147765]

Jacqui Smith: Comprehensive guidance on all aspects of stop and search, including the use and importance of forms, was published by CENTREX in July last year. This guidance can be found at http://www.acpo.police.uk/asp/policies/Data/Stoppercent20&percent20Searchpercent20Interactive_29.06.06.pdf and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Theft: Bicycles

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many stolen bicycles were recovered by each police authority in each of the last five years. [148642]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. There is no requirement for police forces to notify the Home Office of the number of stolen bicycles that are recovered.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146994]

Mrs. McGuire: The answer is in the following table.

Performance bonus payments are awarded to employees on the basis of their individual performance. They are paid after the completion of the performance year. The expenditure incurred is as follows:

Table 1: Amount paid in performance bonuses to DWP staff since 2002 and the numbers of staff receiving bonuses

Financial year	Total paid (£ million)	Number of employees receiving bonus
2004-05	38.61	129,855
2005-06	42.82	123,285
2006-07	40.68	116,096

In addition to individual performance bonus payments, DWP also paid team bonuses to selected units within the Department. The expenditure incurred is as follows:

Table 2: Amount paid in team bonuses to DWP staff since 2002 and the numbers of staff receiving bonuses

	Total paid (£ million)	Total number receiving bonus
2004-05	3.3	11,250
2005-06	Not applicable	Not applicable
2006-07	Not applicable	Not applicable

Notes:

1. The information in Table 1 is based on the numbers of staff recorded on the DWP payroll systems as having received a qualifying performance mark. These are a headcount.
2. The performance bonus is paid in the financial year following the performance year of 1 April to 31 March.
3. Some individuals may have received more than one type of bonus payment in any given year, which is why the information has been presented separately, and not as an aggregated total.
4. The numbers of employees receiving a team bonus are approximations. No team bonus schemes have run since 2004-05.
5. The answer to PQ/06/101034 in November 2006 provided details of bonuses paid from 2002-03 to 2006-07. Information on bonuses paid in the 2007-08 financial year is not yet available. DWP are still in pay negotiations with trade unions, and payment of the senior civil service bonus has been postponed until November 2007.

Individuals may also be entitled to special bonus payments. The cost in a typical year for these bonuses is around £3 million with payments made to approximately 17,000 individuals (based on 2005-06 payments).

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146929]

Mrs. McGuire: Departmental performance figures for our employees are currently being collated for the 2006-07 Performance year. In line with previous years' publication dates, these are due to be published in September.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147042]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is shown in the following table.

DWP employee's sick leave periods of less than five calendar days in the 12 months ended 31 March 2007

Number of periods	Number of staff
2	18,866
3	9,554
4	4,430
5 or more	5,045
Total	37,895

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1748W, on Smith Institute: finance, what details his Department holds on this training course; what use has been made of this think tank for training departmental staff; and if he will make a statement. [147096]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Translation Services

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the amount his Department has spent (a) on translating documents and (b) translating websites into other languages. [148261]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department and its businesses produce translated materials where relevant and according to the needs of each target audience. In 2006-07, the Department centrally spent around £267,500 on translation services related to communications. Details of other translation costs are not held centrally and can be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Low Incomes: Agriculture

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of farmers in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) the North West and (c) the UK who are living below the poverty line. [147427]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The information requested is not available.

New Deal Schemes: Expenditure

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on the New Deal programme in each year since 1998. [147113]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) on 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 32W.

Pensions: Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applicant pension schemes' qualification status for the Financial Assistance Scheme are undecided; and if he will make a statement. [148290]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 29 June 2007 the Financial Assistance Scheme has received formal applications from 894 pension schemes of which 27 remain undecided.

Social Security Benefits: Epilepsy

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people registered for disability benefit on the grounds of having epilepsy in each of the last five years. [148257]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Number of disability living allowance (DLA) and attendance allowance (AA) claimants whose main disabling condition is epilepsy (quarter ending)

	DLA	AA
As at November:
2002	52,620	4,980
2003	54,730	4,880
2004	56,570	4,760
2005	57,770	4,600
2006	60,070	4,490

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3. Totals include those with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.
4. Where the claimant is eligible for both care and mobility components of DLA, the disabling condition associated with the mobility component is shown here. Where more than one disability is present only the main disabling condition is recorded.

Des Browne: There is regular contact between UK Ministers and counterparts in the Scottish Executive on a range of policy matters. I met the First Minister on 30 June and plan to do so again soon. I look forward to working constructively with him on the wide range of matters of importance to Scotland.

Defence Bases

8. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Ministry of Defence on the future of defence bases in Scotland. [147630]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with colleagues in the Ministry of Defence on a range of subjects.

Business Environment

9. Miss Begg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps the Government are taking to ensure a long-term stable environment for Scottish business. [147632]

David Cairns: Through this Government's economic policies, solid macro-economic foundations have been established ensuring long-term stability for Scotland's businesses. Stable inflation, low interest rates and contained borrowing have maintained the necessary conditions for the sustained economic growth that the United Kingdom enjoys.

Minimum Wage

10. Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with HM Revenue and Customs on monitoring of the payment of the minimum wage in Scotland. [147633]

David Cairns: There is a service level agreement between HM Revenue and Customs and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. Officials meet on a regular basis to review performance.

Medical Research Council

11. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on funding in Scotland by the Medical Research Council. [147634]

David Cairns: The Medical Research Council (MRC) funds medical research throughout the UK. The MRC spent £44.2 million in Scotland during 2005-06, which amounts to approximately 11 per cent. of its total research spend.

Post Offices

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on the future of post offices in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [147622]

David Cairns: The Secretary of State for Scotland and I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend on a range of issues.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Convictions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of cases brought for prosecution by the Public Prosecution Service in Northern Ireland resulted in convictions in each of the last three years. [147130]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Defendants dealt with in the magistrates courts in Northern Ireland: percentage conviction rates 2004-05 to 2006-07 (number and percentage)[1,2]

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Convicted (on at least one count)	7,322	10,600	16,482
Acquitted (all counts)	1,194	1,733	2,781
Total	8,516	12,333	19,263
Percentage conviction rate	86.0	85.9	85.6

[1] Figures refer to prosecutions conducted by the Department of the Director of Public Prosecutions/Public Prosecution Service only. The increase in caseload over the period 2004-05 to 2006-07 may be attributed to the implementation of the Public Prosecution Service, commencing with a Pilot Project in South Belfast Police District (from 1 December 2003).

[2] It should be noted that the calculation of the percentage conviction rate has been amended to bring the service into line with the Crown Prosecution Service in England and Wales. The main change is focused on the category 'acquitted' which now includes defendants in respect of whom all charges were withdrawn prior to commencement of trial. The conviction rate figures quoted above therefore differ from those quoted previously in the 2005-06 PPS annual report.

Defendants dealt with in the Crown court in Northern Ireland: percentage conviction rates 2004-05 to 2006-07 (number and percentage)

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Convicted (on at least one count)	1,409	1,333	1,434
Acquitted (all counts)[1]	221	207	215
Total	1,630	1,540	1,649
Percentage conviction rate	86.4	86.6	87.0

[1] Includes the following outcome categories: 'Crown offered no evidence', 'Prosecution stayed' and 'Not to be proceeded with'.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148018]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO) does not have any Private Finance Initiative projects.

The NIO has an off-balance sheet commitment under Public Private Partnership (PPP) which is the Causeway project. The Causeway project is a partnership between Fujitsu Services and the NIO. The PPP contract was let with Fujitsu in August 2003 to deliver a managed service related to the electronic sharing of information across the criminal justice organisations in Northern Ireland over a 10 year period. The total cost of the contract is £27 million.

Paedophilia

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to protect young children from sex offenders in Northern Ireland. [148066]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI recognise the very real and genuine concerns regarding the protection of young children from sex offenders. Specific measures include the 'Multi-agency Sex Offender Risk Assessment and Risk Management' process, which involves PSNI, Northern Ireland Probation Service, Northern Ireland Prison Service, Health and Social Services, Northern Ireland Housing Executive and representatives from the voluntary sector. The primary purpose of the agencies' work is to help protect the public from harm by reducing the opportunities available for offenders to gain access to victims, and also to reduce their propensity to offend at all.

Effective collaboration is also incorporated into the day-to-day work of police officers and social workers, to ensure that the welfare of children remains paramount. These measures are enshrined in the 'Protocol for Joint Investigation by Social Workers and Police Officers' and in the Area Child Protection Policy and Procedures documents.

Police are also actively involved in various other campaigns around this issue, for example, 'Stop-it-Now'—a campaign which encourages early recognition and responses to the problem, and 'Leisurewatch' (currently piloting in three areas) whereby leisure staff are trained to be observant and aware of ways to minimise the risks from sex offenders.

The PSNI are making active and ongoing efforts to protect children throughout Northern Ireland from sex offenders both on a strategic and on a practical level.

Police: Early Retirement

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many police officers have retired on medical grounds in the last 12 months. [148438]

Paul Goggins: In the last 12 months, up to 30 June 2007, 42 officers were retired on medical grounds.

Prisons: Manpower

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to (a) maintain and (b) increase staffing levels in prisons in Northern Ireland. [148064]

Paul Goggins: The overall staffing position of the Northern Ireland Prison Service is kept under regular review. The target staffing level baseline for uniform staff was reviewed and adjusted from 1 April 2007 to take account of existing and projected staffing needs in light of an increasing prisoner population. In addition, the service has reviewed the grades and skills needed to reflect greater emphasis on prisoner engagement, education and rehabilitation work. New types of operational and support staff have been introduced over the past two years and approximately 200 such staff have been recruited. The service is continuing to recruit new grades of staff.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many childcare places (a) opened and (b) closed in 2005-06. [148240]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is shown in the table.

Table 1: Number of childcare places that have opened and closed in 2005-06, England

	Number
Opened	214,800
Childminders	48,800
Full day care	90,900
Out of school	75,200
Closed	144,600
Childminders	44,800
Full day care	48,700
Out of school	51,100
Net steady state changes[1]	+8,900
Childminders	+2,100
Full day care	+5,600
Out of school	+1,200
Net change	+79,100

[1] The net steady state refers to registered providers whose registration status has not changed, but whose number of places has fluctuated over the period in question.

Note: Figures are rounded to the nearest 10 if under 100, and to the nearest 100 if over 100.

Source: Ofsted

Ofsted have produced figures on the numbers of registered childcare providers and places on a quarterly basis from March 2003. Their latest published figures are available on their website www.Ofsted.gov.uk/

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to encourage diversity of provision in childcare. [148241]

Beverley Hughes: The Government believe that the best child care market is a diverse one which offers parents real choice about the type of child care they can access. Accordingly, the Childcare Act 2006 builds on our 10-year child care strategy to help maintain and strengthen the great diversity that already exists.

The Act requires local authorities to complete, by April 2008, an assessment of the sufficiency of child care in their area, including the extent to which parents' requirements for different types of provision are being satisfied, It then requires local authorities to secure the provision of sufficient child care to meet the requirements of working parents, with particular attention to the needs of those with low incomes or disabled children.

From October this year, the Act will place a restriction on local authorities providing child care where there are alternative and appropriate means of delivery available in the market. Before providing new child care themselves, local authorities will have to determine whether another provider is willing to provide it and whether it is appropriate, in all the circumstances, for the authority to provide the child care itself.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on provision of Care to Learn support for teenage mothers who commence a course over the age of 19 years. [148523]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 9 July 2007]: The Department and the Learning and Skills Council have received representations from various bodies to further extend Care to Learn support to young adult parents who want to go into learning and have difficulty accessing child care. We extended Care to Learn to 19-year-olds in August 2006 and teenage parents receiving Care to Learn support can carry on receiving help past their 20th birthday while they continue on their course.

As I announced on 28 July, I am making available an additional £75 million, over the next three years, to support 50,000 workless families with child care to help them access training and move into work.

Children's Centres

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment has been made of the effect of Sure Start children's centres in areas where there is existing sufficient nursery provision provided by the private, voluntary and independent sector. [148265]

Beverley Hughes: Sure Start children's centres serving communities in the most disadvantaged areas must include, as part of their offer to parents, integrated full day care and early learning places for children under five. In many cases, this will build on existing provision, like Sure Start Local programmes or Neighbourhood Nurseries. 58 per cent. of children's centres have child care provided by the private, voluntary or independent sectors. In less disadvantaged areas, if existing provision is meeting parents' needs centres will simply provide parents with advice and information about local child care options.

In planning their children's centres, local authorities must consult with existing private, voluntary and independent child care providers to determine the best way of ensuring parents have access to sufficient, good quality provision. In addition, from October this year, the Childcare Act 2008 will place a restriction on local authorities providing child care where there are alternative and appropriate means of delivery available in the market.

The assessments of child care sufficiency that local authorities are required to complete by April 2008 can be expected to give a clear indication of how child care provided by Sure Start children's centres fits with other child care in their areas. Local authorities will be expected to act in accordance with their assessments when fulfilling the duty to secure, from April 2008, sufficient child care for working parents.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Stockton South

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students in Stockton, South claimed education maintenance allowance in each year since it was introduced, broken down by ward of residence. [147290]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the DCSF and hold the information about take-up and payments under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, has written to my hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 5 July 2007:

I am writing in response to your recent Parliamentary Question that asked: "How many students in Stockton South claimed education maintenance allowance in each year since it was introduced; broken down by ward of residence."

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) is available at Local Authority Level, but not at Ward level EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year.

EMA take-up for Stockton-on-Tees Local Authority area during each academic year since inception is as follows:

	Number
2004/05	945
2005/06	1,768
2006/07	[1]2,359

[1] To end of May.

EMA Take-up data showing the number of young people who have received one or more EMA payments during 2004/05, 2005/06 and to date in 2006/07 are now also available on the LSC website, at the following address:

http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/Data/statistics/learner/EMA_take_up.htm

I hope you find this information useful.

Nursery Schools: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) safeguards are in place and (b) checks are made to ensure that local authorities are sufficiently funding the free entitlement to early years education for three and four year olds. [148266]

Beverley Hughes: The code of practice on the provision of free nursery education places for three and four-year-olds is statutory guidance to which local authorities must have regard, when planning and managing the delivery of the free entitlement. The code requires local authorities to ensure settings are funded equitably, transparently and fairly, according to local need and market dynamics. My letter in December 2006, to all local authority chief executives asked them to reassure themselves that their funding levels support a diverse local childcare market and take into account provider sustainability. Local authorities are responsible for ensuring that funding is allocated and spent appropriately.

Last month, we announced a series of changes to how local authorities fund the free entitlement to early learning and care for three and four-year-olds, designed to ensure that local funding allocations are transparent and consistent across the sectors, and give providers stability to plan for the future and improve quality.

Availability of free early years education is within the scope of Ofsted's annual performance assessments of local authority children's services.

Pre-school Education

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what exemptions there are for (a) Waldorf and Steiner kindergartens and (b) Montessori pre-schools from the proposed new guidelines for working with pre-school children; and what consultations his Department has held on (i) these exemptions and (ii) whether the guidelines are legally enforceable. [147946]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Currently all Waldorf Steiner kindergartens and Montessori pre-schools offering the free entitlement to 3 and 4-year-olds must comply with the Curriculum Guidance for the Foundation Stage. No exemptions have been sought, or granted, from the Foundation Stage.

From September 2008 the Foundation Stage will be superseded by the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) which will be a statutory requirement for all early years providers and will be legally enforceable. The Government carried out a formal public consultation between 1 March and 24 May 2007 on the circumstances under which exemptions to the Early Years Foundation Stage learning and development requirements might be granted and the process for such exemptions. I am considering the responses to the consultation exercise and the representations made by Waldorf Steiner and Montessori and expect to publish the Government's response to the consultation this month and regulations will follow in the autumn. The Early Years Foundation Stage is a very flexible set of requirements which is designed to be inclusive and compatible with the vast majority of educational philosophies.

Pre-school Education: Finance

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether local authorities are entitled legally to ask to inspect the financial accounts of private, voluntary and independent sector nurseries, pre-schools and day care providers relating to activities that are not directly funded by public money for free early years education places for three and four-year-olds. [148456]

Beverley Hughes: The code of practice on the delivery of nursery education places for 3 and 4-year-olds is statutory guidance to which local authorities must have regard when planning and managing the delivery of the free entitlement. The code states that local authorities should put in place appropriate accounting and auditing procedures to ensure that funding paid in respect of free places is administered properly. Local authorities do so, in consultation with providers, through delegated local conditions of funding, which may in some cases require settings to provide access to accounts relating to administration of public funding. Local authorities may also ask providers for sight of their accounts in order to assess their financial viability before contracting with or providing funding to the setting. However, settings are under no obligation to comply with requests for inspection of accounts related to activity not undertaken in respect of public funding.

Pre-school Education: Southern Region

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate his Department has made of the cost per capita to nurseries, pre-schools and daycare providers in (a) Kent and (b) south east England of delivering the free 2.5 hour early years session for three and four year olds; [148454]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the level of funding per capita for the free 2.5 hour early years session for three and four year olds that is being passed onto (a) private, voluntary and independent sector nurseries, pre-schools and daycare providers and (b) maintained sector nurseries, pre-schools and daycare providers by each local education authority in south east England. [148455]

Beverley Hughes: The free entitlement is delivered by a very diverse range of providers in the maintained, private, and voluntary and independent sectors, which would make it impossible to identify a single unit cost for delivery of nursery education and care.

Because of this diversity, local authorities—in consultation with their school forums—are responsible for deciding how best to apply their total school and early years funding across all age groups and between different types of provider, based on an assessment of local circumstances. The code of practice on the provision of free nursery education places for three and four-year-olds requires local authorities to ensure settings are funded equitably, transparently and fairly, reflecting local need.

At national level, estimated expenditure on under 5s by local authorities in 2005-06, the latest year for which outturn data is available, is £3,473 million The Department is currently working with authorities to produce estimates of the level of funding allocated to early years in each local authority and its distribution between the PVI and maintained sectors in 2005-06 and 2006-07. We intend to collate and publish these estimates in August so that authorities can benchmark their approaches to funding the free entitlement. This is part of a wider package of reforms of the early years funding system announced on 25 June 2007 and available at

School Meals: Take-Up

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, columns 372-3W, on school meals: take-up, whether the 4 per cent. target relates exclusively to lunches. [147930]

Kevin Brennan: The strategy to increase demand by at least 4 percentage points by March 2008 relates exclusively to school lunches.

Schools: Hyperactivity

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure schools adhere to regulations on the use of social, behavioural and psychological interventions in conjunction with the prescription of Ritalin to treat attention deficit hyperactivity disorder; [147678]

(2) what training and support is provided to teachers and school staff to help them provide for students with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. [147679]

Kevin Brennan: Local authorities, schools, early education settings and those who help them—including health and social services—must have regard to the special educational needs (SEN) code of practice (2001), These bodies must fulfil their statutory duties towards children with SEN in the light of the guidance in the code of practice.

Although there are no regulations on interventions, 'Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings' DfES/DH (2005) is designed to help all schools and all early years settings and their employers develop policies on managing medicines, and to put in place effective management systems to support individual children with medical needs. It provides specific advice on the supply, possession and administration for controlled drugs such as methylphenidate (commercial name Ritalin). Where a child has an ongoing health need, including medicines, schools are advised to produce an individual health care plan for a child with medical needs that identifies the level of support that is needed.

The SEN code and 'Managing Medicines' guidance make clear that education staff should work closely with, and take advice from health professionals to form the whole 'package' of support required for children taking medicines as a means of managing a special educational need or disability.

In order to be awarded qualified teacher status, all trainee teachers must demonstrate that they understand their responsibilities under the code, know how to seek advice from specialists on less common types of SEN, can differentiate their teaching to meet the needs of pupils, including those with SEN, and can identify and support pupils who experience behavioural, emotional and social difficulties.

We are proposing that from September 2007 the standards for qualified teacher status will be strengthened to require teachers to know and comply with current legislation on the well-being of children and young people, to know and understand the role of others when dealing with children who have SEN or disabilities, and to communicate effectively with parents and carers.

The current induction standards require newly qualified teachers to demonstrate that they can plan effectively to meet the needs of pupils in their classes with SEN, with or without a statement. The standards also demand that they work collaboratively with both other teachers and specialists to ensure that provision is suitable for SEN pupils. The revised standards framework will reinforce, build on and strengthen the current standards surrounding SEN.

All schools receive a school development grant which they are able to use to support improvements in any aspect of teaching and learning. A wide variety of courses are available covering SEN ranging from awareness-raising through to in-depth studies leading to specific qualifications. It is, however, a matter for individual teachers, other staff and their schools to determine their own particular training and development needs. Local authorities may retain a proportion of this grant, under certain conditions, to provide specific training and development of SEN.

We are also launching later this year an inclusion development programme (IDP) which will deliver continuing professional development for teachers and other staff, in key areas of SEN. The opening round will focus on children with speech, language and communication needs and dyslexia as the ability to communicate is fundamental to learning and progression. The IDP will subsequently address behavioural, emotional and social difficulties, including children with ADHD.

Sure Start Programme: Standards

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Sure Start outreach programmes. [148051]

Beverley Hughes: There is a comprehensive national level evaluation of Sure Start local programmes (SSLPs) in place, which began in January 2001 and will run until 2008. Outreach is part of the core work SSLPs are expected to deliver, and is a theme that runs through much of the evaluation. In particular, the study "Outreach and Home Visiting in Sure Start Local Programmes[1]" (November 2006) provides extensive information evaluating how far outreach and home visiting are contributing to the aim of Sure Start.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to promote fair access to higher education. [148187]

Bill Rammell: Widening participation in higher education is both an economic and social necessity. Everyone who has the potential and qualifications to succeed in higher education, whatever their family background, should have the opportunity to participate. That is why my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills announced on 5 July a further package of improvements to the financial support available in England to students from hard working families on modest incomes; so that no one from such backgrounds is held back from realising their potential by concerns about the affordability of university study. Alongside those arrangements, we have the Aimhigher programme, raising aspiration and attainment levels amongst those currently under-represented in higher education; the Office for Fair Access, ensuring that institutions charging variable tuition fees for their courses safeguard and promote fair access through bursaries and other financial and outreach work; and the work of the higher education sector to reform the current university application system so that it is more transparent, efficient and fairer.

Higher Education: Business

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has to encourage closer working between business and universities. [148465]

Bill Rammell: Many higher education institutions (HEIs) are already highly successful in engaging both public and private sector employers. However, if we are to realise the stretching ambition set for us by Lord Leitch, and transform the UK into a truly world-class skills economy by 2020, then we will need to scale up the number of working adults who are engaged in higher-level learning, and this in turn will necessitate even greater engagement between employers and HEIs. A growing list of universities have expressed an intention to make their core mission "business facing"; several of these have already received grants from the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) to take forward employer engagement projects which will help to build capacity and develop best practice.

The grant letter sent to HEFCE by the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in January 2007 set out an expectation for 5,000 additional student places in demand-led, employer co-funded provision in the academic year 2008-09, and asked HEFCE to develop a growth strategy to deliver at least an additional 5,000 entrants year-on-year over the comprehensive spending review period. HEFCE have invited HEIs and Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) to develop joint proposals to respond to its allocation of the 5,000 additional co-funded places.

Higher Education: Student Numbers

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department is responsible for Aimhigher and other Widening Participation activities in schools; and how he plans to ensure that schools and universities continue to work together to improve access to higher education. [148275]

Bill Rammell: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for widening participation in higher education, including the Aimhigher programme. The Aimhigher programme, in particular, brings together universities, colleges and schools in partnership to raise the attainment levels of young people and their aspirations towards higher education. Higher education institutions themselves will also often have well developed programmes of activities to raise the aspirations of pupils in schools and colleges which are built on strong local partnerships. These links are already well established and I will continue to work closely with my colleagues in the Department for Children, Schools and Families to ensure they are maintained and strengthened.

Improving the attainment and outcomes at all stages of education for people from disadvantaged backgrounds, particularly low socio-economic groups, is a shared Government objective. As part of our strategy to widen participation my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills announced on 5 July a further package of improvements to the financial support available in England to students from hard working families on modest incomes; so that no one from such backgrounds is held back from realising their potential by concerns about the affordability of university study. This package includes an expansion of the popular and successful Student Associate Scheme involving high achieving HE students helping out as mentors and assistants in school classrooms where, as role models, they can inspire young people to achieve and progress into higher education. Our two Departments will continue to work together on this and a range of other programmes.

Learning Disability: Prisoners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of prisoners had (a) learning disabilities and (b) dyslexia over the last 10 years. [148114]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 9 July 2007]: The information requested is not available centrally. The 'No One Knows' research report recently published by the Prison Reform Trust, suggests that between 20-30 per cent. of offenders have learning difficulties or learning disabilities.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Electricity: Meters

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what factors underlay the decision to set a 10 year time frame for the roll out of smart meters. [148222]

Malcolm Wicks: In the Energy White Paper, the Government made clear their expectation that smart meters would be rolled out within 10 years. The industry has confirmed that this broad timeframe is achievable, but we will test this as we develop our policy over the coming months.

Energy Supply: Solar Power

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much electricity installed photovoltaic generation has contributed to the UK electricity supply through the national grid in each of the last five years. [148429]

Malcolm Wicks: The latest available data are as follows:

GWh

	Generation from photovoltaic sources transferred to the public distribution system	Total electricity supplied
2001	1.5	371,187
2002	2.2	368,979
2003	2.4	374,469
2004	3.6	373,401
2005	7.5	379,485

Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics, 2006.

The proportion of total photovoltaic energy generation supplied to the grid is estimated. The proportion of UK electricity supplied accounted for by photovoltaics is in each year less than 0.01 per cent.

EU External Trade: Agriculture

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what concessions on agricultural subsidies were offered by the European Union at discussions with the United States, Brazil and India in Potsdam. [146854]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The 19-21 June meeting of the G4 Ministers (US, EU, India and Brazil) failed to reach convergence on the Doha Development Agenda. This means that the focus now returns to Geneva and the World Trade Organisation (WTO) as a whole. We can expect WTO Chairs' texts to come forward very soon and the WTO Director General, Lamy, to lead the process.

At the beginning of April 2007, the G6 (India, Brazil, US, EU, Japan and Australia) all committed to conclude negotiations by the end of the year. The Government remain committed to achieving an ambitious outcome this year. We believe that this remains possible providing all parties show the necessary flexibility and commitment.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the increase has been in the overall committed spend figure under the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings programme since its relaunch on 29 May; and what assessment he has made of the likely spend by summer 2008. [148560]

Malcolm Wicks: When the Chancellor announced in the Budget 2007 that an additional £6 million would be made available for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme household stream, we took the opportunity to suspend this funding stream, as it provided us with the opportunity to consult widely over how to use the remaining funds through to scheme closure.

By the time we suspended the household stream on 21 March 2007, we had committed £6,456,091 to 3,988 household projects. Since re-launching the scheme on 29 May 2007, we have to date committed a further £624,316 to 629 household projects, with a much more even spread of funds committed across the technologies.

With the increased flexibility that the removal of the monthly cap provides, we cannot predict future spend with any certainty. However, we will continue to monitor and report on grant commitments and payments going forward.

National Grid: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the carbon content is of grid electricity; and what targets the Government are setting to reduce that carbon content. [148653]

Malcolm Wicks: According to table 5C published in the current "Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics" (paragraph 5.45, http://www.dtistats.net/energystats/dukes06_c5.pdf), UK power stations emitted 124 tonnes of carbon per gigawatt hour (GWh) of electricity supplied during 2005 on average.

The Government do not target the carbon content of UK electricity generation at present.

Nuclear Power Stations: Design

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which vendors of nuclear reactor designs had submitted letters to the regulator's joint programme office by 30 June nominating the designs for which they intend to seek generic design assessment in the UK. [148699]

Malcolm Wicks: The closing date for applications for generic design assessment of nuclear reactor designs to reach the regulator's joint programme office was 22 June 2007.

We received four applications by this date. These were from: AECL, AREVA, GE-Hitachi and Toshiba-Westinghouse. A press notice was issued on 5 July 2007 accordingly.

All applications and supporting letters of endorsement will be published on the Department's website in due course.

Power Stations: Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received on the future use of Buildwas power station. [147675]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has received no representations on the future of Buildwas (Ironbridge) power station.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average hourly pay was for each (a) quartile, (b) decile and (c) duo-decile in each year since 1992. [148767]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what average hourly pay was for each (a) quartile, (b) decile and (c) duo-decile in each year since 1992. (148767)

Levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) and from the New Earnings Survey (NES), and are provided for all full-time employees on adult rates of pay, whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

I attach tables showing, where available, the 5th, 10th, 15th, 20th, 25th, 30th, 35th, 40th, 45th, 55th, 60th, 65th, 70th, 75th, 80th, 85th, 90th and 95th percentile of Gross Hourly Pay, corresponding to each quartile, decile, and duo-decile. It is not possible to obtain deciles and duo-deciles from the New Earnings Survey results, other than the published 10th and 90th deciles. Therefore only these deciles, and the published quartiles, are available prior to 1997.

The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It replaced NES from 2004, although ASHE methodology has been applied to NES datasets to provide continuous results from 1997 onwards. Both surveys feature a one per cent sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes.

Breast Cancer

Richard Burden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in England have been diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer. [148771]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking how many people in England have been diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer. (148771)

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2004. They are published in the Annual Reference Volume, Cancer statistics:- Registrations (Series MB1) available on the NS website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=1&ColRank=2&Rank=272

The data item, stage, was introduced in 1993 when the cancer registration minimum data set was established by the Department of Health. There remains much variation between the recording of stage that it is likely to reflect differences in what is meant by "stage" by the cancer registries, rather than real differences across England in what clinicians use to classify the patients. It is not therefore, possible to provide England data on cancer incidence broken down by stage.

Council Tax: Valuation

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's project evaluation report produced for the council tax revaluation in Wales. [143663]

Jane Kennedy: Arrangements have been made to place copies of the Valuation Office Agency's Post Evaluation Review of the Wales Council Tax Revaluation 2005 in the Library.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1495W, to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on departmental expenditure, what discussions his Department had with Brian Pomeroy before commissioning Opinion Leader Research. [147927]

Kitty Ussher: Mr. Pomeroy and Treasury Ministers discussed the review of Christmas saving schemes and agreed terms of reference. Mr. Pomeroy recommended to the Treasury that qualitative research be conducted to inform consideration of these questions. The Treasury awarded the contract for this work following an appropriate competitive exercise, in line with Government procurement rules.

Fireworks

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has been made of the revenue received by Her Majesty's Treasury from the importation, manufacture and sale of fireworks in each of the last three years. [146795]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 2 July 2007]: HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT or direct taxes related to the manufacture or sale of individual goods and services.

The total revenue received by Her Majesty's Treasury from the importation of fireworks in each of the last three years was as follows:

2004	3,766,584.41
2005	4,153,984.30
2006	3,857,197.20

Landfill Tax

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue collected under the landfill tax was (a) allocated and (b) disbursed to (i) the Waste and Resources Action Programme and (ii) other programmes designed to increase recycling in each of the last 10 years for which records exist. [147128]

Angela Eagle: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) obtains Government funding under both the Business Resource Efficiency and Waste Programme (BREW) and DEFRA's Waste Implementation Programme (WIP).

WIP received funding when the Landfill Tax Credit Scheme, funded from Landfill Tax receipts, was reformed in 2003. Of this, £16 million in 2003-04, £35 million in 2004-05 and £50 million in 2005-06 was spent on WRAP.

Landfill Tax receipts also fund BREW, which is being used to return £284 million to business over the current spending review period (2005-08). BREW is providing an additional £23 million to WRAP over this period.

Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, columns 940-41W, on lone parents, if he will estimate the average tax credit payment being made to single parents entitled to working tax credit, including the child care element, and child tax credit. [146283]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 28 June 2007]: Information on the number of single parent families benefiting from child and working tax credits, by band of entitlement, is available in table 2.10 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06", which is available on the HMRC website at:

Office of Government Commerce

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Office of Government Commerce holds a framework agreement with Quality Health Ltd. [148867]

Angela Eagle: The Office of Government Commerce does not hold a framework agreement with Quality Health Ltd.

Taxation and Allowances

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to answer question 136787, on taxation and allowances, tabled on 8 May 2007 by the hon. Member for Blaydon. [147842]

Jane Kennedy: The Treasury regrets that my hon. Friend's question has not yet been answered. We will endeavour to reply to it as soon as possible.

Welfare Tax Credits: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in West Chelmsford were released from (a) working and (b) child tax credit repayments in each of the last four years. [148546]

Jane Kennedy: The information is available only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in West Chelmsford have been (1) overpaid (a) working and (b) child tax credits in each of the last four years; [148547]

(2) in receipt of (a) working and (b) child tax credits in each of the last four years. [148548]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the numbers of families with tax credits awards, including overpayments and underpayments by constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes, for the years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 are available in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards. Supplement on Payments. Geographical Analysis", for each relevant year. These publications and provisional estimates for the number of families with tax credit awards, by constituency, as at selected dates in 2006-07 are available on the HMRC website at:

Working Tax Credit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credits forms TC846 were returned completed to the Tax Credit Office in each month from April 2003 to June 2007. [147752]

Jane Kennedy: Claimants can ask HM Revenue and Customs to reconsider a decision to ask them to repay their overpaid tax credits by writing to the department or by completing a form (TC846) that is provided for that purpose. HM Revenue and Customs do not separately count the number of requests made by using the TC846. For the total number of disputes received I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave to his earlier question on 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 415-16W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Affordable Housing

18. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government have to increase the supply of affordable housing in places where the cost of housing is high in relation to average incomes. [148321]

Yvette Cooper: The Government's response, published in 2005, to Kate Barker's Review of Housing Supply set out an ambition to increase housing supply to 200,000 per annum by 2016. We are increasing provision of social rented housing to 30,000 homes in 2007-08 and have said that social housing will be a priority in the 2007 spending review. And we have plans to help 120,000 people into low cost home ownership in the five years to 2010.

22. Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many affordable homes were built in Solihull in each year since 1997. [148325]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of affordable homes supplied, in Solihull, in each year since 1997 are tabulated as follows. Figures include homes supplied through both new build and acquisitions.

Affordable housing supply: Solihull (West Midlands)

Housing Targets

19. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Government's target is for additional (a) council and (b) other social housing in the 2007-08 financial year and the next two financial years. [148322]

Yvette Cooper: For 2007-08, we are on course to deliver our target of 30,000 social rented homes. The vast majority will be delivered by housing associations with a small proportion by council, or private developers.

Future delivery will be subject to the outcome of comprehensive spending review 2007.

Unauthorised Gypsy Encampments

20. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Gypsy caravans there are on unauthorised encampments. [148323]

Mr. Iain Wright: The caravan count undertaken in January 2007 shows that there were 1,286 Gypsy and Traveller caravans on unauthorised encampments in England. There were 13,073 Gypsy and Traveller caravans on authorised sites.

Local Government Reorganisation

21. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on progress on local government reorganisation in the North West of England. [148324]

Hazel Blears: We announced on 27 March that proposals for single unitary authorities in Cheshire and Cumbria and a two unitary option in Cheshire would proceed to stakeholder consultation. The consultation closed on 22 June and we are currently considering all responses.

Unitary Government

23. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to announce the next round of decisions on unitary government. [148326]

Hazel Blears: It is our aim to announce the next round of decisions on unitary Government by the end of July, following our consideration of the responses received to the consultation exercise.

Home Information Packs

24. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the future of the home information pack programme. [148327]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the implementation plan for Home Information Packs, which was laid in the House Library. This sets out the work that the programme will be undertaking over the coming months.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total cost to the public purse of the Home Information Pack and Sellers Pack schemes has been since 1997; and what estimate she has made of future expenditure. [143639]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my Noble Friend, Baroness Andrews, on 27 June 2007, House of Lords, Official Report, columns WA149-150. Expenditure for future years will be subject to the outcome of the comprehensive spending review.

Planning Guidance

25. Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes to planning guidance she proposes in order to protect the viability of town and city centres. [148328]

Yvette Cooper: The "Planning White Paper—Planning for a Sustainable Future", made clear that we are fully committed to promoting the vitality and viability of town centres and to ensuring that the planning system supports the growth and development of town centres.

As the White Paper indicates, we intend to review the current approach in Planning Policy Statement 6: Town Centres (PPS6) to assessing the impact of proposals outside town centres. We will replace the need and impact tests with a new test which has a strong focus on our town centre first policy, and which promotes competition and consumer choice.

We will consult on proposals later this summer and develop new guidance with the industry and other stakeholders, with a view to finalising any changes by spring 2008. We will also take account of the Competition Commission inquiry into the groceries market, before finalising any policy changes.

Council Housing: London

26. Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the availability of council housing in London. [148329]

Yvette Cooper: We are increasing investment in social housing and looking at new ways for councils to also build homes on their land in addition to housing association building.

Council Housing: Carbon Emissions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to reduce carbon emissions from council homes. [147409]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Decent Homes Standard, which we expect every council home to meet, requires that homes have both efficient heating and effective insulation. This requirement will enable carbon emissions from council housing to be reduced.

Since 2001, over 470,000 dwellings have received work to improve their energy efficiency under the decent homes programme or as part of wider local authority work to update the stock. Since 2001 there has also been a 36 per cent. reduction in the number of social sector homes failing the Decent Homes Standard on the thermal comfort criterion.

Council Housing: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council homes there are in (a) Essex and (b) the London borough of Havering. [147407]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of local authority owned dwellings in Essex, Havering and the unitary authorities of Southend-on-Sea and Thurrock are in the following table. Figures are as reported by local authorities as at the 31 March.

Local authority stock at 31 March 2006

	Number of dwellings
Essex county council	55,559
Southend-on-Sea unitary authority	6,232

Council Housing: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council tenants in London were classed as living in cramped conditions in the last period for which figures are available. [147372]

Mr. Iain Wright: As indicated by the Survey of English Housing over the three years to 2005-06, there were an estimated 62,000 overcrowded households living in local authority accommodation in London.

Council Housing: Rents

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the outstanding arrears of rent on council-owned (a) residential and (b) commercial property were in each London borough in (i) March 2005, (ii) March 2004, (iii) March 2003 and (iv) March 2002. [145219]

Mr. Iain Wright: The outstanding arrears of rent on council-owned residential property in each London borough in March 2005, March 2004, March 2003 and March 2002 are available in the following table. The information for council-owned commercial property is not collected centrally.

Returns (P1B) from local authorities to CLG

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local councils in (a) England and (b) London are not permitted to give reduced discounts on council homes sold via the right-to-buy scheme. [147405]

Mr. Iain Wright: No local council is able to reduce the discount available to tenants under the right to buy scheme. There is no discretion for local authorities to set right to buy discounts. The maximum level of discount available under the scheme is prescribed by the Secretary of State under section 131 of the Housing Act 1985.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to inform first-time buyers about the right-to-buy scheme. [147406]

Mr. Iain Wright: Social landlords are required by section 104 of the Housing Act 1985 to provide their secure tenants with information on the provisions of the right to buy scheme. Section 189 of the Housing Act 2004 places an additional duty on social landlords to supply information to tenants to help them to decide whether to exercise the right to buy. The matters on which information must be provided are specified in the Housing (Right to Buy) (Information to Secure Tenants) (England) Order 2005 (Statutory Instrument 2005 No. 1735), and relate to the terms of the scheme (including eligibility and exceptions), the costs of home ownership (including mortgage, stamp duty, valuation fees and maintenance costs) and the risk of repossession if regular mortgage payments are not made.

Since 1980, the Government have produced a booklet for tenants, "Your right to buy your home", which social landlords are expected to provide to their tenants. The booklet describes the terms and procedures of the scheme and the costs of home ownership.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in her Department have had (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last year. [147194]

Hazel Blears: The information requested for the Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessor the Office of The Deputy Prime Minister is as set out in the table. The figures refer to the year 2006-07. They do not cover the Government Offices network, Departmental agencies or non-departmental public bodies.

Number of periods of absence of fewer than 5 days	Number of staff
Five or more periods	128
Four periods	93
Three periods	156
Two periods	237

The Department is committed to managing sickness absence proactively and supporting managers in managing sickness absence effectively.

Emergency Services: Floods

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions

she has had with the Secretary of State for (a) the Home Department and (b) Heath on assessing the capabilities of fire, rescue and emergency services to carry out their duties when flooding has taken place. [148348]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government has provided specialised high volume pumping equipment to the fire and rescue service which was used in the recent flooding. The number of high volume pumps was sufficient to meet all operational requirements, and leave a cushion of spare capacity.

As is normal procedure following a significant event, Communities and Local Government will be conducting a lessons learned exercise into the fire and rescue services response.

A flooding work stream, led by Department for Food and Rural Affairs, under the cross-government Capabilities Programme, assesses whether local responders have what they need to address the flooding risks we face. This work informs the future development of the national flood capability, and complements that of responders at the local level, who undergo a similar process within their area.

Fire Services

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list all publications containing current operational guidance issued to fire and rescue authorities. [148330]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Recently issued operational guidance for the fire and rescue service is available on the Communities and Local Government website, and a substantial proportion of older guidance such as fire and rescue service manuals is available from The Stationery Office.

The Department is currently in the process of reviewing all operational guidance issued to the fire and rescue service. This is likely to result in the review, reissue or withdrawal of some of the considerable body of existing guidance. After the review, a complete up to date list will be placed on the departmental website.

Flood Control

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will provide additional funding for local authorities to improve flood drains; and if she will make a statement; [146208]

(2) what funds the Government have made available for local authorities to improve flood drains; and if she will make a statement. [146209]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

Local authorities have permissive powers to undertake flood defence work on ordinary watercourses[1] (which are outside Internal Drainage Board districts) and against flooding from the sea. They receive grants towards the cost of capital flood and coastal erosion risk management projects from DEFRA through Environment Agency Grant-in-Aid.

Local authorities also incur revenue expenditure on flood and coastal erosion risk management, typically on maintenance of defence or watercourses or non-grant eligible costs of capital schemes. This expenditure is supported through the local government finance system framework.

In addition, work on future funding levels is currently taking place in the context of negotiating DEFRA's Comprehensive Spending Review settlement. The outcome of this is expected to be announced in the autumn.

[1] Water Resources Act 1991 defines watercourses as any river, stream, ditch, drain, cut, culvert, dyke, sluice, sewer and passage through which water flows, except a public sewer.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what discussions she has had with water companies on upgrading drainage systems to reduce the impact of flash flooding; and if she will make a statement; [146210]

(2) what regulations govern the upgrading of drainage systems where incidents of flash flooding have taken place; and if she will make a statement. [146211]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA Ministers and officials regularly meet with key water industry stakeholders to discuss a wide range of issues, including urban drainage systems.

Sewerage companies have a statutory duty to ensure the effectual drainage of their area. However, it would not be practical to extend this to an absolute duty to prevent sewer flooding under all circumstances. Ensuring compliance with the duty on sewerage companies is a matter for the economic regulator, Ofwat.

The Environment Agency, local authorities and Internal Drainage Boards have permissive powers to undertake work to manage the risk of flooding or to secure drainage and water level management under the Environment Act 1995, the Water Resources Act 1991 and the Land Drainage Act 1991.

Housing

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings she has had with Ministers from the devolved administrations to discuss housing policy. [147964]

Mr. Iain Wright: Although there have not been recent meetings with the devolved administrations to discuss housing policy at ministerial level, there are regular contacts between senior officials to exchange information and consider housing issues of mutual interest.

Housing Associations: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many housing associations there are in (a) Essex and (b) Romford. [147374]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are 314 registered social landlords (RSLs) operating in Essex and 22 operating in Romford. Information is only available for RSLs.

There may be other housing associations operating in these areas that are not registered with the Housing Corporation.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many housing associations there are in (a) Essex and (b) Romford. [147963]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 July 2007, Official Report, [147374].

Housing: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the number of homes built in Bournemouth in each of the last five years which have been purchased as second homes. [148314]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the number of new homes built that have been purchased as second homes is not available centrally.

At 10 October 2005, around 2,500 dwellings of the total 80,300 stock in Bournemouth district council had a "second homes" discount on council tax (3.1 per cent.) according to figures reported by Bournemouth district council.

Source: Council Tax Base (CTBI) returns.

Housing: Essex

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-decent homes there are in (a) Essex and (b) the London borough of Havering. [147960]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today.

Housing: Floods

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes were built on flood plains in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [146698]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Shrewsbury and Atcham (Daniel Kawczynski) on 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 369W.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps have been taken to implement the Government's undertakings in reply to the Agriculture Committee's recommendation that a clear presumption should be made against future development in flood plain land where the flooding risk attached to a particular development is deemed to outweigh the benefits, given to the Agriculture Committee in response to its report Flood and Coastal Defence, HC707, 27 October 1998. [146883]

Mr. Iain Wright: In December 2006 we published Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 25 "Development and flood risk", which aims to avoid inappropriate development in flood risk areas and direct development away from high risk areas by ensuring that sites at little or no risk of flooding are developed in preference to areas at higher risk. In the 10 per cent. of England at high risk of flooding PPS25 ensures that essential homes and services can be provided where it can be demonstrated that the need for the development outweighs the flood risk and the development will be safe and not increase risk.

PPS25 strengthens and clarifies the policy established by Planning Policy Guidance Note (PPG) 25, which was published in 2001 in response to the Agricultural Committee recommendation and the floods of Easter 1998 and autumn 2000.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses were built on designated floodplains in each year since 2000. [148334]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 9 July 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Shrewsbury and Atcham (Daniel Kawczynski) on 8 January 2007, Official Report, column. 369W.

Housing: Low Incomes

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social housing properties were made available by property developers in each London borough in each of the last five years. [145495]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Act 2004 gave the Housing Corporation the power to provide grant to fund affordable housing to other bodies such as private developers. In 2006-07, a total of 260 social rented homes were provided by non-registered social landlords (RSL) through Housing Corporation's affordable housing programme. None of these homes were in London.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in how many planning permissions for housing development the granting of permission incorporated a condition that a proportion of the properties built should be affordable in each of the last 10 years for which records are available; and what proportion of new homes granted planning permission in this period were affordable. [148174]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not held centrally.

Communities and Local Government collects quarterly aggregate statistics on development control statistics from all local planning authorities in England. These statistics also include the number of planning decisions granted for major and minor developments relating to residential developments. However, we do not collect data on individual planning applications.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of planning permissions granted in each of the last 10 years for which records are available for residential development which included an element of affordable housing have been (a) started, (b) completed and (c) occupied. [148254]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not collated in the format requested.

Housing: Standards

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-decent homes there were in (a) Essex and (b) the London borough of Havering in the latest period for which figures are available. [147370]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2006 local authorities and registered social landlords in Essex reported that they had between them 20,325 non decent homes, out of 86,072 homes.

In the London borough of Havering, registered social landlords and the council reported that they had 3,621 non decent homes out of 13,125 homes.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to ensure that private build houses meet the same standards as those completed by housing associations. [147965]

Mr. Iain Wright: All newly built housing, irrespective of whether privately or publicly funded, is subject to the minimum standards specified in the building regulations. Beyond that, builders and developers in the private sector are generally free to design housing as they wish, responding to market and consumer demand.

In relation to sustainability, the majority of new homes built with Government funds allocated after April 2007, and all new homes built with Government funds allocated after April 2008, must comply with Level 3 of the code for sustainable homes. This sets standards across nine areas of sustainability and goes significantly beyond the standards set in building regulations. Private build houses are not required to meet standards above building regulations. However in our consultation document 'Building a Greener Future' published in December 2006 we suggested that all new homes (public and private) should be required to have a mandatory rating against the code from April 2008, indicating whether they have been assessed and, if so, the performance of the home against the code. We believe that this will encourage higher take-up of the code in the private sector.

We are currently considering responses to our consultation and will make a further announcement shortly.

Internet: Taxation

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much taxation was collected from wi-fi installations by or on behalf of the relevant collections authorities during 2006-07. [148365]

John Healey: The Department for Communities and Local Government holds no data on how much taxation was collected specifically from wi-fi installations during 2006-07. Wi-fi installations, if rateable, are not separately identified from the mobile phone and broadcast wireless installations described as 'Communications Stations' in the local rating lists. A breakdown of the rating lists to separately identify wi-fi installations is not therefore possible.

Local Authorities: Housing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Audit Commission performance rating is for each local authority housing department in England; and what stock options strategy each is following. [144157]

Mr. Iain Wright: A table showing the housing scores and decent homes delivery option for each of the 115 unitary local authorities in England has been placed in the Library of the House. There is no annual assessment of district council housing functions as with single tier authorities through the Comprehensive Performance Assessment framework.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities had their accounts qualified in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [146151]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and the Chief Executive was asked to write to the hon. Member. The Chief Executive subsequently replied to him on 28 June and I have placed a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 28 June 2007:

Your parliamentary question on which local authorities had their accounts qualified in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 has been passed to me for reply.

As at the date of this letter, the 2005-06 accounts of the following seven principal local authorities have been qualified:

Bedfordshire County Council

Cornwall County Council

Dacorum Borough Council

Eastbourne Borough Council

Hull City Council

New Forest District Council

Norwich City Council

Because of the statutory timetable for the preparation and audit of the 2006-07 accounts, audit work is still in progress and we do not currently have any information on qualifications.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Local Government Finance: Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the value was per household of the Government grant to local government in 2006 for (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council and (b) Telford and Wrekin borough council. [147674]

John Healey: The figures for the two authorities are not comparable because Shrewsbury and Atcham council, as a shire district council, carries out fewer functions than Telford and the Wrekin borough council, which is a unitary council.

According to revenue account budget returns submitted by local authorities to the Department, the total amounts of revenue grant (revenue support grant, redistributed non-domestic rates and specific and special grants inside aggregate external finance) budgeted to be received by Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council and Telford and the Wrekin borough council for 2006-07 were £7.6 million and £175.6 million respectively.

These amounts are equivalent to £185 and £2,660 per household respectively, using estimates of the number of households in each local authority's area in 2004, as published at:

http://www.communities.gov. uk/pub/104/Table406_id1156104.xls

Local Government: Pay

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total back pay liability for all expected years is for each local authority that has applied for a capitalisation direction in respect of equal pay; and how much each authority is seeking to have capitalised. [146750]

John Healey: A number of local authorities are currently engaged in complex negotiations with their employees and Trade Unions, the outcome of which will determine the scale of their liability, if any, under the Equal Pay Act. Publishing the information requested could prejudice ongoing negotiations.

Planning Permission: Retail Trade

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will amend the General Permitted Development Order to require planning permission for change of use of small shop units into large ones. [148394]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 10 July 2007, Official Report, [147857].

Whether planning permission is required for the merger of shop units depends on what work is proposed. Unless a change of use is involved, planning permission will not usually be required if the merger involves only internal works. Transforming small shop units into large ones would not usually be considered a change of use. However, where works would affect the external appearance of a building, planning permission is likely to be required. Where planning permission is needed, local planning authorities can already prevent the merger of shop units through imposing planning conditions in the context of their planning strategy for their town centres. "Planning Policy Statement 6: Planning for Town Centres" (PPS6) gives further advice on the effective use of planning conditions to ensure that the character of a development cannot subsequently be changed to create a form of development that a local authority would originally have refused.

We have no plans to change the current arrangements.

Regional Planning and Development: Northamptonshire

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans there are for infrastructure improvements in North Northamptonshire to coincide with the expansion in housing. [148421]

Yvette Cooper: The provision of appropriate infrastructure is clearly critical to the effective delivery of the Sustainable Communities Plan. Since 2004, the Government working with partners in the Northamptonshire area have invested £100 million additional funding through the Growth Area Fund in Northamptonshire.

Furthermore the Government have set up an Inter Regional Board dedicated to delivering the coordination of sustainable growth across the Milton Keynes and South Midlands growth area reporting directly to Ministers.

Officials from the Department, the Government Office for the East Midlands and the Department for Transport are working closely with local partners to develop a package of measures to resolve the particular issues associated with the A14 and the local transport networks in the Wellingborough and Kettering area. I expect further details to emerge from that work towards the end of the year, when we will have a clearer picture on timing and the phasing of development.

Work with other agencies on the wider infrastructure issues is also progressing and these matters will be the subject of further consideration at the Examination in Public of the North Northamptonshire Core Spatial Strategy commencing in October this year. The purpose of the examination will be to test the "soundness" of the plan, which includes the delivery of infrastructure.

In addition, from the commencement of the new East Midlands Rail Franchise timetable in December 2008, rail passengers will benefit from a new hourly service between Kettering and London (including Wellingborough), increasing the number of off peak services on the midland main line to five trains per hour. It has also been agreed in principle to extend this service to a new station at Corby from December 2008.

Revenue Support Grant

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration her Department has given to the position of local authorities on the revenue support grant floor under the pooled funding arrangements to take effect from April 2008 to support local area agreements. [147085]

John Healey: The pooled funding arrangements supporting local area agreements will have no effect on the distribution of Formula Grant to local authorities.

Shops: Planning Permission

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to require planning permission for the merger of ground floor shop units. [147857]

Mr. Iain Wright: Whether planning permission is required for the merger of shop units depends on what work is proposed to be carried out. Unless a change of use is involved, planning permission will not usually be required if the merger involves only internal works. However, where works would affect the external appearance of a building, planning permission is likely to be required. Where planning permission is needed, local planning authorities can already prevent the merger of shop units through imposing planning conditions in the context of their planning strategy for their town centres. "Planning Policy Statement 6: Planning for town centres" (PPS6) gives further advice on the effective use of planning conditions to ensure that the character of a development cannot subsequently be changed to create a form of development that a local authority would originally have refused.

We have no plans to change the current requirements.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to require planning permission for conversion of class A1 shops into coffee shops or internet cafés. [147858]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have already made a number of positive changes to the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987 (as amended). Planning permission is now needed to convert a shop under Class A1: "Shops" into a coffee shop under Class A3: "Restaurants and Cafés". This class was designed specifically for businesses where the primary purpose is the sale and consumption of food and light refreshments on the premises. The Use Classes Order also allows Class A3 uses to change to Class A1 uses without planning permission.

In 2005 the Government changed the Use Classes Order to expand Use Class A1 to include internet cafés which are premises where the primary purpose is to provide access for members of the public to the internet. Internet cafés provide a valuable service to the public and contribute to the vitality and viability of high streets. Planning permission is therefore not needed to convert a shop into an internet café, and the Government has no plans to change the Use Classes Order in this regard.

Local authorities have a range of tools available to them to plan proactively for the character and future vitality and viability of their high streets and Planning Policy Statement 6: Planning for town centres advises on the scope of some of these. In addition, the Planning White Paper, Planning for a Sustainable Future, published in May 2007, set out proposals to introduce a new impact test which will improve consumer choice and promote competition and which will enable local authorities to better test the likely impact of development proposals outside town centres on town centre shops and services.

South West Regional Assembly

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the running cost of the South West Regional Assembly was in each of the last five years. [147948]

John Healey: Government grant since 2003 to the South West Regional Assembly in order for it to undertake its Regional Scrutiny, Planning and Housing functions is set out in the following table:

South West Regional Assembly

2003-04	1,613,000
2004-05	2,101,000
2005-06	2,101,000
2006-07	2,289,500
2007-08	2,470,164

Subsidence

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if her Department will take account of issues relating to severe and widespread subsidence in public areas caused by historic mine workings in the annual local authority budget allocation process; [141951]

(2) whether public money is available for areas of historic iron ore mining or other non-coal mining areas on the same basis as that made available to historic coal mining areas; and if she will make a statement; [141952]

(3) what representations her Department has received from (a) the relevant non-departmental public bodies and (b) Cumbria County Council on the subsidence issues caused by historic mineworkings in the town of Egremont; [141953]

(4) which non-departmental public bodies have delegated responsibilities for dealing with widespread and severe subsidence in public places. [141954]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government set the overall level of grant to local authorities in the spending review and will be considering all identified future pressures on local authorities, and the ways in which these can be mitigated, as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. However, primarily the route for assistance with funding for local authorities for subsidence caused by historic non-coal mine workings is through the Land Stabilisation Programme.

The Land Stabilisation Programme (LSP) can provide local authorities with help with funding for land instability works due to abandoned non-coal mines which are likely to collapse and therefore pose a problem to life and property. Local authorities in England are eligible to apply to English Partnerships, the non-departmental public body managing the programme on behalf of Communities and Local Government. Extensive guidance on the assistance available, eligibility conditions and how to apply for funding can be found on the English Partnerships website at:

www.englishpartnerships.co.uk

Cumbria county council approached English Partnerships in August 2005 to explore the possibility of LSP funding after the collapse of a mineshaft in June 2005 at Greenmoor Road, Egremont. Following a meeting with and receipt of information from the council, English Partnerships concluded that the mineshaft treatment proposals did not comply with the terms of reference of the LSP. English Partnerships wrote to the council in September 2005 advising that the proposed project was not eligible for LSP funding.

Thames Gateway Bridge

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to make a decision on the Thames Gateway Bridge. [148577]

Mr. Dhanda: We are currently reviewing the Inspector's report, inquiry evidence and all post-inquiry representations, and will issue a decision as soon as possible.

Thurrock Development Corporation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total cost of the Thurrock Development Corporation has been since it was constituted; and if she will make a statement. [145921]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 26 June 2007]: To date, Communities and Local Government has allocated the Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation a capital budget of £63 million and its revenue spending amounts to a total of £36.5 million since 2003—the inception of the Corporation.

Unitary Councils

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether she plans to use the powers contained in Part 1, Chapter 1 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, if enacted, to invite district councils to submit revised proposals for unitary structures on the basis of administrative areas with boundaries which exceed existing district council boundaries; [146454]

(2) if she will make it her policy not to invite new proposals for unitary status for at least two years after the completion of the review exercise. [146462]

John Healey: We have no plans for further rounds of restructuring. However, the Bill provides for an invitation to councils to come forward with unitary proposals. There may, for example, be a case for inviting a council to make proposals where that might be necessary to make sense of a boundary change.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions have been performed under the Abortion Act 1967, as amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990; and how many and what percentage were performed (a) to save the life of the mother and (b) where the child would have been seriously disabled. [148069]

Dawn Primarolo: There were 5.5 million (5,483,438) abortions performed in England and Wales on residents between 1968 and 2006.

In the period between 1968 and 2002[1], 23,726 (0.4 per cent.) were performed under Section 1(4)[2] and Section 1(1)(c)[3] of the Abortion Act, to save the life of the mother.

In the period between 1968 and 2006, 72,220 (1.3 per cent.) were performed under Section 1(1)(d)[4] of the Abortion Act.

[1] For 2003 onwards, these data are suppressed for reasons of confidentiality as the presented value would reveal a total of less than 10 (0-9) when used with data already published. This is in line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics (2005).

[2] "that the termination is immediately necessary to save the life or to prevent grave permanent injury to the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman".

[3] "that the continuance of the pregnancy would involve risk to the life of the pregnant woman, greater than if the pregnancy were terminated".

[4] "that there is a substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped".

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women seeking an abortion in England gave addresses in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) the Republic of Ireland, (c) Israel, (d) Malta and (e) Poland in 2006. [148070]

Dawn Primarolo: In England and Wales, in 2006, there were 1,295 abortions for residents of Northern Ireland, 5,042 for residents of the Republic of Ireland, 55 for residents of Malta and 10 for residents of Poland. There were less than five abortions (between 0-4)[1] for residents of Israel.

[1] For confidentiality reasons, the actual number cannot be disclosed. This is line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics (2005).

Blood Donors

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what dates blood donations were made to the UK Blood Service by UK blood donors who later developed vCJD; and if he will make a statement; [147585]

(2) how many UK blood donors have developed vCJD after donating blood to the UK Blood Service; and if he will make a statement. [147588]

Dawn Primarolo: Variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) has been subsequently diagnosed in 18 people who before they developed symptoms of disease had donated blood in the United Kingdom which was transfused to recipients. These blood donations were made between 1981 and 2004, and 66 people have been identified who received blood from these donations. Some of these donations were made many years before vCJD was identified (and before Bovine Spongiform encephalopathy was described).

Breast Cancer

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Cancer Reform Strategy will include plans to introduce national monitoring of the incidence of metastatic breast cancer. [148770]

Ann Keen: Suggestions around the need to monitor nationally the incidence of metastatic breast cancer have been raised during the development of the Cancer Reform Strategy. However, the strategy is still being developed and it is too early to say what the final content will be.

Cancer: Drugs

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which cancer drugs have been referred to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence for appraisal; what the date of (a) referral and (b) where applicable, the decision was of each; which drugs were (i) approved and (ii) not approved; and which type of cancer each drug treated. [146760]

Dawn Primarolo: Published technology appraisals from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) have decisions which are grouped into three categories:

where the treatment(s) is recommended for routine use in the national health service;

where the treatment(s) is recommended for selective use in the NHS (i.e. for certain patients, after other treatments have failed etc); and where the treatment(s) is recommended for use in research only or is not recommended.

The following table lists all the technology appraisals relating to cancer treatments published by NICE to the end of June 2007, including the date of referral, the condition and the drugs appraised, the date the guidance was published, the number of the appraisal (TA#) and the decision.

Clinical Trials

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2007, Official Report, column 1735W, on clinical trials, on what date the implementation group set up by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency was established; on how many occasions it has met since; and over what timescale he expects each of the recommendations contained within the report of the Independent Expert Scientific Group on clinical trials to be implemented; [147500]

(2) whether the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency assesses the size of doses to be administered to volunteers in clinical trials on the basis of minimum anticipated biological effect levels; [147537]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1735-36W, on clinical trials, whether the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency has established an expert advisory group to advise on applications for clinical trials on higher risk substances. [147550]

Dawn Primarolo: The Implementation Group established by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) to take forward the recommendations made by the independent Expert Scientific Group (ESG) held its first meeting on 27 September 2006 and has met a further four times since then.

The MHRA assesses the starting doses to be administered to volunteers in clinical trials based on available toxicology and pharmacology data.

In general, the calculation of the first dose in man is based on the no observed adverse effect level (NOAEL) determined in non-clinical safety studies performed in the most sensitive and relevant animal species. However, a calculation of the minimal anticipated biological effect level (MABEL) is also used and this approach is considered to be more appropriate than the NOAEL when the results of animal studies are thought less likely to predict the effect of the molecule in man.

The MHRA has established an Expert Advisory Group (EAG) of the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM) to advise on applications for clinical trials on higher risk substances, and it held its first meeting on 18 March 2007. Prior to this, and since the ESG formulated its interim advice in July 2006, advice on applications for clinical trials on higher risk substances was obtained from the CHM.

Progress is being made on implementing the ESG report recommendations as follows:

Recommendation one concerns the drug development process itself and the need for those involved in such programmes to be appropriately trained. The former will be addressed in the revised European Union guidance which we expect to be published by the end of July 2007. The MHRA is having discussions with relevant bodies on the latter with a view to developing a training and accreditation scheme for investigators for Phase 1 trials. We do not expect this recommendation to be implemented before 2008.

Recommendation two proposes a regular review of the regulatory process and has already been implemented as one of the responsibilities of the newly formed EAG.

Recommendations three and four propose that clinical and pre-clinical unpublished studies relevant to the safety of human exposure need to be collected in a format that can be shared confidentially between regulators. Discussions on the proposal have taken place with the European Medicines Agency (EMEA) and they will discuss the recommendations with the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and with the International Conference for Harmonisation (ICH) to involve the wider regulatory population. The EMEA will also ask the European Commission about raising the issue of data sharing with other countries. The EU databases will need amendment to enable the information to be collected. We do not expect these recommendations to be implemented before 2008.

Recommendations five and eight recommend earlier dialogue between regulator and drug developer, and better communication between regulator and ethics committees. The recommendation on earlier dialogue has been implemented through establishing a procedure that allows for informal discussion and submission of data on higher risk substances in advance of submission of the formal clinical trial application. This will avoid the need to lengthen current formal approval times.

The recommendation on better communication was implemented in October 2006 through adoption of a Memorandum of Understanding between MHRA and ethics committees.

Recommendations six and seven recommend the regulator should have access to additional advice from experts and were implemented by establishment of the EAG of the CHM in March 2007.

Recommendations nine to 17 concern determining and administering the initial doses of a drug in man and are addressed in the guidance being developed by the EU scientific committee, which should be published by the end of July 2007. In the meantime the MHRA is operating interim arrangements that take account of these recommendations.

Recommendation 18 refers to the training of principal investigators and is being progressed with recommendation 1.

Recommendation 19 proposes development of a treatment strategy when drawing up protocols for trials involving higher risk substances and will be addressed in the EU guidance.

Recommendation 20 specifies the facilities that should be available for first in man studies of higher risk substances. The MHRA is developing a voluntary accreditation scheme for Phase 1 units which will provide assurances that they have appropriate facilities available. This scheme will be available from April 2008, although we expect an informal self assessment scheme to be implemented shortly, prior to the scheme being finalised.

Recommendation 21 advocates widening availability of "hands-on" experience in the conduct of clinical trials and has wide-ranging implications for industry and those responsible for the training of medical personnel. Although discussions are under way, it is unlikely that this recommendation will be implemented before 2008.

Recommendation 22 considers the need for specialist Phase 1 centres, and we propose this should be addressed via the proposed accreditation scheme, which should provide assurance in the longer term that trials are conducted only in units with suitable facilities and staff.

Community Care

Jane Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what measures are in place to ensure that recipients of domiciliary care commissioned by a local authority have continuity of care protected during a change in care provider; [146599]

(2) what redress is open to clients in receipt of domiciliary care commissioned by a local authority in circumstances where they have had their carer withdrawn by the local authority without provision for alternative support services being made. [146600]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 29 June 2007]: Local authorities are responsible for assessing the care needs of their populations and providing or arranging care services to meet those needs. It is for local authorities to ensure that people's assessed needs are met on a day to day basis, regardless of how services are delivered. Local authorities are responsible for setting the criteria that determine people's eligibility for care. They do so based on local need and may also take into account their resources.

A person receiving domiciliary care services arranged by a local authority will receive such services, following the process of assessment of their need for such a service carried out by the authority, under section 47 of the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990, taking into account relevant directions and guidance from the Secretary of State.

Changes may be made by the local authority to the services received following a reassessment under section 47 and an authority may temporarily provide urgently needed services without an assessment, pending the completion of an assessment.

People who have services withdrawn (or their representatives) are entitled to make use of the local authority social services complaints procedure. Procedures for handling complaints about the provision of domiciliary care services are set out in the Local Authority Social Services Complaints (England) Regulations (S.I.2006/1681). Information on how to make a complaint is available from local authority offices.

Contraceptives: Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent assessment he has made of the impact of the morning-after pill on the overall abortion rate in England; and if he will make a statement; [148067]

(2) what research his Department (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake into the reasons for trends in the abortion rate in England between 2005 and 2006; and if he will make a statement; [148106]

(3) what the most recent abortion rate was per 1,000 women aged (a) 19, (b) 18, (c) 17, (d) 16, (e) 15, (f) 14 and (g) under 14 years in the UK; and what forecast he has made of the rate in each of the next 20 years. [148107]

Dawn Primarolo: No research has been commissioned or is planned in this specific area and no future forecast of abortion rates has been made.

The reasons women seek an abortion are complex and may be subject to a number of different factors. It is difficult to attribute any changes to one intervention or event such as the increased availability of emergency contraception.

Information on abortion rates for residents of England and Wales can be found in Table 4a of "Statistical Bulletin: Abortion Statistics, England and Wales: 2006", copies of which are available in the Library and on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk

Dental Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many units of dental activity (UDAs) are available to dentists in each primary care trust in England; and how many UDAs this equates to per person within each primary care trust area. [148482,

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the form requested. Information is available on the level of service commissioned.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) commission dental services from local dental providers. Information is collected centrally on the number of contracts each PCT holds and the units of dental activity (UDAs) these represent. UDAs are a way of measuring and giving relative weight to the courses of treatment given to patients. The latest information showing the total number of UDAs commissioned as at 31 March 2007 by PCT and the same data expressed per head of population are set out in tables which have been placed in the Library. The latest available population data are as at 2005.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146342]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not collect information on consultant spend in the format requested.

Total departmental spend on consultants was:

Consultancy expenditure

	£ million
2004-05	111
2005-06	126

The following consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million:

Total annual consultancy expenditure accounted for by supplier for 2004-05 and 2005-06

	Consultancy supplier name	£ million
1	Wragges	14.2
2	Addelshaw	10.8

It should be noted that these figures exclude VAT.

Departments: Management

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the role is of his Department's departmental management board. [147563]

Dawn Primarolo: The role of the departmental management board (DMB) is to provide strategic leadership to the Department, support Ministers in developing and policy and strategy for the health and care system and oversee its implementation.

A review of the role of the DMB will be undertaken as part of the Department's response to its recent capability review.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which members of his Department are included in his Department's senior leadership team; and if he will make a statement. [147564]

Dawn Primarolo: The senior leadership team brings together directors general and directors in the Department (senior civil service paybands two and three). Its purpose is to develop a shared approach to corporate leadership of the Department.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146986]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of staff who received bonus payments in the last three years and the total amount of bonus paid is as follows:

	Normal	£
2004-05	679	1,064,465
2005-06	581	1,252,141
2006-07	420	1,400,049

A significant proportion of bonuses paid were to staff who are senior civil servants, where the Department's policy is determined by the Cabinet Office guidance on civil service bonuses.

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146920]

Dawn Primarolo: The annual report process for 2006-07 is not yet completed, therefore data are not available.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's budget was for each year (a) before and (b) after reprofiling, broken down into capital, near-cash and non-cash. [146534]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's near-cash, non-cash and capital budget is set out in the 2007 Department Report. Previous controls are set out in HM Treasury's Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses publications. Budget 2006 set out information regarding the reprofiling of departmental resources along with other routine and technical changes.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147049]

Dawn Primarolo: Our records show:

81 staff have taken five or more periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months;

60 staff have taken four periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months;

153 staff have taken three periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months;

261 have taken two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months.

Departments: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) in which aspects of his Department's policy-making his Department has recognised weaknesses, as stated on page 22 of the Cabinet Office's Capability Review of the Department of Health, published on 22 June 2007; [147558]

(2) in which areas the quality of briefing to Ministers has been diminished as a result of weaknesses in the Department's policy-making, as stated on page 22 of the Capability Review of the Department, published on 22 June 2007; [147560]

(3) which parts of his Department are not confident in the use of (a) economic and social analysis and (b) evidence to support policy-making, as stated on page 21 of the Capability Review of the Department, published on 22 June 2007. [147562]

Dawn Primarolo: The purpose of departmental Capability Reviews is to use honest and robust assessments of future capabilities to identify the specific measures that are needed if central Government Departments are to play their part in enabling the United Kingdom to meet the considerable challenges of the future.

The Cabinet Office's Capability Review of the Department was based on evidence from the Department itself, interviews and meetings with a wide range of external stakeholders, as well as a cross-section of departmental staff. The judgments reflect a considered overall view of the Department, and the permanent secretaries have welcomed the report as a timely and valuable assessment of the Department as a whole, and the challenges it faces, including challenges in the area of policy-making. However neither this nor any other review was designed to provide a comprehensive picture of the particular strengths and weaknesses of individual parts of departments and their work.

The report describes the aspects of policy-making that are not consistently strong. The Department is already taking action on these. Better policy-making, the Department's plans for a system of policy governance to improve policy-making capability across the organisation, was published in April 2007. In addition, the Department's analytical capability has been relocated from central teams to individual policy directorates to improve the use of evidence in policy-making, and a horizon scanning capability is being established to bolster the Department's ability to predict future trends in healthcare.

Dietary Supplements: Channel Islands

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government is taking to assist the governments of Jersey and Guernsey in the implementation of the European Union legislation relating to food supplements, nutrition and health claims made on food and the current medicine directives. [147532]

Dawn Primarolo: The Nutrition and Health Claims Regulation, the Food Supplements Directive and the Medicines Directive remove barriers to the free movement of goods within the European Union by regulating content, sale and labelling of products. Jersey and Guernsey are not part of the European Union (EU), instead they have a relationship with the EU provided by Protocol 3 of the United Kingdom's Treaty of Accession to the European Community. Discussions on exactly how the requirements of these Directives apply to the Channel Islands are continuing between the UK and the Bailiwicks of Jersey and Guernsey.

The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) is supporting the Food Standards Agency (FSA) and the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) in their communications with the Channel Islands over these directives, and has had correspondence with the Chief Executive of Guernsey on this issue. The MHRA will give advice and assistance as requested by the Bailiwicks to implement Medicines Directives. The FSA will give advice and assistance as requested by the Bailiwicks to implement the Food Supplements Directive and the Nutritional and Health Claims Directive.

The FSA, MHRA and MoJ have met with the Health Food Manufacturers' Association to discuss issues relating to the trade in food supplements and unlicensed medicinal products via the Channel Islands. Further information has been requested from the industry association to assist in discussions with the island governments.

The MHRA's response to the consultation by the Bailiwick of Guernsey on its draft medicines legislation said that the proposed legislation did not implement the Medicines Directive; it offered assistance to the Bailiwick of Guernsey in implementing the Directive and asked for the Bailiwick's proposed timescale.

Elderly: Nutrition

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to prevent older people suffering from malnutrition in hospital. [148534]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 9 July 2007]: As part of the Dignity in Care campaign, which has initially focused on the care needs of older people, I held a Nutrition Summit in March 2007, which was attended by leading charities, clinicians, nutrition experts and care home representatives. At that event, I announced that we would be working to produce a joint departmental and stakeholder Nutrition Action Plan to tackle the issues of nutrition and nutritional care. The action plan is being developed and applies to all adults. It is planned to be published this summer.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding her Department made available to (a) the Food Standards Agency and (b) other bodies for the purposes of conducting agricultural biotechnology research in each of the last 10 years. [146235]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The Department has provided no money to the Food Standards Agency, or any other body, for the purposes of conducting agricultural biotechnology research.

HIV Infection: Tuberculosis

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average annual cost is of treating a patient with (a) HIV and (b) tuberculosis. [148258]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the costs associated with the treatment of HIV and TB, either by case or in total, are not routinely collected. Costs of treating people with HIV vary depending on the severity of symptoms and level of immune suppression.

IVF: Finance

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the change in the cost of in-vitro fertilisation treatment in the (a) NHS and (b) private sector arising from the introduction of the current regulatory regime. [148427]

Dawn Primarolo: The provision of in vitro fertilisation (IVF) treatment, in the national health service and the independent sector, has been regulated under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 since 1 August 1991. No assessment has been made of the changes to the cost of IVF following the introduction of the Act.

On 5 July 2007, the Act was amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Quality and Safety) Regulations 2007, to bring the provisions of the European Union directive on the safety and quality of human tissues and cells for human application fully into force in respect of gametes and embryos. The regulations require establishments providing IVF to meet environmental and practice standards intended to ensure that only safe, high quality tissue is used in a patient's treatment.

While many of the provisions in the directive mirrored existing requirements in the 1990 Act and the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority's code of practice, IVF clinics are likely to incur some costs in meeting the standards, although costs are likely to vary significantly between establishments. The regulatory impact assessment (RIA), prepared for the implementation of the directive, commented on potential costs to the fertility sector of complying with the standards. A copy of the RIA is available in the Library.

Leukaemia: Drugs

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ask the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to assess the benefits of prescribing Dasatinib (Sprycel) for chronic myeloid leukaemia; and if he will make a statement. [147413]

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he intends to refer Dasatinib, a drug for the treatment of chronic myeloid leukaemia, to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to seek its approval. [147933]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 3 July 2007]: Dasatinib (Sprycel) is licensed for the treatment of adults with chronic, accelerated or blast phase chronic myeloid leukaemia (CML) with resistance or intolerance to prior therapy including imatinib. Dasatinib is also licensed for the treatment of adults with acute lymphoblastic leukaemia and lymphoid blast CML with resistance or intolerance to prior therapy. The Department has no plans to refer Dasatinib to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) for appraisal at this time but the drug may be considered for referral to NICE in the future.

Medical Treatments: Research

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding is being provided for research into photodynamic therapy. [148036]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) funds research to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service and through its health technology assessment programme is investing £1 million in a study to gather evidence on the clinical and cost effectiveness of photodynamic therapy for people with age-related macular degeneration.

In addition, two of the NIHR biomedical research centres (BRCs) established this year will be undertaking research concerned with the use of photodynamic therapy. At the University College London hospitals BRC the research will form part of a gastroenterology and hepatology research theme to which £5 million has been allocated over five years. At the Moorfields Eye hospital BRC it will be part of programme of research to do with age-related macular degeneration to which £2.9 million has been allocated over five years.

The Department is also providing NHS support for two trials of photodynamic therapy for biliary tract cancers through the NIHR Cancer Research Network, and for two trials of photodynamic therapy for cancer of the gullet (oesophagus) through the joint Cancer Research UK/NIHR Experimental Cancer Medicine Centre at University College Hospital London.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies though which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

The MRC has in the last six years funded two studies relating to photodynamic therapy at a total cost of £300,000.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to reply to the letter of 29 May from the hon. Member for Walsall North concerning a constituent (ref PO213931). [147727]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The reply was sent on 5 July 2007.

Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus: Meat

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what reports he has received of MRSA infection in UK-produced meat; [147992]

(2) what tests are carried out on imported meat to identify MRSA infection; [147993]

(3) what tests are carried out on UK-produced meat to identify MRSA infection. [147994]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 9 July 2007]: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has received no reports of incidents of methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) contamination in United Kingdom produced meat. No testing for Staphylococcus aureus is required in UK slaughterhouses nor in other European Union slaughterhouses. Meat from third countries is subject to import controls, but is not routinely tested for Staphylococcus aureus.

FSA and other organisations provide advice on personal hygiene and proper handling, storage and cooking of meat to minimise contamination by micro-organisms. Proper cooking will destroy MRSA.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what systems are in place for testing meat imported from outside the EU for MRSA contamination. [148436]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Meat from outside the European Union is subject to import controls, but is not routinely tested for Staphylococcus aureus.

All meat from outside the EU imported into the United Kingdom comes from establishments that are under veterinary control and must meet EU standards. On arrival at border inspection posts in the UK the meat is subject to checks by veterinary inspectors. All consignments undergo 100 per cent. documentation and identification checks and a prescribed level of physical checks.

NHS: Foreign Workers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the list of developing countries from which recruitment into the NHS is prohibited applies in the recruitment of (a) doctors in training and (b) other doctors. [148154]

Ann Keen: The code of practice for the international recruitment of healthcare professionals includes a list of developing countries from which the national health service should not undertake active recruitment. The list, overseen by NHS Employers, applies to all health professionals.

The code of practice cannot, and does not seek to, prevent individuals from developing countries from speculatively seeking work in the NHS.

NHS: Reviews

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish a list of the members of the NHS review group led by Professor Sir Ara Darzi. [148615]

Ann Keen: The terms of reference for the review are available in the Library and we will set out more detail on the work of the review in due course.

Nutrition: Obesity

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the proposal in the European Commission's White Paper on Nutrition, Overweight and Obesity to reformulate food and drink products to combat obesity; and if he will make a statement. [148035]

Dawn Primarolo: We welcome the publication of the Commission's White Paper, which outlines an European Union approach to address the incidence of overweight and obesity in the region. The White Paper's proposals on reformulation complement work already underway in the United Kingdom by the Food Standards Agency to address levels of saturated fat, total fat and added sugars in a range of foods as part of the Agency's saturated fat and energy intake programme.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice and guidance he has issued on the consumption of different foods and drinks to tackle obesity. [148045]

Dawn Primarolo: As part of a healthy lifestyle, including being physically active, the Government advise that a healthy balanced diet is one that is rich in fruit and vegetables (at least five portions every day), starchy foods, such as potatoes, rice, bread, moderate amounts of meat and dairy products and low in foods that contain large amounts of fat, sugar and salt. A healthy balanced diet is low in fat, particularly saturated fat, salt and added sugars.

The Food Standards Agency has also introduced a front of pack labelling scheme recommended for those types of foods which consumers have said it is difficult to judge the nutritional content. This information can be used at a glance by consumers to help them make informed choices about the nutritional content of foods they purchase when shopping. This will also help consumers to better understand which food products make a positive contribution to a healthy diet and which should be eaten in smaller amounts or less frequently.

Obesity: Children

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the role of (a) fruit juices and (b) smoothies in tackling childhood obesity. [148043]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government has not assessed the role of fruit juices or smoothies in tackling childhood obesity.

The Government do, however, provide advice to consumers on the role fruit juices and smoothies can play in a varied, balanced diet. Government advise that fruit juices and smoothies can contribute towards recommended fruit and vegetable consumption, but advises these drinks can be high in sugars.

Pfizer: Drugs

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of the changes in distribution of Pfizer medicines on NHS patients. [147982]

Dawn Primarolo: Officials in the Department continue to monitor the operation of the new arrangements. No substantial problems have been reported and no corrective action has had to be taken.

Pharmacy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1006-07W to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on pharmacy, how many pharmacies (a) are registered as prescribers and (b) offer primary care trust-commissioned blood pressure checks. [146490]

Dawn Primarolo: The commissioning of national health service services such as pharmacist prescribing and routine blood pressure checks are matters for primary care trusts to determine. Under the new community pharmacy contractual framework, pharmacists are now providing a wider range of services other than just dispensing medicines. These include the prescribing of medicines and blood pressure checks.

Information from the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, shows that at the end of May 2007, in Great Britain, there were 1,189 pharmacist supplementary prescribers and 68 pharmacist independent prescribers.

Information on the number of pharmacists undertaking blood pressure checks is not collected centrally.

Poultry Meat

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration he has given to the merits of regulating the addition of (a) protein and (b) water to chicken meat to provide for (i) limits in each case and (ii) further labelling requirements including in catering establishments. [146962]

Dawn Primarolo: The production and labelling of meat products are regulated in European law. The Food Standards Agency has raised this issue with the European Commission who considered the matter but concluded that current legislation was adequate. European legislation has no limits on added protein or water, however, if these are added, they must be correctly described on the label so as not to mislead consumers.

There are no plans for legislation to require further labelling of added protein or water in chicken products. However, the agency will be consulting shortly on new guidance on the labelling of meat products for food businesses. Part of this guidance is specifically aimed at caterers.

Reproduction: Finance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations in the field of reproductive health are funded by his Department; how much his Department plans to give to each organisation in the next two years; whether account is taken of an organisation's position on abortion when allocating public funds; and if he will make a statement. [148068]

Dawn Primarolo: The following voluntary and community organisations working in the field of reproductive health receive funding from the Department of Health:

Organisation	Funding 2007-08	2008-09
Antenatal Results and Choices[1]	20,000	—
Brook Advisory Centres[1]	186,000	100,000
Family Planning Association[1]	1.279 million	—
Foundation for Women's Health, Research and Development[1]	30,000	—
Infertility Network UK	103,000	88,000

[1] 2007-08 is the last year in the current Section 64 grant cycle for Antenatal Results and Choices, Brook Advisory Centres, Family Planning Association and the Foundation for Women's Health, Research and Development. The Family Planning Association contract for Sexual Health Direct ends in March 2008 and we have yet to consider funding allocations from April 2008.

The Department funds voluntary organisations in England, through individual policy programmes and Section 64 of the Health Services and Public Health Act 1968, where organisations' activities support the Department's policy priorities.

Sleeping Pills

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) total number of and (b) net ingredient cost of drugs dispensed in the community for the treatment of insomnia was in each year since 1997. [147535]

Dawn Primarolo: Treatment for insomnia is classified in the British National Formulary (BNF) under paragraph 4.1.1. The number of prescription items dispensed in the community in England, together with the net ingredient cost (NIC), are shown in the following table.

The antihistamine promethazine hydrochloride is listed by the BNF as a possible treatment for insomnia but dispensing for this drug is categorised under its use for respiratory conditions and so dispensing figures are given separately in the table. It is not possible to determine what proportion of this use, if any, is for insomnia.

	Items dispensed (BNF 4.1.1) (Thousand)[1]	NIC (BNF 4.1.1) (£000)	Items dispensed (Promethazine) (Thousand)	NIC (Promethazine) (£000)

Smoking

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons his Department altered the design of the no-smoking sign it requires to be placed at the front of every enclosed public space to make it different from that determined by the International Organisation for

Standardisation (ISO); what representations he has received from the ISO on the issue; at what cost the redesigned sign was developed; whether external agencies were involved in its redesign; and if he will make a statement. [147582]

Dawn Primarolo: The Health Act 2006 requires smokefree premises to display no-smoking signs. The Smoke-free (Signs) Regulations 2007 set out the requirements for no-smoking signs to be displayed in smokefree premises and vehicles.

In addition to specified wording, no-smoking signs for smokefree premises must also carry a no-smoking symbol which "consists solely of a graphic representation of a single burning cigarette enclosed in a red circle of at least 70 millimetres in diameter with a red bar across it". The regulations are sufficiently flexible to enable businesses to design no-smoking signs that will fit the decor of their premises, as well as to use a no-smoking symbol of their choosing.

The regulations do not specifically require no-smoking signs to carry the International Organization for Standardisation no-smoking symbol. To make such requirement would be overly bureaucratic and create an unnecessary burden on businesses, for example by requiring the replacement of pre-existing signs in smokefree vehicles across the country.

The Department has received no specific representations from the International Organization for Standardization on requirements set out in the Smoke-free (Signs) Regulations 2007, either during the public consultation on smokefree regulations or subsequently.

The no-smoking signs that have been made available via the Department's Smokefree England campaign are compliant with these regulations. The cost for the design of no-smoking signs that have been made available by the Department was provided in the answer given to the hon. Member for East Devon (Mr. Swire), on 18 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1577-78W. The figure represents the total design costs for signs, including the no-smoking symbol used.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of measures to enforce the prohibition on smoking in public places. [147904]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 9 July 2007]: The Department has put a range of measures into place to monitor and evaluate smokefree legislation in England. A programme of Department-sponsored research is in place to monitor the impact of the new law.

Data are also being collected from local authorities on levels of compliance and enforcement actions taken, as well as the number of calls to the Smokefree England compliance line. These data will be routinely published on the Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk.

Given that smokefree legislation has only been enforced since 1 July 2007, specific assessments on the effectiveness of enforcement are unable to be made at present.

Water: Children

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effects of dehydration on children of school age; and if he will make a statement. [148039]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not undertaken a specific research project on the effects of dehydration on children of school age. The Government's healthy eating advice is to drink plenty of water.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what meetings Ministers in his Department have held with Deborah Mattinson of Opinion Leader Research in the last 12 months. [147030]

Edward Miliband: Ministers meet many people as part of the process of policy development. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

Members: Correspondence

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when his Department will respond to the letter dated 4 June from the hon. Member for North Norfolk on guests to Chequers. [148772]

Edward Miliband: A response was sent to the hon. Member on 10 July 2007.

Official Hospitality: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost to the public purse was of the event for special advisers held in No. 10 Downing street on 15 June. [147029]

Edward Miliband: There was no cost to the public purse.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Detainees

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs under what charge Ahmed Belhada is being detained at Guantanamo Bay. [148361]

Dr. Howells: I understand that the hon. Member may be referring to an Algerian national named Mr. Ahmed Belbacha who is detained at Guantanamo Bay. We are not aware that Mr. Belbacha has been charged by the US authorities.

Burma: Human Rights

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has for measures to (a) promote human rights and democracy and (b) encourage dialogue between parties in conflict in Burma. [147694]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) identifies Burma as a country of concern in our 2006 Annual Report on Human Rights. Our aim is to promote full respect for human rights in Burma, encouraging the rule of law, democracy and good governance, and the freedom of association and speech in accordance with international human rights law. We are at the forefront of international efforts to encourage the military regime to restore democracy and to respect human rights.

We take every opportunity to raise human rights issues with the regime and remind them of their obligations to adhere to international human rights law, most recently when our ambassador in Rangoon met the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister and the Ministers of Planning and Health on 12-13 June. Our embassy in Rangoon is also delivering capacity building assistance through the FCO Global Opportunities Fund in support of these objectives.

We believe the UN has a key role to play in addressing the political and humanitarian challenges in Burma. We shall continue to support the efforts of the UN, including the good offices mandate of the Secretary-General.

Chechnya: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on Chechnya's observance of human rights. [148302]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Annual Report on Human Rights, which was last published in October 2006, sets out the Government's assessment of the situation in Chechnya. We remain deeply concerned by the situation in the republic, which is fragile and vulnerable to human rights violations. We, and EU partners, continue to monitor developments closely. Copies of the 2006 FCO Annual Report on Human Rights are available in the Library of the House.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148019]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has completed no Private Finance Initiatives (PFI) since 1997. Two PFI projects are under way with a total estimated cost of £381.7 million. The details are:

Global Crossing—Provision of a worldwide telecommunications network for a term of ten years from 10 May 2000. The total estimated cost of this contract is £247.5 million. The present unitary payment charged to the operating cost statement is £24 million per annum; and Arteos—In respect of the building, operation and maintenance of our Embassy in Berlin for a term of 30 years from 23 June 1998 with an option to extend for a further 30 years. The total estimated costs of the contract over its lifetime to June 2028 is £134.2 million. The current unitary payment is £4.4 million per annum.

Further details on these signed deals are available on HM Treasury's website, available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

This list covers unitary charge payments up to 2033-34. Unitary charge payments are projections covering more than the repayment of the capital value of a project. They will frequently include inflation, service provision and major refurbishment. They are also conditional on the performance of the private sector contractor.

The FCO has commissioned no other PFI projects.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what representations he has received on the EU food supplements directive; [147240]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential impact of imposing maximum permitted levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements. [147241]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

A number of representations have been received on the interpretation and implementation of the food supplements directive, highlighting concerns regarding the possibility that the European Commission (EC) intend to propose restrictive daily dose levels for vitamin and mineral supplements and the potential consequent loss of consumer choice.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has recently carried out an informal consultation on an initial regulatory impact assessment (RIA) that sets out the current position in the United Kingdom with respect to food supplements and seeks information from stakeholders to measure the potential impact in advance of future EC proposals for setting daily dosage levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements. The information will be used to inform the draft RIA, which will then be subject to a formal consultation process. Since we do not yet know what the Commission will propose, the FSA sought information on a wide range of possible options.

The impact assessment will be updated to take account of future Commission papers and a full public consultation will be carried out when the Commission publish proposals. The UK negotiating position on maximum levels will take into account all stakeholder comments.

EU Reform: Treaties

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on the holding of a referendum on the proposed EU Constitutional Treaty. [148177]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe, on which the Government proposed a referendum, is now defunct. The mandate for a Reform Treaty agreed by the European Council states clearly:

"The constitutional concept, which consisted in repealing all existing Treaties and replacing them by a single text called "Constitution", is abandoned".

As my right hon. Friend the then Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair) set out in his statement to Parliament on 25 June, the Reform Treaty will differ fundamentally from the Constitutional Treaty in both form and substance.

The subject of a referendum on the proposed Reform Treaty has been discussed on many occasions, including in Parliamentary debates, questions and evidence sessions. The UK's only ever national referendum was on European Economic Community membership in 1975. The Reform Treaty will be an amending Treaty in the tradition of Maastricht, Amsterdam and Nice—none of which were subject to a referendum in this country.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the differences are between the original planned EU Constitution in 2005 and the new proposed EU Constitutional Treaty 2007. [148178]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe, on which the Government proposed a referendum, is now defunct. The mandate for a Reform Treaty agreed by the European Council states clearly:

"The constitutional concept, which consisted in repealing all existing Treaties and replacing them by a single text called "Constitution", is abandoned".

As my right hon. Friend the then Prime Minister (Mr. Tony Blair) set out in his statement to Parliament on 25 June, the Reform Treaty will differ fundamentally from the Constitutional Treaty in both form and substance. Among other things, we have ensured that there is nothing in the mandate for the Reform Treaty which will require us to change our existing labour and social legislation. Our common law system and our police and judicial processes will be protected. Our independent foreign and defence policy will be maintained. Our tax and social security system will be protected.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to answer the letter to his predecessor dated 4 June from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. Omer Farooq. [148369]

Dr. Howells: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend. A reply was sent on 9 July.

Robert Mugabe: Summit Conferences

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to (a) the Portuguese Government and (b) the EU on President Mugabe's attendance at the Lisbon Summit in December 2006. [148006]

Meg Munn: The UK is strongly committed to the EU Africa relationship. We want to see a successful summit that agrees substantive co-operation in areas that really matter for Africa, for Europe and for the UK. We are working with the Portuguese, and other EU colleagues, towards this and have underlined to them our view that President Mugabe's attendance would detract from this important agenda. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary stressed this most recently with his Dutch colleague on 5 July and will do so in discussions with other EU Foreign Ministers, including the Portuguese, in coming weeks. This was also raised during my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's discussions with the Portuguese Prime Minister on 9 July.

Succession: EU Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans there are at EU level to provide a unified approach to laws on succession and wills, with particular reference to proposals emanating from the Commission's Green Paper thereon; and if he will make a statement. [148242]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

In 2004 the Council of the European Union invited the European Commission to prepare a Green Paper on the conflict of laws in matters of succession and related issues. The Green Paper was published in 2005 and suggested there was a need for the harmonisation of private international law rules in the field of succession.

The UK response to the Green Paper made clear that although the Government support, in principle, the development of proposals to help people with inheritance matters that have a cross-border element, it has serious concerns about the proposals that might emerge from the Commission's Green Paper. The UK detailed response is available on the EU website:

http://ec.europa.eu/justice_home/news/consulting_public/successions/contributions/contibution_uk_en.pdf

The Commission is now considering the responses to the Green Paper and is expected to publish a draft proposal for a regulation in late 2007 or early 2008.

Sudan: Human Rights

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage implementation of the United Nations Human Rights Council recommendations published following the Group of Experts report on Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [148294]

Meg Munn: We strongly support the UN Human Rights Council's (HRC) work on improving human rights in Darfur.

The HRC high-level assessment mission, which examined the situation in Darfur in February, recommended a review of the implementation of existing human rights recommendations from different parts of the UN system. We actively supported the German EU Presidency in pushing for the establishment of the Darfur Implementation Mechanism in March. This group of UN Special Rapporteurs is pressing the Government of Sudan for better and faster implementation of human rights recommendations in Sudan. We expect an interim report in September, with a full report to follow in November/December.

We are pressing the Government of Sudan to comply fully with the report's recommendations.

Turkey: Iraq

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of recent Turkish army movements along that country's border with Iraq. [148303]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We are aware of counter-terrorist operations by the Turkish security forces close to Turkey's border with northern Iraq. This is in response to a series of recent attacks by the Kurdish separatist group, the Partiya Karkerên Kurdistan (PKK) against military and civilian targets in Turkey which have caused a significant number of fatalities.

We utterly condemn the attacks carried out by the PKK, as we do all acts of terrorism. We encourage Turkey to engage with the Iraqi Government, and the Kurdish regional government, to address the PKK presence in northern Iraq and we welcome the ongoing trilateral co-operation between Turkey, Iraq and the US.

Zimbabwe: Foreign Relations

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will assess the merits of UK military action against Zimbabwe. [148309]

Meg Munn: We believe that change by peaceful means is still the best approach to resolving the current crisis. Zimbabwe desperately needs policy reform to reverse its current decline. We are supporting the efforts of all those working for democratic change in Zimbabwe.

JUSTICE

Coroners

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many and what proportion of deaths reported to coroners resulted in an order for a post-mortem examination in each year since 1997, broken down by coroner's region; and if he will make a statement; [148245]

(2) how many and what proportion of deaths reported to coroners were the subject of an inquest in (a) each coroner's region and (b) England and Wales in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [148256]

Bridget Prentice: Because of the comprehensive nature of these data, the information requested has been placed in the Library of the House.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of deaths were reported to a coroner in each year since 1997, broken down by coroner's region; and if he will make a statement. [148247]

Bridget Prentice: Information on the number of registered deaths is only available for coroners' districts where these coincide exactly with one or more local or unitary authorities. Coroners' district boundaries are not always consistent with those of local authorities, and therefore it is not possible to provide this information for all such districts. However, information on the number of registered deaths of residents and the number of deaths reported to coroners in England and Wales for all years from 1997 to 2006, aggregated to approximately county level, is in the process of being collated by my officials and I will write to the hon. Member shortly with this information.

Coroners: Expenditure

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on coroners' services in (a) England and Wales and (b) each coroner's region in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [148595]

Bridget Prentice: Funding for the coroner service in England and Wales is provided by local authorities and police authorities, in those areas where the police employ coroners officers and administrative staff. Data are not collected on the total spend on the coroner service by coroner jurisdiction.

In 2003 Tom Luce's 'Fundamental Review of Death Certification and Investigation in England, Wales and Northern Ireland' (Cm 5831) estimated the total spend on the coroner system in England and Wales to be £71.4 million. The Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA) does publish data on local authority spend by coroner jurisdiction but we cannot guarantee the accuracy of that information.

Coroners: Manpower

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many coroner's regions were allocated part-time coroners in each year since 1997; how many were without a fully qualified coroner for part of the period between 1997 and 2007; and if he will make a statement; [148246]

(2) how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time coroners there were in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [148596]

Bridget Prentice: The ratio of part-time to full-time coroners for the years between 1997 and 2004 is currently being gathered and I will write to the hon. Lady shortly. The Coroners' Society annual report lists 89 part-time coroners and 28 full-time coroners in 2005 and 86 part-time coroners and 32 full-time coroners in 2006. There are currently 79 part-time coroners and 32 full-time coroners. An individual has to be qualified either as a lawyer or doctor for five years to serve as a coroner, deputy coroner or assistant deputy coroner.

Courts: Birmingham

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many defendants who have appeared before (a) a Crown court and (b) the magistrates' courts in Birmingham since 1 May 2007 have been remanded overnight in court cells in London; how many were (i) adult males, (ii) adult females, (iii) males between 18 and 21 years and (iv) females between 18 and 21 years; where those defendants were remanded; when they were remanded; on how many occasions defendants were remanded; and whether those so remanded had access to drug, physical and mental health staff, showers and a change of clothing before reappearing in court each following day. [148297]

Mr. Hanson: No defendants have been remanded from Birmingham Crown or magistrates courts to court cells in London. However, on 11 June 2007, five sentenced adult male prisoners and one sentenced young adult male prisoner were sent from Birmingham Crown court and Birmingham magistrates court to be held in cells at West London magistrates court.

In accordance with the agreed protocol, no female or juvenile prisoners have been held overnight in court cells.

Electoral Register: Barnet

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2007, Official Report, column 910W, on the electoral register: Barnet, when the canvassing took place; how many people were registered (a) before and (b) after the canvassing; and if he will make a statement. [148381]

Bridget Prentice: I understand that in addition to the annual canvass the electoral registration officer at Barnet council commenced a personal canvass of Grahame Park, Colindale on 18 June 2007. Before commencing this canvass, the number of registered electors was 4,828. As of the 5 July 2007, the number of new electors that will be added and published in the August register stands at 182. Canvassers will continue to make house to house enquiries until the 10 July 2007.

Huntercombe Young Offender Institution

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to Question 147127, on the Huntercombe Young Offender Institution, how the use of PAVA is regulated; what restrictions there are on the use of PAVA; what criteria are taken into account in deciding to use PAVA; who is authorised to make decisions on the use of PAVA; whether exposure to PAVA has lasting physical effects; and if he will make a statement. [148071]

Mr. Hanson: PAVA is an advanced incapacitant spray. Its use is limited to serious incidents such as hostage taking. Its use may only be authorised by the Gold Commander managing the incident and only specially trained national control and restraint staff may use it. Only those who are specifically trained in its use are authorised to use it. In general it will not be authorised if:

dealing with prisoners at height (because of the risk of injury/falling); dealing with juvenile prisoners and other prisoners held in juvenile units or secure training centres;

there is reason to believe the intended target has/could develop breathing difficulties following the use of PAVA (e.g. if asthmatic);

a member of healthcare staff is not available on site at the incident to give medical care to any affected by the spray; and the incident takes place in a privately run prison or immigration removal centres

Exceptions may be made if lives are in danger. Department of Health approval was sought for its use and it has no long term medical effects.

Judicial Appointments Commission for England and Wales: Secondment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of the staff seconded from his Department to the Judicial Appointments Commission are of (a) senior leadership, (b) policy and (c) administrative support grades; whether staff who have been seconded to the Judicial Appointments Commission from his Department have maintained the same line management relationships with their existing managers; whether staff who have been seconded to the Judicial Appointments Commission from his Department may receive performance-related bonuses; what assessment he has made of the performance of the Judicial Appointments Commission; and if he will make a statement. [147977]

Mr. Straw: The Judicial Appointments Commission (JAC) has a complement of 94 staff of which 17 members are temporary contractors on short-term contracts and 77 were secondees from the Civil Service. 70 are seconded from the Ministry of Justice (of these, 40 previously worked from the Lord Chancellor in this area, and 30 have not previously worked in this area); the remaining seven are seconded from other Government departments. In response to a request from the Constitutional Affairs Committee, information about staff seconded to the Judicial Appointments Commission is currently being collated and will be provided by the Chief Executive of the Commission to the Committee on 16 July.

I will place a copy in the Libraries of the House and send a copy to my right hon. Friend. This should answer all sections of this question but if not I should of course be happy to provide my right hon. Friend with as much additional information as is available.

I also refer my right hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement I made to this House on 4 July 2007, Official Report, column 48WS announcing the publication of the Commission's first annual report.

Pre-nuptial Agreements

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what his Department's policy is on pre-nuptial agreements; and what representations his Department has received from the hon. Member for Grantham and Stamford on this issue; [148102]

(2) whether his Department has made any assessment of the impact of pre-nuptial agreements on (a) low income and (b) vulnerable individuals. [148103]

Bridget Prentice: Couples are free to make pre-nuptial agreements and apply them in the event of relationship breakdown. In those circumstances the courts will only intervene in their financial affairs if one party wishes to dispute that agreement. Even if the parties dispute it, an agreement is a factor taken into account in any ancillary relief proceedings relating to the couple who made the agreement.

The welfare of any child is the court's first consideration when resolving a couple's financial affairs. Enforcement of prenuptial contracts regardless of their content would displace that principle. An agreement which is very old, or one which does not deal with the couple's current circumstances, or on which the parties had not taken independent legal advice, could be unfair. The agreement might not have considered changes in circumstances, such as the illness of one of the parties, or the birth of children, which would change the parties' earning capacity.

This Ministry has not received any representations from the hon. Member for Grantham and Stamford on this issue to date.

The Ministry has not undertaken research on the impact of pre-nuptial agreements on parties with low incomes and vulnerable individuals. However, we believe that pre-nuptial agreements are most often used by wealthier couples. We think that pre-nuptial agreements could never fully oust the jurisdiction of the court without putting vulnerable parties and children at risk.

Prisoners: Facilities

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 912-3W, on prisoners: facilities, what sanitary facilities exist within the custody area of court cells. [147975]

Mr. Hanson: Wash basin and toilet facilities are available within court custody areas. Showers are not generally available at most court sites.

PRIME MINISTER

Cabinet: Qualifications

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister how many (a) O levels, (b) A levels, (c) bachelor's degrees, (d) apprenticeship qualifications and (e) higher degrees are held by members of the Cabinet. [148219]

The Prime Minister: The information requested is not held centrally. However, biographical information is available in "Dod's Parliamentary Companion".

Department for Education and Skills: Reorganisation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister what the projected cost is of re-organising the Department for Education and Skills. [148212]

Anne Milton: To ask the Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the cost of the machinery of government changes he has made. [148616]

The Prime Minister: The cost of machinery of Government changes will be met by relevant Departments within existing departmental budgets.

Departments: Buildings

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to refurbish, extend or renovate the Downing Street complex. [146872]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer that the then Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong) gave him on 8 March 2007, Official Report, columns 2198-99W.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what changes have been made to the staff structure at No. 10 Downing Street since 27 June; [148861]

(2) what new positions have been created in No. 10 Downing Street since 27 June 2007. [148863]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 2 July 2007, Official Report, column 945W.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister what the No. 10 Downing Street entertainments budget (a) was in July and August 2006 and (b) is in July and August 2007. [148864]

The Prime Minister: Details of the entertainment costs for 2006-07 will be published shortly. Figures for the financial year 2007-08 will be published in the normal way after the end of the financial year.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the remit of his adviser on political press issues. [148862]

The Prime Minister: Special advisers are appointed under the terms and conditions set out in the Model Contract and Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, copies of which are in the Library of the House.

Departments: Press Conferences

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister whether he will hold monthly press conferences and appear before the Liaison Committee at least twice a year. [148718]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the press briefing given by my spokesman on 27 June 2007. A transcript of this is available on the No. 10 website (http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page12162.asp), and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Lord Laidlaw: Taxation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has responded to the House of Lords Appointments Commission's concerns about the UK tax status of Lord Laidlaw; and if he will make a statement. [148769]

The Prime Minister: The House of Lords Appointments Commission set out their position in their annual report 2006-07, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether the Government has agreed to provide funding for the (a) salary, (b) administrative support costs, (c) travel costs and (d) security costs of the former Prime Minister in his new role as Middle East envoy in 2007-08; [147800]

(2) how much funding has been pledged by (a) the United Nations, (b) the European Union, (c) the United States and (d) Russia for the (i) salary, (ii) administrative support costs, (iii) travel costs and (iv) security costs of the former Prime Minister in his new role as Middle East envoy in 2007-08. [147801]

The Prime Minister: The Government welcome my predecessor's appointment as the Quartet's Middle East Representative. As Prime Minister, he demonstrated his commitment, over the years, to advancing the peace process. Details of his role and his team, together with potential funding, are being worked out in discussion with international partners. We are currently considering how we can best support that work.

Petitions: Electronic Government

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Prime Minister what future plans he has for e-petitions on his Office's website. [148578]

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aerials: Planning Permission

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many applications for installing a telecommunications mast were (a) granted and (b) refused in each parliamentary constituency in each of the last five years; [148007]

(2) how many telecommunications masts were installed in each London borough in each of the last five years; [148008]

(3) how many telecommunications masts were given permission to be installed in each parliamentary constituency in each of the last five years. [148009]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will amend national planning guidance on mobile telephone masts to allow concerns over health issues to be taken into account by local planning authorities; [148591]

(2) what the timetable is for the revision of Planning Policy Guidance 8; and whether she intends to issue a consultation paper on its revision. [148592]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1524W. We intend to review the permitted development rights in relation Part 24 of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995. Following the completion of this review we will consider what, if any, changes might be necessary to Government Planning Policy in relation to telecommunications.

We have not established our timetable for reviewing Planning Policy Guidance Note 8 on Telecommunications. We will consult on any substantive changes to this policy.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will require all mobile telephone companies to apply for full planning permission for installation of mobile telephone masts. [148593]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1524W. We intend to review the permitted development rights in relation to Part 24 of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995. The aim of the review is to ensure that permitted development rights remain fit for purpose, particularly in the light of technological advances in telecommunications. I cannot prejudge the outcome of that review, but we will consult on any substantive proposals for change arising from it.

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many flights to overseas destinations were taken by (a) civil servants and (b) Ministers in her Department in each of the last three calendar years; and what the total cost of such flights was. [144940]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost. Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis, a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500, as well as the total cost of all ministerial travel overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Libraries of the House. Information for 2006-07 is currently being compiled and will be published before the summer recess. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Civil Service Management Code', the 'Ministerial Code' and 'Travel by Ministers'.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146993]

Mr. Iain Wright: The numbers of non-pensionable bonuses for each of the last three years and the costs of these are tabulated as follows. These figures refer to bonuses paid under the terms of the annual pay settlements for staff working in the Department and its predecessor, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. Bonuses are paid to staff who exceed against their objectives for the year.

The Department also operates a Special Bonus Scheme to reward exceptional performance over a limited period in particularly demanding tasks or situations, but records are not available to show the number of payments made under this scheme.

In recent years the proportion of senior civil service pay which is linked to performance has been increased.

	Number of bonuses	Cost of bonuses (£)
2006	561	838,250
2005	596	605,750
2004	435	445, 000

Departments: Performance Appraisal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in her Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in 2006-07. [146930]

Mr. Iain Wright: On the basis of outcomes agreed and recorded to date a total of 14 staff in the Department did not meet their objectives for the year 2006-07.

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what incentives she has considered to encourage staff in her Department to use public transport. [148796]

Mr. Iain Wright: The main incentive the Department offers are interest-free loans for season tickets for travel to work via public transport. Use of public transport is also encouraged by limited car parking, flexible working, the use of public transport during the course of travel and making use of travel websites and information services, such as Transport Direct.

Fire Services: Standards

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets her Department has issued to local authorities on the performance of fire services. [148982]

Mr. Dhanda: The Fire and Rescue National Framework sets out the priorities and objectives for all fire and rescue authorities in England, The framework is a statutory guidance document which is laid before Parliament and the current framework is for 2006-08. Within the framework we provide details of any targets set for fire and rescue authorities and for local authorities where they have a fire function e.g. county fire and rescue authorities. Since April 2005 the Government have had a public service agreement target which is:

"By 2010, reduce the number of accidental fire related deaths in the home by 20 per cent. and the number of deliberate fires by 10 per cent."

Fire and rescue authorities have largely been responsible for delivering this target and the reduction in fire deaths and deliberate fires has already been achieved but this performance must be sustained until 2010 to meet the target in full. Fire and rescue authorities also have an efficiency target to deliver which commenced in April 2005 of £105 million of cashable efficiency savings by 2007-08. Again, fire and rescue authorities are on track to deliver this efficiency target. Further information on these targets and other priorities for the fire and rescue service can be found within the national framework document.

Housing: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets for building homes Bournemouth borough council is expected to meet; and by when. [147949]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The Bournemouth, Dorset and Poole Structure Plan, adopted in 2001, sets out an average figure for new housing delivery in Bournemouth of 523 dwellings per annum up to 2011.

The draft South West Regional Spatial Strategy, which recently completed its examination in public, states a range for 2006-26 of between 680 and 780 dwellings per annum.

Housing: Disadvantaged

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what public funds were spent on the Supporting People strategy in each year since its inception. [147376]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Supporting People programme is administered and delivered locally by 150 top tier local authorities.

The following table details the amount spent on Supporting People services since 2003, as reported to the Department by local authorities.

2003-04	1,759,796,581
2004-05	1,752,082,661
2005-06	1,688,430,624

Housing: Low Incomes

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of affordable home completions in each of the last five years for which records are available were sold for (a) less than (i) £40,000, (ii) £50,000, (iii) £60,000, (iv) £70,000, (v) £80,000, (vi) £90,000, (vii) £100,000, (viii) £110,000, (ix) £120,000 and (b) more than £120,000; and what the figures were in each year in each case for the South West. [148252]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on affordable dwelling sales is not available centrally in the format requested. However, information recorded by registered social landlords on the proportion of all their affordable dwellings sold at a discounted sale price and the sale of equity shares of shared ownership dwellings and open market properties with the help of an equity loan to improve affordability is given for England in the following table 1 and for South West in table 2.

The information in the tables reflects the fact that the majority of shared equity purchasers are buying in London and the South East. However, the number of shared ownership and equity loans completions per annum in the South West has nearly doubled over the last five years.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the definition of affordable housing takes account of (a) average local wages, (b) geographical location and (c) whether the house is to be (i) bought outright, (ii) bought with shared equity and (iii) rented. [148445]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Annex B to "Planning Policy Statement 3: Housing" defines affordable housing as housing sold or rented at below market rates, to eligible groups, where there is provision for the home to remain at an affordable price for future eligible households. The definition includes that affordable housing

> "should meet the needs of eligible households, including availability at a cost low enough for them to afford, determined with regard to local incomes and local house prices".

The definition comprises social rented housing and intermediate housing (shared equity products, other low cost homes for sale and intermediate rent).

Local Government: Equal Pay

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total back pay liability for all expected years is in respect of each local authority that has applied for a capitalisation direction in respect of equal pay; and how much each authority is seeking to have capitalised. [149115]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 July 2007, Official Report, column 1430W.

Rates and Rating: Aerials

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many mobile telephone masts were on the Valuation Office Agency's ratings list in the areas of (a) Guildford borough council and (b) Waverley borough council (i) in 2000 and (ii) at the most recent date for which the information is available. [148594]

Mr. Iain Wright: Statutory Instrument (SI) No 2421 changed the basis for assessing masts for rating purposes. Therefore, to provide an answer on a consistent basis, the following dates have been used.

As at 31 March 2003, the Rating List included 79 'Communication Masts' in Guildford borough council and 34 in Waverley borough council. As at 31 March 2007, the corresponding numbers were 120 for Guildford and 32 for Waverley. Not all 'Communication Masts' are mobile telephone masts; the Valuation Office Agency's database does not distinguish between mobile telephone masts and those used for other purposes.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total expenditure was on armed forces accommodation in each year since 1997. [148228]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 16 January 2007, Official Report, column 1008W, and my letter of 20 March 2007, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Mental Health Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) psychologists, (b) psychiatrists, (c) mental health nurses and (d) occupational therapists each service employed in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [148273]

Derek Twigg: Psychologists and occupational therapists are not employed in the armed forces. The following tables list the numbers of consultant psychiatrists and mental health nurses employed in each service on 1 April 2006 and 1 April 2007.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what budget was provided to each of the armed forces for recruitment purposes in each year since 1992. [147491]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 5 July 2007]: Information for all years since 1992 is not held centrally in the format requested. Nevertheless, the known recruitment budgets for the Army and RAF for all years since 1998-99 are as follows:

	£ million
	Army	RAF
1998-99	49.5	27.1
1999-2000	53.0	27.6
2000-01	53.8	26.3
2001-02	65.4	28.6
2002-03	64.9	29.1
2003-04	70.8	n/a
2004-05	76.1	n/a
2005-06	89.1	n/a
2006-07	86.9	n/a

In 2003, the RAF's recruitment budget was merged with that for Initial Officer Training and cannot be separated out.

I will write to the hon. Member with the information for the Naval Service annual recruiting budget and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Copthorne Barracks

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the running costs of Copthorne Barracks in Shrewsbury were in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [147663]

Derek Twigg: The approximate infrastructure running costs of Copthorne Barracks in each of the last three financial years were as follows:

Financial year	£ million
2004-05	1.5
2005-06	1.9

The introduction of Regional Prime Contracting in 2006-07 altered the way in which infrastructure costs are accounted for, in that not all maintenance costs can now be attributed to a particular site. The figure for 2006-07 is not therefore directly comparable to the figures for previous years.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146339]

Derek Twigg: Summaries of MOD expenditure on external assistance (which includes management consultants and other external consultants and advisers) are available in the Library of the House for the years 1995-96 to 2005-06.

Figures for financial year 2006-07 will be placed in the Library before summer recess.

The information on which consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million is not held centrally in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information on organisations, including management consultancy firms, paid £5 million or more by my Department in each financial year is published in the UK Defence Statistics. However, these figures do not differentiate between consultancy spend and non-consultancy expenditure.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147529]

Derek Twigg: Approximately 2,200 members of the Civil Service Pension arrangements in the Ministry of Defence (2.7 per cent. of the total Civil Service Pension schemes members employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension. The Defence Intranet also provides staff with information on how to boost their pension and an annual office notice is issued to remind staff of the opportunity to have non-consolidated pay or bonuses paid into an additional voluntary contributions fund.

Explosions: Noise

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints about noise caused by explosions at Shoeburyness were received from residents living in (a) Maldon District, (b) Chelmsford Borough, (c) Rochford District, (d) Colchester Borough, (e) Tendring District, (f) Southend on Sea, (g) Castlepoint District and (h) Kent in each year since 1995. [148150]

Derek Twigg: The number of complaints received by the Ministry of Defence about noise caused by explosions, demolition and gunfire at Shoeburyness in each year since 1995 is set out as follows:

District	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007[1]

Figures up to the end of 2005 are based solely on telephone complaints to a dedicated helpline. Those for 2006 and 2007 are from all sources of complaints.

Housing: Telephone Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many calls received by Modern Housing Solutions were subsequently passed to Transco in each of the last 12 months. [147938]

Derek Twigg: The number of calls received by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) that were passed to Transco is as follows:

Military Bases: Europe

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what British military bases there are on the continent of Europe. [147490]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The following table lists all of the main Establishments where the Ministry of Defence has a land ownership interest in (either freehold or long leasehold) on the continent of Europe.

Establishment name	Country
Akrotiri Air Base	Cyprus
Dhekelia Garrison	Cyprus
Episkopi Garrison	Cyprus
Ayios Nikolaos	Cyprus

Osnabruck Garrison	Germany
Paderborn Garrison	Germany
Rheindahlen Garrison	Germany

Military Bases: Wales

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what information he has received from the Defence Training Review preferred bidder on the discussions it has had with (a) business, (b) local government and (c) academic leaders in South Wales on future plans for MoD St. Athan; and which organisations have taken part in such discussions; [147273]

(2) what information he has received from the Defence Training Review preferred bidder on discussions it has had with elected representatives in South Wales about future plans for MoD St. Athan; and who took part in those discussions; [147274]

(3) what information he has received from the Defence Training Review preferred bidder on discussions it has had with local organisations and community groups in the Vale of Glamorgan on the future plans for MoD St. Athan; and which organisations and groups were involved in those discussions. [147279]

Derek Twigg: Metrix UK meets regularly with members of the Welsh Assembly Government, Community Councils (Llantwit Major, St. Athan, Llanmaes, Llandow, St. Bride's, Ewenny, Wick, Llangan and St. Donat), local (South Wales) business leaders, and leaders of all the main parties represented in the National Assembly.

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the principal surface access routes to MoD St. Athan will be (a) during and (b) after the construction of the new military training academy. [147280]

Derek Twigg: Negotiations are under way between the Welsh Assembly Government, MOD and Metrix to formulate an agreement which will include access arrangements for the Aerospace Business Park and the proposed Defence Training Academy.

Veterans Day

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost was of the events of Veterans Day 2007. [148237]

Derek Twigg: We are not able to calculate the total costs of events to mark Veterans Day 2007 as many of these are borne by event organisers and are not collected by the Department. The MOD committed approximately £470,000 to such events from its veterans budget. However, this figure does not include the costs of participation by armed forces units, such as military bands, in events organised to celebrate the country's veterans; these costs cannot be separately identified but the involvement of such units has not been large scale.

War Pensions

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cash (a) provision and (b) outturn was for the (i) War Pensions Benefits Programme, (ii) War Pensions Benefits Programme—Far Eastern Prisoners of War and (iii) War Pensions Benefits Programme costs—British Limbless Ex-Servicemen's Association request for resources subheads in each financial year since 1997. [146961]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence does not measure financial performance in cash terms. The nearest approximation is 'near cash' which comprises cash expenditure and adjustments relating to accrued and pre-paid expenditure. Details relating to the financial years from 1997 to 2002 are not available to the Ministry of Defence as responsibility for reporting financial performance was only transferred in 2002. Prior to this the financial reporting was the responsibility of the Department for Social Security, now the Department for Work and Pensions. The near cash provision for total war pensions expenditure for the years 2002-03 to 2006-07 was:

2002-03	1,186,720,000
2003-04	1,158,005,000
2004-05	1,161,221,000
2005-06	1,072,972,000
2006-07	1,047,661,000

The near cash outturn for the years 2002-03 to 2006-07 was:

	(i) War pensions costs	(ii) Far eastern prisoners of war costs	(iii) British Limbless Ex-Servicemen's costs	Total war pension expenditure
2002-03	1,161,995,058	4,270,000	n/a	1,166,265,058
2003-04	1,113,557,403	3,210,000	3,000	1,116,770,403
2004-05	1,100,266,108	9,810,000	7,000	1,110,083,108
2005-06	1,065,402,752	3,730,000	3,000	1,069,135,752
2006-07	1,035,083,980	3,490,000	0	1,038,573,980

Costs relating to the British Limbless Ex-Servicemen's Association were not separately recorded until 2003-04.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flood Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local flood protection and prevention schemes, for which cost benefit analysis has been undertaken, were cancelled or postponed in each of the last five years; and what the reasons for cancellation and postponement were in each case. [147543]

Mr. Woolas: Operating authorities (OAs), that is, the Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards, are required to produce annual Medium Term Plans (MTPs) setting out their proposed flood protection and prevention schemes for the following three years. Each project will include some form of cost benefit analysis and this will form part of the calculation of the priority score for the scheme. A fully detailed cost benefit analysis is only likely to have been undertaken when a scheme comes forward for final approval either internally in the Environment Agency or, historically, by DEFRA.

MTPs contain a mixture of schemes, some are well advanced and ready to proceed and others are in the early stages of design. There are many more schemes awaiting funding than are able to be afforded in any one year. The list of schemes in the MTP will be added to as new ones are identified by OAs and may displace others with lower priority scores. There are many schemes in the MTP for which a need can be defined but which have a very low priority score. These are unlikely to receive funding for many years, if at all, but are nevertheless promoted by the OA. These should not be regarded as "cancelled or postponed" because they have never received funding approval and, for this reason, the information is not available in the form requested.

Floods: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to improve the flood defence system in East Lancashire. [148936]

Mr. Woolas: I am advised by the Environment Agency that the Ribble Catchment Flood Management Plan, which will identify the high level sustainable policies for future flood risk management within the catchment over the next 50 to 100 years, is now in its final stages of preparation. The Burnley, Nelson and Colne and the Darwen (including Blackburn) Flood Risk Management Strategies are currently being developed to identify specific scheme needs within those sub-catchments.

The Barrowford Flood Alleviation Scheme has recently been completed. Croasdale Brook, Slaidburn, Flood Alleviation Scheme has recently been completed. Walverden Water and Hendon Brook Flood Alleviation Scheme has been approved and is awaiting funding allocation. Investigations are in progress to identify potential flood risk protection measures at Bolton-by-Bowland and Sawley.

Detailed hydraulic modelling has been completed on Mearley Brook at Clitheroe, and flood risk mapping is being finalised for the area. New Flood Warning Areas continue to be introduced in the highest risk areas such as the River Hyndburn at Accrington, River Calder at Padiham and Green Brook at Padiham. Existing Flood Warning services are also being improved on a continual basis.

The Environment Agency continues to maintain and invest to prevent deterioration of assets in East Lancashire. 97 per cent. of defences are currently in a good condition.

Water: EC Action

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for increasing the (a) funding and (b) staffing of the Catchment Sensitive Farming programme in meeting the requirements of the EU Water Framework Directive; and if he will make a statement. [147243]

Mr. Woolas: Resources for catchment sensitive farming will depend on departmental plans currently being considered as part of the comprehensive spending review.

Wood: Imports

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the UK's timber needs are met by imported material. [148125]

Joan Ruddock: In 2005, the latest year for which figures have been published, it was estimated that 52.5 million cubic metres of wood raw material equivalent was imported and 8.6 million cubic metres was produced in the UK.

Exports, including materials produced from both imported and domestically grown timber for use or re-use outside the UK, were 16.5 million cubic metres of wood raw material equivalent, so UK apparent consumption was 44.6 million cubic metres. Imports therefore made up 81 per cent. of apparent consumption.

Around one third of the wood products imported to the UK in 2005 were imported as softwood (round and sawn). A further one third were imported as paper, 15 per cent. were imported as wood based panels and 13 per cent. as pulp. Paper (20 per cent.) and recovered paper (57 per cent.) accounted for the majority of exports of wood products from the UK in 2005.

Wood: Procurement

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the Government's (a) domestic and (b) imported timber supplies are procured from sustainable sources. [148128]

Joan Ruddock: There are not sufficient current data available from which accurate figures on Government's purchase of sustainably produced timber could be deduced. The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs is engaged on an exercise designed to identify options for developing a reliable system that all central Departments in England could use to report their timber purchases.

TRANSPORT

Bus Services: North West Region

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent by her Department on bus subsidy in the north-west of England in the last 12 months, broken down by constituency. [147087]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department provides grants to local transport authorities through the Rural Bus Subsidy Grant, Rural and Urban Bus Challenge and Kickstart schemes. A total of £7.853 million was paid under these schemes to local authorities in the north-west region in the financial year 2006-07. The Department also provides Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) directly to operators of local bus services. We estimate that BSOG payments to operators in the north-west region total around £55 million annually. In addition, the majority of local authority support for bus services is funded from the Government's unhypothecated Revenue Support Grant and from other sources.

The Department does not hold information in a form that would enable these figures to be broken down by parliamentary constituency.

Databases: Parking

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether there is a national record of parking areas. [148448]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As far as I am aware, there is no comprehensive and accurate national record of parking areas. However, Transport Direct is creating a database of off-street publicly accessible parking for Great Britain which can be viewed at www.transportdirect.info.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which her Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148021]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The HM Treasury website provides updated details (on a six monthly basis) of awarded PFI projects overseen by the Department of Transport. The project details include the date of financial close, total capital value and the annual unitary charge payment. This information is available at:

http://www.hm-treasurygov.uk/documents/public-private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

The Treasury website includes unitary charge payments up until 2033-34. The following projects overseen by the Department for Transport involve payments beyond that date:

Docklands Light Railway Woolwich extension

2034-35 estimated unitary charge £12.2 million

A1 Darrington to Dishforth

2034-35 estimated unitary charge £52.2 million

2035-36 estimated unitary charge £53.5 million

Doncaster interchange

2034-35 estimated unitary charge £3.86 million

2035-36 estimated unitary charge £3.86 million

2036-37 estimated unitary charge £3.86 million

2037-38 estimated unitary charge £3.86 million

2038-39 estimated unitary charge £0.965 million

The forecasts of future payments are subject to the performance of the private sector contractor.

The unitary charge payments represent repayments of the capital (sum of the capital spend) of the project and will also frequently include inflation, service provision, capital repayments and major refurbishments.

Railway Stations: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if she will make a statement on progress being made on the development of a railway station at Buckshaw Village, Chorley; [148991]

(2) whether an agreement has been reached with rail operating companies for trains to stop at the proposed railway station at Buckshaw Village, Chorley; and if she will make a statement; [148992]

(3) when she expects work (a) to begin and (b) to be completed on the construction of the railway station at Buckshaw Village, Chorley. [148993]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is a project that is being led by Lancashire county council with Network Rail. I understand that Lancashire county council has yet to finalise the detailed project plan which would provide dates for key milestones, but that it is planning for the station to be operational by 2008 provided the funding is in place.

Railways

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average load factor is, expressed as a percentage of seats occupied, on passenger trains running on the UK rail network. [146294]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department only holds data pertaining to the morning and evening peaks for commuter services in London and the south-east, which is in the following table. It is not possible to disaggregate seats occupied from total capacity as data are not held in this form.

	Total load factor
Train operator	In am peak	In pm peak	Percentage Aggregated peaks
one	82.0	75.2	78.7
C2C	78.0	72.3	75.3
Chiltern	72.5	61.5	66.9
Southeastern	84.1	67.4	75.9
Stagecoach South West Trains	89.3	70.6	80.0
Southern	82.5	70.8	77.0
First Great Western	90.0	71.5	81.1
First Capital Connect	80.0	74.3	77.1
Silverlink	72.8	65.1	68.9

The table is based on annual counts undertaken by train operators during autumn 2006. Data for other train operators running on the UK rail network are not available.

TREASURY

Crosby Review

Mr. Binley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the report of the Crosby review of identity management to be published. [148643]

Andy Burnham: Sir James Crosby has been asked to deliver his report to Ministers by late summer.

Departments: Hotels

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1879W, on Departments: hotels, if he will set out the figures for 2006-07 for (a) HM Treasury, (b) the Debt Management Office, (c) the Royal Mint and (d) the Office of Government Commerce, including subsistence, as in the answer of 16 October 2006, Official Report, column 1060W, on departmental expenditure; [147097]

(2) how much was spent by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies on hotel and other privately-provided accommodation (i) in the UK and (ii) abroad for (A) Ministers, (B) staff and (C) others in 2006-07. [147114]

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on overnight accommodation by civil servants within his Department's areas of responsibilities in the last 12 months. [149057]

Angela Eagle: The available information is presented in the following table. As explained in the answer given by the then Financial Secretary (John Healey) on 16 October 2006, in most cases, the bodies' accounting systems do not record accommodation costs separately, so the figures are for subsistence, which includes accommodation and associated allowances for meals. Therefore further analysis could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information relating to overseas travel by Ministers is published on an annual basis. Information for the period 2 May 1997 to 31 March 2006 is available in the Library of the House. Information for the financial year 2006-07 is currently being compiled and is due to be published shortly.

All travel and subsistence is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code, Travel by Ministers and the Civil Service Management Code.

[1] Treasury figures include Ministers, staff and other persons.
[2] OGCbuying.solutions figures are for accommodation only, excluding meals, including both UK and overseas accommodation.
[3] The Valuation Office Agency figure represents costs of UK and overseas accommodation only. Figures previously provided for preceding years have included subsistence and other supplementary costs which were unable to be separated except at disproportionate cost. The figure of £525,000 for 2006-07 provided on 20 June was subject to audit adjustments, which have now been agreed.
[4] The HM Revenue and Customs figures are for accommodation only, unlike figures previously reported for earlier years, where the method for recording such expenditure made disaggregating accommodation expenditure from subsistence possible only at disproportionate cost.
[5] The amount for The Royal Mint includes both UK and overseas subsistence.
[6] The Office for National Statistics figures represent accommodation only. Figures previously reported for preceding years included travel and subsistence, as well as accommodation. The method of recording expenditure made disaggregating accommodation possible at disproportionate cost only.

Football Association: World Cup

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what occasions (a) he or his predecessor, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) representatives of his Department met the Football Association to discuss an English bid for the 2018 World Cup (i) before the feasibility study by his Department and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport into holding the World Cup in England began and (ii) while the study was in progress; and what such meetings have taken place since the study was completed. [148963]

Andy Burnham: Treasury officials met the Football Association between January 2006 and February 2007 following the announcement that a feasibility study into hosting a football World Cup would be conducted.

Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether HM Treasury received recommendations from the Audit Commission in 2006 on changes to the resource accounting and budgeting system in the NHS. [147118]

Andy Burnham: The 'Audit Commission Review of the NHS Financial Management and Accounting Regime' was published on 26 July 2006.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance was given to the Department of Health on changes to the resource accounting and budgeting system in NHS trusts in 2006-07. [147119]

Andy Burnham: The Department of Health announced the reversal of RAB deductions and the replacement of cash brokerage with a formal system of loans for NHS trusts on 28 March 2007. This was done in agreement with HM Treasury.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what preparations were made by HM Treasury for the introduction of the resource accounting and budgeting system in the NHS. [147120]

Andy Burnham: The Treasury fully introduced resource accounting and budgeting to Government Departments in 2001 with the Resource Accounting Manual (RAM) and other guidance made available to Departments. HM Treasury also provided resource accounting and budgeting training. The Government Financial Reporting Manual has now replaced the Resource Accounting Manual and is available at:

www.financial-reporting.gov.uk

The Department of Health introduced a version of resource accounting and budgeting to the NHS. Guidance on introduction of RAB was issued to the NHS by the Department of Health in 2000 and consolidated guidance was issued in February 2001.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants: Higher Education

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many university places are funded for in-service courses for civil servants; if he will list the courses so provided; and what the cost is of such courses to the public purse. [148200]

Gillian Merron: Information on the number of university places funded for in-service courses for civil servants is not held centrally by the Cabinet Office.

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147593]

Gillian Merron: Payments made to Common Purpose between 2002-03 and 2005-06 can be found in the table as follows.

2002-03	5,523
2003-04	165

These payments were made in connection with Cabinet Office staff attending either training programmes or conferences run by Common Purpose.

Details of the outcome of the expenditure can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Details of any payments made to Common Purpose in 2006-07 will be available when the Department's resource accounts are fully audited and laid before Parliament. This is expected to be before the 2007 summer recess.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Office has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148015]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office has not completed any private finance initiative projects since 1997 and none are currently under way. The National School of Government has one private finance initiative contract in place in relation to its base at Sunningdale Park. Since that came into effect in May 2002 payments totalling £16.924 million have been made to the private sector partner. Future guaranteed payments in respect of the deal until 2017 total £22.650 million. These payments are conditional on the performance of the private sector contractor.

Disadvantaged: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether his officials plan to meet frontline staff and key stakeholders in Blackpool as part of his Department's Families at Risk review. [146521]

Gillian Merron: Officials in the Cabinet Office visited Blackpool in April and May this year as part of the Families At Risk review (FARR). They met with a range of frontline staff and key stakeholders from Blackpool council and the Springboard Project.

Government Departments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the title is of each piece of guidance issued to Government Departments by the Cabinet Office since 27 June 2007. [148865]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office provides guidance and assistance to other Government Departments as necessary in carrying out their work. Most of this is of an informal nature between officials and as such it is not possible to provide the information requested.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what incentives he has considered to encourage staff in his Department to use public transport. [148789]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not offer its staff in the UK direct incentives to use public transport. However, we have in place policies which contribute to staff using more sustainable methods of transport. We provide an advance of salary to help staff obtain season tickets for home to office travel. We offer interest-free loans for the purchase of bicycles, provide racks, showers and changing facilities. We also encourage staff to use a range of flexible working arrangements thereby reducing their travelling to and from work. Where public transport is available, the majority of our staff use it.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Palestinian Territories

7. Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with representatives in the Quartet on the humanitarian situation in the Palestinian territories. [148664]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: On 26 June Quartet representatives briefed officials in Jerusalem on the situation in Gaza. Since then we have had regular contact with UN agencies. Food stocks are low but not yet critical. In the West Bank, the situation is stable. On 19 June DFID contributed £1 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross to address the humanitarian situation.

Aid Delivery

8. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to improve the mechanisms for the delivery of aid. [148665]

Mr. Malik: We are committed to deliver aid in ways that maximise the benefits to poor people.

The best aid supports countries' own strategies. We have an action plan to improve the predictability and effectiveness of UK aid and encourage other donors to do likewise. We have announced an Independent Advisory Committee for Development Impact to ensure we learn and apply lessons for aid delivery.

We track the effectiveness of multilateral organisations to inform our funding decisions and drive reform. Working with others, we are assessing options to strengthen the ways in which donors and partner countries hold each other to account.

Palestinian Aid

9. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his assessment is of the role of private sector initiatives as a means of sustaining international aid to the Palestinians. [148666]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A thriving private sector in the West Bank and Gaza will be an indispensable element of a lasting peace. Private sector initiatives will play a critical role once restrictions are eased on the movement of goods and people. We call on all Palestinians to end violence, and on Israel to relax its controls on movement and access, including by implementing the 2005 Movement and Access agreement.

DFID is designing a new programme of support to assist Palestinian businesses become more competitive and better prepared to take advantage of any improvements in movement and access.

Zimbabwe

10. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. [148667]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A DFID humanitarian adviser visited Zimbabwe in June 2007 to assess the humanitarian situation and to inform the UK's response. Conditions in the country continue to deteriorate. The recent UN Food and Crop survey indicates that more than 3 million people will require food aid before the next harvest. Hyper-inflation is having a devastating impact on the poorest, particularly in urban areas. AIDS and declining public services are fuelling high mortality rates.

Last year, DFID spent £33 million tackling hunger, vulnerability and HIV/AIDS in Zimbabwe. All DFID funding in Zimbabwe goes through UN agencies and NGOs.

Infant Mortality

11. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to assist the development of health care systems to tackle infant mortality in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [148668]

Mr. Malik: 40 per cent. of the 10.1 million childhood deaths take place within the first 28 days of life. Most infant deaths are preventable through access to basic health services, improved water and sanitation and better nutrition. Improving the health of infants goes hand-in-hand with improving the health of mothers. Levels of infant mortality are reducing in countries like Malawi, Tanzania and Bangladesh where DFID long-term funding is assisting Governments to invest in health workers, increasing access to family planning and skilled birth attendants at delivery, and increasing basic child health services such as immunisation, and treatment for pneumonia and diarrhoeal diseases.

Aid to Africa

12. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to improve the mechanisms for the delivery of aid to Africa. [148669]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is strongly committed to improving the delivery of aid in Africa. In 2005 we helped secure international agreement for principles to improve the effectiveness of donors' efforts. We have improved predictability of our aid by making multi-year commitments of budget support, for instance in Ghana, Tanzania and Mozambique and have a strong set of controls to manage the risk of misuse of funds, and we seek to strengthen partner Government financial systems.

Global Population Increases

13. Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the projected increase in global population on levels of severe poverty; and if he will make a statement. [148670]

Mr. Malik: Rapid population growth, particularly in Africa, will make it harder for countries to achieve the millennium development goals and escape poverty. 99 per cent. of population growth will take place in developing countries and will make it more difficult for countries to maintain and increase investments to keep up with demands for health, education and other basic services. Experience shows that by improving health, education and livelihoods, and promoting gender equality and rights with good sexual and reproductive health information services and supplies, gives people the choice to have fewer children. Delivery of these basic services is central to DFID's work.

HIV and AIDS

14. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance he is giving to sub-Saharan countries to tackle HIV/AIDS; and whether his Department coordinates its actions with the Gates Foundation. [148671]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has committed to spend £1.5 billion to combat HIV and AIDS between 2005 and 2008. Africa will receive much of this through bilateral country programmes, which support HIV prevention, treatment and care services. International agencies such as the Global Fund for AIDS TB and Malaria are also supported.

DFID works closely with the Gates Foundation on global policy, advocacy and support to national AIDS responses across Africa including development of HIV prevention technologies such as microbicides.

Congo

Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with non-governmental organisations which operate within the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [148662]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is in regular contact with British, international and Congolese NGOs working in DRC to discuss the programmes we fund as well as the broader development context.

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether there are any plans to review British aid to Ethiopia with a view to enhancing the programme when the treason trials are completed and the civil society activists detained are freed; and if he will make a statement. [148183]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is currently preparing a new country strategy to support implementation of the Ethiopian Government's poverty strategy. The level and focus of DFID support will depend on an assessment of the Ethiopian Government's policies and plans on growth, poverty reduction and governance. We will be reviewing the track record of the Government on poverty reduction, priorities included in the new national plan for growth and poverty reduction, policies in place to improve the quality and effectiveness of government systems and commitments on governance and human rights.

Within this context, we continue to follow closely the trials of opposition politicians and civil society leaders on which further developments are expected.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid he has committed to improve the humanitarian situation in Darfur. [148658]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since October 2003 DFID has committed over £145 million to emergency relief operations in Darfur. The UK has also contributed £73 million to the African Union Mission in Sudan for the protection of civilians.

DFID has led international efforts for an effective humanitarian response in Sudan. We are pressing the Government of Sudan to remove bureaucratic obstacles that inhibit work on the ground. We support the Common Humanitarian Fund, which allows the UN Humanitarian Co-ordinator to direct resources towards those in greatest need.

The Government will continue to work vigorously and at the highest level to secure a lasting peace in Darfur.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Ports

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vessels docked in Northern Ireland ports from (a) EU and (b) non-EU states in each of the last two years. [146941]

Paul Goggins: This is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Prisoners: Literacy

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to improve the rate of literacy amongst prisoners; and what other measures are in place to increase the prospects of a prisoner obtaining employment on release from prison. [148065]

Paul Goggins: The Prison Service provides a range of educational services at each prison with particular focus on increasing proficiency in basic literacy and numeracy skills. On committal to prison individuals are assessed to determine their standard of literacy and numeracy and, where appropriate, the level of entry into the Essential Skills Programme. Literacy skills are further encouraged through the use of library services.

Employability potential is increased through a wide range of vocational training opportunities which include bricklaying, joinery, painting and decorating, IT, plastering and crafts.

Job search terminals are installed in each of the three prisons to provide prisoners with up-to-date job information and recently, at Magilligan Prison, a new pilot programme (GOALS) was launched to help prepare prisoners for release and employment. The Prison Service works closely with other statutory, voluntary and community organisations such as NIACRO and Business in the Community in sourcing potential employment opportunities for inmates on release.

Trade Unions

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what figures the Northern Ireland Certification Officer holds on the (a) number and (b) proportion of trade union members, of each union, who have opted in to a political fund; [146881]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the rules on trade union political funds published by the Northern Ireland Certification Officer. [146882]

Paul Goggins: These are now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Vandalism

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to reduce the incidence of criminal damage in Northern Ireland. [148057]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office Community Safety Unit funds and supports 26 multi-agency Community Safety Partnerships across the whole of Northern Ireland to undertake projects to tackle crime and antisocial behaviour, including criminal damage, in their areas.

Organisations represented on the CSPs, including the Police Service of Northern Ireland, are also engaged in their own right in the delivery of projects and initiatives which will contribute to reduction of crime and antisocial behaviour, including criminal damage. In addition, the National Intelligence Model enables police commanders to identify crime problem areas such as prolific criminal damage and to allocate resources to deal with it.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Common Purpose

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister how much his Office paid to Common Purpose in each of the last five years; for what purpose; and what the outcome of the expenditure was. [147594]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my Office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) today.

Honours

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it his policy not to have a Prime Minister's resignation honours list; and if he will make a statement. [147100]

The Prime Minister: It has not been the practice of Prime Ministers to set out a policy on this.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Older Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what percentage of staff in his Department were over 60 years of age in each of the last three years; [145686]

(2) how many people aged (a) over 55 years of age and (b) over 60 years of age have been recruited by his Department in each of the last three years; and what percentage in each case this is of the number of new recruits in each year. [145700]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to his question 143901 of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 2W.

Departments: Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last three years; and at what total cost. [146980]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to my right hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1765W and to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Carmichael) on 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1048W.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147317]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not hold this information centrally as staff are seconded from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147047]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 2047W.

Departments: Stationery

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on stationery in each of the last five years. [149116]

David Cairns: The information is as follows:

2002-03	[1]25,294
2003-04	16,858
2004-05	11,314

Scottish Executive

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many meetings he and his predecessors have held with Scottish Executive Ministers in each of the last five years. [148606]

Des Browne: I and my predecessors have had numerous meetings with Scottish Executive Ministers in each of the last five years.

WALES

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people in his Department have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) inappropriate use of the internet while at work and (ii) using work telephones to access premium rate telephone numbers in the last 12 months. [149180]

Mr. Hain: None.

Departments: Racial Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many complaints of racial abuse relating to staff for which his Department is responsible have been (a) investigated and (b) upheld in the last 12 months. [149240]

Mr. Hain: None.

EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Minister on monies from Objective 1 funds returned to the Welsh Assembly Government by Welsh local authorities; and what consideration he has given to adding the returned funds to the Convergence Fund. [147944]

Mr. Hain: I have regular meetings with the First Minister on a range of issues including Objective 1.

I know that the Welsh Assembly Government are committed to ensuring the effective delivery of the Objective 1 Programme for West Wales and the Valleys. Where underspends are identified, the Wales European Funding Office recycles these within the programme. However, European Commission rules would not allow any surplus funds from one round of programme to be transferred to another.

Furthermore, I am advised that the Welsh Assembly Government have achieved all annual spend (i.e. N+2) targets for the Objective 1 programme to date, and are on track to achieve the N+2 target for 2007.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the budget for the Access to Work scheme in order to meet the Government's aspiration of getting a further million older people and a million people with disabilities into work. [146848]

Mrs. McGuire: The Access to Work budget has more than quadrupled since 1997, from £15 million to £64 million and now helps nearly three times as many people as it did ten years ago. However, Access to Work is only one of a range of measures which we have to help disabled people return to work, and most people currently claiming an incapacity benefit do not require help from this programme.

The aspiration to reduce the number of people on incapacity benefits by 1 million over the course of a decade remains our overall long-term aim. We will do this by addressing the needs of each individual. We will help those already in work to stay in work if they become ill or disabled. We will also provide support to those already without work to help them find the right work for them and we will create the right environment for them to move into and keep a job. The support available includes our successful Pathways to Work programme, new deal for disabled people and a wide range of programmes provided by Jobcentre Plus, which includes Access to Work.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the level of unmet demand has been in relation to applications for support under the Access to Work scheme during the last five years. [146849]

Mrs. McGuire: Access to Work is a demand-led programme and the budget has increased year-on-year to cope with the extra numbers of customers and has more than quadrupled since 1997, helping three times as many people. During the last five years, all customers who have been eligible for help under the current programme rules have been offered help through Access to Work. Therefore, there has not been any unmet demand.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has undertaken of the (a) value for money and (b) effectiveness of publicity undertaken to promote the Access to Work scheme to employers. [146850]

Mrs. McGuire: The promotion of Access to Work comes under the wider Jobcentre Plus marketing budget. Around £125,000 was spent in 2005-06 on targeted marketing of Jobcentre Plus services for disabled people in disability magazines. The Department does not record specific marketing expenditure on Access to Work separately.

Because Access to Work has not been marketed in isolation from the other disability programmes, it is not possible to evaluate how effective the overall marketing exercise has been for that specific programme.

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether private enforcement of maintenance debt will be permitted under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement; [146142]

(2) what plans he has to allow parents with care to take legal action to enforce child maintenance where (a) maintenance and (b) arrears has not been secured within a set time scale; and if he will make a statement. [146439]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have given serious consideration to whether or not parents with care should be able to privately enforce maintenance debt under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. However we do not believe it is appropriate and I refer you to the Government's response to the Work and Pensions Select Committee report (CM7062 para 28).

Child Support Agency: Compensation

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to pay compensation to parents with care who are owed large arrears through the Child Support Agency which may never be collected; and if he will make a statement. [146172]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 December 2006, Official report, column 1990W.

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the longest repayment schedule for Child Support Agency (CSA) arrears is which has been agreed by the CSA to date; and if he will make a statement. [146136]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the number of non-resident parents owing arrears through the Child Support Agency who are now deceased. [146149]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 11 July 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what recent estimate he has made of the number of non-resident parents owing arrears through the Child Support Agency who are now deceased.

The Agency is not able to provide an estimate of the number of non-resident parents owing arrears of child support maintenance who are deceased. Current legislation states once a non-resident parent dies, the Agency closes the case. The Agency would in such cases, if we were approached by the Executor of the Will accept an offer for child maintenance arrears. The Agency cannot make an approach directly to the Executor of the Will. It would be for the parent with care to pursue the Executor of the Will for maintenance arrears.

Since the launch of the Agency the value of debt suspended due to this reason on the old computer system is £2.645 million, the equivalent value for the new system is not available.

I hope this is helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of compliance rates for Child Support Agency maintenance paid by (a) manual means, (b) direct debit, (c) standing order, (d) maintenance direct, (e) deduction of earnings order, (f) deduction from benefits and (g) other means in the last 12 months; what proportion of total maintenance was paid by each method in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [146629]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 11 July 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what estimate he has made of compliance rates for Child Support Agency maintenance paid by (a) manual means (b) direct debit (c) standing order (d) maintenance direct (e) deduction of earnings order (f) deduction from benefits and (g) other means in the last 12 months; what proportion of total maintenance by paid by each method in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement.

The information requested on compliance rates can be obtained from table 10 of the March 2007 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary Statistics. A copy of this is available in the House of Commons Library, or on the internet via the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar07.asp

Maintenance direct is a private arrangement between parents, and the agency assures compliance unless the arrangement breaks down.

The proportion of total maintenance paid by each method of collection is provided in the attached table.

I hope you find this helpful.

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest per cent. and may not sum to 100 as a result.
2. Proportions calculated based on the value of collections in each category.
3. The number of new Deduction from Earnings Order/Request (DEO/R) decreased in December 2006. This is due to a fix on the new computer system to suspend 8,500 ineffective Deduction from Earning Orders on cases where employers had informed the Agency that the non-resident parent on that case was no longer in their employment. Many of these had compliance restored through DEO/Rs in January 2007.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to reduce the backlog of cases awaiting action by the Child Support Agency. [146721]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 29 June 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty dated 11 July 2007:

In reply to your recent parliamentary question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to reduce the backlog of cases awaiting action by the Child Support Agency.

Processing applications commences on receipt and at any time the number of unprocessed applications the Agency holds is negligible. An application is described as cleared once the maintenance calculation has been made and payment schedule established or if work on it is completed for another reason (e.g. if it is withdrawn).

Given the necessity of locating the non-resident parent, establishing parentage, obtaining income details etc. the Agency will always have a number of uncleared applications. The Agency's Operational Improvement Plan, announced last February, includes a commitment to reduce the number of uncleared applications and reduce the time taken to clear new intake.

Significant progress has been made in this area. In March 2007 the volume of uncleared new scheme applications stood at 156,000. This is a fall of 65,000 since March 2006, equivalent to a 29 per cent. reduction and the percentage cleared within 12 weeks has increased from 53 per cent. to 61 per cent.

The Agency is confident that it will be able to meet the new Secretary of State target to reduce uncleared new scheme applications to 140,000 and further increase clearance rates by the end of this operational year.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Poverty

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of children living in poverty in (a) the UK, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [148052]

Mrs. McGuire: Specific information regarding low income for the UK is available in "Households Below Average Income 1994/95-2005/06 (Revised)". The report uses 60 per cent. of median income as the low income threshold. This threshold is the internationally recognised measure of poverty. The report is available in the Library.

The percentage of children in the UK living below the low income threshold stood at 22 per cent. in 2005-06. In the North East region, during the three-year period up to and including 2005-06, 28 per cent. of children were living below the threshold.

The figure for the North East region represents a fall in the total number of children living below the low income threshold of 18 per cent. in five years, which is broadly the same decrease as has been seen across the UK as a whole in the seven years since 1998-99.

The information requested is not available below regional level.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress towards meeting the 2010 target of halving child poverty. [148296]

Mrs. McGuire: Our child poverty targets are ambitious and rightly so; when this Government came to power, one in three children were living in poverty. Our labour market polices and the tax credit systems have helped to lift 600,000 children out of poverty.

We know there is much more to do and are committed to meeting the targets. Earlier this year DWP published 'Working for Children', our strategy for parental employment, and this year's Budget included measures which will lift an additional 200,000 children out of poverty. DWP is currently working closely with HM Treasury, the Department for Families, Children and Schools, and other Government Departments on producing a child poverty delivery agreement as part of the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which foreign countries civil servants from his Department have visited over the last 12 months in order to study the design and impact of welfare reforms. [148155]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 9 July 2007]: With a view to studying best practice in welfare reform, officials from my Department have visited a number of countries in the 12 months up to 30 June 2007, including Australia, New Zealand, Spain, Denmark and Germany.

Females: Disadvantaged

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to help women from disadvantaged backgrounds enter jobs that will lift them out of poverty. [146396]

Mrs. McGuire: We know that women living in families with no one in work are more likely to be living in poverty. All of our labour market policies are gender-neutral although some by their nature help more women than men. As a result of this Government's policies nearly 2 million more women are now employed than there were in 1997.

However we know there is still more to do. That is why we are piloting New Deal Plus for Lone Parents (NDPLP) in seven areas across the country, including Edmonton. As part of the package of help NDPLP provides, eligible people can claim an In-Work Credit of £40 (£60 in London) a week for up to a year when they move into work.

It is also why we have introduced the Deprived Areas Fund, and are introducing the City Strategy which provides tailored support in some of the most deprived areas of the country to all people in those communities with the greatest barriers to returning to work.

And with a lack of affordable child care being the greatest barrier to getting work for many women we are determined to continue to build on our policies, which, since 1997, have already resulted in a doubling of the number of child care places in England and, with extra help through the tax credit system, have significantly improved affordability. In addition, the London Childcare Affordability Project, which is jointly funded with the Greater London Authority, is testing the effectiveness of providing additional subsidies in the capital, where costs tend to be higher.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the ranking is of local authority housing benefit services by comprehensive performance assessment rating for each year since its introduction. [146050]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Jobcentre Plus: Telephone Services

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the change to the use of the 0845 number for Jobcentre Plus on (a) Jobcentre Plus local offices and (b) their customers. [146686]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 11 July 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to respond to your question asking what assessment he has made of the likely effect that the change to the use of the 0845 number for Jobcentre Plus will have on Jobcentre Plus local offices and their customers.

Centralisation of benefit processing represents part of the modernisation of Jobcentre Plus services. It allows us to build centres of expertise which will enable us to improve standards of customer service, develop greater expertise in meeting customers' needs and move work around the country to meet changes in local demand so reducing delays.

This way of working reduces benefit enquiry footfall in our local Jobcentre Plus offices, which means they can then concentrate their efforts in helping customers back to work.

Many of our customers find it easier to access our services now there is a choice of using the telephone, the internet or face to face. Centralising our benefit claims systems means customers have the option to make benefit enquiries from the privacy of their own homes and their calls will be answered by a pool of benefits experts. Creating a Contact Centre network means that we are better able to cope with peaks in demand.

We recognise that the telephone is not suitable for all customers and for this reason we continue to offer alternative means to contact us and to make benefit claims.

I hope this is helpful.

Redundancies: Jobcentre Plus

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Jobcentre Plus staff have been made redundant since July 2006. [147689]

Mrs. McGuire: There have been no compulsory redundancies in Jobcentre Plus since July 2006.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools were built or refurbished outside the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme in each year since the start of the BSF programme. [148138]

Jim Knight: Wave 1 of Building Schools for the Future (BSF) launched in 2004, and the first school procured through a local education partnership is due to open in September.

The number of schools built or refurbished outside this programme is given in the table. The data come from a survey of local authorities to which over 95 per cent. responded. There may be a margin of error, and the data may include some of the 'quick win' projects in early BSF. A summary of the survey information is in the House of Commons Library.

Child Minding: Training

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on the provision of training for child minders; and what guidance he provides to local authorities on the matter. [147297]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The Department has not received any recent representations on the provision of training for child minders. Guidance to local authorities on the provision of such training is contained within statutory guidance on the Childcare Act 2006, Sure Start Children's Centres Practice Guidance, General Sure Start Grant allocation letters for 2006-08 and Transformation Fund guidance.

Class Sizes: Secondary Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average class size was in (a) comprehensive, (b) grammar and (c) independent schools in (i) the Ribble Valley and (ii) England in each of the last five years. [147848]

Jim Knight [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The available information is shown in the table. Information on class sizes is not collected from independent schools.

Classroom Assistants: Mathematics

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 783W, on classroom assistants: mathematics, (1) what assessment his Department has made of the degree to which the scheme is meeting its objectives; [146954]

(2) when the scheme began; and how much funding his Department gave to the scheme in each financial year since it started. [147166]

Jim Knight: The Student Associate Scheme began in the academic year 2003-04, The following table details the budget for each academic year to date. The scheme has proved to be extremely successful with schools, higher education institutions and undergraduates. Its twin aims are to use the undergraduates as role models for school pupils and to encourage bright undergraduates into initial teacher training (ITT) by giving them a taste of life in front of a classroom. The Training and Development Agency for Schools, who administer the scheme, are about to carry out an assessment process which will try to ascertain how successful the scheme has been in terms of its twin aims. Data should be available in October 2007. However, previous limited research suggests that around 40 per cent. of participating undergraduates go on to ITT. In recognition of its success, the Treasury will announce on 5 July 2007 that the scheme will be extended and placements doubled over a three-year period.

Departments: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many employees of the former Department for Education and Skills moved (a) within his Department and (b) out of his Department on its creation. [148419]

Kevin Brennan: Following the creation of the Department for Children, Schools and Families:

(a) A total of 2,890 former Department for Education and Skills staff will be employed in my Department; and

(b) a total of 560 former Department for Education and Skills staff will move to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

This position may change as we work further through the details of establishing the new Departments.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147324]

Kevin Brennan: The Department was created on 28 June 2007 and does not hold up-to-date information on staff using public transport to commute. We plan to carry out a survey and develop a travel plan for the new Department later this year.

Drama: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what changes are planned to the number of Shakespeare plays that may be offered for study by schools at Key Stage 3 from 2009 onwards; and if he will make a statement. [148136]

Jim Knight: It is the QCA's responsibility to set and maintain standards independently of Government. They have decided to make a choice of two Shakespeare plays, rather than three, available for the KS3 English test from 2009. They have based their decision on the historically low take-up by schools (less than 5 per cent.) of the third option. There will be no reduction in the standard or quality of the assessment of Shakespeare.

Education: Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for which public service agreement targets his Department is now responsible which were not previously the responsibility of the former Department for Education and Skills. [147745]

Kevin Brennan: In addition to 12 PSA targets from Spending Review 2004 which my Department is directly responsible for, the Department for Children, Schools and Families will lead work across Government to improve outcomes for children—exact working arrangements and responsibilities will be decided in due course.

Howard Goodall: Correspondence

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance has been given to the singing ambassador, Mr. Howard Goodall, on responding to correspondence from hon. Members. [148282]

Jim Knight: There has been huge interest in the national singing campaign and Howard Goodall, the singing ambassador, has received hundreds of messages from schools, organisations and individuals asking how they can become involved or providing details of the work they already do. Mr. Goodall is working as an unpaid and independent champion for singing and, as such, has received no guidance from Government on responding to correspondence.

Pre-school Education

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which (a) Steiner, (b) Waldorf and (c) Montessori pre-school institutions are registered in each local authority area; whether each institution has open enrolment; and whether each makes provision for those who rely entirely upon nursery grants to fund a place. [148338]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally. Local authorities have a statutory duty to ensure sufficient free nursery education places for three and four-year-olds in their area. In discharging this duty, local authorities must have regard to the code of practice which states that they must ensure sufficient places are available for parents who only want to access the free entitlement.

Primary Education: Literacy

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average reading age was of pupils aged (a) five, (b) six, (c) seven, (d) eight, (e) nine, (f) 10 and (g) 11 in primary schools in each of the last five years. [147847]

Jim Knight [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The requested information is not available. The Department does not collect data on the reading ages of individual pupils.

The Department does however; collect data on pupils' achievements in reading at the end of key stage 1 teacher assessments and at the end of the key stage 2 national curriculum tests. The target level at key stage 1 is level 2 in reading. At key stage 2 the target level in English is level 4. Key stage 2 pupils are assessed in both reading and writing to arrive at their overall level in the English test. In 2006, 84 per cent. of pupils achieved level 2 or above in reading and 83 per cent. of pupils achieved level 4 or above.

The Government commissioned the independent review of the teaching of early reading, led by Jim Rose, to find ways to raise standards in reading even further. The review recommended that all children should follow a programme of systematic phonics teaching, This recommendation has been implemented in the revised primary framework for teaching literacy, which was published last year.

Primary and Secondary Education: Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many primary school pupils were excluded in (a) the Ribble Valley and (b) England in the last five years; [147845]

(2) how many secondary school pupils were excluded from secondary schools in (a) the Ribble Valley and (b) England in the last five years. [147849]

Jim Knight [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Pupils: Basic Skills

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to improve the standard of basic skills of school leavers. [148243]

Jim Knight: The percentage of 16-year-olds achieving five A*-C GCSE grades or equivalent has risen from 45.1 per cent. in 1997 to 58.1 per cent. In 2006.

Teaching literacy and maths at primary school is the essential foundation for every child's learning. Last year we revised the primary framework for literacy and mathematics for the first time since the national literacy and numeracy strategies were introduced. The revised document embeds best practice in systematic phonics teaching, as recommended by the Rose review, and raises expectations for pupils' progress. For example they are expected to learn their times tables a year earlier.

We have provided schools with significant funding for personalised learning: reaching £900 million this year. This can be used to support small group and one-to-one tuition for those who have fallen behind national expectations in English and maths. The Budget announced further funding sufficient to provide an average of 10 hours of one-to-one tuition in schools for over 300,000 under-attaining pupils a year in both English and mathematics by 2010-11. We have provided schools with guidance and support on how to help pupils who are at risk of falling behind in English and maths through programmes such as Study Plus, which targets pupils who are struggling with English and maths at Key Stage 4 (ages 14 to 16). Changes to the curriculum at KS3 will also, over time, support higher standards of literacy and numeracy.

We know that demonstrating basic competence and the ability to apply practically what they learn in English, maths and ICT is vital to young people's future employability. Competence in functional skills in these areas will be tested as an important part of the new diplomas for 14 to 19-year-olds which are being piloted from September 2008 and will be available nationally from 2013. For students embarking on GCSEs in English, maths and ICT from September 2010, it will also be necessary to demonstrate the appropriate level of functional skills in order to obtain a pass at grades A* to G*. Pilots of functional skills will be taking place in a range of schools and colleges across England from this September, supported by a programme of professional development for teachers to support the necessary changes in teaching and learning.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding per head was provided to school children up to 18 years of age in (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency and (b) Telford constituency in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2006. [147676]

Jim Knight: The requested information is allocated to local authorities and not at constituency level. The Shrewsbury constituency is part of Shropshire LA, and the Telford constituency is part of Telford and Wrekin LA. The revenue funding figures per pupil aged three to 19 for Shropshire LA and Telford and Wrekin LA for years 2003-04 to 2005-06 are as follows:

	Shropshire	Telford and Wrekin
2003-04	3,710	3,790
2004-05	3,850	3,910
2005-06	4,040	4,120

Notes:
1. Price base: real terms at 2005-06 prices, based on GDP deflators as at 27 September 2006.
2. Figures reflect relevant sub-blocks of Education Formula Spending (EFS) settlements and include the pensions transfer to EFS and the Learning and Skills Council.
3. Total funding also includes all revenue grants in DCSF Department Expenditure Limits relevant to pupils aged three to 19 and exclude Education Maintenance Allowances (EMAs) and grants not allocated at LEA level.
4. The pupil numbers used to convert £ million figures to £ per pupil are those underlying the EFS settlement calculations.
5. Rounding: figures are rounded to the nearest £10.
6. Status: some of the grant allocations have not been finalised. If these do change, the effect on the funding is expected to be minimal.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what amount in (a) percentage and (b) real terms the Government have spent on (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools from its education budget in the last five years. [147846]

Jim Knight [holding answer 11 July 2007]: The requested figures are in the following table. These are extracted from table 12.3 of the 2007 Department for Education and Skills departmental report, a link to which follows:

Pupils: Qualifications

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 were entered for a qualification provided by the awarding body CACHE in the last year for which figures are available; [147306]

(2) how many pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 were entered for a CACHE Level 2 Certificate in Child Care and Education in the last year for which figures are available. [147309]

Jim Knight: This information is not available.

Pupils: Transport

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether parents will need to demonstrate that (a) they are registered disabled and (b) that they have been assessed for a certain level of community care services for home to school transport to be provided to their children, with reference to sections 87 and 88 of his Department's guidance on home to school travel and transport; [148439]

(2) whether home to school transport will be provided to children if their parent's disability varies in severity from day to day, with reference to sections 87 and 88 of his Department's guidance on home to school travel and transport; [148440]

(3) whether home to school transport will be provided to children in circumstances where they have parents with disabilities who are in receipt of support from community care services, with reference to sections 87 and 88 of his Department's guidance on home to school travel and transport. [148441]

Jim Knight [holding answer 9 July 2007]: It is for the local authorities to ensure that their policies and practice take account of the provisions of disability discrimination legislation, when determining entitlement to free home to school transport.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many surplus places there were in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in each local education authority on 1 January 2007, broken down by school type; and how many schools of each type there were in each authority. [147510]

Jim Knight: The number of surplus places in primary and secondary schools in each local authority at January 2006 is contained in the following tables which have been placed in the House Libraries.

The number of surplus places in primary and secondary schools at January 2007, broken down by school type, is currently being collected from local authorities and will be published in January 2008; this is the first year that the Department has collected surplus places data by school type. Surplus places data are published on Teachernet at:

http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/management/fallingschoolrolls/context/stats/

Schools: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to tackle the incidence of school populations dominated by one ethnic type in English schools; and if he will make a statement. [146736]

Jim Knight: Where communities are ethnically diverse their schools should aspire to reflect that diversity. However, it is unlawful for schools to take account of a child's ethnic background when allocating places. What is important is that all parents are able to exercise their fundamental right to decide what school they would like their child to attend confident that they will not be discriminated against because of their background. The new school admissions code, which came into force on 28 February 2007, has established a framework to ensure that every child has an equal opportunity to attend a good school. In addition, the governing bodies of maintained schools in England have a duty under section 38 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 to promote community cohesion and Ofsted will report on the discharge of this duty.

Schools: Finance

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to his predecessor's answer of 27 June 2007, Official Report, column 331, which pupils in North Oxfordshire have received £1,000 extra funding; and how many pupils have received such funding. [147695]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families allocates education funding to local authorities and not at constituency level, The requested information is for Oxfordshire local authority. Between 1997-98 and 2005-06 the revenue funding from Government for nursery, primary and secondary school pupils in Oxfordshire local authority rose by £1,030 (or 34 per cent.) in real terms. In addition, following the introduction of the Dedicated School Grant in 2006-07, the per pupil revenue funding in Oxfordshire rose by 6.8 per cent. in 2006-07 and 6.4 per cent. in 2007-08.

Schools: Literacy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what progress has been made on the review of the national literacy strategy; and if he will make a statement; [148244]

(2) what measures his Department is taking to improve the standard of literacy in schools. [148190]

Jim Knight: We commissioned the Independent Review of the Teaching of Early Reading—carried out by Jim Rose—to inform our efforts to improve standards of literacy in primary schools.

We have revised the primary framework for literacy and mathematics for the first time since the national literacy strategy was introduced in 1998, putting phonics at the heart of the teaching of reading. The renewed framework and associated training are the key vehicle for implementing Jim Rose's recommendations.

To provide further support to teachers we have produced a full, high quality, phonics teaching programme—'Letters and Sounds'—which was published on 30 April.

We are also providing support for children who struggle to learn to read through the Every Child a Reader programme. This three-year, £10 million pilot, funded in partnership with the KPMG Foundation and other charitable and corporate funders, is helping 5,000 six-year-olds with significant literacy difficulties to learn to read. ECAR will be rolled out nationally from 2008-09, benefiting over 30,000 children a year by 2010-11.

Our reforms to the secondary curriculum are designed to support the continued development of functional skills in English, maths and ICT. The curriculum changes proposed by QCA would also create flexibility for teachers to tailor the curriculum to provide extra support for children who are at risk of falling behind in English or maths.

In addition to developing literacy skills, we are also taking steps to encourage a broader appreciation of English; for example through our Boys into Books programme, which has made a selection of books likely to appeal to boys available to all secondary schools. We have also worked with the Globe Theatre to develop a podcast to help children to study Much Ado About Nothing.

Schools: Oxfordshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to his predecessor's answer of 27 June 2007, Official Report, column 331, (1) what the locations are of the six new schools in North Oxfordshire; [147696]

(2) what the names are of the 16 schools refurbished in North Oxfordshire; [147697]

(3) which of the 549 classrooms refurbished are in North Oxfordshire. [147698]

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the implementation of his Department's proposals for reform of the 14-to-19 curriculum. [148191]

Jim Knight: The Department has made substantial progress in delivering the objectives published in December 2005 in the 14-19 Implementation Plan. We have met all major milestones to date as set out in chapter 5 of the implementation plan and are working closely with our key partners and are on track with the activities for 2007 and beyond.

14-19 reform continues to be a key priority of the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

I refer the hon. Member to the replies given to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb) earlier this year, 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 831W, and 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1017W.

Specialised Diplomas

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to change the functional skills requirement of the level 2 specialised diploma. [148134]

Jim Knight: There are no plans to change the functional skills requirement of the level 2 diploma.

Specialised Diplomas: Take-Up

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the impact of the functional skills requirement on the potential uptake of the specialised diploma; and if he will make a statement. [148135]

Jim Knight: We do not expect any impact on potential diploma take up because of the functional skills requirement. Functional skills will be embedded in all learning routes, such as apprenticeships and GCSEs, as well as diplomas. This means that young people will need to demonstrate competence in functional skills wherever they work or study.

Teachers: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) teaching assistants were employed in Warrington (i) in 1997 and (ii) at the last date for which figures are available, broken down into primary and secondary schools. [146260]

Jim Knight [holding answer 28 June 2007]: Warrington local authority was created as a separate local authority with responsibilities for education on 1 April 1998. Prior to this date figures for Warrington were included with those for the former Cheshire local authority area and are not available separately.

The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of regular teachers and teaching assistants employed in local authority maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools in Warrington local authority area in January 1999 and 2006.

Full-time equivalent regular teachers and teaching assistants in local authority maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools in Warrington local authority: January 1999 and 2006

	Regular teachers		Teaching assistants

Youth Services

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the minutes of the meeting of the Third Sector Forum for Children and Young People on 23 April to be published; and what the reason is for the time taken to publish them. [149206]

Kevin Brennan: The minutes from the latest meeting of the DfES Third Sector Forum for Children and Young People's Services will be made public shortly. They will be found on the Every Child Matters web site through the Strategy and Governance section on the Third Sector Forum page. The meeting was postponed from 23 April to 8 May and administrative resources have been focused on the publication on 25 June of the DfES Third Sector Strategy and Action Plan.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people in his Department have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) inappropriate use of the internet while at work and (ii) using work telephones to access premium rate telephone numbers in the last 12 months. [149195]

Margaret Hodge: No employees have been disciplined or dismissed in the last 12 months for inappropriate use of the internet or for using work telephones to access premium rate telephone numbers.

As part of the Department's internet policy, we monitor all internet usage and block inappropriate sites. We also block all premium rate phone numbers from our system.

Departments: Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on overnight accommodation by civil servants within his Department's areas of responsibilities in the last 12 months. [149042]

Margaret Hodge: Expenditure on overnight accommodation by the Department's civil servants is not recorded separately in the Department's accounting system. It could be obtained by retrieving and manually analysing a large number of travel and incidental expense claims only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Opinion Leader Research

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value is of (a) all payments by his Department to Opinion Leader Research since 1997 and (b) the payment to Opinion Leader Research for "It's the taking part that counts." [148852]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There have been no payments made by my Department to Opinion Leader Research since 1997. "It's the taking part that counts" was a report commissioned by Camelot; therefore no payments were made to Opinion Leader Research by my Department.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in his Department have taken (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last 12 months. [147059]

Margaret Hodge: In the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, staff have taken sick leave as follows during the period from 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007.

	Number of staff	Percentage of total staff
Staff who have taken five or more periods of sick leave of less than five days	17	3.24
Staff who have taken four periods of sick leave of less than five days	10	1.90
Staff who have taken three periods of sick leave of less than five days	30	5.72
Staff who have taken two periods of sick leave of less than five days	49	9.35

Gambling: Legislation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate his Department has made of the time period necessary for the gambling industry to implement fully the regulations to be made under section 240 of the Gambling Act 2005. [148542]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The overwhelming majority of gaming machines currently operating under Part III of the Gaming Act 1968 will not require significant alteration when the Gambling Act comes fully in to force on 1 September. Where adjustments are necessary, the Department has invited the gambling industry to provide estimates of the time period necessary to implement the regulations under section 240 of the Act. The Department has received several responses, which will be carefully considered as the regulations are finalised in the coming weeks.

Licensing Laws: Music

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that the regulations contained within the Licensing Act 2003 lead to a growth in live music. [148541]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DCMS Simplification Plan sets out where we think there may be scope to adjust the licensing regulations to remove any unnecessary burdens on those putting on licensable activities, including live music. In addition, the Live Music Forum published its report on 4 July 2007, and made a number of recommendations relating to the Licensing Act 2003, which we will consider carefully before responding formally.

However, I am pleased that the evidence so far, including the Forum's report, does not suggest the new licensing regulations have had a widespread negative impact on live music, and shows a number of benefits have been delivered. Our aim is to ensure the new licensing legislation will help live music continue to thrive.

The DCMS Simplification Plan and Live Music Forum report are available in the Libraries of the House, and on the DCMS website:

www.culture.gov.uk

Museums and Galleries: Public Libraries

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the impact on the standards and accessibility of museums and libraries of changes to local government structure. [146461]

Margaret Hodge: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State looks forward to discussions on future unitary structures at the appropriate Ministerial Committee of the Cabinet.

Obesity: Children

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress his Department has made towards its public service agreement target to halt the year-on-year rise in obesity among children under 11 by 2010. [148826]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Given the complexity of this public health challenge, DCMS shares this target with the Department of Health and with the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

The three Departments are working together, through joint cross-departmental programme management arrangements, on six fronts: to change population attitudes towards eating and activity; helping children to be active and eat healthily; supporting targeted local-level obesity interventions in children; raising awareness of the importance of healthy weight to children and parents; working with local partners on delivery; and developing the knowledge base.

My Department's contribution to this programme of work is chiefly through making children and families more physically active via children's play, school sport and community sport; improving children's diet via our work with Ofcom on restricting promotion and advertising to children of foods high in fat, salt and sugar; and our work with the hospitality sector to promote healthier food choices.

Through the Big Lottery Fund £155 million Play initiative local authorities are able to develop free open access play provision in areas of greatest need in England.

And on broadcast food promotion we have worked with Ofcom to produce new rules that ban the advertising of high fat, salt and sugar foods in and around all children's programming; on dedicated children's channels; and in programmes of particular appeal to children under the age of 16. Ofcom have also introduced new rules on the content of advertisements targeted at primary school children. These rules ban the use of celebrities and characters licensed from third-parties (such as cartoons), promotional claims (such as free gifts) and health or nutrition claims. Ofcom announced the new rules in February 2007.

The National School Sport Strategy, jointly implemented by DCMS and DCSF, is a key component of a "whole school" programme of addressing obesity. The 2005-06 school sport survey found that overall, 80 per cent. of pupils participate in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport a week. This exceeded the target of 75 per cent. for 2006 and demonstrates a considerable increase from the estimated 25 per cent. in 2002. This target will rise to 85 per cent. by 2008. By 2010 the ambition is to offer all children at least four hours of sport a week.

We are also working with school sports partnerships to increase participation in physical activity by overweight and obese children.

Tourism

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) overseas and (b) domestic tourists visited England in each year since 1997. [148829]

Margaret Hodge: The following tables show the number of visits to England by (a) overseas residents and (b) UK residents where this included an overnight stay.

UK Tourism Survey (National Tourist Boards)[1]

In addition, a substantial number of day visits are made to, or within, England. The last Leisure Visits Survey in 2005 recorded a total of 870 million tourism day visits to destinations in England by English residents. It is not possible to provide a time series for this information as the surveys are run intermittently.

[1] The methodology for the UKTS changed in 2005 meaning that comparisons with previous years should be treated with caution. This change occurred due to concerns with the quality of 2004 data, which are thought to be an under-representation of the true position. There was also a change in survey methodology in 2000, though figures for 1997-99 have been reworked to allow comparisons with the later data.

Tourism: Marketing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the total expenditure from the public purse was on promoting England as a tourist destination (a) domestically and (b) internationally in each year since 1997. [148540]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain has been responsible for the marketing of England as a tourist destination since April 2003, and has been advised in this by the England Marketing Advisory Board. Until the beginning of 2005-06, VisitBritain marketed England only within Britain. Under the new Strategy agreed by the Department and the devolved Administrations of Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland in March 2005, VisitBritain now additionally markets England as a tourist destination in France, Germany, the Netherlands, and the Republic of Ireland.

VisitBritain's spending on marketing England since 2003

	Marketing within Britain	£ million International marketing
2003-04	12.251	0
2004-05	13.163	0
2005-06	13.062	1.228
2006-07	12.458	1.295

Before 2003, England was marketed internationally by the British Tourist Authority as part of its remit to promote and market the whole of Britain. The expenditure incurred cannot be broken down by the constituent nations of Britain.

These figures do not include public spending by the Regional Development Agencies, the Regional Tourist Boards, and other bodies, seeking to promote particular areas of England in domestic and international markets.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of VisitBritain's overseas marketing budget was used to promote tourism to (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland in each year since 2003. [148827]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain does not disaggregate its spending on marketing Britain by country or territory. Its marketing campaigns are based around market sectors or themes, such as heritage or sport, and usually involve the promotion of many locations throughout Britain.

However, VisitBritain has marketed England in Germany, France, the Netherlands, and the Republic of Ireland since 2005, with the agreement of the devolved Administrations of Scotland and Wales. Spending for that purpose, from VisitBritain's budget was as follows:

2005-06: £1.2 million;

2006-07: £1.3 million.

VisitBritain's marketing budget does not cover Northern Ireland, for which Tourism Ireland is responsible.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Amphetamines: Prosecutions

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted for manufacturing methylamphetamine in the past five years; and how many such cases involved the use of over-the-counter medicines for this purpose. [148034]

Mr. Coaker: Prior to 18 January 2007, methylamphetamine production formed part of the offence "Production or being concerned in the production of a controlled drug: Amphetamine" under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. It was not possible to separately identify the production of methylamphetamine or its constituent parts from other types of amphetamine within this offence, nor was it possible to identify which cases involved the use of over-the-counter medicines for this purpose.

Following methylamphetamine's reclassification from a class B drug to a class A drug, "Production of or being concerned in the production of a controlled drug: Methamphetamine (Crystal Meth)" became a new offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (Amendment) Order 2006, section 4(2).

Information on the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates court and found guilty at all courts under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 sec. 4(2) [Class 'B' Drug] for the offence of "Production or being concerned in the production of a controlled drug: Amphetamine, in England and Wales for the years 2001 to 2005" can be found in the following table. Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates court and found guilty at all courts under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 sec. 4(2) [Class 'B' Drug], for the offence of production or being concerned in the production of a controlled drug: Amphetamine, in England and Wales for the years 2001-05[1, 2, 3]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Prior to 18 January 2007 the production of Methamphetamine was not a separate offence. The following is the new Act and offence description for Methylamphetamine offences:
The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Production of or being concerned in the production of [Class 'A' Drug] Methylamphetamine (Crystal Meths) s.4(2) Production of or being concerned in the production of a controlled drug Methylamphetamine (Crystal Meth).

Asylum

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at which point of the asylum process her Department considers a decision on an asylum claim to be final. [148531]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 9 July 2007]: A decision on an asylum claim is final when it has been served. All asylum decisions can be reviewed by the courts on appeal or judicial review.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department considers an individual who has made a fresh asylum claim to be an asylum seeker with an active case. [148532]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Where an individual's original asylum claim has been refused, and they provide the Secretary of State with further submissions on that claim, there are four possible outcomes. The Border and Immigration Agency may:

grant asylum;

recognise there is a fresh claim, against which refusal there is a right of appeal; recognise there is a fresh claim, but certify that claim, the result of which is no right of appeal; or refuse to accept the submissions as a fresh claim and reject as further representations, against which there is no right of appeal.

Nobody will be removed before their further submissions have been categorised into one of the above outcomes. To this extent, their case is still 'active'. A failed asylum seeker does not, however, regain asylum seeker 'status' (e.g. for the purposes of support) just because they have put in further submissions. They remain a failed asylum seeker until such time as the Border and Immigration Agency, or the courts, find their further submissions to be significant.

Asylum: Assisted Voluntary Return Schemes

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her projection is of the numbers who will take assisted voluntary return packages to their home country in (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009. [148358]

Mr. Byrne: Projected numbers of those who will take assisted voluntary return packages to their home county in (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009 are not available.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people returned to their home country under the assisted voluntary return system in (a) 2006, (b) 2005 and (c) 2004. [148359]

Mr. Byrne: Information on removals is published annually. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

Community Support Officers

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers in (a) Southend, (b) Essex and (c) England have been transferred from the original neighbourhood team to which they were recruited (i) to another neighbourhood team within their respective area and (ii) to a team outside their respective area. [147183]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not centrally collected. The deployment of police community support officers is an operational matter for the Chief Constable.

Community Support Officers: Police

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals who were recruited as police community support officers in (a) Southend, (b) Essex and (c) England have subsequently taken up positions as police officers, broken down by the period in which they were originally recruited. [147185]

Mr. McNulty: The requested information is not collected centrally as part of the police personnel statistics series.

Community Support Officers: Recruitment

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers were recruited in (a) Southend, (b) Essex and (c) England during the period (i) January to June 2006, (ii) July to December 2006 and (iii) January to June 2007; and how many officers recruited during each period are still in post. [147184]

Mr. McNulty: The requested data on police community support officer recruits are not available. Data for 2006-07 will be made available after the publication of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Police Service Strength, England and Wales, 31 March 2007", due for release on 26 July 2007.

Information relating to the number of police community support officer recruits still in post is not collected centrally as part of the police personnel statistics series.

Departments: Council of Europe Co-operation Group to Combat Drug Abuse

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings Ministers from her Department have had with the Pompidou Group of the Council of Europe in the last 12 months; and what matters were discussed. [148530]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Home Office Ministers have had no meetings with the Pompidou Group of the Council of Europe in the last 12 months. There was a Ministerial meeting of the Group on 27-28 November 2006 which I was unable to attend, but at which the United Kingdom was represented by our Ambassador to the Council of Europe and a Home Office official. The meeting endorsed a programme of work for experts in the field for the period 2007-10 in furtherance of the Group's core mission of contributing to the development of multidisciplinary, innovative, effective and evidence-based drug policies in Council of Europe member states, in particular in the areas of prevention, treatment, criminal justice, research, ethics and co-operation between operational staff at airports.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which her Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148022]

Mr. Byrne: The cost of completed projects is £129.80 million. The cost of projects under way is projected to be £2,058.24 million including costs associated with the Home Office's headquarters building where the construction phase of the project was completed in 2005.

These figures are the sum of the unitary charge payments made over the course of the projects, where any future payments are projections conditional on the performance of the private sector contractor involved.

The payments cover more than just the repayment of the capital value of the projects and include costs of service provision, capital repayments and inflation.

Further details of the individual PFI projects can be found at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what incentives she has considered to encourage staff in her Department to use public transport. [148801]

Mr. Byrne: It is Home Office policy to avoid staff travel wherever possible by the use of systems such as videoconferencing or teleconferencing or by encouraging home working. However where travel is necessary such as for commuting staff are encouraged to take up interest-free loans for season tickets. The use of public transport for duty travel is encouraged by restricting on site car parking, and making use of travel websites for information services and to simplify ticketing arrangements. Staff are also informed about local transport initiatives and promotions. Where the location or nature of the work makes the use of public transport impractical for staff, car sharing is encouraged.

Driving Under Influence: Screening

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether roadside drug-screening devices will be available for use by police forces within the next three years. [148554]

Mr. Coaker: We hope to publish the Guide to Type Approval of Drug Testing Devices by September 2007. The availability of devices will then depend largely on how quickly manufacturers prepare devices in accordance with the specification given and submit them for approval, how they perform in the necessary operational and laboratory tests and how soon after approval the manufacturers make them commercially available.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her estimate is of the timescale for type-approval of roadside drug-screening devices. [148564]

Mr. Coaker: Following detailed and extensive work on the preparation of a suitable device specification, we hope to publish a Guide to the Type Approval of Drug Screening Devices by September 2007. It will then be for manufacturers to prepare devices in accordance with that specification and submit them for type approval. Progress will then depend on how well the devices perform in the necessary operational and laboratory tests and how quickly and appropriately manufacturers respond to any problems or queries that arise, if there are no difficulties, a typical timescale for the type approval process might be around six months.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made in type-approving roadside drug-screening devices. [148574]

Mr. Coaker: The Forensic Science Service and Home Office Scientific Development Branch, with outside experts, have been developing a specification for a device. Following extensive consultation, we hope to publish a Guide to the Type Approval of Drug Screening devices by September 2007. It will then be for manufacturers to prepare devices in accordance with the specification and submit them to the type approval process.

Extradition

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times an European arrest warrant has been used to extradite foreign nationals back to the United Kingdom for prosecution. [147140]

Meg Hillier: Since 1 January 2004 when the European arrest warrant procedure entered into force in the United Kingdom, ninety four foreign nationals have been arrested as a result of European arrest warrants (part 3 warrants) issued by the UK. 74 of these have been surrendered to the UK. These figures comprise both those sought for prosecution and those who have already been convicted.

Identity Cards

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on progress with the national identity card scheme. [148012]

Meg Hillier: The Government remain committed to the introduction of the national identity scheme.

ID cards are essential in combating identity fraud and illegal immigration and in disrupting organised crime and the continued threat of terrorism.

Illegal Immigrants

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) illegal immigrants and (b) failed asylum seekers were granted leave to remain in the UK as a result of amnesties in each of the last 10 years. [147242]

Mr. Byrne: There have been no amnesties in the last 10 years for people who have no legal basis for stay in the United Kingdom.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many overstayers there have been in the UK since 1997, broken down by estimated period of overstay. [147688]

Mr. Byrne: As the former Home Secretary set out in his evidence to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 23 May 2006, following the dismantling of embarkation controls beginning in 1994, no government has been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally. The Home Secretary has set a clear goal of reintroducing systems to count everyone in and out of Britain. The majority of passengers will be checked in and out of the United Kingdom by 2009.

Immigration: Doctors

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many qualified medical doctors have been granted permission to remain in the United Kingdom under the Fresh Talent scheme following qualification under an HND, degree level or Masters or Doctoral course in England and Wales. [147940]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost.

Passports: Photographs

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) for what reasons photographs accompanying passport applications may be rejected; and what proportion have been rejected for each reason in the last 12 months; [148342]

(2) what proportion of photographs were rejected for passport applications in the last 12 months, broken down by (a) age, (b) ethnic background and (c) disability status of applicant. [148343]

Meg Hillier: The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) collate photo rejections under 47 different headings. The possible reasons for rejection reflect the standards set out in the guidance in the passport application pack. These standards are designed to ensure that when the photograph is scanned onto the passport system a good quality facial biometric is captured.

The most common reasons for rejections are not looking straight at the camera (7.5 per cent. of all rejections), failing to adopt a neutral expression (around 12.5 per cent.), and where the eyes are obscured (17.5 per cent.).

Because of the way in which this data is stored it is not possible to provide a monthly breakdown of all reasons for rejection without incurring disproportionate cost.

Reject rates have settled at around 4-5 per cent. for all applications since the revisions to the standard announced at the end of 2005. The IPS do not keep separate statistics by ethnicity or disability, but are able to waive requirements where a customer is unable to meet them due to disability. There have not been any significant complaints about the current standards impacting unfavourably on disabled or ethnic minority customers, and a wide consultation process was carried out during the formulation of the standards.

Separate statistics are kept for children aged five and under. Photographs for children of this age only need to be a good likeness, with a clear image of the child.

Rejection rates for these applications average around 2.5 to 3 per cent. Around 30 per cent. of these are rejected due to the photograph being too light, and the IPS continues to work with the photographic industry to ensure they are able to provide the public with acceptable photographs.

Safety Belts: Children

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many enforcement campaigns have been carried out on child car seats following the introduction of new child car seat legislation since 18 September 2006; and what level of compliance has been achieved. [148565]

Mr. Coaker: Enforcement of the new legislation is an operational matter for the police. The information requested is not collected centrally.

Compliance with the new legislation has been encouraged by an extensive Department for Transport advertising campaign costing around £600,000. This offered advice to parents on how the new measures affect them and also on what is needed to comply with the law. The campaign included coverage on national television and radio, in parenting magazines and on-line, as well as the distribution of 3.5 million items of literature.

It is too early to provide meaningful information on what level of compliance has been achieved following the introduction of the new legislation on 18 September 2006. A survey in October 2006, available at http://www.thinkroadsafety.gov.uk/campaigns/childseats/rates.htm did however compare the observed wearing rates for child restraints with the previous three surveys. This does show an increase since the April survey.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which 10 (a) companies and (b) trades have provided the largest number of apprenticeships. [148211]

Mr. Lammy: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) does not hold data on all employers that recruit apprentices as contracts may be with a training provider which in turn has arrangements with employers. However information is available on the 10 employers who hold the largest contracts directly with the LSC for their apprenticeship funded provision—this is shown in table 1.

Table 2 shows the 10 sectors that offer the largest number of apprenticeships and the numbers of young people in learning in those sectors in June 2007.

328	Vehicle Maintenance and Repair	3,110	8,005	11,115
117	Plumbing	4,746	5,076	9,822

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprenticeships were not completed in the last year for which figures were available; what the principal categories of reasons for non-completion were; what percentage of cases fell within each category; and what total financial cost was associated with non-completion of apprenticeships. [148226]

Mr. Lammy: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) uses individual learner level data to calculate overall apprenticeship framework achievement rates. Over the past few years the framework achievement rates have increased dramatically from 24 per cent. in 2001-02 to 59 per cent. so far in 2006-07. Framework completion relates to achievement of elements—NVQ, technical certificate, key skills and employer rights and responsibilities. Apprentices who do not achieve all elements are not counted as full achievements but may well have completed one or more of the components including a vocational qualification. The LSC does not collect data on all the reasons for non-completion, or circumstances of partial completion, of full apprenticeship frameworks.

Estimates of the cost of non-completion, or partial completion, of apprenticeship frameworks could only be obtained by analysis of individual learner data and at disproportionate cost.

Apprentices: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what the variable unit cost is of providing an (a) level one and (b) level two apprenticeship course; [148216]

(2) what the average unit cost of providing apprenticeship training is in each region. [148210]

Mr. Lammy: There are currently no Level 1 apprenticeships, only Level 2 and 3. The funding of apprenticeships is based on national rates for each sector framework The published rates for the apprenticeship programme are detailed in the Requirements for Funding for Work Based Learning 2006-07. The link to the document is as follows, http://readingroom.lsc.gov.uk/LSC/2006/funding/streams/nat-requirementsforfundingwblforyoungpeople200607-re-jul2006.pdf

A hard copy will be placed in the Library.

Apprenticeship rates vary on a sector framework basis and do not vary by region of the LSC. Providers may be entitled to a disadvantage uplift based on the Index of Multiple Deprivation 2000 and calculated on their historic recruitment patterns. The published national rates for apprenticeships are contained within the 'Requirements for Funding for Work Based Learning 2006-07' document. The link to the publication is as provided previously.

Biotechnology: Research

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which research projects his Department has conducted on agricultural biotechnology in each of the last 10 years; and what the cost was in each case. [146079]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 28 June 2007]: Since its commencement in 2004, the DTI's Technology Programme has offered support for research in agricultural biotechnology for one project, which is called "Contained Agronomy for the Production of Plant Based Pharmaceuticals". The project is forecasting project costs of £787,000 and has been offered support of £393,000.

Two research projects that are considered to fall into the definition of agricultural biotechnology were directly funded by the DTI as opposed to the Research Councils, in the past 10 years.

A project under the LINK scheme ran between 1999 and 2004 on "Phytoremediation: an integrated approach to the decontamination of polluted soils". The grant awarded by the Department was £133,000.

In 2004 the DTI moved support for research projects into the Technology Programme. Since its commencement in 2004 the Programme has offered support for one project in this area, "Contained Agronomy for the Production of Plant Based Pharmaceuticals". The grant awarded by the Department was £394,000 for a three-year project that started in 2005.

Departmental Reorganisation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the total costs associated with the division of (a) staff, (b) office space, (c) office equipment and (d) furnishings are expected to be as a consequence of the division of the Department for Education and Skills. [148227]

Mr. Denham: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make a statement on the role of his Department in providing training for end-of-service military personnel. [148201]

Mr. Lammy: Each year some 18,000 people will leave the armed forces to work in UK civilian companies.

This Department's Skills strategy particularly aims to improve level 2 (equivalent to 5 GCSEs at A*-C) and literacy, language and numeracy skills for all adults. DIUS is working to increase the number of adults succeeding in national qualifications, while reducing barriers to learning.

DIUS works closely with the armed forces on its further education strategy (and also the army basic skills programme). The armed forces provide opportunities for training for all, no matter what was achieved in school or college. The literacy and numeracy standards of all recruits are assessed and those identified with poor skills for life are then given systematic support, so that before they start their vocational training, the minimum standard that all are operating at, is entry level 3 in numeracy and literacy. That support is contextualised, making learning applicable to the workplace, with the target that all have gained at least level 1 qualifications in literacy and numeracy (equivalent to GCSE level at D-G) within four years of joining, with opportunities to then gain vocational qualifications at level 2.

The armed forces train their personnel, with support from DIUS, so that they have transferable skills and nationally recognised vocational qualifications, to enable them to take up a civilian career when they leave service. The armed forces is one of the largest deliverers of apprenticeships in the country, in the past year some 5,500 apprenticeships, nearly 2,500 advanced apprenticeships and over 7,500 stand-alone NVQ or other level 2 qualifications were completed by armed forces personnel. In addition, assistance with resettlement is provided, to ensure personnel are fully prepared for civilian life.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many employees there are in his Department, broken down by pay grade. [147877]

Mr. Denham: The Department has a total of 1,854 staff. Prior to the recent machinery of government changes, these staff were employed by different Government Departments, which had their own pay grades below the senior civil service. The following breakdown therefore indicates roughly equivalent grades:

	Number
AA	92
AO	381
EO	350
HEO	325
SEO	262

	Number
G7	315
G6	50
SCS	79
Total	1,854

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many special advisers are employed by his Department. [147879]

Mr. Denham: At this time none, but consideration is being given to the employment of up to two advisers.

Departments: Prisons

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make a statement on the role of his Department in the prison sector. [148199]

Mr. Lammy: Employment is known to be a key factor in helping to reduce re-offending. The principal role for my Department is to provide an effective learning and skills service for prisoners, as well as those serving sentences in the community, to improve their skills and employability, and increase their motivation to turn away from crime to become more productive members of society. We will do this by delivering the programme of reform set out in 'Reducing Re-offending Through Skills and Employment: Next Steps' (December 2006).

Seizing new, global opportunities requires a world-class skills base, not only through the expansion of high-end graduate skills but also by raising the skills of the wider adult workforce, including those currently unskilled. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills will lead the work to ensure that the nation has the skilled workforce it needs to compete in the global economy, and that includes developing the skills of those in the prison sector, including the workforce.

Departments: Property

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which properties his Department occupies. [147878]

Mr. Denham: The Department, including Executive agencies and trading funds, but not including non-departmental public bodies, occupies the following buildings:

Sanctuary Buildings, Great Smith Street, London
Caxton House, Tothill Street, London
Moorfoot, Sheffield
Castle View House, Runcorn
1 Victoria Street, London
151 Buckingham Palace Road, London
Mowden Hall, Darlington
Building 84, Stanton Avenue, Teddington, Middlesex Concept House, Cardiff Road, Newport

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what incentives he has considered to encourage staff in his Department to use public transport. [148802]

Mr. Lammy: The main incentive the Department offers are interest-free loans for season tickets for travel to work. Use of public transport is encouraged by departmental policies including limited car parking, free cycle parking with showers available for staff to use before starting work, flexible working, using public transport during the course of travel and making use of travel websites and information services, such as Transport Direct. Staff are also informed about local transport initiatives and promotions. Where the location or nature of the work makes public transport use impractical for staff, car sharing and the use of low emission vehicles is encouraged.

English Language: Education

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made in developing guidance for providers of English for speakers of other languages (ESOL) on the financial evidence that will need to be provided by learners to get fee remission for ESOL courses. [148581]

Mr. Lammy: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) funding guidance for 2007-08 outlines the position on ESOL funding and details the categories of learners who are entitled to fee remission. This is available on the LSC website at:

www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/funding-policy/Furthereducation/Funding_Guidance_for_Further_Education_in_200708.htm.

In addition, the LSC has recently published guidance on use of the additional £4.6 million in 2007-08 to the Learner Support Hardship Fund which will support vulnerable learners, including spouses and low-paid workers who may need support to pay their ESOL fees. This is available at:

http://readingroom.lsc.gov.uk/lsc/National/nat-discretionarv-lsc-guidance-0708.pdf.

Higher Education

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the procedure is for granting university status; and how many applications have been approved in the last 12 months. [149281]

Bill Rammell: Institutions must apply to the Privy Council in order to be granted a university title. The Privy Council will then seek advice from the Department who will consider whether an institution meets its criteria for university title; consulting the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education and the Higher Education Funding Council for England as necessary. The Department's criteria for university title are that an institution must:

(a) have been granted powers to award taught degrees under the 2004 criteria;

(b) normally have at least 4,000 full time equivalent higher education students, of whom at least 3,000 are registered on degree level courses (including foundation degree programmes); and

(c) be able to demonstrate that it has regard to the principles of good governance as are relevant to its sector.

In the last 12 months, the Privy Council has approved three applications for university title: Imperial College of Science, Technology and Medicine, St. Martin's College and York St. John University College.

Literacy: Prisoners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of prisoners were recorded as illiterate over the last 10 years. [148113]

Mr. Lammy: The numbers and proportion of prisoners whose reading was assessed at reception as being below Level 1, which could be used as a proxy for functionally illiteracy, is recorded as follows:

Prisoners whose reading was assessed as below level 1:

	Number	Proportion (%)
1997-98	39,643	27.5
1998-99	47,298	26.8
1999-2000	89,623	30.5
2000-01	89,623	30.9
2001-02	94,248	34.1
2002-03	96,589	36.9

The information is taken from the 'Prison Statistics for England and Wales', an annual publication produced by the Home Office until 2003.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy: Agriculture

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many and what proportion of farmers were declared bankrupt in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) the north-west and (c) the UK in each year since 1979. [147429]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 3 July 2007]: The closest available estimates for bankruptcies among farmers are the numbers of bankruptcy orders made under the category "agriculture and horticulture" according to the Insolvency Trade Classification (ITC). The following table provides the figures for England and Wales, which are available from 1990 onwards.

Bankruptcies in Scotland and Northern Ireland are the responsibility of the devolved administrations and, while total bankruptcies could be provided, a breakdown by industry is not available.

Bankruptcy statistics are classified regionally according to the locations and areas of responsibility of official receivers' (OR's) offices, each of which covers a number of courts having insolvency jurisdiction, and are not directly comparable with administrative geographies. Statistics broken down by both industry and regionally are not readily available for the period requested.

The Insolvency Trade Classification is not consistent with the Standard Industrial Classification 2003 (SIC2003) which is used to classify businesses, nor is the regional classification in use consistent with standard administrative geographies such as counties and government office regions (GORs). It is not, therefore, possible to provide reliable estimates of the proportions of farmers becoming bankrupt, either at the regional or national level.

Business Council for Britain

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what expenses members of the new Business Council for Britain will be able to claim. [147884]

Mr. Timms: Members of the Business Council will not be paid, but the Department will of course be prepared to meet such reasonable expenses directly related to their contribution to the Council as members wish to claim.

Company Liquidations

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many directors of phoenix companies were disqualified in each year from 2005; and how many of these disqualifications involved directors not undertaking to act as a director voluntarily. [146311]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 28 June 2007]: No separate statistics are maintained by the Insolvency Service for disqualification action taken against directors of companies, which might fall within the description of "phoenix" companies. Many successor companies to failed companies are formed as a result of legitimate arrangements between the directors and the office holder whereby assets are transferred at proper values. The conduct of the directors is only likely to be called into question where assets have been transferred from the insolvent company to the new company at an undervalue, where the directors have caused the successor company to trade under a name which is for them prohibited by virtue of section 216 Insolvency Act 1986 or where the successor company has failed for the same reasons as its predecessor. Although statistics are not kept to identify the numbers of disqualification orders or disqualification undertakings where the matters of unfitness include one or more of the elements referred to above the Insolvency Service records show that one or more of those matters of unfitness were alleged in seven cases for which disqualification proceedings were authorised in the year to 31 March 2006 and in 18 cases in the year to 31 March 2007.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many calls have been received on phoenix companies by the enforcement hotline in each year since 2005; and how many of these calls were referred for investigation. [146312]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 28 June 2007]: No separate statistics are maintained by the hotline team for "phoenix" complaints. It is likely that complaints to the hotline regarding so called "phoenix companies" will be recorded as a complaint under section 216 of the Insolvency Act 1986 (reuse of a prohibited name after a certain type of insolvency). It is possible that section 216 may also apply to new businesses run by directors, which are not successor companies to the insolvent company and which cannot therefore be regarded as "phoenix companies". The number of complaints received by the hotline which specifically relate to section 216 is seven for the period from August 2005 to March 2006, eight for the year to March 2007 and five so far for the current year. Of those one has been referred to Legal Services Division for possible prosecution action.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many directors of companies have been prosecuted for offences relating to phoenix operations. [146313]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 28 June 2007]: There is no precise legal definition of a "phoenix" company but it is normally thought of as one formed by the directors of a failed company to take over the business and some or all of the assets of the failed company but without any of its liabilities. The only criminal offence specially related to Phoenix operations is where the directors have caused the successor company to trade under a name which is for them prohibited by virtue of section 216 Insolvency Act 1986.

Statistics for convictions under section 216 of the Insolvency Act 1986 have only been published since the year 2005-06. The convictions are:

2005-06	19

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146088]

Mr. Thomas: Officials throughout the former Department of Trade and Industry were involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business totalled around 200. In addition, there are a number of Seconded National Experts working on priority policy areas in the European Commission in Brussels, usually around a dozen individuals. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to replace the banners in the window of his Department's building at 1 Victoria Street. [148925]

Mr. McFadden: I shall be considering how best to convey the new Department's aims and objectives to the business community and wider public. This includes the display material in the Department's offices.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last year to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147339]

Mr. Thomas: 283 members of staff in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (8.2 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the Civil Service Pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what analysis his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147343]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has not made any central analysis of the number of staff using public transport to commute. However there is very limited availability of car parking spaces across the Department's estate and therefore the vast majority of staff will use public transport to travel to work.

Disabled: Concessions

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people who retired from the coal industry due to ill health under the age of 50 years have been informed they are not eligible for concessionary coal. [148719]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department does not retain this type of information.

Eligibility for an entitlement to concessionary fuel is specified in Fuel Agreements, which have been agreed with the Mining Unions and form part of an employee's terms and conditions of employment.

The award is made by the employer, when the miner leaves employment and no information is held by Government on how many miners, on leaving employment, have not met the criteria specified in the Fuel Agreements.

Disclosure of Information

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many whistleblowers in the public services have sought redress from their employer using the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998. [147950]

Mr. McFadden: Workers who believe they have been unfairly dismissed or otherwise detrimentally treated for whistleblowing can complain to an employment tribunal under the 1998 Act. Numbers of claims accepted by the tribunals since the Act came into force in 1999 where PIDA was at least one of the grounds cited are shown in the table.

	Claims
1999-2000	165
2000-01	414
2001-02	534
2002-03	665
2003-04	758
2004-05	872
2005-06	1,037
2006-07	1,356
Total	5,801

Separate records are not maintained for claims made by workers in the public services.

Employment Act 2002 (Dispute Resolution) Regulations

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans his Department has to amend or repeal the Employment Act 2002 (Dispute Resolution) Regulations. [148099]

Mr. McFadden: The consultation paper "Resolving disputes in the workplace", published on 21 March 2007, invited views on whether the Regulations should be repealed. My Department's plans on the way forward will be set out in our response to that consultation which will be published in due course.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he last met representatives of the recruitment industry. [148460]

Mr. McFadden: Last month, my hon. Friend the Member for Poplar and Canning Town (Jim Fitzpatrick) met industry representatives at the Recruitment and Employment Confederation's (REC) "One In A Million Award" event, where he gave the keynote speech.

I look forward to meeting industry representatives shortly.

Employment Agencies: Temporary Employment

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received in the last 12 months from representatives of the recruitment industry on the law on temporary and agency workers; and if he will make a statement. [148461]

Mr. McFadden: BERR officials are in regular contact with representatives of the recruitment industry and have received a number of representations on the law regarding temporary and agency workers. Most recently, BERR has received representations from the industry in response to the recent consultation on measures to protect vulnerable agency workers.

My officials are currently analysing responses to this consultation, including those from the recruitment industry.

Employment Dispute Resolution Review

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when his Department expects to respond to the Gibbons review. [148096]

Mr. McFadden: The Government responded to the Gibbons review by publishing a consultation paper, "Resolving disputes in the workplace" (URN 07/734), on 21 March 2007. Copies were placed in the Libraries of the House. The consultation closed on 20 June 2007 and BERR will publish a response to the consultation in due course.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he plans to publish the evidence considered by the Gibbons Review. [148097]

Mr. McFadden: Michael Gibbons summarised the evidence he had considered in his report published on 21 March 2007. His review was independent of Government and did not invite formal submissions of evidence.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library all representations received on the Gibbons Review. [148101]

Mr. McFadden: Responses received to the Government's consultation on the Gibbons review will be made publicly available in the usual way, except where confidentiality has been requested.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department has estimated the effect on the costs of (a) employees, (b) employers and (c) the Government of implementing the recommendations of the Gibbons Review. [148098]

Mr. McFadden: Estimates of the impact of implementing the Gibbons review were set out in the partial regulatory impact assessment published in the consultation paper "Resolving disputes in the workplace" on 21 March 2007. Copies of the paper were placed in the Libraries of the House.

Enterprise Act 2002: Insolvency

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of individual voluntary arrangements were made (a) pre-bankruptcy and (b) post-bankruptcy in each year since the introduction of the Enterprise Act 2002. [148966]

Mr. McFadden: The personal insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 came into force on 1 April 2004.

	Post-bankruptcy IVAs as a percentage of all IVAs	Pre-bankruptcy IVAs as a percentage of all IVAs
2004-05	1.16	98.84
2005-06	0.46	99.54
2006-07	0.15	99.85

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002; and if he will make a statement. [148967]

Mr. McFadden: The Insolvency Service is undertaking a comprehensive evaluation of the Enterprise Act 2002 insolvency provisions, overseen by an Evaluation Group of independent stakeholders.

The evaluation includes both quantitative and qualitative data collected from various sources over a four-year period, including five pieces of independent academic research and internal analyses of Insolvency Service data. In order to better understand the evaluation data, benchmark information was obtained regarding the operation and effect of the pre-existing legislation.

Full details of the evaluation are set out in the minutes of the Evaluation Group, the evaluation planning papers, interim evaluation reports, academic research reports and internal analyses, available on the Insolvency Service website:

www.insolvency.gov.uk

The final evaluation report on the corporate insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 is due to be published in summer 2007, and the final evaluation report on the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 is due to be published in autumn 2007.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many bankruptcy orders have been made in each year since the implementation of the Enterprise Act 2002. [148968]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows the number of bankruptcy orders in England and Wales from April 2004, when the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 came into force.

Bankruptcy orders in England and Wales, seasonally adjusted

	Bankruptcy orders
2004-05	38,130
2005-06	52,327
2006-07	64,488

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) fast-track voluntary arrangements and (b) post-bankruptcy individual voluntary arrangements were made in each year since the introduction of the Enterprise Act 2002. [147076]

Mr. McFadden: The individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 came into force on 1 April 2004.

	Fast track voluntary arrangements	Total number of post-bankruptcy IVAs
2004-05	8	135
2005-06	9	114
2006-07	3	71

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department has assessed the volume of (a) individual voluntary arrangements and (b) fast-track voluntary arrangements resulting from the implementation of the Enterprise Act 2002's insolvency provisions prior to its enactment. [148746]

Mr. McFadden: There are no statistics for the number of FTVAs for the period before the Enterprise Act was enacted as they were introduced by that Act. Insolvency statistics are produced quarterly. IVA numbers for the five calendar years prior to the enactment of the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act and for the period subsequent to enactment are as follows:

	Number of IVAs
2000	7,978
2001	6,298
2002	6,295
2003	7,583
2004	10,752
2005	20,293
2006	44,332

FTVAs were introduced on 1 April 2004. In the year 2004-05 there were five approved FTVAs, for 2005-06 there were 12 and for 2006-07 there were three.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the preliminary conclusions of the Insolvency Service's interim evaluation of the Enterprise Act 2002 were in respect of (a) post-bankruptcy individual voluntary arrangements and (b) fast-track voluntary arrangements. [148747]

Mr. McFadden: The interim evaluation reports on the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 can be accessed on the Insolvency Service website on

www.insolvency.gov.uk

Neither of the interim evaluation reports reach any conclusions about post-bankruptcy IVAs or FTVAs as their main purpose is to inform stakeholders of ongoing work. The evaluation of the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 will be published later this year.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects to publish the results of the Insolvency Service's evaluation of the Enterprise Act 2002; and if he will make a statement. [148748]

Mr. McFadden: The Insolvency Service is undertaking a comprehensive evaluation of the Enterprise Act 2002 insolvency provisions, overseen by an Evaluation Group of independent stakeholders.

The final evaluation report on the individual insolvency provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002 is due to be published later this year.

Full details of the evaluation are set out in the minutes of the Evaluation Group, the evaluation planning papers, interim evaluation reports, academic research reports and internal analyses, available on The Insolvency Service website:

www.insolvency.gov.uk

EU Law: Recycling

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the impact on small businesses of registration fees for the distributor take-back scheme of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [148743]

Malcolm Wicks: Valpak Retail WEEE Services Ltd. operates the Distributor Takeback Scheme (DTS). As part of the Government's desire to keep the costs down for SMEs the DTS registration fees have been tiered, based on the levels of sales of electrical and electronic equipment.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he made an assessment of the (a) likely cost to and (b) other implications for small businesses of depositing Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment in a distributor collection facility; and the consequences for small businesses as a result. [148745]

Malcolm Wicks: The WEEE regulations do not alter current arrangements regarding businesses, including SMEs gaining access to local authority civic amenity sites and waste transfer stations. Local authorities are not obliged to accept trade waste and a decision on whether to do so is at their discretion.

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the (a) financial and (b) other impacts of the implementation of the Waste Electronic and Electrical Equipment Regulations and the necessary registration to Valpak on smaller retailers. [148822]

Malcolm Wicks: A full Regulatory Impact Assessment was published alongside the WEEE Regulations and provides an estimate of the costs and benefits of the implementation on smaller retailers. Retailers of electrical and electronic equipment are required to be a member of the Distributor Takeback Scheme (DTS) operated by Valpak Retail WEEE Services Ltd unless they offer in store take-back.

As part of the Government's desire to keep the costs down for SMEs the DTS registration fees have been tiered, based on the levels of sales of electrical and electronic equipment.

Food: Packaging

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department has had with major supermarkets on ensuring that food packaging is user friendly for the (a) elderly and (b) disabled. [147301]

Mr. Timms: No such discussions have been held.

Industrial Relations: Disputes Procedures

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures his Department has taken to increase the use of mediation in employment disputes. [148100]

Mr. McFadden: BERR funds the work of the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (ACAS) including the provision of conciliation for employment disputes.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the availability of mediation services for employment disputes; and whether his Department plans to increase that availability. [148457]

Mr. McFadden: The Department is aware that mediation is available from a variety of sources including ACAS. The recent consultation, "Resolving disputes in the workplace" sought views on encouraging earlier conciliation in appropriate cases; responses to this will be taken into consideration.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether guidance published by his Department on employment disputes contains information on local mediation services. [148458]

Mr. McFadden: Guidance published by this Department on employment disputes does not contain information on local mediation services.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when his Department expects to bring forward proposals on the procedure to reform unfair dismissal employment disputes. [148467]

Mr. McFadden: The consultation paper "Resolving disputes in the workplace", published on 21 March 2007, invited views on proposals on procedures for unfair dismissal employment disputes. My Department's plans on the way forward will be set out in our response to this consultation which will be published in due course.

National Grid: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the carbon content of grid electricity is reduced. [148654]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The Government have set out in the Energy White Paper measures aimed at reducing the carbon content of electricity generation. These include:

Strengthening the EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Strengthening the Renewables Obligation

Consulting on civil nuclear power

Launching a competition to demonstrate carbon capture and storage in the UK

Overseas Trade: Taiwan

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value of UK (a) exports to and (b) imports from Taiwan was in each of the last five years. [148362]

Mr. Thomas: The following table shows data for UK trade in goods and services with Taiwan.

	UK exports to Taiwan	£ million UK imports from Taiwan
2001	1,165	2,932
2002	1,214	2,564
2003	1,268	2,371
2004	1,446	2,539
2005	1,483	2,440

Initial estimates for 2006 and revisions for earlier years are expected to be published on 20 July 2007.

Performing Arts: Children

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether children's agencies specialising in theatre, TV and modelling have to register with a Government Department or other body. [148727]

Mr. McFadden: While entertainment agencies do not have to register with a Government Department, they are required to meet the provisions under the Employment Agencies Act 1973 and associated Conduct Regulations. These are designed to protect the interests of those using the services they provide. The Regulations include provisions to prevent agencies supplying unsuitable people to work with the vulnerable, including children.

Children may not work in television, theatre or other similar activities, including modelling, without a performance licence issued by the local authority under the Children and Young Persons Acts 1933 and 1963, as amended. It is however the responsibility of employers, rather than agencies, to ensure that a child is licensed and that the terms of a licence are complied with.

In addition, the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006, which will be implemented from autumn 2008, provides the legislative framework to help prevent unsuitable people from working with children.

Post Offices

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what opportunities post offices have to expand the range of goods and services they offer. [147218]

Mr. McFadden: The sub-postmasters and mistresses who own and operate 97 per cent. of the 14,000 post offices in the network are private business people. They are free to develop their associated retail businesses and pursue commercial arrangements with whoever they want to so long as the products provided are not in direct competition with key Post Office products that provide income to support the network.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what new products and services have been developed by the Post Office with the aim of encouraging the recruitment of sub-postmasters. [147220]

Mr. McFadden: The development of new Post Office products and services is an operational matter for the company's management. In recent years Post Office Ltd. has worked hard to introduce new products and services to replace traditional declining markets. Post Office Ltd. is now the largest provider of foreign currency in the UK and the third largest provider of travel insurance. The Post Office is also the UK's fifth largest fixed-line telephone service provider and opened 175,000 Instant Saver Accounts in the product's first year. More products are in the pipeline including a broadband service in partnership with BT.

Abortion: Access

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure equality of access to NHS abortion services; [148371]

(2) how many women in England waited (a) less than a week, (b) between one and two weeks, (c) over two weeks but less than four weeks and (d) over four weeks between the date they first requested an NHS abortion and the date of the abortion in each of the last five years. [148372]

Dawn Primarolo: We are working to ensure that women have access to abortion services as soon as possible as evidence shows that the risk of complications increases the later the gestation. We have invested £8 million to improve early access and set a standard of a maximum waiting time of three weeks. Primary care trusts' performance in this area is being measured as part of the Healthcare Commission's annual healthcheck.

Waiting times for abortion are not available but we consider that gestation at procedure is a good indicator of waiting times. The latest data for 2006 show that progress is being made to increase early access: 65 per cent. of national health service funded abortions took place at under 10 weeks compared with 51 per cent. in 2002.

Equality of access and more rapid access to abortion services has improved since the introduction of the Sexual Health and HIV Strategy. In 2006, 87 per cent. of abortions were NHS funded, compared with 78 per cent. in 2002. In addition, since 2002 we have collected patients self-reported ethnicity data to monitor access to services by all groups.

Abortion: Counselling

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what counselling is offered to women (a) contemplating, (b) during and (c) after an abortion. [148373]

Dawn Primarolo: The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) evidence-based guideline "The Care of Women Requesting Induced Abortion (2004)" gives recommendations to commissioners and service providers on the information to be given to women contemplating an abortion, following an abortion and on women's counselling needs.

The guideline states that professionals involved in abortion services should be equipped to provide women with the information they need, including accurate knowledge about possible complications and sequelae of abortion, in order to give genuinely informed consent. Clinicians caring for women requesting abortion should try to identify those patients who require more support in decision making than can be provided in the routine clinic setting. Facilities for additional support, including access to social services, should be available. Appropriate information and support should be available for those who consider, but do not proceed to, abortion. The guideline also recommends that referral for further counselling should be available for the small minority of women who experience long-term post abortion distress.

A number of organisations produce patient leaflets on this issue including the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists and the Family Planning Association.

Abortion: Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources have been committed to the improvement of abortion services in 2007-08. [148370]

Dawn Primarolo: Sexual health services are funded through revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs). It is for PCTs to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services, including abortion services, to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations.

Contracts: Cirencester Hospital

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the second wave independent sector treatment centre contract for Cirencester hospital to be signed. [148412]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is currently anticipated that financial close will be reached on the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Phase 2 independent sector treatment centre scheme, which includes service delivery from Cirencester hospital, in late summer 2007.

Departments: DVDs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the titles of all DVDs produced by his Department in the last 12 months; what the cost to the public purse was of developing each; how many were produced of each; and what the overall cost to the public purse was of each, inclusive of all development, production and distribution costs. [147561]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not possible to list the titles of all DVDs produced by the Department in the last 12 months, as this information is not held centrally. To attempt to gather this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Departments: Equality

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what cost to the public purse his Department is sponsoring a float in the Pride London parade on 30 June 2007 as stated in his Department's 'Single Equality Scheme 2007-2010', published on 8 June 2007. [147572]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department provided £3,500 towards the costs of the health professionals float at the London Pride 2007 parade.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what cost to the public purse his Department's Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Advisory Group commissioned the taking of (a) lesbian, gay and bisexual images and (b) transgender images as referred to in his Department's Single Equality Scheme 2007 to 2010, published on 8 June 2007; how he defines (i) lesbian, gay and bisexual images and (ii) transgender images; how many (A) lesbian, gay and bisexual images and (B) transgender images are in the NHS photo library; and if he will make a statement. [147583]

Dawn Primarolo: As part of the work to ensure the national health service photo library includes images representative of the entire community, the Department has added 47 images of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people at a cost of £950.00. The images are of individuals who identified themselves as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender, and who have consented to their images being used by health and social care organisations health promotion leaflets and campaigns.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the requests made to his Department under the (a) Freedom of Information Act (FOI) 2000 and (b) Environmental Information regulations in the last six months; and what the (i) FOI case reference number, (ii) request summary, (iii) request outcome and (iv) reason for exemption, where appropriate, was in each case. [148144]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147331]

Dawn Primarolo: 163 members of staff in Department (7.2 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

There is also published information on our departmental intranet supporting information provided by the Cabinet Office.

Deciding whether to invest is and must remain an entirely personal decision.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost is of all private finance initiative projects for which his Department has responsibility completed since 1997; and what the projected cost is of such projects commissioned or under way. [148024]

Mr. Bradshaw: A full list of annual unitary payments to the private sector to 2033-34 can be found on the HM Treasury signed deals list at the following address:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

It is not possible to forecast unitary payments at schemes still in procurement as these are not finalised until contract signature stage.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department has issued to staff on procedures for working with (a) HM Treasury; and (b) HM Treasury's Health Spending Team. [146531]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no standing guidance. The Finance Directorate is the normal point of contact for dealings with HM Treasury at official level; and from time to time specific guidance will be given to the Department on the procedures for coordinating particular exercises which may involve, for example, the Ministerial or Permanent Secretary Private Offices.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147327]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has no estimate of the number of staff using public transport to commute.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what incentives he has considered to encourage staff in his Department to use public transport. [148818]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department offers interest-free loans for season tickets for travel to work. Use of public transport is encouraged by departmental policies including limited car parking, flexible working, using public transport during the course of travel and making use of travel websites and information services, such as Transport Direct. Staff are also informed about local transport initiatives and promotions.

Departments: Vetting

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent advice he has issued on security checks on (a) existing and (b) prospective staff in his Department; and if he will make a statement. [148490]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department complies with Cabinet Office guidelines on security checks. The Department's existing staff have undergone the baseline check (formerly basic check) on entering employment with the Civil Service.

The Department undertakes additional checks in accordance with the access levels to particular buildings or work areas, for example:

CTC (counter terrorism check) for employees who require access to the Palace of Westminster.

SC (security clearance) investigation including security services, criminal records and finance check for employees in ministerial private offices and other sensitive work areas.

Advice on security checks for new recruits into the Civil Service has been directly in line with the "HMG Baseline Personnel Security Standard: A Good Practice guide to the Pre-Employment Screening of Government Staff and Contractors (July 2006)", effective 1 April 2007. This covers verification of:

Identity;

Employment history;

Nationality; and

Unspent criminal record

The Department is compliant with the baseline personnel security standard.

Engagements

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer given by the Prime Minister on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1375W, on engagements, what the evidential basis is for the statement that (a) in 1997, 50 per cent. of the NHS estate was older than the NHS itself and (b) today, 20 per cent. of the NHS estate is older than the NHS itself. [147496]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) undertakes a quinquennial valuation of the national health service estate. The VOA data from the 1995 survey showed that in that year, 49.5 per cent. of the NHS estate pre-dated 1948.

Information so far provided by the NHS itself, as part of the 2006-07 Estates Returns Information Collection process, shows that the proportion of the estate older than the NHS itself has fallen to 20.4 per cent.

Health Professions Council: Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding his Department made to the Health Professions Council prior to April 2004. [147474]

Mr. Bradshaw: According to our records the amount of funding that was provided to the Health Professions Council for its establishment was £3,804,467.38 between 2002 and 2004.

Health Professions: Regulation

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will request the UK professional healthcare regulators to publish their recent research on the public's access to professional registers. [146203]

Mr. Bradshaw: I understand that the Joint Regulators Public and Patient Involvement (PPI) group commissioned, on behalf of the healthcare professional regulatory bodies, a formal piece of research entitled "Making Registers More Usable". The regulatory bodies are using the report's findings to inform the ongoing review and development of the registers. I understand that they expect to make the report available in due course, but no final decision has yet been taken.

Health Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of those attending her Department's Trust, Assurance and Safety event on 5 June 2007 were (a) from healthcare professional regulatory bodies, (b) lay members of healthcare professional regulatory bodies, (c) from public and patient representative organisations, (d) members of the public, (e) health officials, (f) from other health and social care regulators and (g) others. [146198]

Mr. Bradshaw: The proportions of those who attended the Department's Trust, Assurance and Safety event on 5 June 2007 were as follows:

from healthcare professional regulatory bodies = 14 per cent.

lay members of healthcare professional regulatory bodies = 2 per cent. (which is included in above) from public and patient representative organisations and members of the public = 5 per cent.

health officials = 34 per cent.

from other health and social care regulators = 39 per cent.

others = 8 per cent.

Health Services: Procurement

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how long the Framework for Procuring External Support for Commissioners project team has been in existence; and for how long Simon Morgan has been the project lead. [148833]

Mr. Bradshaw: Simon Morgan has been the project lead for the procurement of the Framework for Procuring External Support for Commissioners since July 2006, at the same time that the project team was established.

Homeopathy: Medical Treatments

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients were treated at the Royal London Homeopathic Hospital in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [147929]

Mr. Bradshaw: This is a matter for the chair of the University College London Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. We have written to Peter Dixon informing him of the hon. Member's inquiry. He will reply shortly and a copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Hospitals: Mobile Phones

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance the NHS has issued in the last two years on the use of mobile telephones in hospitals. [148834]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is not aware of any specific guidance issued by the national health service in the last two years on the use of mobile phones in hospitals.

However, the Department has issued two sets of good practice guidance to the NHS on the use of mobile phones in healthcare premises. The first set of guidance was issued in August 2006, following a request by the Office of Communications and the second set was issued in May 2007, following a recommendation by the Patient Power review group. The guidance concludes that trusts should consider a range of risks and issues when preparing their own policy on mobile phone usage in hospitals, should issue a clear, written, policy which is easily accessible, with the patient at the forefront and designate and clearly signpost areas where mobile phones can and cannot be used.

Both sets of guidance are available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Policyandguidance/Organisationpolicy/Estatesandfacilitiesmanagement/index.htm

Copies have also been placed in the Library.

Leicestershire Primary Care Trust: Finance

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis decisions were made on Leicestershire Primary Care Trust's per capita allocation of funding. [142733]

Mr. Bradshaw: Revenue allocations are made on the basis of a weighted capitation formula which directs funding to those areas of greatest need.

The components of the formula are used to weight each primary care trust's (PCT) crude population according to their relative need (age and additional need) for healthcare and the unavoidable geographical differences in the cost of providing healthcare (the market forces factor).

The weighted capitation formula is used to set targets, which then inform allocations. The formula does not determine allocations. The pace of change policy determines actual allocations to PCTs as it reflects decisions on the speed at which PCTs are brought nearer to target through the distribution of extra funds.

Tables showing the revenue allocations for all PCTs in England for the period 2006-07 to 2007-08 and 2003-04 to 2005-06 are available in the Library.

Maternity Services: Midlands

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are for increasing the number of neonatal nurses at (a) Stoke, (b) Wolverhampton and (c) Shrewsbury hospitals over the next two years. [146565]

Dawn Primarolo: Decisions about the size and locations of neonatal networks, including the number of hospitals and the number of neonatal nurses are for local decision and should reflect local need and geography.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to answer the letter to his predecessor of 18 May 2007 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Ameen Hadi. [147549]

Mr. Bradshaw: A reply was issued on 5 June 2007.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford's intervention on 3 July, Official Report, column 854, in the Access to the NHS Services debate and following the meeting of the then Minister of State with the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on 16 May 2007, on the proposed independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) at Braintree, when he expects to reply to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on the impact of the ISTC on Broomfield Hospital. [148116]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The Department is in discussion with NHS East of England and Essex Primary Care Trusts with regard to their provision of robust local demand and capacity information, which is currently being finalised, in relation to a proposed Independent Sector Treatment Centre for Braintree. Once available, this information will be considered, along with wider information in relation to the scheme, by the Department and a reply to the points raised by the hon. Member for West Chelmsford will be provided. A copy will be placed in the Library.

National Media Evaluations

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 442WA, on national media evaluations, if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's national media evaluation reports for January 2006 to June 2006 inclusive; and if he will publish the reports on his Department's website. [147499]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since August 2005, The Department has published its media evaluation reports as part of the Department's wider commitment to Freedom of Information on its website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Freedomofinformationpublicationschemefeedback/Classesofinformation/Communicationsresearch/index.htm

The reports for January 2006-November 2006 were published on the website in June and copies have been placed in the Library.

NHS

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2007, Official Report, column 324, on the NHS, what the (a) type and (b) location is of each of the 26 different facilities and schemes; when each opened; on what timescale £1.7 billion was invested; and (i) where and (ii) when new staff were provided. [147972]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is as follows.

NHS: Buildings

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) value and (b) total gross internal area was in each of the last three financial years of the building stock on the NHS estate built (i) before 1948, (ii) from 1948 to 1954, (iii) from 1955 to 1964, (iv) from 1965 to 1974, (v) from 1975 to 1984, (vi) from 1985 to 1994, (vii) from 1995 to 2004 and (viii) since 2005. NHS: Equality

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons his Department's Gender Equity Project had difficulty gaining access to a contact list of England's Directors of Public Health, as stated on page 15 of his Department's Gender Equity Audit Report, published on 8 June 2007; what steps he has taken to ensure his Department has access to an up-to-date contact list of Directors of Public Health; and if he will make a statement. [147556]

Dawn Primarolo: At the time of the project the Department had a list of Regional Public Health Directors but did not have a detailed contact list of all Public Health Directors working in over 302 primary care trusts across England. However, 155 of the 279 invitations were sent directly to Directors of Public Health. Further to the reconfiguration in 2006 a more streamlined approach is now taken when seeking information from national health service organisations. The Chief Executive Bulletin is used to filter down information, and requests for information, to appropriate personnel in the NHS.

NHS: Finance

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Capital Challenge Fund Scheme funding allocations are of (a) University Hospital, Birmingham NHS Trust, (b) Frimley Park NHS Foundation Trust and (c) University College London NHS Foundation Trust; and if he will make a statement. [147457]

Mr. Bradshaw: For NHS foundation trusts (NHSFTs), the Capital Challenge Fund offered a potential addition of £300,000 to public dividend capital. In order to receive the addition funding, NHSFTs had to meet the general rules for entitlement to public dividend capital. University Hospital Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust drew down new public dividend capital of £300,000 from the Fund. Frimley Park NHS Foundation Trust and University College London Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust did not draw down any public dividend capital in 2006-07.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the reasons were for the increase in the gross deficit in the primary care trust sector between 2005-06 and 2006-07. [147578]

Mr. Bradshaw: The primary care trust (PCT) sector reported a £633 million gross deficit at the end of 2006-07, which is a £17 million deterioration from the position reported at the end of 2005-06. However, the proportion of PCTs reporting a deficit has reduced from 36 per cent. in 2005-06 to 27 per cent. in 2006-07.

From 2006-07, we have stopped the movement of money round the national health service through brokerage or planned support. As we anticipated, this reform of the NHS financial regime has exposed deficits which might otherwise have remained hidden. As part of the strategy to manage the financial position in their overall economy in 2006-07, strategic health authorities (SHAs) were able to top-slice PCT allocations to create SHA reserves. Although this top-slice may have contributed to the less than 3 per cent. increase in the overall PCT gross deficit, this money is not lost, but held by the SHAs on behalf of the NHS. PCTs are entitled to repayment of their contribution over a reasonable period which should not normally exceed the three-year allocation cycle.

A clearer measure of PCT financial performance is shown by considering the in-year financial position, as this excludes both the Resource Accounting and Budgeting (RAB) adjustments in respect of prior year performance and the impact of the top-slice of PCT allocations. The in-year deficit of the 55 PCTs that recorded a deficit in 2005-06 was £326 million. This underlying position improved significantly to a £348 million in-year surplus by the end of 2006-07.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish the long-term plans for the 17 NHS trusts which cannot service and repay loans over an acceptable period, as referred to in his Department's report NHS financial performance quarter four, published on 6 June 2007. [147580]

Mr. Bradshaw: Departmental officials are working closely with strategic health authorities to identify long-term solutions for these 17 trusts. It is intended that the review work will be concluded in the autumn, and that solutions will be prepared in the context of the operating framework for 2008-09.

NHS: Fires

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many fires were reported on the NHS estate as required by FIRECODE policy and principles in each of the last three financial years. [147063]

Mr. Bradshaw: The figures in the table have been obtained from information contained in the fire database held by the Department. National health service trusts are required to report all outbreaks of fire to which the fire and rescue service attend.

The figures may not be representative of the actual number of incidents attended by the fire and rescue services as, for example, NHS foundation trusts are not mandated to provide information in relation to fire incidents.

Financial year	Number of incidents
2004-05	1,194
2005-06	1,151
2006-07	1,089

NHS: Repairs and Maintenance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the repair backlog was of the NHS estate, broken down by (a) high risk, (b) significant risk, (c) moderate risk and (d) low risk in each of the last three financial years; and what the overall risk adjusted backlog was. [147061]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the levels of backlog maintenance categorised by risk for the national health service estate in England was first collected for 2004-05. The data for financial years 2004-05 and 2005-06 are in table 1. Figures for the overall risk adjusted backlog are in table 2.

Table 1

£ million

Risk level/definition	2004-05 Backlog maintenance	2005-06 Backlog maintenance
High risk—urgent priority work needed to prevent catastrophic failure, major disruption to clinical services or deficiencies resulting in serious injury or prosecution.	358.2	329.9
Significant risk—requires short-term expenditure but can be effectively managed to avoid risk to healthcare services or concern to enforcement bodies.	778.2	982.2
Moderate risk—requires close control and monitoring but can be managed in the medium term.	902.1	1,219.4
Low risk—can be addressed through agreed maintenance programmes or through strategic plans.	1,103.2	1,152.1

Table 2

Overall risk adjusted backlog—defined by a formula which takes into account risk over the remaining life of buildings (as assessed by the Valuation Office Agency).	1,342.4	1,703.8

Investment to reduce backlog maintenance will be prioritised locally based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources.

The data provided have not been amended centrally and the accuracy and completeness of these data is the responsibility of the provider organisation.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was of building and engineering maintenance on the NHS estate in each of the last three financial years. [147062]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Total building and engineering maintenance costs

	£ million
2003-04	513.6
2004-05	556.1
2005-06	574.8

The costs relate to the amount spent by the national health service in England on the ongoing and day-to-day provision of building and engineering maintenance services.

The data provided have not been amended centrally and the accuracy and completeness of these data is the responsibility of the provider organisation.

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has undertaken any analysis of the NHS's performance relative to other countries' health care systems in the last two years. [147536]

Mr. Bradshaw: Yes. International comparisons of health care performance are analysed in support of policy-making and evaluation when such comparisons may be instructive.

The Department also studies international comparative analysis undertaken by others, such as that carried out by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, The Commonwealth Fund and the Picker Institute.

We have commissioned specific reviews for particular policy issues, including "Health care outside hospital: accessing generalist and specialist care in eight countries, and Capacity planning in health care: reviewing the international experience". These are publicly available at:

www.euro.who.int/Document/E89259.pdf

www.euro.who.int/Document/Obs/EuroObserver9_1.pdf

The Department has also published comparisons of performance on a range of indicators in the report "Health Profile of England", which has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/prod_consum_dh/idcpig?IdcService=GET_FILE&dID=22190&Rendition=Web

Tackling health inequalities is an international issue and was a key health theme for the United Kingdom presidency of the European Union in 2005. As part of the presidency, the UK commissioned "Health Inequalities: Europe in Profile", which is available in the Library and at:

www.dh.gov.uk/prod_consum_dh/groups/dh_digitalassets/@dh/@en/documents/digitalasset/dh_4121584.pdf.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy that data collected through the Quality and Outcomes Framework of the new General Medical Services contract should require gender-specific information. [147555]

Mr. Bradshaw: The data for the Quality and Outcomes Framework are collected by the Quality Measurement Analysis System (QMAS). QMAS does not have the technical capability to collect patient specific information.

Nurses: Manpower

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many specialist (a) stoma, (b) diabetes, (c) kidney, (d) Parkinson's disease and (e) cancer nurses were employed in each of the last five years, broken down by NHS trust. [148133]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally.

The annual national health service workforce census does not separately identify specialist stoma, diabetes, kidney, Parkinson's disease and cancer nurses from the rest of the nursing work force.

Primary Care Trusts

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many collaborative commissioning groups for specialist services were established by primary care trusts in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [148849]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of specialised commissioning groups, formed by consortia of primary care trusts, in the last three years, are set out in the following table.

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Specialised commissioning groups (SCGs) in England	8	8	10
Local specialised commissioning groups (LSCGs) in England	25	25	0

Note:
In 2005-06 and 2006-07 LSCGs covered specialised services with a planning population of one to two million; SCGs covered a planning population of three to six million.

The overall number reduced from April 2007 following the implementation of the recommendations of Sir David Carter's Review of Commissioning Arrangements for Specialised Services.

Primary Care Trusts: Committees

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what functions exceptional circumstances committees of primary care trusts (PCTs) have; how they operate; what guidance his Department provides to PCTs on the operation of such committees; and if he will make a statement. [148522]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts are able to appoint committees of the trust, but there is no requirement for a special exception committee, an exceptional circumstance committee or other committee to approve treatments. There is no national guidance on the functions and operation of any such committee.

Private Finance Initiative

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the National Audit Office on its draft report on the private finance initiative. [148132]

Mr. Bradshaw: In line with established practice, the National Audit Office (NAO) offered the Department an early opportunity to comment on the factual accuracy of the NAO's provisional audit findings.

The provisional audit findings were never submitted for signing off by the Accounting Officer at the Department because the NAO subsequently decided that they were not sufficiently conclusive to justify a report to Parliament.

Shropshire Primary Care Trust: Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) original budgeted figures and (b) actual budget figures were for Shropshire Primary Care Trust in 2006-07. [146522]

Dawn Primarolo: The figures for 2006-07 revenue resource limit and capital resource limit for Shropshire County Primary Care Trust (PCT) are shown in the table.

	£000
Revenue
Initial revenue resource limit	339,601
Final revenue resource limit	351,539
Charge against revenue resource limit	351,347
Underspend against revenue resource limit	192
Capital
Initial capital resource limit	1,522
Final capital resource limit	7,711

	£000
Charge against capital resource limit	5,784
Underspend against capital resource limit	1,927

Notes:
The initial capital resource limit (CRL) figure does not include strategic capital or programme capital, which was allocated to strategic health authorities (SHA) for onward distribution to PCTs during the financial year.
The final CRL figure includes all capital allocations for programme and strategic capital and any other in year capital transfers requested by the SHA.

Surgery

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were carried out in NHS hospitals in each of the last five years. [147007]

Mr. Bradshaw: The table shows the count of finished consultant episodes from 2001-02 to 2005-06.

Count of finished consultant episodes with an operation (opcs-4 codes between A01-X59 or and (operation code not known))

Tomography: Stockport Primary Care Trust

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) CT and (b) MRI scanners are installed in facilities in Stockport Primary Care Trust. [147249]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no CT or MRI scanners based at Stockport Primary Care Trust facilities.

JUSTICE

Alternatives to Prison

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the merits of enforced curfews as an alternative to imprisonment. [148418]

Mr. Hanson: Curfew, which is normally monitored electronically, may be imposed as a condition of bail; as a sentence of the court or as a condition of release from prison. Studies suggest that curfew can be more cost effective than custody and may also help in the rehabilitation of offenders. It can also introduce regularity into what are often chaotic lifestyles and can disrupt the pattern of offending behaviour.

The Government believe that serious and dangerous offenders should be sent to prison. But where prison is not the right response to offending, a range of tough and demanding community punishments are available to the courts, which can include curfew.

The Home Detention Curfew scheme enables short term prisoners to be released up to 135 days before the automatic/conditional release date. The scheme is highly successful: 85 per cent. of those released on the scheme have completed it successfully with only 4 per cent. having re-offended while on HDC.

Criminal Records

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether the Data Protection Act 1998 prevents the Parole Board from putting information into the public domain on individual prisoners which might contribute to public protection; [146778]

(2) whether he has considered bringing forward changes to allow the Parole Board to put more information into the public domain for the protection of the public. [146779]

Mr. Hanson: Where it is proposed to share information between public bodies, those bodies must always ensure that they have the power to share those data. Public bodies such as the Parole Board have the power under common law to divulge information for the purpose of public protection in certain circumstances. Therefore, no specific statutory power is required.

Once is it established that such a power exists, those involved in disclosure must ensure that the exercise of the power to disclose is consistent with the legal framework established by the Data Protection Act 1998 ("the DPA").

The DPA does not automatically preclude the Parole Board sharing information on individual offenders with the police and probation services if that is necessary to enable those services to carry out their statutory responsibilities to protect the public. Whether disclosure for these purposes is consistent with the DPA will always depend on the individual circumstances of each case and whether the disclosure is truly necessary by reference to those facts.

Where sharing of data of the type mentioned above takes place, the police and probation services may, in turn, disclose the information to individuals under their own powers, if it is necessary for them to do so in order to manage the risks posed by offenders.

Taking all of the above into account, there are no proposals to amend legislation in respect of the disclosure of personal data as the current state of the law is sufficient to meet the requirements of public protection.

Driving Offences: Prosecutions

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions prosecutions for driving without (a) insurance and (b) due care and attention were abandoned as a result of the expiration of the statutory time for bringing them forward in each of the last five years, broken down by police force area. [148425]

Maria Eagle: The Court Proceedings Database, held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, does not record the number of cases abandoned due to the time limitation rule.

Flexible Working: Parents

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will review the adequacy of workplace rights for parents of children with cancer, with particular reference to rights to leave to care for their children. [148521]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Government provide extensive rights to leave for parents, including 52 weeks' maternity leave before a child is one and 13 weeks' parental leave until a child is five. In addition, parents of children under six (or under 18 in the case of a disabled child) have the right to request flexible working arrangements, which could be helpful when caring for sick children.

In 1999, the Government also introduced Time Off for Dependents, which is a right allowing employees to take a reasonable amount of time off work to deal with unexpected emergencies, e.g. to care for a sick child, and to make any necessary longer-term arrangements for dealing with them.

Prison Service: Manpower

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison officers there were in each year since 1992. [148424]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of officer grade staff employed within the public sector Prison Service and the contracted estate each year since 1992 is contained in the following table.

Prisoners: Childbirth

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners gave birth in each of the last five years. [148403]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service has only routinely kept information centrally on births in custody since April 2005. Figures prior to this date are not available.

The number of prisoners giving birth in the last five years is as follows:

Prisoners: Hepatitis

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of hepatitis B occurred in prisons in each of the last five years. [148407]

Mr. Hanson: The last major study of hepatitis B prevalence in prisoners in England and Wales found that of 3,942 prisoners tested (8 per cent.) were infected with hepatitis B.

Prisoners: Mothers

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many pregnant female offenders (a) applied for and (b) were granted permission for their children to remain with them in prison after birth in each of the last five years; and what the length was of the sentence served by each mother following birth. [148404]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service is unable to provide any figures before October 2006 as these were not routinely recorded.

Between 1 October 2006 and 31 March 2007, there were 83 applications received. From these applications 52 boards sat and 37 were given a place on a mother and baby unit in custody, 31 of the 37 were sentenced women.

Between 1 April 2007 and 6 July 2007 a total of 34 applications were received, 29 sat boards and 22 women were granted a place. Fourteen of these successful applications were from sentenced mothers.

The discrepancies between application and board numbers are a result of several possible factors: withdrawn applications, pregnant women released from custody (both on remand and following sentencing), some may in fact still be awaiting boards or the results.

Information is not held centrally on the time actually served by women in the units.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of female prisoners with children under five years old. [148405]

Mr. Hanson: The 2003-04 resettlement survey commissioned by the Prison Service Custody to Work Unit showed that half of all female prisoners had dependent children (including stepchildren), and that 46 per cent. of those women had lived with at least one dependent child before custody.

Prisoners: Suicide

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners (i) attempted and (ii) committed suicide in each of the last five years. [148409]

Mr. Hanson: There is no definition of what constitutes an attempted suicide, as it is very difficult to measure suicidal intent. The information requested with respect to apparent self-inflicted deaths is contained in the following table:

	Number of self-inflicted deaths[1]
	Female	Male
2002	9	86
2003	14	80
2004	13	82
2005	4	74
2006	3	64

[1] The Prison Service definition of self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. This inclusive approach is used in part because inquest verdicts are often not available for some years after a death (some 20 per cent. of these deaths will not receive a suicide or open verdict at inquest). Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information become available.

Prisoners: Tuberculosis

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of tuberculosis occurred in prisons in each of the last five years; and what steps he is taking to reduce the incidence of tuberculosis in prisons. [148406]

Mr. Hanson: Information is not routinely available from prison establishments on the number of prisoners diagnosed as suffering from tuberculosis (TB). However as TB is a notifiable disease, each new case is reported to the local Consultant in Communicable Disease Control (CCDC).

The Prison Service's Performance Standard, Health Services for Prisoners (May 2004) requires every prison establishment to have in place effective arrangements for the prevention, control and management of communicable diseases, including tuberculosis. These must include arrangements for the notification of all incidents of notifiable disease, such as TB to the local Health Protection Agency's Consultant in Communicable Disease Control (CCDC) and an action plan in the event of an outbreak of a communicable disease. The diagnosis, care, treatment and management and contact tracing of prisoners with tuberculosis is undertaken in consultation with local national health service specialists in accordance with the British Thoracic Society guidelines for the management of TB.

Prisons

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisons are located in England and Wales. [148422]

Mr. Hanson: There are 142 prison establishments in England and Wales. This includes two Immigration Removal Centres, Dover and Haslar, that are managed by the Prison Service on behalf of the Border and Immigration Agency, and establishments managed as single prisons Moorland Open / Moorland Closed, Grendon / Springhill and Usk / Prescoed.

Prisons: Drugs

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of the number and percentage of the prison population using (a) cannabis, (b) ecstasy, (c) heroin and (d) cocaine. [148384]

Mr. Hanson: The best measure of drug misuse in prisons is provided by the random mandatory drug testing programme. The positive rates for the above named drugs in 2006-07 can be found in the following table:

	2006-07
	Number of positives	Percentage positive
Cannabis	2,562	4.3
Ecstasy	30	0.04
Opiates	2,411	4.0
Cocaine	96	0.2

Note:
Number of confirmed positives—ecstasy is classified as an amphetamine type drug it is not until a confirmation test is conducted that the presence of ecstasy can be determined.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were caught in possession of narcotics while serving prison sentences in each of the last five years. [148385]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of offences for possessing a controlled drug is given in the following table.

	Possession of an unauthorised article
2001	1,837
2002	1,134
2003	1,271
2004	1,315
2005	1,343

Prisons: Genito-urinary Medicine

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what access prisoners have to (a) condoms, (b) sexual health advice and (c) testing for sexually transmitted infections. [148408]

Mr. Hanson: Above all other considerations, prisons must maintain good order and discipline for people in custody. They should not therefore take any action that can be interpreted as encouraging overt sexual behaviour by prisoners.

The Prison Service recognises that sex in prisons occurs and that this brings with it associated public health concerns. Prison doctors therefore have authority to prescribe condoms if, in their clinical judgement, there is a risk of HIV infection or transmission of any other sexually transmitted illness.

Condoms will not be made available to prisoners without appropriate information and guidance on sexual health education being given first.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) now have commissioning and clinical governance responsibility for the health services provided within publicly managed prisons. Prisons and PCTs work together through managed co-ordination to ensure that the quality of health care delivered within prisons is comparable to that provided by the national health service for the wider community. Resource allocations are underpinned by prison health needs assessments.

Sexual health is recognised to be an important health care need and therefore resources are allocated accordingly and to match the need within prisons.

All prisoners undergo health reception screenings on entry into prison. This is a detailed questionnaire completed by health care staff interviewing the prisoner. It is designed to identify any long-term medical conditions, any use of prescribed medication, any history of alcohol or substance dependence, any mental health problems and any symptoms requiring urgent medical attention or indicating a need for review by a medical doctor.

Health reception screenings do not include a screen for sexually transmitted infections (STIs) or a blood test for HIV infection.

Tests for STIs or HIV can be offered to prisoners following a risk assessment by a doctor, or other appropriately trained member of the health care team, if a prisoner presents with signs or symptoms of such infections or describes risk behaviour which may have exposed him or her to such infections.

Prisoners are also able to request a screen for STIs or HIV if they believe that they may have been exposed to infection.

Probation Officers: Training

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the numbers of people in training as probation officers in each probation service region in each year since 1997; and at what cost per student. [148435]

Mr. Hanson: A breakdown of the number of people in training as probation officers and the cost per student is contained in the following tables. Cost information is only available from 2003-04 onwards, when the Home Office took over responsibility for the higher education contracts. It is not possible to provide the information by region.

Trainee Probation Officer figure and costs

	Trainee Probation Officer
1997	—
1998	229
1999	523
2000	564
2001	1,096
2002	1,566
2003	1,818
2004	1,774
2005	1,387
2006	1,134

Notes:
All figures are given as full time equivalent (FTE), and are rounded up to the nearest full employee.
All figures are taken as at 31 December of the relevant year.
Figures from 1997 to 2002 are taken from the RDS Probation Statistics, while those for 2003-04 onwards are lifted from the quarterly workforce information report produced by PACU (formerly NPD).

Financial year	Cost per student
2003-04	34,517
2004-05	35,367
2005-06	36,167
2006-07	36,227

Note:
The new trainee allowance is based upon the trainee base allowance, but adjusted in line with each Board's labour cost factor and pension cost factor. For 2006-07 only, a further pension adjustment was made to the allowance. The figures also include the average university administration cost per year.

Probation Officers: Vacancies

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of job vacancies for new entry probation officers in each probation region in each year since 1997. [148436]

Mr. Hanson: I am unable to give information regarding the number of job vacancies for new entry probation officers. The numbers for national recruitment for trainee probation officers are communicated to probation areas with the decision to recruit into other posts, including new entry probation officers, being made by local boards.

Not all probation areas in the national probation service operate a set establishment against which vacant posts can be measured. As a more representative alternative, probation areas are required to report regularly on the number of active vacancies they have. An active vacancy is one which a probation area is actively trying to fill through a recruitment process. The information that is collected is an overall figure for probation officers and does not distinguish those who are new entrants.

Rape: Sentencing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 357W, on rape: sentencing, what his assessment is of the reasons for the differences in sentences given in Northern Ireland compared to those in England and Wales; and if he will take steps to bring the different sentences into line. [148488]

Mr. Hanson: The sentencing framework and policy remains the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Office in Northern Ireland and for the Ministry of Justice in England and Wales. Differences have historically occurred in operational practice.

The Northern Ireland Office undertook a comprehensive public consultation on proposals for reviewing the sentencing framework for Northern Ireland in 2006, and it will be publishing proposals based on this consultation in due course.

Young Offender Institutions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to increase young offender institution capacity. [148493]

Mr. Hanson: As part of the 8,000 capacity programme, the National Offender Management Service is planning to provide additional capacity for young offenders including places at Belmarsh East, Hindley, Portland, Stoke Heath and Brinsford.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of trends in the young offender institution population over the next 10 years. [148494]

Mr. Hanson: The latest projections of the prison population 2006 to 2013 were published in Home Office Statistical Bulletin 11/06, "Prison population projections 2006-2013, England and Wales", on the Home Office website in July 2006. These projections do not estimate the population in young offender institutions, which accommodate 15 to 20-year-olds, separately.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders under the age of 21 years found guilty of an offence were given a (a) custodial sentence and (b) non-custodial sentence in each of the last 10 years. [148495]

Maria Eagle: The information requested, for the years 1995 to 2005, is contained in the following table.

Number of persons[1] under the age of 21 sentenced to custodial and non-custodial[2] sentences, all courts, England and Wales

Number of persons

House of Commons: Pay

Mr. Winnick: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many full-time non-manual staff of the House who are not officers of the House receive salaries of (a) more than £40,000, (b) £30,000 to £40,000, (c) £25,000 to £30,000, (d) £20,000 to £25,000 and (e) under £20,000 per year. [148656]

Nick Harvey: As at 1 April 2007, the number of full-time non-manual staff at the pay levels requested were as follows:

Basic annual rate of pay as at 1 April 2007	Number of full-time non-manual staff
More than £40,000	7
Between £30,000 and £40,000	249
Between £25,000 and £30,000	235
Between £20,000 and £25,000	279
Under £20,000	149
Total	929

TRANSPORT

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding has been allocated for the planning of road improvements along the A21 in the 2007-08 financial year. [149316]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency plans to spend approximately £1.6 million during 2007-08 on planning three proposed major road improvements on the A21—Tonbridge bypass to Pembury Dualling, Kippings Cross to Lamberhurst improvements and improvements to the A21 Baldslow junction.

A69: Greenhead

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1517W, on the A69: Greenhead, whether the A69 Greenhead diversion scheme contract obliged the Northumberland county council engineer to obtain prior approval from officials of her Department before certifying for payment ICE contract clause 60(6) interest. [148579]

Mr. Tom Harris: The contract did not oblige the engineer to obtain prior approval from the Department for Transport before he made a certificate.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1517W, on the A69: Greenhead, whether her Department authorised the Northumberland county council engineer to certify for payment £103,974.92 clause 60(6) interest in connection with the A69 Greenhead diversion scheme. [148580]

Mr. Tom Harris: There was no legal requirement on the engineer to seek prior approval from the department before he made a certificate. If the engineer had nonetheless done so, the contract would not have obliged him to take any notice of the department's response.

Aviation: Fuels

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will review the findings of the Aviation White Paper on fuel efficiency per seat. [149370]

Jim Fitzpatrick: "The Future of Air Transport" White Paper, 2003, referred to the fuel efficiency gains that could be achieved arising from fleet replacement and technology improvements.

The Department for Transport carbon dioxide forecasts and underlying assumptions are published in "Aviation and Global Warming", 2004. This can be found at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/whitepapers/air/docs/aviationandglobalwarmingreport

"The Future of Air Transport Progress Report", published in December 2006, committed us to producing revised emissions forecasts in 2007.

Bus Services: Gravesham

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bus journeys were made in Gravesham in each year since 1997; and how many passenger kilometres such journeys represented in each year. [149310]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department collects statistics on bus passenger patronage through an Annual Survey of Public Service Vehicle operators, complemented by quarterly surveys of the largest operators. The statistics are not collected at a level of detail to provide information for Gravesham.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146329]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department was formed in May 2002. Details of expenditure by the Department on consultants from 2002-03 to 2006-07 are shown as follows:

	£ million
2002-03	227.5
2003-04	239.5
2004-05	193.3
2005-06	72.1
2006-07	81.2

Identifying which consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Government Shareholding

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1283-4W, on Government shareholding, what the nature and status is of the special shares held by her Department in (a) Eurostar (UK) Ltd, (b) London and Continental Railways Ltd, (c) Union Railways (North) Ltd and (d) Inter-Capital and Regional Rail Ltd. [148947]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government hold non-balance sheet special shares in all four companies. None of the shareholdings confers voting rights but they do provide Ministers with certain rights sufficient to safeguard the business and ensure continuity of the project.

Great Western Trains: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will initiate a review of the quality of the service offered by First Great Western. [149369]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport monitors punctuality, reliability and service quality of all franchises on a monthly basis.

Motor Vehicles: Accidents

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) deaths there have been and (b) serious injuries have been sustained in accidents involving a vehicle registered in another EU country in each year since 2000, broken down by country; and in how many cases in each year the European registered vehicle was exceeding the speed limit. [149171]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information on the country of registration of vehicles involved in reported personal injury road accidents is not recorded. However since 2005, the Department has collected information on whether vehicles involved in accidents are foreign registered.

In 2005, there were 59 fatalities and 348 seriously injured casualties resulting from accidents involving foreign registered vehicles. Of these, there were two fatalities and four seriously injured casualties resulted from accidents in which the foreign registered vehicles had 'exceeding the speed limit' as a contributory factor.

Railway Stations: Disabled People

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of accessibility at rail stations in (a) Leeds and (b) West Yorkshire; what plans she has to improve accessibility at those stations; and what estimate she has made of the cost of doing so. [149237]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department does not hold information on the level of accessibility at stations in Leeds or across West Yorkshire. Station accessibility is assessed by train operating companies and collated by the Association of Train Operating Companies. The information is published at www.nationalrail.co.uk

To improve access at stations, we have allocated £370 million Access for All funding up to 2015. Stations have been included in the programme based on footfall, weighted against the incidence of disability locally (using information contained in the 2001 census). Huddersfield, Keighley and Shipley have been selected for inclusion in the programme up to 2011. These will be provided with a step—free route into the station and to, and between, each platform. It is too early to give an accurate estimate of the likely cost of these works.

Other inaccessible stations in Leeds and West Yorkshire will be considered for inclusion in the next tranche of stations to be announced later this year.

Railways: Brighton

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what improvements have been planned for the Brighton to London Victoria train line in 2007-08. [149317]

Mr. Tom Harris: The then Secretary of State for Transport my right hon. Friend the Member for Paisley and Renfrewshire, South (Mr. Douglas Alexander) announced on 4 April 2007, the results of the recent consultation on the implementation of the Brighton Main Line (BML) Route Utilisation Strategy (RUS).The key decision is that, at the busiest times of day, the Gatwick Express will run beyond Gatwick to Brighton, doubling the number of express trains between Brighton and London Victoria in the high peak. This service change will take place in December 2008.

Railways: Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many instances of train surfing were reported in each of the last five years, broken down by railway network. [149729]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, email: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk

Armley Prison: Suicide

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many suicides have taken place in HM Prison Armley in each year since 1987. [148651]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is contained in the following table and associated notes.

	Number of self-inflicted deaths at HMP Leeds[1]
1987	2
1988	4
1989	2
1990	1
1991	2
1992	2
1993	2
1994	1
1995	1
1996	1
1997	1
1998	4
1999	5
2000	3
2001	1
2002	4
2003	3
2004	2
2005	2
2006	7
2007	2

[1] The Prison Service definition of self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. This inclusive approach is used in part because inquest verdicts are often not available for some years after a death (some 20 per cent. of these deaths will not receive a suicide or open verdict at inquest). Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information become available.

Coroners

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many and what proportion of verdicts returned by coroner's inquests (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each coroner's region were (i) death by accident or misadventure, (ii) death from natural causes, (iii) suicide, (iv) open verdicts, (v) death from industrial diseases, (vi) death from dependent abuse of drugs, (vii) death from non-dependent abuse of drugs, (viii) homicide and (ix) all other in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [148597]

(2) how many and what proportion of coroner's inquests (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each coroner's region were adjourned and not resumed in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [148598]

(3) how many and what proportion of coroner's inquests (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each coroner's region had a verdict returned in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [148599]

Bridget Prentice: Due to the comprehensive data, the information requested has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post-mortems

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many post-mortem examinations were carried out (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each coroner's region in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [148600]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested has been placed in the Library of the House, as per the answer I gave the hon. Member on 10 July 2007, Official Report, column 1462W, on post-mortem examinations.

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many assaults on prison officers or other HMP staff there have been in each of the last 10 years. [148673]

Mr. Hanson: Assault information is recorded at establishment level where it should be categorised into one of four categories "Prisoner on Prisoner", "Prisoner on Officer", "Prisoner on Other" and "Other". The recorded incidents of assaults on prison officers are not completely exclusive to officers, establishment recording sometimes includes assaults on other prison staff in this category.

Information from incidents which have been categorised as "Prisoner on Officer" and "Prisoner on Other" is provided in the following table. This may be over-inclusive and contain some assaults on visitors and official visitors.

Reliable data for 1997-99 are not centrally available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Number
2000	1,929
2001	2,366
2002	2,538
2003	2,553
2004	2,803
2005	3,176
2006	3,159
2007[1]	1,210

[1] Up to 31 May 2007.

Notes:

1. The numbers of incidents of assaults reported here are derived from the Prison Service Incident Reporting System (IRS). This system processes high volumes of data supplied by prisons and is constantly being updated. The numbers indicated here provide a useful indication of the realistic scale of assaults incidents, many of which are relatively minor. The numbers should not be interpreted as absolute.
2. The increase in reported numbers of assaults reflects, in part, the increase in prison population.
3. There is a slight lag in reporting which means that the provisional number mentioned here will rise a little in the coming months.
4. Numbers need to be interpreted with caution as some assault incidents may involve more than one assaulter or more than one victim, e.g. one or more prisoners and a member of staff. The numbers refer to the number of incidents not the number of prisoners and others involved.

Young Offender Institutions: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many assaults on staff there have been at young offender institutions in each of the last 10 years. [148674]

Mr. Hanson: Information from incidents which have been categorised as 'Prisoner on Officer' and 'Prisoner on Other' is provided in the following table.

This may be over-inclusive and contain some assaults on visitors and official visitors. The information is restricted to YOI institutions—it does not include assault data from mixed function establishments—and therefore precludes data from establishments also holding older prisoners as well as all female assault incidents.

Reasonably reliable data for 1997-99 are not centrally available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

TREASURY

Regional Budget Allocations

10. Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to create regional budget allocations. [149017]

Andy Burnham: In July 2005, the Government published 10-year indicative regional finding allocations for English regions outside London amounting to approximately £4 billion per annum, and covering economic development, transport and housing in July 2005.

The Government are conducting a Review of Sub-National Economic Development and Regeneration, which is exploring options for expanding the scope of regional funding allocations.

NHS

11. Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on the NHS hospital building and equipment budget; and if he will make a statement. [149018]

Andy Burnham: I have regular conversations with ministerial colleagues but, as was convention under previous Governments, I will not disclose the specific details of such discussions. However, I can confirm

NHS capital expenditure has grown by over 10 per cent. per year in real terms since 1997-98

We have already replaced almost a third of the acute and general NHS estate since 1997

By 2010, 111 new major hospital schemes will be open (worth £8.5 billion)

Debt Relief

12. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made towards meeting the Government's targets on debt relief; and if he will make a statement. [149021]

Kitty Ussher: Treasury shares a PSA target for the 2005-08 period to ensure that 90 per cent. of the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) countries that had reached Decision Point by end 2005 receive irrevocable debt relief by end 2008. Of the 28 countries concerned, 22 have now completed the HIPC process and we expect to meet our PSA target.

The UK remains committed to the full implementation and financing of the HIPC Initiative to ensure maximum debt relief for the world's poorest countries.

HMRC Office: Central Ayrshire

13. Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effect on the area of the relocation of HM Revenue and Customs office in Central Ayrshire constituency. [149022]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs has more office space than it needs and will be reviewing all its accommodation, including that in central Ayrshire, to match it to future business needs and create significant savings. Its review process includes internal and external consultation on all its proposals, and an assessment of the impact of any office closure on local communities as well as on staff and customers. All Enquiry Centres will be kept in their current localities.

Skills Improvement

14. Mr. Touhig: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the economic impact of expenditure on improving skills in the past three years. [149023]

Angela Eagle: The Government have increased investment in real terms in the Further Education sector by 48 per cent. and in Higher Education Institutions by 20 per cent. between 1997 and 2006. This has supported improvements in the UK's skills base at all levels.

As Lord Leitch set out in his independent report on the UK's long-term skills needs, the increasing skills profile of the UK work force overtime has contributed to economic growth.

Lord Leitch also concluded that a skilled work force is increasingly critical if the UK is to continue to grow and meet global challenges.

Disposable Household Income

15. Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the trend in real disposable household incomes over the last 12 months. [149024]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Lichfield (Michael Fabricant) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Schools

16. Mr. Marsden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the economic impact of expenditure on schools in the last 10 years. [149025]

Andy Burnham: Per pupil expenditure in England has risen from under £2,500 in 1997 to £5,550 today. This has supported a sustained increase in attainment—with 350,000 more children achieving five good GCSEs since 1997.

As Lord Leitch set out in his report on the UK's long-term skills needs, the increasing skills profile of the UK work force over time has contributed to economic growth.

Lord Leitch also concluded that a skilled work force is increasingly critical if the UK is to continue to grow and meet global challenges.

Public Service Agreements

17. Mr. Allen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward proposals for a public service agreement on early intervention with parents and children. [149026]

Andy Burnham: The performance management framework in the CSR07 period will include a set of cross-cutting public service agreements (PSAs) which will articulate Government's highest-priority outcomes for the spending period. These will sit alongside a set of strategic objectives for each Department. Both sets will be published at the comprehensive spending review.

The Government are committed to delivering services for families which focus on prevention and early intervention, as set out in the "Every child matters" programme and most recently confirmed in the children and young people's policy review "Aiming high for children: supporting families" (March 2007), published jointly by the Treasury and the then DfES.

Financial Impact Statements

18. Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce financial impact statements alongside the publication of new taxation proposals. [149027]

Angela Eagle: The estimated financial impacts to the Exchequer of any announced tax changes are shown in table B4 of the pre-Budget report or table A1 of the Budget.

All measures are rigorously assessed and where appropriate we publish Impact Assessments alongside the Finance Bill. Separate financial impact statements are therefore unnecessary. Cabinet Office's launch of the new Impact Assessment process in May demonstrates Government's continued commitment to the transparency of its policy analysis.

Capital Gains Tax

19. Andrew George: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the rules relating to capital gains tax on second homes. [149028]

Jane Kennedy: The Government keep all aspects of the tax system—including the rules relating to capital gains tax and second homes—under review.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people paid capital gains tax in each year since 1996-97. [148563]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the number of payers of capital gains tax in each year from 1996-97 are available in National Statistics table 14.1 on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/capital_gains/menu.htm

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions his Department has had with the Ministry of Defence on the future of the Defence Export Services Organisation. [149321]

Andy Burnham: Treasury Ministers and officials discuss a wide range of issues with organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the likely change in the number of people who will claim tax credits as a result of the abolition of the 10 pence starting rate of income tax in the financial year 2008-09; and if he will make a statement; [149012]

(2) what estimate he has made of the likely change in the number of people who will claim tax credits as a result of the abolition of the 10 pence starting rate of income tax in the financial year 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [149020]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave to the hon. Members for Bournemouth, West (Sir John Butterfill), for Blaby (Mr. Robathan) and for East Dunbartonshire (Jo Swinson) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Tax Allowances: Transport

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken to process tax rebates on mileage allowances was in each region in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [148930]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs does not keep a record of the information requested.

Welfare Tax Credits: Northern Ireland

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Northern Ireland were taken to court for recovery of overpayment of tax credits in each of the last three years. [148987]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Custom's policy is to attempt to make personal contact in all cases before legal proceedings are considered including at least one visit to the last known address of the claimant. HM Revenue and Customs has taken some 1,200 cases to court, as a last resort to secure payment, in Northern Ireland for recovery of tax credit overpayments in year 2006-07. The information requested is not available for earlier years.

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of levels of tax credit customer service in Northern Ireland (a) before and (b) after the removal of the Tax Credit Customer Service Unit; and if he will consider re-establishing the unit. [148994]

Jane Kennedy: Customer service for tax credits is dealt with by a central team enabling HM Revenue and Customs to treat all customers fairly and consistently. The information requested is not available in the format requested but HMRC conduct a satisfaction survey of its customers who telephone the tax credits helplines. In 2006-07 87 per cent. of respondents said they were satisfied or very satisfied with the overall service they received from the helpline.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business Council for Britain

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the estimated cost is of the establishment of the new Business Council for Britain. [147885]

Mr. Timms: A firm estimate of the cost of operating the Business Council for Britain will only be possible following further discussion with its Chair and members regarding the Council's working methods. However, Members will not be paid for their work on the Council and costs will be kept to the minimum consistent with the Council's efficient and effective operation. The cost of supporting the Council, including the operation of its secretariat, will be met from within the Department's agreed budget for the new Comprehensive Spending Review period.

Business: Higher Education

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to encourage closer working between business and universities. [148464]

Mr. Timms: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) will now lead on encouraging links between business and universities. They will build on the successful links established through the Higher Education Innovation Fund and the Technology Programmes while within the Department of Trade and Industry. The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform will liaise closely with DIUS to ensure that business can take full advantage of UK science, research and innovation so that it can compete successfully in the global economy.

Cash Dispensing

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many free-to-use cash machines have been located in the poorest 10 per cent. of wards in the UK. [148888]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

As of December 2006, over 5,700 free ATMs were located in the poorest 10 per cent. of wards in the UK, equivalent to around 17 per cent. of all free ATMs in the UK. On 13 December 2006, the working group on ATMs set up at the instigation of the Treasury found that while most low-income areas are relatively well served by free ATMs, there were a small but significant number of areas without convenient access to free cash withdrawals. The group concluded that around 600 new free ATMs could effectively meet access gaps in these areas.

As announced by my predecessor on 19 June, excellent progress is being made towards this goal of providing over 600 additional free ATMs in low-income areas across the UK, and 56, or 34 per cent. of the 167 new free ATMs already issuing cash to the public are located in the poorest 10 per cent. of the low-income areas identified by the working group.

Departments: Marketing

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the total cost has been of the change from the Department of Trade and Industry to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, broken down by (a) relocation expenses, (b) rebranding expenses on (i) signs, (ii) stationery and (iii) departmental publications and (c) other expenses. [147811]

Mr. Thomas: No relocation expenses have been incurred to date.

No expenditure has yet been incurred on rebranding of signs and stationery. To date the Department has incurred costs of £2,677 on the production of rebranded departmental publications.

Costs of £10,564 have been incurred for graphic design services. Costs of £2,500 have been incurred on updating the Department's publications orderline website.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date a new sign for his building was commissioned. [147813]

Mr. Thomas: The Department commissioned temporary signage on 27 June 2007.

Overseas Trade: Taiwan

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value of (a) UK investment in Taiwan and (b) Taiwan's investment in the UK was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [148363]

Mr. Thomas: The following table shows data for net foreign international investment positions at the end of each year.

£ million

	UK stock of foreign direct investment in Taiwan	Taiwan stock of foreign direct investment in UK
2001	607	231
2002	747	213
2003	642	126
2004	878	157
2005	890	112

Corresponding data for portfolio investment and other investment is not available.

Public Participation: ICT

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to enable consultees to respond to consultations electronically. [148466]

Mr. Thomas: The Department follows guidance contained in the government-wide Code of Practice on Consultation.

BERR consultation documents are made accessible electronically by placing them on the department's website in a single place. The department's consultations include an email address to which consultees can respond electronically.

Some consultations have gone further and introduced innovative ways of enabling responses. A recent example is the current consultation on the future of nuclear power where an interactive website has been set up to allow the submission of consultation responses online.

Regional Development Agencies: Aviation

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many flights to overseas destinations were taken by (a) employees of, (b) board members of and (c) individuals sponsored by the regional development agencies (RDAs) in the last three calendar years, broken down by RDA; and what the total cost was of such flights. [148416]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Trade: European Union

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he plans to take to reduce the UK's trade deficit with the European Union. [147787]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 5 July 2007]: The key to the UK's competitiveness is improving our productivity rather than just our trade balance in itself.

The Government's approach to raising productivity centres on maintaining macro-economic stability so as to provide firms and individuals with the certainty needed to invest in the future, as well as implementing micro-economic reforms to remove barriers that prevent markets from functioning efficiently.

The Government have identified five drivers of productivity—investment, innovation, skills, enterprise, and competition—and a wide-ranging programme of reforms have been initiated to boost productivity in these areas.

Similarly, at the EU level, the UK has been driving the productivity agenda—negotiating to remove barriers to trade, which would make it easier for UK businesses to trade across the EU.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Clergy: Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Police Service of Northern Ireland has received (a) full details and (b) summaries of allegations of child sexual abuse by priests from the Roman Catholic Church. [148549]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by the PSNI that they have received information regarding a number of allegations of historic sexual abuse allegedly committed by priests from the Roman Catholic Church.

This information was handed to PSNI by solicitors acting on behalf of the Roman Catholic Church and the Roman Catholic Church has co-operated fully with PSNI supplying all relevant information which has been required or requested.

An investigation file is currently with the Public Prosecution Service for consideration.

Crime Prevention

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to communicate crime prevention advice to the public in Northern Ireland. [148062]

Paul Goggins: There is a wide range of measures in place to communicate crime prevention advice, both at regional and local levels. The Community Safety Unit of the Northern Ireland Office provides advice, as well as financial support, and works in partnership with other statutory and voluntary organisations to tackle many crime prevention issues. These include domestic burglary, car crime, hate crime, business crime, crimes against older people, antisocial behaviour, illicit drugs, domestic violence and sexual violence. Advice is provided through a variety of mediums including television and radio campaigns, project staff, leaflets, face to face advice and websites.

At a local level, Community Safety Partnerships are located in every district council area throughout Northern Ireland. Each partnership has a published action plan which specifies the crime issues to be addressed in that particular area. They offer advice through local road shows, seminars, community newsletters and targeted leaflets.

PSNI communicates crime prevention advice to the public in many ways. Radio advertisements, posters and billboards are used both by the PSNI and in partnership with the Northern Ireland Office Community Safety Unit. There have also recently been publicity campaigns giving advice on domestic burglary, crimes against older persons and property marking.

PSNI have also made presentations at public meetings on a variety of topics. For example, in Londonderry during May 2007, a presentation was given to more than 70 business owners on preventing Tiger Kidnaps. Likewise, the PSNI participate in a number of groups such as the National Security Inspectorate, the Tobacco and Alcohol group (to give anti-robbery advice for high value loads), Retailers Against Crime In Northern Ireland (dealing with all aspects of crime against the retail community) and Northern Ireland Bankers Association (cash in transit robberies, kidnap or robbery of bank staff and counterfeit currency).

PSNI also recently staged a theft from a vehicle, which was filmed for local television news, to highlight ways to secure against the theft of Satellite Navigation Systems.

In addition, PSNI Crime Prevention Officers frequently attend public events such as the recent Young at Heart exhibition at the Kings Hall (for older persons) and the Seagate Young Innovators exhibition at the Odyssey (for school children). They also hand out advice leaflets (both Home Office and locally produced material) at many public events, from local Farming Shows to the North West 200 motorcycle race event.

Crime prevention advice is provided to children as part of the Citizenship and Safety Education Programme (CASE) in schools and they can also get advice from the website owned by PSNI Community Safety Branch.

PSNI Crime Prevention Officers are available to attend homes and businesses on request to give specific advice.

PSNI Crime Prevention Branch purchases and gives away a variety of security products. In 2007-08 to date this has included 9,000 personal attack alarms for nursing and health care staff and 10,000 Ultra Violet property marking pens as well as various promotional items to guide the public to websites giving advice on various crime issues.

PSNI also promote the ACPO Secured by Design Scheme, both by involvement with architects, town planners and local council Planning and Building Control Departments and by advertising in trade journals and local magazines.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in his Department have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) inappropriate use of the internet while at work and (ii) using work telephones to access premium rate telephone numbers in the last 12 months. [149187]

Paul Goggins: Within the Northern Ireland Office, one member of staff has been disciplined within the last 12 months and one member of staff is currently being served with disciplinary proceedings in relation to inappropriate use of the internet while at work.

No staff have been dismissed for inappropriate use of the internet while at work within the last 12 months.

No staff have been disciplined or dismissed for using work telephones to access premium rate numbers in the last 12 months.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 515W, on Departments: official hospitality, from which external customers the sum of £184,000 was recouped in 2006-07; and for what reason the amount recouped increased by £95,000 from the previous year. [146804]

Paul Goggins: The previous answer referred to of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 515W, inadvertently stated that £184,000 was recouped from external customers. In fact, this money was recouped from both external and internal customers. In 2005-06, £80,000 was recouped from external customers and £9,000 from internal customers. (In 2006-07, £149,000 was recouped from external customers and £35,000 from internal customers).

In addition to its own use, the NIO permits a wide range of organisations to use the facilities at Hillsborough Castle for a variety of events. These organisations include; other NI Government Departments, the Prison Service, the Police Service, the armed services, and a variety of charitable organisations—all of whom are charged for the services they receive.

The Department also charges external and internal customers for services they receive at Stormont house.

The number of events and the cost of putting on those events will determine the amount recouped from customers. These two factors will have contributed to the rise in recoupment between 2005-06 and 2006-07.

A detailed list of the individual events and their costs could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Drugs: Misuse

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to combat illegal drug use in Northern Ireland. [148060]

Paul Goggins: Illegal drug use in Northern Ireland is being addressed on a number of fronts. The New Strategic Direction for Alcohol and Drugs (2006-11) provided an overarching strategy. In parallel, PSNI and other law enforcement agencies in Northern Ireland are delivering significant results at an operational level. Last year, in addition to seizing over £22 million of drugs, the number of arrests for drug offences rose by almost 20 per cent. from 1,419 to 1,726.

Through the Organised Task Force, the PSNI work closely with HMRC and SOCA on an international and national basis to tackle the menace of drugs. In addition, the Assets Recovery Agency have successfully frozen assets believed to have been obtained through profit from drug dealing. Excellent cross border relations exist on this issue with An Garda Siochana.

Tackling drug misuse continues to be a priority. The Criminal Justice Directorate of the Northern Ireland Office and the NI Prison Service fund a range of statutory and voluntary sector organisations to deliver drug treatment services to offenders.

Police: Crimes Against the Person

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what recent measures have been put in place to protect police officers from assault; [148056]

(2) how many incidents of assault or abuse of police officers were reported in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; how many such incidents involved the use of knives; and what steps are being taken to reduce such incidents. [148059]

Paul Goggins: The safety of police officers is a primary consideration for the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

Measures to protect police officers from assault form part of the ongoing development of equipment and tactics undertaken by the PSNI in consultation with the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Home Office.

Operational officers receive personal safety training on a regular basis, the content of which reflects their role and this training is reviewed in line with both local and national trends. Recent developments include training in the skills required for single officer patrolling.

Officer personal safety training includes tactics in the early resolution of conflict through effective verbal communication, the use of unarmed skills, batons, incapacitant spray and handcuffs, all of which assist in improving officer safety when policing violent or potentially violent situations.

Officers are issued with dual-purpose body armour, commonly referred to as stab vests, and a training package, designed to protect officers from an attacker in possession of an edged weapon, is being delivered to operational officers throughout the PSNI.

The PSNI have provided the following data relating to the number of such offences where the victim is a member of the Police Service.

Offences against the person where the victim is a member of the Police Service

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Total number of offences	2,210	2,191	2,325	2,699	2,928
Number of offences involving a knife	11	6	11	16	7

Notes:
1. The figures relate to offences where the victim is described as a member of the Police Service; they do not specifically relate to police officers on duty. They include abuse of a verbal nature where this is deemed serious enough to constitute a criminal offence. Obstructing and resisting police offences are excluded from the figures as from 1 April 2003, they are no longer counted within the recorded crime series.
2. Please note that these figures are based on operational police data and as such are provisional and may be subject to revision.

Prisoners: Mentally Ill

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps have been taken to improve the facilities in prisons for prisoners with mental health problems. [148063]

Paul Goggins: The nature of mental disorder experienced by prisoners varies considerably from mild anxiety to severe psychiatric disorders. As in the community, prisoners are encouraged to take as much control as possible over their own care and in the main, prisoners will remain in normal location and be treated and supported by healthcare professionals including psychiatrists and mental health trained nurses. Prisoners who are diagnosed with a severe psychiatric disorder will be transferred to hospital under the provisions of the Mental Health (NI) Order 1986.

A small number of in-patient places are available within the healthcare unit in Maghaberry Prison for those who require assessment, stabilisation or who are awaiting transfer to hospital. A small residential unit has recently been opened in Maghaberry for prisoners with complex needs, including personality disorders. Furthermore, consideration is being given to the possibility of developing a therapeutic unit for prisoners with addiction problems.

It is planned that the lead responsibility for the provision of healthcare services to prisoners will transfer to the health service in October 2007. The provision of mental health services has been recognised as a priority issue and if the new arrangements identify the need for improvements to facilities for prisoners with mental health disorders, where possible, steps will be taken to introduce the improvements.

Rape

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what resources his Department has made available for the education of women on how to protect themselves from rape. [148061]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office is playing a supporting role in an initiative led by the Department for Health, Social Services and Public Safety to combat sexual violence. The Department for Health, Social Services and Public Safety is leading the prevention and support aspect of the initiative, which involves measures to better enable women to protect themselves from rape.

In addition PSNI is also committed to adopting a pro-active multi-agency approach to tackling sexual violence, and to making resources available wherever possible. PSNI is currently working in partnership with Women's Aid, Northern Ireland to enhance the education of women in how to protect themselves from sexual assault.

It has long been recognised that serious sexual offences are often part of domestic violence, either against a current or previous intimate partner. Police officers attend various Women's Aid, Community-based advocacy and outreach services providing practical advice and support to those present regarding personal safety.

Also, given the number of licensed premises across Northern Ireland, particularly in city centres, and with alcohol misuse contributing at times to incidents of sexual assault, various initiatives such as the 'Get Home Safe' campaign, the issuing of personal alarms in certain areas, and the ongoing advice provided by PSNI Crime Prevention Officers have all contributed to educating women in relation to their personal safety.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the (a) Armed Forces, (b) Army, (c) Royal Navy and (d) RAF (i) were deployed on operations in 1997 and (ii) are deployed on operations currently. [148236]

Des Browne: Comparable figures are not available for 1997.

The percentage of Personnel deployed on Operations by Service as at 1 May 2007 is in the following table.

Percentage deployed

	Provisional figures[1]
Naval Service	4
Army	17
RAF	7
Total	12

[1] Due to the introduction of a new joint personnel administration system (JPA) Naval Service and RAF trained strength data at 1 May 2007 are provisional and subject to review and Army data for 1 April and 1 May 2007 are not currently available.

Strength figures used in the above calculations are as at 1 May 2007 (Naval Service and RAF) and 1 March 2007 (Army) and comprise Trained UK Regular Forces only.

Deployment figures are as at 11 May 2007 (Op Banner) and 30 April 2007 (all other Operations) and comprise all UK Service Personnel in theatre (Regulars and Reserves). All deployment figures exclude Special Forces.

Theatres included comprise of Telic, Herrick, Banner, Oculus, GCT & UN Operations in Cyprus, Nepal, Georgia, Democratic Republic of Congo, Liberia, Sudan and Sierra Leone.

BAE Systems

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what topics were discussed at the meeting between Mike Turner, the Chief Executive of BAE Systems, and Lord Drayson, the Defence Procurement Minister, on 26 June; at what time this meeting (a) started and (b) ended; who requested the meeting; and if he will make a statement. [148376]

Des Browne: Lord Drayson chaired a meeting of the National Defence Industries Council on 26 June at which the Chief Executive of BAE Systems was present. The meeting started at 10 am and was concluded at 12 noon. The National Defence Industries Council meets regularly bringing together Ministers, senior officials and representatives from the defence industry. They discuss a range of topics of mutual interest.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of sick leave taken by staff in his Department was stress-related in each of the last three years. [145971]

Derek Twigg: The table shows the percentage of sick leave that was stress related taken by staff in his Department for each of the last three years.

We require our managers to assess the risk of stress, using the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) standards and best practice guidance. To better assess the risks we have recently worked with HSE and our trades' unions to pilot the HSE stress management package in several areas in the Department. Guidance for MOD on using the package will be rolled out during the summer.

Percentage of worker sickness absence that was stress related for civil servants in the Ministry of Defence calendar years 2004, 2005 and 2006

	Percentage
2006[1,3]	19.4
2005[1,3]	18.3
2004[2,3]	17.1

[1] Percentage listed is based on the Cabinet Office definition for sickness absence working days lost. This Cabinet Office definition excludes annual leave allowance and bank holidays, and caps FTE sickness absence days across a year to a maximum of 225 days. Recording of absence data against this revised definition has only been carried out since calendar year 2005.

[2] Percentage listed is based on standardisation technique for sickness absence working days lost. This Standardisation technique involved adjusting unreasonably long absence lengths and removing obviously incorrect records.

[3] Excludes Ministry of Defence staff in Trading Funds and Royal Fleet Auxiliaries.

Explosions: Compensation

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many awards of compensation were paid for damage to property caused by explosions at Shoeburyness to residents living in (a) Maldon

District, (b) Chelmsford Borough, (c) Rochford District, (d) Colchester Borough, (e) Tendring District, (f) Southend on Sea, (g) Castlepoint District and (h) Kent in each year since 1995; [148151]

(2) how many claims for compensation were received for damage to property caused by explosions at Shoeburyness from residents living in (a) Maldon District, (b) Chelmsford Borough, (c) Rochford District, (d) Colchester Borough, (e) Tendring District, (f) Southend on Sea, (g) Castlepoint District and (h) Kent in each year since 1995. [148152]

Derek Twigg: Records on compensation are routinely destroyed after six years and information is only available from 2001. However, it is known that there have been no payments made since November 2004.

Available information for the period 2001-04 has to be collated from a number of sources within the Ministry of Defence. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as that information is available and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Exservicemen: Disabled

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel are on the waiting list for a redress of their veterans disability entitlements. [148344]

Derek Twigg: Under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme there are two options available for armed forces personnel who are dissatisfied with the decision made on their claim.

They can ask Service Personnel and Veterans Agency to look at the decision again—this is called reconsideration. As at 30 June 2007 there were 48 cases awaiting completion of which 27 were from serving armed forces personnel.

They can appeal to the Pensions Appeal Tribunal, which is independent of the MOD. As at 30 June 2007 there were 43 cases awaiting appeal hearings of which 20 were from serving armed forces personnel.

Ex-servicemen: Radiation Exposure

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the possible obligations the Government have to nuclear test veterans under the EU Directive Euratom 96/29. [148288]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 9 July 2007]: A resolution of the EU Parliament of 10 May 2007 called on member states to apply European Council Directive 96/29/Euratom on safety standards relating to ionising radiation. It is not legally binding, and the clearly stated position of this Government is that Euratom has no application to UK defence activities.

The UK Government, none the less, recognise their obligations to veterans of the UK nuclear tests. In particular, they have since 1983 commissioned three reports from the independent National Radiological Protection Board on possible adverse health effects of participation in these tests. These found no general effect on participants' expectation of life nor on risk of developing most cancers, though there was a small increase in risk of some leukaemias. The outcome of these studies is reflected in the MOD's handling of claims under the War Pension and Armed Forces Compensation Schemes.

Military Police: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the approved complement is of Ministry of Defence police at Colchester Garrison; and what plans he has to change this complement. [146280]

Derek Twigg: The approved complement of Ministry of Defence police (MDP) at Colchester Garrison is:

1 x Inspector

5 x Sergeants

16 x Constables

These figures do not include Criminal Investigation Department Officers who are not part of the MDP complement at Colchester Garrison and not funded by Land Command. They are based in Colchester for administrative convenience and are responsible for investigating crime on defence estates in East Anglia.

The Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency (MDPGA) has recently conducted a complementing review to validate HQ Land Command proposals to rebalance Ministry of Defence police assets across its defence estate. Once Land Command and the MDPGA have agreed the way ahead the local community, Trade Unions and staff associations will be consulted. Once this process is completed I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Trident

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated ongoing in-service costs are of the Trident replacement over its 30 year life span how much is accounted for by (a) facilities and revenue costs at Aldermaston, (b) new missiles required to carry the warheads, (c) Military Defence Police (MDP) costs for guarding (i) Aldermaston, (ii) Burghfield and (iii) Coulport and (d) MDP costs for escorting the convoys; and if he will make a statement. [147835]

Des Browne: As paragraph 5-14 of the White Paper: 'The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent' (column 6994) makes clear, in-service costs of the UK's nuclear deterrent, including the costs of the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE), will on average be around five to six per cent., of the defence budget once the proposed fleet of replacement SSBNs comes into service. Further information on the costs of replacing the Trident D5 missile and the costs of the AWE are included in paragraphs 5-11 and 5-13 of the White Paper respectively. The future costs of the Ministry of Defence Police for guarding Aldermaston, Burghfield and Coulport and for escorting nuclear convoys, which are included in the in-service cost mentioned above, are expected to be similar to today however, it is too early to provide a precise estimate.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what incentives he has considered to encourage staff in his Department to use public transport. [148798]

Margaret Hodge: The main incentives that the Department for Culture, Media and Sport offers are interest free loans to purchase season tickets for road/rail transport and purchase of bicycles for travel to work.

Use of public transport is encouraged by Departmental policies, including providing links to major travel and rail operators on our intranet site.

Football Association: World Cup

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what occasions (a) he or his predecessor, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) representatives of his Department met the Football Association to discuss an English bid for the 2018 World Cup (i) before the feasibility study by the Treasury and his Department into holding the World Cup in England began, (ii) while the study was in progress; and what such meetings have taken place since the study was completed. [148964]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Bidding to host a future World Cup is not a decision for Government but for the relevant football authorities. Ministers and representatives of this Department have not met with the Football Association (FA) to discuss an English bid for the 2018 World Cup. However, representatives of HM Treasury, this Department and the FA met on a number of occasions during the feasibility study to consult and discuss emerging issues. Since publication of the report my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) in his capacity as the Prime Minister's World Cup ambassador, has met the FA on a number of occasions to discuss circumstances relating to a potential FA bid for the World Cup.

Gambling: Advertising

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what restrictions are to be put in place to prevent advertisements promoting gambling-related activities during children's television viewing hours. [148536]

James Purnell: The Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice (BCAP) has published a new code for gambling advertisers which puts in place strict controls to prohibit gambling advertising during or around children's programmes or programmes commissioned for, principally directed at or likely to appeal particularly to audiences below the age of 18. The new rules will be regulated by the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) and come into effect on 1 September.

National Lottery: Grants

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications the Heritage Lottery Fund has received for projects that are run by (a) not-for-profit organisations and (b) all other organisations in each year since 1997. [148585]

Margaret Hodge: The number of applications received by the Heritage Lottery Fund that are run by not-for-profit and all other organisations per annum since 1997 are detailed in the following table.

Applications received by the Heritage Lottery Fund

Financial year	Not-for-profit[1]	Other[2]

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many grants have been awarded by the Heritage Lottery Fund to projects that are run by (a) not-for-profit organisations and (b) all other organisations in each year since 1997. [148586]

Margaret Hodge: The number of grants awarded by the Heritage Lottery Fund that are run by not-for-profit, and all other organisations per annum since 1997 are detailed in the following table.

Projects that have received funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund

Financial year	Not-for-profit[1]	Other[2]

2004-05	3,018	590

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what verification process is used for projects that make applications to the Heritage Lottery Fund to assess the accuracy of (a) business plans and (b) budgets before awarding funding to a project; and if he will make a statement. [148587]

Margaret Hodge: Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) assesses business plans against key elements specified in its published guidance. These include relevance of the project to the aims of the applicant organisation, an analysis of the market for the project, financial appraisal, management structure, assessment of risks to the project and systems for monitoring and evaluating the project.

Project budgets and financial information are assessed by a variety of measures including: the accuracy of cost breakdowns; the identification of eligible costs; calculation and identification of fees, contingencies, inflation and VAT; eligibility and accuracy of identified sunk costs and voluntary contributions; partnership and other funding secured; and the ability of the applicant to meet any funding shortfalls.

The level of detail required for business plans and budgets in applications to the Heritage Lottery Fund depends on the size of grant applied for.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the level of priority that the Heritage Lottery Fund gives to funding of private sector projects. [148588]

Margaret Hodge: Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) trustees determine priorities subject to the broad policy directions set by Government. HLF policy is to award grants to private owners where public benefit outweighs private gain.

The Commons Select Committee in its report 'Protecting and Preserving Our Heritage' supported this approach.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what criteria the Heritage Lottery Fund uses to assess the viability of projects that have already received (a) public funding, (b) private funding and (c) Heritage Lottery Fund funding when considering applications for additional funding; and if he will make a statement. [148590]

Margaret Hodge: Heritage Lottery Fund assesses requests for additional funding (grant increases) by appraising the additional sum requested against the following criteria:

evidence that the costs relate to unforeseen and unforeseeable extra works; that the costs faced are genuinely outside the grantee's control;

that the approved purposes of the project remain materially the same;

that the project still represents value for money; and that the additional costs can not be met from other sources.

This assessment process is applied to all applications.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which providers will deliver support and advice to recently parted parents on making private arrangements for child maintenance; and if he will make a statement. [146689]

Mr. Plaskitt: It is not yet possible to identify who will provide the information and support service as the commissioning process has not yet started.

Chronically Sick: Employment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to bring forward provisions to strengthen the legal rights of people with (a) rheumatoid arthritis and (b) other chronic health conditions in the workplace. [147836]

Mrs. McGuire: We have no plans to extend the employment provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, as we have already fulfilled our commitment to put in place a comprehensive set of enforceable civil rights for disabled people. In particular, we extended and improved the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 from 1 October 2004 to bring all small employers and previously excluded occupations, except service in the armed forces, within the scope of employment provisions of the Act.

For a disabled person to benefit from the protection provided by the Disability Discrimination Act, they must meet the Act's definition of a disabled person. In general, the Act defines a disabled person as someone who has a physical or mental impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on their ability to carry out day-to-day activities. Someone with rheumatoid arthritis or a chronic health condition is protected by the Act if their condition meets this definition.

Incapacity Benefit: Assessments

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of his Department's progress in improving the adequacy of medical reports following recommendations made by the Committee of Public Accounts in its 27th Report of Session 2001-02. [147816]

Mrs. McGuire: Considerable progress has been made since the Public Accounts Committee's report. The current contractor for medical services is ATOS Healthcare, and the contract for the provision of medical services now includes revised targets to help improve the quality of the medical reports as well as speed of response.

Training for the doctors involved has been improved and quality assurance arrangements have been enhanced. An IT system for the provision of evidence-based reports has been implemented. Sub-standard reports are returned to the contractor for rework. In addition, changes have now been made to legislation to allow for health care professionals, not just doctors, to carry out medical examinations, produce reports and to give advice across the range of disability benefits.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of public companies with underfunded company pension schemes. [149011]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Estimating the number of public companies with underfunded defined benefit company pension schemes is complicated by several factors. Identification of the sponsoring company is not straightforward since many schemes will be directly connected to a subsidiary or holding company. In addition not only are valuations (and therefore deficits) calculated in different ways, they are not calculated frequently. Changes in the economic climate such as those we are seeing at the moment also alter the funding situation of schemes to a large degree.

In December 2006, the Pensions Regulator and the Pension Protection Fund produced aggregate funding figures based on a group of defined benefit schemes in their joint publication 'The Purple Book'. While these figures do not cover every defined benefit scheme they are representative. This detailed publication can be found in the House of Commons Library and on the Pensions Regulator's website at:

Pensions: Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average proportion of (a) expected and (b) core pension being received is for people who have begun to receive their full-entitled payments under the Financial Assistance Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [148601]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 6 July 2007, 247 people are receiving annual payments which top up the actual pension paid through an annuity from their pension scheme to at least 80 per cent. of their expected core pension subject to a cap of £12,000 per annum. A further 1,079 people are receiving initial payments at 60 per cent. of their expected core pension, which subject to Royal Assent of the current Pensions Bill will be increased to 80 per cent.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of people eligible for initial payments, and whose pension scheme trustees have applied for initial payments, received such payments in each month since the scheme began operating; and if he will make a statement. [148248]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 29 June 2007, the Financial Assistance Scheme Operational Unit (FASOU) has assessed all eligible members for whom the scheme trustees have provided acceptable data and has paid all members who have confirmed their personal details.

The following table reflects the cumulative number of members in receipt of Initial and Annual Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS) payments from December 2005 until June 2007. The FASOU does not hold the requested information regarding the number of members in receipt of an initial payment as a proportion of those eligible for initial payments.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people over the age of 65 years have died while their pension scheme has been going through (a) the qualification process for the Financial Assistance Scheme (FAS) and (b) the qualification process to receive initial payments under the FAS; and if he will make a statement. [148249]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Financial Assistance Scheme Operational Unit (FASOU) does not hold this information.

Personal Accounts

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what analysis has been undertaken of the impact on future means-tested benefit entitlement for people on low incomes who save through his Department's personal account pension initiative. [146551]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department for Work and Pensions has undertaken extensive analysis on the impact of the proposed pension reforms on future entitlement to means-tested benefits and the interaction of these benefits with personal accounts. Such analysis has been presented in Projections of Pension Credit Entitlement, Financial Incentives to Save and the Regulatory Impact Assessment for the Pensions Bill.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the number of children in lower-income

Beverley Hughes: The 2004-05 Childcare Survey showed that there were 614,000 children in lower income working families using formal childcare[1].

By 2008, the Department aims to increase the number of children in lower-income working families using formal childcare by 120,000 children from the 2004-05 baseline. This forms part of the PSA target to 'Safeguard children and young people, improve their life outcomes and general well-being, and break cycles of deprivation' and will contribute to achieving this target by helping to reduce the proportion of children living in households where no one is working.

The figures showing progress towards this target will be available in September 2007 when the results of the 2007 Childcare Survey will be published.

Children: Unemployed

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of young children (a) in each Sure Start Local Programme area and (b) in England lived in households in which no-one was working in the latest period for which figures are available. [149236]

Beverley Hughes: Research published in June 2007 'Changes in the Characteristics of Sure Start Local Programme Areas between 2000-01 and 2004-05'[1] showed that, over the study period, there was a greater reduction in the SSLP areas compared to England in: (i) the percentage of children under four years living in workless households; (ii) the percentage in households in receipt of Job Seeker's Allowance; (iii) the percentage in households in receipt of income support; and (iv) the overall percentage of working age adults receiving income support.

The average proportion of children under four living in workless households in SSLP areas dipped just below 40 per cent. in 2004-05, having started out at 45 per cent. in 2000-01. One third were living in a household in receipt of income support in 2004-05, down from 39 per cent. These levels were still higher than the average rates for England as a whole (22 per cent. of children under four living in workless households and 18 per cent. in households receiving income support) but did show significant improvement.

Financial Services: Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on his Department's plans to improve financial literacy in schools. [149121]

Beverley Hughes: It is important that all young people have access to good personal finance education, so that they leave school with the skills and confidence to manage their money well.

The recent HM Treasury strategy 'Financial Capability: the Government's long-term approach' set out a series of actions to improve financial capability in schools. This includes introducing a new, dedicated programme of study entitled 'Economic Well Being' as part of a revised curriculum for Personal, Social, Health and Economic (PSHE) education; publishing updated guidance for schools on the teaching of personal finance education; providing more support for teachers, by developing an extension module on financial capability within the PSHE continuous professional development programme; and developing curriculum materials to support the introduction of additional Child Trust Fund payments to seven-year-olds in 2009.

In addition, from 2010 we are introducing functional mathematics to the maths GCSE, which means that all pupils who achieve a grade C or above will have mastered the basics. We are also making £60 million funding available to secondary schools each year between 2005-06 and 2010-11 to provide a new focus on enterprise activity for pupils at key stage 4. Enterprise education helps young people to be creative and innovative and to take and manage risks with determination and drive, and is closely linked to financial capability in the school curriculum.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the future of the Learning and Skills Council. [149136]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The machinery of government changes announced last week are designed to sharpen the Government's focus on the new and very different challenges that Britain will face in the years ahead. Great strides have been made in all aspects of education and skills over the past few years. But the significant challenges posed by the future demand new approaches.

To provide strong strategic leadership for the 14-19 phase overall planning responsibilities for that phase will transfer to the Department for Children, Schools and Families as will all funding for 14-19 learners with the exception of that for apprenticeships. Subject to consultation on the details and timing, to ensure there is no disruption to schools, colleges and training providers and the introduction of new diplomas, and the need to pass the necessary legislation, funding for school sixth forms, sixth form colleges and the contribution of FE colleges to the 14-19 phase will transfer from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to local authorities' ring-fenced education budgets.

To implement these changes for 14-19 policy and funding, we will need new legislation. As noted above, there will be consultation on the details and timing of the changes. In the short term, the LSC therefore remains responsible in law for the allocation of funds to all forms of post-16 education and training outside of higher education. The LSC has demonstrated in recent years a powerful focus on delivery and an excellent record in the management of public funds. In the interests of learners, schools and colleges, continuing that high performance will remain essential as we work through to the new organisational arrangements. The LSC will have a central role to play in managing the transition successfully.

The new Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) will lead work to deliver the Government's long-term vision to make Britain one of the best places in the world for science, research and innovation. It will also lead work to ensure that the nation has the skilled workforce it needs to compete in the global economy. In relation to post-19 education and training, we will consider, and consult on, the best way of delivering all of those functions and services that are necessary to support the FE sector and to achieve our skills ambitions. That will build on and sustain the progress made with the LSC over recent years in developing a demand-led approach that meets the needs of employers and learners, particularly through the successful Train to Gain programme.

In taking forward these changes, we will work closely with the LSC and other national partners along with schools, colleges and training providers, to ensure the changes are well managed and sustain institutional autonomy. We will take the opportunity to review how the funding and accountability framework can best support initiative and high performance both at institutional level and across the FE sector as a whole.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in Bournemouth are under special measures; and how long this has been the case in each instance. [148545]

Jim Knight: There is currently one school in the Bournemouth local authority that requires special measures. This is Townsend Primary and Nursery School which has been in this Ofsted category since November 2005.

Students: Loans

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the projected cost of all previous and proposed student loan sales to the public purse over their lifetime with respect to (a) interest subsidies and (b) the difference in cost between purchasing the loans by third parties and the face value of the loans. [147267]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

We are at the early stages of implementing the Budget announcement to sell income-contingent student loans. Further details will be announced in due course. Meanwhile we are confident that the Government will obtain good value for money, as it is obliged to do by rules of Government accounting.

In 1998, the Government received £1 billion for the sale of student loans with a face value of £1.02 billion. In 1999, the Government received £1 billion for the sale of student loans with a face value of £1.03 billion. These are figures for the UK as a whole, as loans administration had not then been devolved.

Over the lifetime of the loans, the total gross payments of interest and other subsidies to the debt owners, in respect of loans made to English and Welsh domiciled students, is estimated at £635 million in 1998/99 net present value (NPV) terms. After deducting the interest subsidy costs, which the Government would still have incurred if the loans had not been sold, the estimated net lifetime costs of the sale for interest and other subsidies are £125 million in 1998/99 NPV terms. This assumes the current relevant Treasury discount rate of 3.5 per cent.

The discount rate at the time of the sales was 6.0 per cent. Using this rate would have resulted in future cash flows having lesser value, which would have made the sales more attractive to the Government. The estimated total gross payments of interest and other subsidies would have been £545 million, with a net estimated lifetime saving of £130 million. The actual final cost/saving will depend on the performance of the sold loans over their remaining life.

Note:

All figures are quoted in respect of England and Wales unless otherwise stated.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18-year-olds were not in education employment or training, broken down by (i) parliamentary constituency, (ii) local education authority and (iii) region in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [147034]

Beverley Hughes: The Department's estimate of the number and proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) cannot be disaggregated to regional or local authority level. However, we can give an indication of the number of 16, 17 and 18-year-olds NEET from data provided by Connexions services, and this is given in the following table.

Data provided by Connexions services are used to set and monitor local authority NEET targets. However, it should be noted that figures are calculated on a different basis from that used in the Department's estimates, and therefore do not give the same totals.

Information cannot be broken down by parliamentary constituency, nor is it available at local authority level and age before 2005.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Degrees

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what additional student numbers were awarded for (a) foundation degrees and (b) honours degrees in each of the last five years, broken down by educational institution. [147932]

Bill Rammell: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries.

Degrees: Gender

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the non-completion rates were for (a) female full-time students studying for first degrees, (b) female part-time students and (c) male full-time students studying for first degrees, broken down by qualification on entry in the last period for which figures are available. [148121]

Bill Rammell: Projected non-completion rates are released by the Higher Education Statistics Agency

(HESA) each year within the Performance Indicators in Higher Education publication. The latest available non-completion projections are shown in table 1.

The 2004-05 figure will be released by HESA on 19th July 2007. These non-completion rates are not available broken down by gender or entry qualification. Drop-out is more likely to occur during the first year of higher education. The performance indicators also include non-continuation rates, which show the proportion of entrants who are not detected in higher education after their first year. The latest available non-continuation rates are shown in table 2.

Degrees: Social Structure

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of people aged (a) 18, (b) 19, (c) 20, (d) 21 to 24, (e) 25 to 30 and (f) over 30-years-old from each socio-economic group were in higher education in each year since 1997. [148161]

Bill Rammell: The Full-time Young Participation by Socio-Economic Class (FYPSEC) measure shows the proportion of English-domiciled people aged 18-20 from the top three and bottom four socio-economic classes who have participated for the first time in full-time higher education at UK Higher Education Institutions and English Further Education Colleges. A student's socio-economic class is based on his/her higher-earning parent's occupation. The latest available figures are shown in the table:

FYPSEC: 2002/03 to 2005/06

	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05	2005/06
NS-SEC 1-3	44.6	41.5	41.5	43.3
NS-SEC 4-7	17.6	17.9	17.7	19.9

It should be noted that a significant proportion of students are from unknown socio-economic backgrounds. The FYPSEC measure uses postcode as a proxy for those with unknown socio-economic class in order to make an informed estimate of their social background. The figures quoted above therefore reflect information collected by UCAS through the application process and an estimate, based on postcode, for those where the information is not provided at application. Further information on the measure is available in the following research report:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/research/data/uploadfiles/RR806.pdf

Figures are not available for earlier years than 2002/03 because the National Statistics socio-economic classification was introduced in 2001, and was not obtained for higher education students until 2002/03.

Figures are not available for people over the age of 20 because the coverage of the socio-economic class data for older people is relatively low. Figures are not available for part-time students because they do not apply through UCAS and as such their socio-economic class is not recorded during their application process.

Departments: EU Law

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will list the draft legislation under discussion at EU level pertaining to his Department; and what the current status is of each item. [148218]

Bill Rammell: The following items of draft legislation pertaining to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills are currently being discussed at EU level:

Proposal for a Recommendation of the European Parliament and of the Council on the establishment of the European Qualifications Framework for lifelong learning. A General Approach was agreed by Education Council on 15 November 2006; political agreement with European Parliament is expected at Education Council on 15-16 November 2007.

A General Approach is expected to be agreed at Education Council on 15-16 November 2007.

Proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and Council establishing the European Institute of Technology. A General Approach was agreed by Competitiveness Council on 25 June 2007.

An exchange of views is expected at the September Competitiveness Council.

Education: Prisoners

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will assess the merits of giving prisoners access to virtual classroom technology; and if he will make a statement. [147351]

Mr. Lammy: "Reducing Re-offending Through Skills and Employment: Next Steps", published jointly by the former Department for Education and Skills, the Home Office and the Department for Work and Pensions in December 2006 gave a clear commitment to improve the use of technology in delivering teaching and learning to offenders in custody, as well as offering more widespread access to ICT qualifications.

Two test bed regions—the West Midlands and the East of England—will take forward implementation of the programme of action set out in the Next Steps document from this summer, supported by £500,000 of development funding I am making available.

Educational Institutions: Sustainable Development

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when the rules relating to capital funding announced in the Learning and Skills Council news release issue 411 came into force. [147492]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council has advised that the criteria relating to capital funding announced in its news release issue 411 will be in force by September 2007.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what criteria have to be fulfilled by a further education college applying to receive the additional 5 per cent. of building costs for sustainable development announced in Learning and Skills Council news release 411; and whether this funding is in addition to the cost allowance of up to 10 per cent. available for addressing sustainability issues as detailed in paragraph 6.3 of the Learning and Skills capital handbook. [147493]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) has advised that the total allowance available to further education colleges for addressing sustainability issues is 10 per cent. of net building cost, as detailed in paragraph 6.3 of the LSC's capital handbook. To qualify for LSC capital funds, all proposals are required to address sustainable development by meeting a number of criteria:

Meeting, and preferably exceeding, the requirements of part L of the Building Regulations.

Ensuring that completed development meets the criteria to achieve at least 'very good' Building Research Establishment Environmental Assessment Method (BREEAM) ratings. From September this year a rating of 'excellent' will be mandatory.

Maximising the use of natural lighting, ventilation and rainwater.

Embedding the principles of sustainability in the design of buildings and building systems.

The criteria that further education colleges have to fulfil in order to receive the additional 10 per cent. cost allowance are not formally specified. Colleges are instead asked to provide a sustainability statement listing the elements of the proposed project which address the sustainability agenda. The statement should include how the proposed design addresses sustainability issues outside the remit of current building regulations. The college should also identify the specific costs of those elements of the building.

Further Education: Leeds

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has, following the restructuring of the Learning and Skills Council, to ensure there is sufficient Government expenditure on post-16 year old skills training within the Leeds West constituency; and if he will make a statement. [148675]

Bill Rammell: As set out in 'Machinery of Government: Departmental Organisation', to provide strong strategic leadership for the 14-19 phase overall planning responsibilities for that phase will transfer to the Department for Children, Schools and Families as will all funding for 14-19 learners with the exception of that for apprenticeships. Subject to consultation on the details and timing, to ensure there is no disruption to schools, colleges and training providers and the introduction of new diplomas, and the need to pass the necessary legislation, funding for school sixth forms, sixth form colleges and the contribution of FE colleges to the 14-19 phase will transfer from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to local authorities' ring-fenced education budgets.

In relation to post-19 education and training, we will consider, and consult on, the best way of delivering all of those functions and services that are necessary to support the FE sector and to achieve our skills ambitions. That will build on and sustain the progress made with the LSC over recent years in developing a demand-led approach that meets the needs of employers and learners, particularly through the successful Train to Gain programme.

Higher Education: China

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many English universities have campuses in (a) China and (b) India. [149201]

Bill Rammell: I am aware of two English universities with campuses in China. There are none in India since foreign providers are not currently permitted to set up there. There are of course many institutions with partnership arrangements with their counterparts in both China and India. DIUS is working with the devolved administrations to conduct a survey of UK higher education institutions that will show the scale and pattern of overseas provision by domestic institutions including which institutions have campuses in other countries. The survey is currently in the field and first results are expected to be available in September 2007.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much Learning and Skills Council funding there was for non-prescribed higher education courses in each of the last 10 years. [149094]

Bill Rammell: Over the last 10 years, we have increased total funding for higher education by over 20 per cent. in real terms and now spend £10 billion a year, although the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and the Higher Education Funding Council for England are responsible for the distribution of funding to support different courses. Both organisations have made important contributions to developing effective progression pathways for people looking to continue learning beyond level 3 either through further or higher education and are working together to assess the issues relating to the current funding of higher level skills provision.

The LSC is generally responsible for funding non-prescribed HE courses in FE colleges. Information on the funding for non-prescribed higher education courses is not currently available.

Research: Finance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans his Department has to maintain the dual-support system. [149491]

Bill Rammell: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister informed the House on 28 June 2007, Official Report, column 36WS, the Government have no plans to change the current dual support arrangements for the public funding of research.

Skilled Workers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which 10 sectors of employment have the greatest acknowledged skills shortage; and what the manpower shortfall is in each case. [148204]

Bill Rammell: The 2005 National Employer Skills Survey collected data from 74,500 employers in England about vacancies which were hard to fill because of a lack of suitably skilled applicants. This is felt to be the best measure of skill shortages. The data in the following table shows the Sector Skills Councils with the greatest numbers of skill shortages. To an extent, this merely reflects the size of the sectors so the second table shows the 10 sectors with the greatest numbers of skill shortages per 1,000 employees.

Skilled Workers: Unemployment

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which 10 sectors of employment have the greatest acknowledged skills excess; and if he will estimate the level of unemployment in each sector. [148203]

Bill Rammell: We do not have information on skill surpluses by sector as such. However, comparing unemployment rate between sectors gives some indication of relative skill supply by sector. The following table shows estimates for 2006 of the unemployment rate and level by sector for each of the 23 sectors that can be identified using the Annual Population Survey sorted in descending order of unemployment rate.

Students: Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what measures the Government has introduced to ensure repayment of student loans by EU domiciled students. [148192]

Bill Rammell: EU loan repayments will be collected by the Student Loans Company (SLC), which already has experience of recovering loans from UK borrowers who go overseas and from EEA migrant workers who are entitled to loans. All borrowers from September 2006 enter a contract with the SLC which is enforceable under UK law which, under EC regulation 44/2001, can also be enforced by courts in other EU countries.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Governance and Transparency Fund

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much of the Governance and Transparency Fund is expected to be released in year 1. [148168]

Mr. Malik: The budget for the Governance and Transparency Fund is £100 million over the next five years. The amount of funding released in Year 1 will be dependent on the proposals supported and how quickly successful applicants propose to begin activities.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to announce which organisations were successful in their applications for funding from the Governance and Transparency Fund. [148171]

Mr. Malik: We expect to announce which organisations were successful in their applications for funding from the Governance and Transparency Fund by early December 2007.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many successful applicants there have been for funding from the Governance and Transparency Fund; and how much funding has been awarded to each organisation. [148175]

Mr. Malik: We will not make funding decisions on applications to the Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF) until early December 2007. We will publish full details of supported proposals and organisations on the DFID website once we have informed all applicants of our decision.

Palestinians: International Assistance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what decisions have been made about the eligibility for restored EU funding of Palestinian Authority employees in Gaza who were receiving allowances under the Temporary International Mechanisms before 15 June 2007. [148956]

Mr. Malik: The Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) has recently been extended until the end of September 2007. Allowances for Palestinian Authority (PA) workers for the month of June were paid during the week commencing 2 July 2007. Workers in both the West Bank and Gaza were paid.

On 18 June, EU Foreign Ministers discussed the resumption of assistance to the PA. They concluded that the EU should urgently pursue options for direct practical and financial assistance. Further TIM payments, targeting the same beneficiaries, will form part of this assistance.

The EU has not yet decided on other means for delivering aid. The UK will press to ensure that any new EU aid meets the needs of Palestinians in both Gaza and the West Bank.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007 to the hon. Member for Mid-Norfolk (Mr. Simpson), Official Report, columns 184-85W, on Palestinians: international assistance, how many of the 71,000 Palestinian authority employees receiving allowances under the temporary international mechanism received them in (a) Gaza and (b) the West Bank. [148974]

Mr. Malik: Of the 77,000 Palestinian Authority workers and pensioners receiving allowances under the Temporary International Mechanism, about 47,000 live in the West Bank and 30,000 in Gaza.

Somalia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of UK aid to Somalia is (a) agricultural and (b) medical in nature. [148777]

Mr. Thomas: Provisional total UK bilateral expenditure to Somalia in 2006-07 was £16.6 million. Of this total £0.8 million (4.6 per cent.) went to the health sector. The UK is scaling up its support to the health sector in 2007-08 and has recently committed £2.3 million over two years to increase the number and quality of health workers in Somaliland. There was no direct support to the agricultural sector. Nearly half of the UK's aid budget in 2006-07 went on humanitarian activities (£7.6 million, 45.8 per cent.), a proportion of which may be used for health or agriculture related activities.

The UK also contributes to a range of multilateral organisations that operate in Somalia; these contributions cannot be broken down to sectors.

Sudan: Crimes Against Humanity

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the long-term support needed for the provision of psychosocial care for victims of torture and sexual violence in Darfur. [148292]

Mr. Thomas: The scale of long-term psychosocial support that will be needed in Darfur is unknown because of the level of ongoing displacement, leading to gender-based violence and other forms of trauma. However, there will clearly be a need for such support programmes in the future. Fuller assessments of need can only be undertaken when the security situation improves, although until that time immediate response projects will continue.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government have taken to support the provision of psychosocial care for victims of torture and sexual violence in Darfur. [148293]

Mr. Thomas: The UK has supported psychosocial care in Darfur through a number of methods. Through our direct support to non-government organisations (NGOs) in Darfur, totalling around £12 million a year, several of our partners run psychosocial support projects for women, particularly through women's centres in the camps for displaced people. Additionally, provision of health care to those in need, including victims of sexual violence, is a central activity of many of our partners' work.

DFID is also the leading contributor, contributing £40 million in 2007, to the Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF), a pioneering fund that allows the UN to allocate resources to the most urgent humanitarian needs across Sudan. The CHF has so far allocated around £600,000 to the UN Population Fund in Darfur in support of victims of gender based violence. In 2007, the CHF has also channelled a further £19 million to Darfur in support of humanitarian activities there.

The UK is playing a prominent role in seeking an end to the abuse of civilians in Darfur, both by calling for a renewed political process and seeking the rapid deployment of a robust joint African Union-UN peacekeeping force.

Thailand: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of UK aid to Thailand goes to pro-democracy groups. [148780]

Mr. Malik: The UK does not provide direct development assistance to Thailand, which is an established Middle Income Country, and has not done so for more than 10 years.

Tsunamis: Early Warning Systems

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made by international partners in developing a tsunami early warning system in the South Pacific. [148781]

Mr. Malik: The Intergovernmental Coordination Group (ICG), comprising 30 countries including South Pacific nations such as Fiji, Samoa and Tonga, oversees the Pacific Tsunami Warning and Mitigation System (PTWS). Kiribati, Niue, Solomon Islands, Tokelau and Vanuatu have applied for membership of ICG.

The ICG relies heavily on the PTWS, which was set up by the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration following the 1946 Alaska tsunami. The PTWS was most recently activated following the earthquake off the Solomon Islands in June 2007.

The UK Government are supporting the restoration of old weather, climate and upper air observing equipment in the Pacific Islands with other partners, including New Zealand and the United States. This will improve the accuracy and speed of severe weather warnings and early warning systems. This should lead to a reduction in the number of deaths and damage to property from weather and climate related natural disasters.

More broadly, DFID is working closely with the United Nations International Strategy for Disaster Reduction (ISDR) on disaster risk reduction initiatives internationally. This includes setting up the Indian Ocean Tsunami Warning System (IOTWS), which began operation in July 2006.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aerials: Planning Permission

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for installing a telecommunications mast were (a) granted and (b) refused in each London borough in each of the last five years. [148010]

Departmental Travel

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 780W, on departmental travel, how many foreign trips have been taken by officials from her Department since 1 April 2007; and to which locations and for what purpose in each case. [145116]

[146083]

Mr. Iain Wright: Officials throughout the Department for Communities and Local Government are involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in the Regional, Urban and Economic Policy Directorate total 321. This works out at 26 for those working in CLG and around 296 for those administering ERDF in the Government Offices. A breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at her Department and its agencies in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost of those bonuses was. [146427]

Mr. Iain Wright: The historical numbers of bonuses paid to senior civil servants and the cost of these are given in the following table. The data for 2003 to 2005 refers to our predecessor department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. Data are only available for the five years shown in the table.

2005	86	425,900
2004	71	342,000
2003	60	270,300

In Communities and Local Government, bonus payments are made to individuals whose contribution has a significant impact on the Department's performance across the year. Personal contribution is assessed against a range of factors that include:

Achievement of the Department's Prime Objective which focuses on the way in which our leaders manage and develop our people;

The degree to which business objectives have been met;

Delivery for Ministers;

Demonstration of judgment, leadership and PSG skills;

Effective resource management

(2) pursuant to the answers of (a) 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1096W, on council housing transfers: Chelmsford and (b) 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1354W, on housing, what the source was of the data collated for the answer provided in January that was not available for the answer provided in May; for what reason the data became unavailable between January and May 2007; and if she will make a statement. [145967]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 28 June 2007]: The information regarding the proportion of the allocation to social housing in the Chelmsford local authority are given to families and individuals resident outside the Chelmsford local authority area is not collected centrally.

The answer collated on 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1096W, on council housing transfers, was answered by Communities and Local Government and reflected the availability of information from centrally collected data.

The answer collated on 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1354W, on housing, was answered by the Government Office for the East of England, who contacted Chelmsford local authority directly for this information.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings she has had with Ministers from the devolved administrations to discuss housing in the UK. [147375]

John Healey [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The application by Sevenoaks district council to create a new parish of Hextable was received in this Department on 24 May 2006. A decision will be made once assessment of the representations received and issues involved in relation to this application have been fully considered.

Planning

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what processes are in place to enable (a) councillors and (b) the public to monitor the quality of decisions made on planning applications which are delegated to planning officers; and if she will make a statement. [148552]

Mr. Iain Wright: Decisions can only be delegated to officers by elected members, who must determine the terms on which a delegated agreement operates, including monitoring arrangements. Legislation requires that a list of powers exercisable by officers should be maintained and open to public inspection.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what action is open to members of the public to challenge planning decisions made by planning officers under delegated powers, where the decision is in breach of the local plan. [148553]

Mr. Iain Wright: A planning decision made by a planning officer under delegated powers is deemed to be the decision of the local authority.

Third parties do not have a right of appeal in the way that applicants do because it is the responsibility of local planning authorities to act in the general public interest when determining planning applications. Local authorities must determine planning applications in accordance with the development plan for the area unless material considerations indicate otherwise, these can include views expressed by local residents and other parties. The applicant has a right of appeal against the refusal of a planning permission because this affects his/her property rights.

Third parties do have a right to challenge a planning decision by seeking a judicial review. However, a decision cannot be challenged merely because someone does not agree with the judgement of the local authority. Those challenging a decision have to be able to show that a serious mistake was made by the authority when reaching the decision or that the procedures were not carried out properly. If a mistake has been made the court has discretion not to quash the decision if it considers the interests of the person making the challenge have not been prejudiced.

Supporting People Programme

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on the Supporting People programme in each year since its inception. [147966]

HOME DEPARTMENT

Biometrics: Disclosure of Information

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what definition her Department uses of basic biodata; who collects this information; who this information is shared with; and in what circumstances the biodata is shared with embassy and other officials of the home country of individuals from countries other than the UK. [148773]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 10 July 2007]: 'Biodata' is defined as the personal details contained in a passport or the equivalent personal details recorded on a visa or residence permit. This type of information is collected by both the Identity and Passport Service in relation to British citizens and the Border and Immigration Agency of the Home Office in relation to foreign nationals.

This information is processed in accordance with the requirements of the Data Protection and Human Rights Acts and this includes when it is shared with third parties. The Home Office shares biodata records with other Government Departments, local authorities, the police and embassies where necessary for its functions, for example, for the purpose of safeguarding national security, the prevention or detection of crime or the apprehension or prosecution of offenders. This information may also be shared with the authorities of an individual's country of origin in order to secure documentation to facilitate their removal from the United Kingdom, where necessary.

Community Support Officers: Manpower

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will publish data on the recruitment and retention of police community support officers since the post's inception; and on numbers subsequently offered posts as police officers. [148350]

Mr. McNulty: There are no current plans to include information on the recruitment and retention of police community support officers in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Police Service Strength, England and Wales", where other such information on police service strength is published.

Data on the numbers of police community support officers joining and leaving the service have been collected since the inception of the post in 2002-03.

Data on the numbers of police community support officers subsequently offered posts as police officers are not collected centrally in the police personnel statistics series.

Crime: Intellectual Property

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1324-25W, on crime: intellectual property (IP), how many police forces have established strategies to deal with IP crime; and what steps she is taking to monitor progress in implementing these strategies. [147769]

Jacqui Smith: The establishment of strategies to tackle all types of crime is an operational matter, solely the responsibility of individual chief officers of police, on which information is not held centrally.

From 1 August, an officer from South Wales police will be joining the Intellectual Property Office (IPO) on a three year secondment to assist both the IPO and police authorities develop intelligence on IP crime in line with the national IP Crime Strategy.

EU Law: Human Trafficking

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the UK will ratify the European Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings. [148672]

Mr. Coaker: The former Home Secretary signed the Council of Europe Convention on 23 March on behalf of the Government and is fully committed to implement the obligations it imposes which will also provide a framework for the minimum rights and protection of all identified victims of trafficking.

It will inevitably take some time to move from signature to ratification of the Convention and the Government will not ratify the Convention until all changes to domestic legislation, processes and guidance are in place to ensure that we fully comply with its terms. The details on how implementation will be taken forward are currently being developed. We will work with colleagues across Government to implement the Convention and will look to draw on the expertise from non-governmental organisations and other stakeholders in how we do so.

Identity Cards: Finance

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the expected budget is for development of the identity cards and biometric passports scheme in 2007-08. [147755]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan), to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1779W.

Identity Cards: Homelessness

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what provision she plans to make for homeless people to register for a national identity card. [147758]

Jacqui Smith: Precise arrangements have yet to be made for identity card applications, including how it will be possible for homeless people to register for a national identity card. However, we intend to draw on the experience of other government departments such as the Department for Work and Pensions and the national health service that already provide services to homeless people.

National Identity Register

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1512W, on the National Identity Register, how she plans to ensure that registrants do not register fictional or inadequate addresses. [147772]

Jacqui Smith: It is intended that the National Identity Scheme will make use of the postcode address file as a method of address validation. However, it will not be the only source of validation and section 9 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 will enable checks to be made against records held on other databases to ensure that the address at which the individual is genuinely resident is recorded. Section 28 of the Act makes it a criminal offence to provide false information to the register, with a maximum term of imprisonment of two years available on conviction on indictment.

Northumbria Police: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many candidates of ethnic minority origin applied to the Northumbria police force in each year since 1997; and how many were successful. [147141]

Mr. McNulty: The available data on the number of applications to become a police officer and the number of successful entrants are available from 2003-04 onwards, and are given in the following table.

Ethnic minority[1] applicants and entrants to Northumbria police force from 2003-04 to 2005-06[2]

	Application forms received	New entrants
2003-04	8	2
2004-05	51	3
2005-06	40	5

[1] Ethnic minority applicants and entrants included those describing themselves as: mixed, black or black British, Asian or Asian British and Chinese or other. This does not include those who did not state their ethnicity.
[2] Financial year runs from 1 April to 31 March inclusive. Data are not available prior to 2003-04.

Police Stations: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether there are plans to close police stations in Bournemouth. [148313]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 July 2007]: The management of the police estate is an operational matter for the chief constable.

Police: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in each police force in England and Wales have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) racism, (ii) bullying and (iii) sexual harassment in the last 12 months. [148513]

Mr. McNulty: The provision of information regarding the numbers of police officers in each police force in England and Wales, who have been the subject of the disciplinary process for the types of misconduct listed, is the responsibility of the chief officer of each force.

Police: East Midlands

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps have been taken to close the protective services gap among East Midlands police forces identified by Denis O'Connor in his 2005 report; and if she will make a statement. [148349]

Mr. McNulty: The police authorities and chief constables of the five East Midlands forces have made considerable efforts to address this issue. They fund jointly the East Midlands Collaboration Planning Team, which has undertaken a thorough examination of opportunities for reducing costs across all five police forces and investing in protective services, in particular through collaborative approaches. This work is continuing with the aim of having an action plan in place in October 2007. At the same time, the East Midlands forces have made advances in the delivery of policing services to tackle serious organised and cross-border crime through the establishment of the East Midlands Special Operations Unit. The Home Office has supported this development with start-up funding, and is also funding a Counter Terrorism Intelligence Unit located in the East Midlands as part of the national structure being developed in partnership with the Association of Chief Police Officers.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what national police responsibilities are tasked to Essex Constabulary; and if she will make a statement. [149358]

Mr. McNulty: The national strategic priorities for policing in England and Wales are set annually and are designed to allow individual police forces the necessary flexibility to fulfil their national responsibilities whilst giving due regard to local policing priorities. Essex Constabulary is not tasked with any specific national responsibilities outside of the national strategic priorities. Essex Police Authority, working closely with Essex Constabulary, produces an annual policing plan. The 2007-08 plan is available at:

www.essex.police.uk/cms/global/documents/07pplo.pdf

Police: Finance

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much funding has been allocated per head of population on police in 2007-08 for police authorities in (a) Derbyshire, (b) Leicestershire, (c) Lincolnshire, (d) Northamptonshire, (e) Nottinghamshire, (f) West Midlands and (g) Greater Manchester; [148618]

(2) what the average funding per head of population is on police in 2007-08 in (a) England and (b) the East Midlands. [148619]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is set out in the following table.

The Government do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of data relating to demographic and social characteristics to reflect the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative tax base of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping to limit year-on-year variations.

Police authority	Total grants 2007-08[1] (£ million)	Resident population mid-2005[2] (million)	Funding per head of population 2007-08 (£)
Derbyshire	123.64	0.98	126.00
Leicestershire	128.98	0.95	135.32
Lincolnshire	80.36	0.68	118.41
Northamptonshire	82.34	0.65	126.32
Nottinghamshire	154.95	1.04	148.79
West Midlands	519.51	2.59	200.48
Greater Manchester	505.94	2.55	198.99
Total East Midlands	570.27	4.31	132.31
Total England	8,884.81	50.42	176.22

[1] Total grants comprises: Home Office Police Grant, DCLG Revenue Support Grant and National Non-Domestic Rates; Special Formula grant, Specific Grants: Crime Fighting Fund, Neighbourhood Policing Fund, Basic Command Unit Fund, Community Support Officer Funding, Pension Deficit Grant and Dedicated Security Post funding and Capital provision (including the increased capital allocations announced on 24 May and 19 June 2007).
[2] Population Data sourced by the Office for National Statistics from the mid-2005 population estimates.

Police: Horses

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police authorities in England and Wales have a mounted police section. [146682]

Mr. McNulty: Information provided by the Association of Chief Police Officers, indicates that the following constabularies have mounted sections:

Avon and Somerset
City of London
Cleveland
Greater Manchester
Humberside
Lancashire
Merseyside Metropolitan Northumbria
Nottinghamshire
South Wales
South Yorkshire
Thames Valley
West Yorkshire

Police: Labour Turnover

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2007, Official Report, columns 772-74W, if she will break down the figures for those leaving as a result of (a) resignation, (b) failed probation, (c) transfer to another force and (d) other reasons for each police force area for each year since 2002. [147890]

Mr. McNulty: The previously tabled question asked for the number of police recruits who left the force within two years of joining. No breakdown of leaving categories by length of service is collected centrally and so the requested information is not available.

Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to bring forward proposals to amend the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 and the associated guidance. [148692]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office is working with stakeholders, including the Association of Chief Police Officers and the National Policing Improvement Agency, to produce and to contribute to new guidance to public authorities on the operation and application of the 2000 Act. We will consider making any necessary amendments to the 2000 Act when a suitable legislative opportunity becomes available.

Road Safety

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2007, Official Report, column 1300W, on road safety, when the report will be published. [149166]

Mr. Coaker: The intention is to publish this report on the evaluation of support services for road traffic victims as a Research Summary in July 2007. The report will be based on an examination of three Home Office funded pilot schemes—Bedfordshire, Bradford and Calderdale and Merseyside.

The publication date reflects the work that has been involved in finalising the research report from the evaluation, and in quality assuring its contents.

Terrorism

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the evidential basis was for her comment on 1 July that the recent terrorist incidents in London and Glasgow were not related to United Kingdom policy in Iraq and Afghanistan. [147939]

Mr. McNulty: The recent terrorist incidents in London and Glasgow are the subject of ongoing criminal investigation and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made clear he was not commenting directly on those investigations.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Buildings

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which buildings within one mile of the House are occupied by his Department; and what the (a) address, (b) floor area and (c) function is of each building. [149225]

Gillian Merron: The buildings are as follows:

Building	Function	Net internal area (m^2)
70 Whitehall[1]	Office space and operational facilities	7,895
10-12 Downing street[1]	Office space, residential accommodation and state rooms	4,056

53 Parliament street	Office space	716
Admiralty House[1]	Residential accommodation, state rooms	1,367
22-26 Whitehall[1]	Office space	8,678
Admiralty Arch	Office space	7,383
35 Great Smith street	Office space and operational faculties	2,897
10 Great George street[1]	Office space	1,689

67 Tufton street	Office space and operational facilities	2,088
Dover House, Whitehall[1]	Office space	318
1 Horse Guards road[1]	Office space	488

[1] The Cabinet Office does not occupy the whole of these buildings

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in his Office have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) inappropriate use of the internet while at work and (ii) using work telephones to access premium rate telephone numbers in the last 12 months. [149186]

Gillian Merron: Internet and telephone misuse within the Cabinet Office is minimal. For cases which relate to five or less individuals, it is not standard Government practice to publish these records. This is in order to protect the confidentiality of individuals.

Departments: Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on overnight accommodation by civil servants within his Department's areas of responsibilities in the last 12 months. [149039]

Gillian Merron: Details of how much the Cabinet Office spent on overnight accommodation by civil servants in the last 12 months is not held centrally and is therefore available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Personnel

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average fully loaded cost is of a full-time equivalent member of staff of his Department working in Whitehall. [146865]

Gillian Merron: Details of the average fully loaded cost of a full-time equivalent member of staff working in Whitehall, is not held centrally and is therefore available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Racial Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many complaints of racial abuse relating to staff for which his Department is responsible have been (a) investigated and (b) upheld in the last 12 months. [149259]

Gillian Merron: During the last 12 months (for the period July 2006 to July 2007) the Cabinet Office has not received any official complaints of racial abuse.

Ministers Private Offices: Deputy Prime Minister

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to what use the office space previously used as the private office for the Deputy Prime Minister is being put. [149275]

Gillian Merron: The office space allocated to the Office of the former Deputy Prime Minister is being returned to the Cabinet Office.

Ministry of Defence: Location

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on the contribution that the Ministry of Defence could make to post-Gershon work on the re-location of civil service jobs out of London and the South East via current initiatives, with particular reference to the Naval Base Review; and if he will make a statement. [147247]

Gillian Merron: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose details of such meetings.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when he expects to be in a position to begin making payments of the 2007 Single Farm Payment; [148726]

(2) what steps he will take to ensure that farmers are given their 2007 Single Farm Payment as soon as possible after the payment window opens. [148736]

Jonathan Shaw: The regulatory window for making payments under the 2007 single payment scheme (SPS) runs from 1 December 2007 to 30 June 2008. While the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) will aim to start payments as early as possible within that window, the date will depend in practice on progress with the validation of claims.

We have set the RPA the target of paying 75 per cent. of the value of valid SPS 2007 claims by 31 March 2008 and 90 per cent. by 31 May 2008 based on the assumption that no partial payments will be made. While this represents a greater degree of challenge for the agency in the coming year it also reflects the fact that it is still in a recovery period. The Department will consider the issue of partial payments in autumn 2007 and the agency's target may be adjusted as necessary at that point.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects all single farm payments for (a) 2005 and (b) 2006 to be resolved. [148737]

Jonathan Shaw: We cannot give a firm date for when we will make the final payments under the 2005 and 2006 single payment scheme (SPS). The claimants who have yet to receive any payment are the more complex cases, such as those involving probate, which by their nature are more difficult to resolve. As the Secretary of State reported to the House on 2 July, there are also some 20,000 SPS 2005 claims where entitlement values have been identified for review and possible adjustment, upwards or downwards. This may identify a further payment to be made or an overpayment to be recovered. The RPA is now switching resources to deal with these cases.

Animal Welfare: Transport

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 61W, on animal welfare: transport, when four calves were humanely destroyed at Dover; and for what reason. [147732]

Jonathan Shaw: Since May 2006, animal health inspectors at Dover have found five calves in a collapsed state on vehicles intended for export. Notices were served requiring the immediate humane slaughter of all of these calves, although one died naturally. The notices did not require any further action as it was the opinion of the inspectors that the means and conditions of transport were not the cause of the calves condition. Because no post mortem was carried out, definitive prognosis is not available.

Animal Welfare: Trapping

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has held on the manufacturing, sale and use of animal snares; and if he will make a statement. [141779]

Joan Ruddock: The Government consider that where there is a need for wildlife management then the proper use of snares is one of a range of possible control methods. Used according to best practice, snares can be an effective and practical means of wildlife management (particularly for rabbits and foxes) and are needed where other forms of pest control are ineffective or impractical. In these circumstances snares restrain rather than kill and may prove to be more humane than other methods. The DEFRA snares action plan and the DEFRA code of good practice on the use of snares in fox and rabbit control in England can be found at:

http://www.Defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/vertebrates/snares/index.htm

Neither my predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Brent, North (Barry Gardiner) nor I, have held any recent discussions specifically on these issues. However, officials have occasional discussions with a wide range of stakeholders on the current policy on the use of snares.

Beef: Brazil

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what tests are performed on beef imports from Brazil to detect residues of (a) pesticides, (b) veterinary medicines and (c) growth hormones. [147422]

Mr. Woolas: The Pesticide Residues Committee conducts annual programmes to monitor pesticide residues in food. The Committee last sampled beef imported from Brazil in 2004 and found no residues of substances sought.

The Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) tests imported foods from third countries for residues of veterinary medicines and substances not permitted for use in the EU.

On the recommendation of the independent Veterinary Residues Committee (VRC), which advises the VMD and the Food Standards Agency on residues surveillance, the programme has focused on looking for banned substances in recent years. In 2003 and 2004, a total of 599 samples of imported beef were tested for residues of trenbolone and zeranol (hormonally active substances used for growth promotion), avermectins and ß-agonists. This included 202 samples from Brazil. No residues of these hormonal substances were detected in any of the samples.

In the light of these results, the VRC recommended that beef should be temporarily removed from the imports surveillance programme to focus more resources on areas where intelligence suggested that problems were emerging. The VRC recommended that beef should be restored to the imports surveillance programme in 2007, and 300 samples will be tested for zeranol, trenbolone, and avermectins.

All these test results have been published on the VMD and VRC websites.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to visit farms in (a) England and (b) Shropshire which have been affected by bovine tuberculosis. [148608]

Jonathan Shaw: My ministerial colleagues and I look forward to meeting farmers and their representatives in different parts of the country to discuss a range of important issues, including bovine tuberculosis, in our new roles.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of bovine tuberculosis were recorded in Shrewsbury constituency in (a) 2000, (b) 2002, (c) 2003, (d) 2004, (e) 2005 and (f) 2006. [147671]

Jonathan Shaw: Bovine tuberculosis (TB) statistics are not collected on a constituency basis, but at county level. The total number of new herd TB incidents in Shropshire in the years requested are as follows:

	Total new herd TB incidents
2006[1]	149
2005[1]	124
2004	105
2003	86
2002[2]	69
2000	39

[1] Data are provisional, subject to change as more data becomes available.

[2] Data for 2002 are not comparable with other years because the TB testing and control programme was largely suspended in 2001 due to the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak. When testing resumed in 2002, resources were concentrated on herds with overdue TB tests, which would have had a longer period in which to contract the disease. Also, the proportion of high risk herds tested immediately after the FMD outbreak was greater than that prior to the outbreak.

Coastal Erosion: East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what studies his Department has (a) carried out and (b) commissioned on the effects of coastal erosion in the East Riding of Yorkshire; and if he will make a statement. [148354]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has overall policy responsibility for flood risk management in England, funds most of the Environment Agency's flood related work, and grant aids individual capital improvement projects undertaken by local authorities and internal drainage boards (IDBs). The programme to manage risk is driven by these operating authorities. DEFRA does not carry out works or studies, nor direct the authorities on which specific projects to undertake.

East Riding of Yorkshire council is the operating authority for this stretch of coast and has carried out annual monitoring of the Easington coast with DEFRA grant aid since 1997. Strategic studies for Bridlington and Withernsea were approved in 1999. In 2002, it carried out Holderness coastline beach management and monitoring which has continued until this year. An application for £111,000 of grant aid is being considered for DEFRA approval to continue funding the strategic monitoring of the coastline into 2007-08.

The East Riding of Yorkshire council is leading, with a contribution from the Environment Agency, the development of a shoreline management plan for Flamborough Head to Gibraltar Point. An application for grant aid of £270,000 is also currently being considered by DEFRA.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146337]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department came into being in July 2001. From information held centrally, the core-Department expenditure on consultancy and professional services over the financial years 2002-03 to 2006-07 (the first six months) is as per the following table:

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 June 2007, Official Report, column 1361W, on departments: manpower, what the estimated annual cost to the public purse is of the 136 staff on the Priority Movers List. [146887]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not possible to estimate an annual cost for staff on the Priority Movers List. It should be noted that many of the staff on the list are engaged on short term project work and other tasks which means that a significant proportion of the related cost contributes to delivery of departmental objectives.

DEFRA makes every effort to redeploy staff on the Priority Movers list. Those on the list are given priority access to all internal vacancies and are given first consideration for posts at the appropriate grade.

Departments: Public Transport

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the number of its staff using public transport to commute. [147325]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs does not keep records of the number of its staff using public transport to commute and is therefore unable to make an estimate on this.

Domestic Wastes: Exports

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the (a) amount and (b) likely future change in the amount of exported domestic waste, broken down by category. [147205]

Joan Ruddock: The UK only exports waste that is suitable for recovery or recycling. Based on HM Revenue and Customs figures, it is estimated that in 2006, the UK exported some 8 million tonnes of metal scrap, 4 million tonnes of paper, 441,000 tonnes of plastic and 136,000 tonnes of glass cullet.

The Government have not made any estimate of the likely future growth in the amount of exported waste, but the Government sponsored Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has undertaken research to assess the international markets for key recyclable wastes: plastic, paper and glass, and these papers are available on WRAP's website.

http://www.wrap.org.uk/wrap_corporate/publications/index.html

Future trends on exports will depend largely on the success of the range of initiatives under way to increase provision of domestic recycling capacity as part of the implementation of Waste Strategy 2007.

Flood Control: Capital Investment

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how the increase in spending across Government of £200 million on flood-risk management and defences will be allocated (a) within his Department and (b) to other Government departments; [148085]

(2) what proportion of the additional £200 million for flood-risk management and defences will be allocated to the Great Wakering catchment area flood management project. [148086]

Mr. Woolas: No final decisions have been taken on the allocation between Departments of the £200 million increased spending in 2010-11. Funding for individual flood risk management projects will be decided through the prioritisation process which is being developed to reflect the new Outcome Measures.

Flood Control: Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for future funding for the Environment Agency for flood defences; and if he will make a statement. [148609]

Mr. Woolas: The Secretary of State confirmed on 2 July that spending on flood risk management and defences will rise from around £600 million in 2007-08 to £800 million by 2010-11. No final decisions have been taken on the allocation of the £200 million increased spending.

Flood Control: Telephone Services

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of (a) the savings which will be generated by and (b) the sum to be paid in redundancies resulting from the closure of the Worthing office of the Environment Agency. [149297]

Mr. Woolas: The scheme to move from three to two areas in the southern region has yet to be approved by the Environment Agency Board. The proposed scheme will improve operational delivery, technical resilience and save £2.75 million by April 2012.

Floods

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to his oral statement of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 689-93, on floods (England), what additional funding he plans to make available to Wales for flood and coastal defence. [148198]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 11 July 2007]: This is a devolved issue and is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of the flood defence budget was directed to controlling surface water flooding in each of the last five years; and through which agencies and schemes it was allocated. [149291]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency has principal responsibility for management of flood risk in England from designated main rivers and the sea and, since April 2004, has been responsible for the whole operational flood management budget provided by DEFRA. The prime focus of this work is on the management of floodwater in river systems and the avoidance of coastal inundation. Such works will often involve an element of provision for surface water drainage but this is not separately identified in funding allocations.

Floods: Grants

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the criteria are for awarding monies under the small scale small business recovery scheme for flooded areas; to which areas the scheme will apply; and if he will make a statement. [148281]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

The regional development agencies have responded rapidly to provide support and assistance to businesses affected by the recent flooding. Yorkshire Forward has set up a £2 million Small Business Recovery Scheme to assist businesses. To be eligible for funding to assist with immediate recovery needs, businesses must be in a recognised flooded area; be a business entity operating in the Yorkshire and Humber region and must have fewer than 250 employees. The East Midlands Development Agency has established a £500,000 Flood Recovery Fund to help support affected SMEs. To be eligible for funding, businesses have to demonstrate impact of flooding on the income of the business; that it has taken all reasonable actions to mitigate this; that the business is temporarily trading at a loss or experiencing severe cash flow difficulties which could lead to failure of the business; and it can present evidence of past and future viability.

Full details of eligibility criteria are available at www.yorkshire-forward.com and www.eastmidlands business.co.uk.

Floods: Insurance

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of properties which are deemed uninsurable due to high risk of flooding. [149292]

Mr. Woolas: Under the Statement of Principles agreed between the Government and the Association of British Insurers (ABI), insurers will provide cover to existing policyholders if they estimate the risk of flooding as less than once in every 75 years or defences are planned to reduce the risk to this level within five years. If the risk is more than once in 75 years, and no defences are planned, insurers will examine the risk case-by-case and work with owners to see whether the property can be made insurable.

In their report to the Government last autumn, the ABI noted that their members continued to provide flood cover as standard to virtually all households. Following the recent flood events, ministerial colleagues and I met with the ABI on 10 July. The ABI stressed their commitment to make flood cover widely available as standard and we will hold a meeting to review the implementation of the Statement of Principles in the autumn.

Forests: Small Businesses

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice, training and support are available to local and small woodland businesses. [148104]

Joan Ruddock: The primary mechanism for advice and support is from the Forestry Commission whose role includes giving practical advice to woodland owners, and producing a range of woodland and forestry related publications. The Forestry Commission's research agency, Forest Research, provides specialist technical advice directly and through publications and seminars which are open to all in the forestry and woodland sector.

Individuals, commercial companies, professional bodies and other organisations also offer advice training and support. Nationally these include the Small Woods Association, the Royal Forestry Society and the Institute of Chartered Foresters. There are also a number of local and regional woodland initiatives and projects that provide assistance in various ways.

LANTRA the sector skills council for the environmental and land based sector includes forestry and arboriculture in their remit. It runs formal accredited training schemes, as do the National Proficiency Test Council.

There are proposals in the Regional Implementation Plans for the new Rural Development Programme for England, which if approved, will aid the provision of advice, training and support for local and small woodland businesses.

Leopards: Conservation

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Iran ahead of the next Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species conference on preserving the North Persian leopard. [148499]

Joan Ruddock: The whole of the Leopard "(Panthera pardus)" taxon, which includes the north Persian leopard, is listed in CITES Appendix I. The 14th CITES Conference of Parties took place in The Hague between 2 and 15 June. No discussions were held with the Government of Iran on preserving the north Persian leopard either ahead of the CITES Conference, or since.

Lighting: Pollution

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to consult on draft guidance concerning light pollution. [148876]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is developing draft guidance on light pollution and planning, and is working closely with Communities and Local Government, which has policy responsibility for planning. The timing of a public consultation on the guidance is partly dependent on the on-going review of the national planning policy framework, announced in the Planning White Paper published in May this year.

Livestock: MRSA

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what reports he has received of MRSA infections in domesticated farm animals. [147996]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) was first reported to have been isolated from animals in Europe in 1972 and over the subsequent years there have been a limited number of other reports from various parts of the world. Some early reports of MRSA in animals in the scientific literature did not use molecular or other appropriate techniques to confirm definitively the identity of the suspect MRSA organisms and these reports may not be comparable with current reports.

MRSA has been recovered from a number of different animal species and from a number of different parts of the world. The animal species involved include dogs (USA, Korea and the Netherlands), pigs (Netherlands, Denmark and Germany), horses (USA and Japan), dairy cows and chickens (Korea) and cats (Brazil). The scientific papers describing the detection of MRSA in animals from these (and some other countries; the list is not exhaustive) are readily available in the scientific literature.

In the UK, since 1999, published reports have indicated that MRSA has been isolated from a small number of companion animals and from horses. There have been no reports of MRSA from food-producing animals in the UK. The current UK position relating to MRSA in animals has also been summarised on the DEFRA website and has been available for some time.

Packaging: Recycling

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether regulations are in place to oblige retailers (a) to take back and (b) to take back and recycle the packaging of products sold in their own stores; and if he will make a statement. [142067]

Joan Ruddock: No regulations are currently in place specifically obliging retailers to take back, and take back and recycle, packaging sold in their own stores. However, we have not ruled out regulating on this in the future, and if we wished to do so, powers are available in sections 93-95 of the Environment Act 1995.

The level of a business' obligation is determined, in part, by the amount of packaging they handle. Once they have calculated their obligation, the business has to ensure that the specified amount of packaging waste is recovered or recycled. This is an equivalent amount of waste, so does not have to be waste from the very same products handled by the business.

At present, the Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations 2007 encourage businesses to reduce the amount of packaging they use. In addition, the Government are encouraging supermarkets to take greater responsibility for the waste they place on the market and for producers to reduce their waste. The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) is currently working with retailers through the 'Courtauld Commitment', a voluntary agreement which aims to halt packaging growth by 2008 and make absolute reductions in packaging waste by 2010. 13 major retailers, representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector, have already signed the agreement, as well as three major brands.

In addition, DEFRA, working with WRAP and the devolved administrations, has recently secured the agreement of UK retailers to reduce the overall environmental impact of their carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

Packaging: Wastes

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps were taken to establish a protocol for reporting the progress made by signatories to the Courtauld Commitment on packaging waste when it was established in 2005. [148377]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Each of the signatories to the Courtauld Commitment is an obligated company for the purposes of the Packaging Regulations and declares their total packaging use each year to the relevant regulators. This has been the case since it was established in 2005.

The Courtauld Commitment objectives relate to primary packaging taken home by consumers. When my predecessor met the signatories last November, he asked them to agree a protocol with the Waste and Resources Action Programme for reporting progress in a consistent and transparent way. A draft protocol is currently being consulted on, with a view to it being agreed and implemented in this reporting year.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the annual total packaging use of each of the signatories to the Courtauld Commitment was in each year for which figures are available. [148410]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 9 July 2007]: Information on the annual total packaging use of each of the signatories is not routinely collected in the form requested.

As obligated companies for the purposes of the Packaging Regulations, the signatories to the Courtauld Commitment submit data to the Environment Agency. However, as some signatories are companies, and others are brands, it is not possible to extract the data in the form requested. Additionally the data are commercially sensitive.

Rural Payments Agency

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 November 2006, Official Report, column 307W, on the Rural Payments Agency, when he will make the analysis available. [148277]

Jonathan Shaw: We are not at this stage in a position to advise when the detailed analysis of payments made under the single payment scheme will be made available.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Colombia

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with the Government of Colombia on a negotiated peace settlement of that country's civil war; and if he will make a statement; [149163]

(2) what financial and other assistance was provided to the Government of Colombia in each year since 2002 to tackle the illegal narcotics industry; and if he will make a statement; [149164]

(3) what discussions he and his officials have had with the Governments of (a) France, (b) Spain, (c) Switzerland and (d) other EU partners on a negotiated peace settlement to Colombia's civil war; [149210]

(4) what discussions he has had with the Government of Colombia on the proposed humanitarian exchange of political prisoners in Colombia; [149211]

(5) what discussions he has had with the Government of Colombia on the protection of trade unionists in Colombia; and if he will make a statement. [149212]

Dr. Howells: The longstanding conflict in Colombia, fuelled by the illegal drugs trade, has been deeply damaging. Significant progress has been made by President Uribe's Government, and the Government have congratulated him on this. But serious concerns remain, especially on human rights.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is yet to hold discussions with Colombian counterparts since his appointment. But officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in London and Bogota hold regular discussions with Colombian Government officials, EU partners and civil society on the situation in Colombia.

Such talks have focused recently on the need for a substantive peace settlement with full participation by all actors in the conflict; the unacceptable on-going abuses of trade unionists and human rights defenders; proposed humanitarian exchanges of political prisoners; and the recent murders of 11 hostages held by the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC).

My noble Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, held discussions with a range of senior Colombian and UK civil society figures on 26 June. Humanitarian exchanges of political prisoners and the situation for trade unionists in Colombia were prominent themes at this meeting. My noble Friend Lord Triesman issued a statement following the meeting, setting out the Government's views on these issues. The full text can be accessed on the FCO's website at:

http://www.fco. gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename= OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid= 1007029391638&a=KArticle&aid=1182951887630.

We have discussed with Colombian Government representatives in London and Bogota the issues raised at the meeting of 26 June. In doing so, we expressed our outrage at the killings of the 11 Colombian hostages held by the FARC, and extended our condolences to all those affected by this tragedy. The EU presidency also strongly condemned the killings and called for the immediate and unconditional release of all hostages held by PARC and other illegal groups.

The menace from drugs is real, both in Colombia and in the UK. Cooperation between the UK and Colombia has been very close and highly productive. We do not give details of our support because its disclosure would be to the detriment of the safety of the individuals, the prevention and detection of crime and international relations.

Iran: Israel

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has (a) taken and (b) plans to take at the United Nations about the statements made by the President of Iran on (i) the right of the State of Israel to exist and (ii) denial of the holocaust; and if he will make a statement. [149356]

Dr. Howells: The Government have consistently condemned Iranian President Ahmadinejad's inflammatory comments about the state of Israel and his denial of the holocaust. We have made clear that these statements are wholly unacceptable, abhorrent and have no place in civilised political debate.

In December 2006 the Iranian Government hosted a conference, in the guise of an academic exercise, which attempted to cast doubt on whether the holocaust took place. President Ahmadinejad's comments at the event demonstrated that the intention was to undermine Israel's right to exist. My right hon. Friend the former Prime Minister publicly condemned the conference in the strongest terms and I summoned the Iranian ambassador to express the UK's outrage at the event. On 26 January the UN General Assembly adopted a resolution condemning without reservation any denial of the holocaust. The UK strongly supported this resolution. Iran was the only country that chose to disassociate itself from the consensus shared by all other UN members on this issue.

President Ahmadinejad's approach towards Israel serves to undermine international confidence that Iran is willing to comply with its obligations and act as a respectable member of the international community. We continue to take such comments extremely seriously.

Iran: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what commitments have been made by Iran to co-operate with the International Atomic Energy Agency in resolving outstanding issues relating to Iran's nuclear programme; and if he will make a statement. [147481]

David Miliband: Iran has a Comprehensive Safeguards Agreement with the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) and has signed, but not ratified, an Additional Protocol to this agreement.

As the IAEA has made clear over a series of reports to its Board of Governors and to the UN Security Council,

> "unless Iran addresses the long outstanding verification issues, and implements the Additional Protocol and the required transparency measures, the Agency will not be able to fully reconstruct the history of Iran's nuclear programme and provide assurances about the absence of undeclared nuclear material and activities in Iran or about the exclusively peaceful nature of that programme".

The IAEA has consistently requested additional transparency measures from Iran which it regards as essential to resolving these outstanding concerns.

While we welcome Iran's latest declaration of willingness to co-operate with the IAEA to resolve the outstanding issues, it is essential that Iran provides full co- operation and transparency towards the IAEA, as it has so far failed to do. Resolution of the outstanding issues is something Iran should take forward as a matter of urgency as a member of the IAEA. However, it is not a substitute for suspension of Iran's proliferation sensitive nuclear activities, as requested by the IAEA Board of Governors as a confidence-building measure and made mandatory by the UN Security Council.

Pakistan

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether HM High Commission, Islamabad, has received the test results in the case of the family of Mr. S J of Aylesbury (reference GV 100/122773/JG/NP, cellmark reference HO71607); and when the High Commission expects to inform the applicants and sponsor of the outcome of the case. [149365]

Dr. Howells: Our high commission in Islamabad has received the DNA test results for the entry clearance applications submitted by the family of Mr. S J of Aylesbury. However, the applications were referred to the Home Office on 10 July for further information. The family members will be requested to attend an interview at our Visa Section in Islamabad as soon as this information has been received.

Palestinians: Israel

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Palestinian authorities on incursions by Palestinian terrorists into Israel; what response has been received; and if he will make a statement. [149354]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned by the security situation in Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories, especially the recent attacks on Israel by Palestinian militant groups. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the security situation with Palestinian President Abbas on 29 June. Staff from our consulate-general in Jerusalem also regularly raise security concerns with the Palestinian Authority (PA), most recently with the Fayyad-led emergency government.

We will do all we can to assist the PA in taking forward security sector reform. As agreed by EU Foreign Ministers at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 18 June, the EU will now develop the conditions for urgent practical and financial assistance including: direct financial support to the government; support to the Palestinian civilian police; the resumption of the EU Border Assistance Mission; and intensive efforts to build the institutions of the future Palestinian state.

Uganda: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on (a) the (i) strength, (ii) leadership and (iii) political objectives of the Ugandan People's Redemption Army and (b) the length of time it has been active; whether it has attacked property in Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [148926]

Meg Munn: There are contradictory reports about the People's Redemption Army (PRA) and its strength, leadership, activities and political objectives. We have seen no evidence that the PRA represents any significant threat to Uganda's stability.

We continue to press the Government of Uganda that there should be a free, fair and transparent legal process for those alleged to be members of the PRA currently in custody and/or on trial and that this should be completed as quickly as possible.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the transition to multi-party democracy in Uganda; whether the ideological training institute at Kyankwanzi is still in use; and if he will make a statement. [148927]

Meg Munn: In February 2006 Uganda held its first multi-party elections in 25 years. The reintroduction of a multi-party system was an important achievement. However there is still much to be done, particularly with regard to respect for the independence of the judiciary and political space for the opposition.

It is essential, therefore, that the government and the opposition parties continue to work together to embed the evolving multiparty democracy and ensure transparency. The UK, along with other international partners, has a regular dialogue with the Government of Uganda on all aspects of developing multi-party democracy.

The Kyankwanzi National Leadership Institute remains in use and is responsible for preparing senior government officials (including members of the Police, Prison Service and Resident District Commissioners).

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase the availability of alcohol misuse services. [147981]

Dawn Primarolo: Primary care trusts (PCTs) have the lead responsibility to assess the health care needs of their local populations and, in consultation with social care organisations and others, to understand the impact that harmful drinking is having on the health of the local population and to provide adequate treatment provision to tackle this.

In support of this, the Government's renewed alcohol strategy, 'Safe. Sensible. Social. The Next steps in the National Alcohol Strategy', sets out a new approach to achieve significant and measurable reductions over a sustained period in the harms caused by alcohol.

In addition, from 2007-8, an additional £15 million has been distributed to PCTs to support development and delivery of alcohol intervention via the PCT general allocation budget. This money has been distributed using the normal weighted capitation formula so the actual amount spent local will vary from area to area.

Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has (a) to assist and (b) otherwise to contact the management of Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals to discuss infection control; and if he will make a statement; [149286]

(2) what action he plans to take in response to the improvement notice issued by the Healthcare Commission to Barnet and Chase Farm NHS Trust on dealing with infection control at those hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [149288]

Ann Keen: The trust and strategic health authority are working together to address the issues in the improvement notice and the Department will assist if appropriate but these issues need to be resolved locally.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take following the Healthcare Commission findings at Barnet and Chase Farm NHS Trust on factually incorrect management reporting of infection control results; and if he will make a statement. [149287]

Ann Keen: The current case appears to have identified differences in interpreting compliance with the code of practice. With the Healthcare Commission, we will be considering if trusts need additional guidance on assessing compliance.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients at (a) Barnet and (b) Chase Farm hospitals contracted (i) Clostridium difficile and (ii) MRSA in (A) each of the last three years and (B) 2007; and if he will make a statement. [149298]

Ann Keen: The data are not available in the format requested. The best available information for methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) is from the mandatory MRSA blood stream infections surveillance that began in April 2001 and covers acute national health service trusts in England rather than individual hospitals. Mandatory surveillance for Clostridium difficile commenced in January 2004.

Data for both MRSA and Clostridium difficile for 2007 are not yet available

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library copies of the Healthcare Commission's (a) improvement notice and (b) report relating to infection control at Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals. [149299]

Ann Keen: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Blood: Contamination

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what approaches he has received from Lord Archer of Sandwell requesting papers and information to help his inquiry into the contamination of blood products; what information has been supplied; what information is outstanding; and if he will make a statement. [148620]

Dawn Primarolo: Officials met with members of the inquiry team on 25 April 2007 to discuss what information the Department may be able to provide to the inquiry. Following that meeting the Department sent the inquiry team a chronology on the screening of donors for evidence of transfusion transmissible infections.

We have also made available a recently completed document on the 'Review of Documentation Relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970-1985 (Non A Non B Hepatitis)', and the supporting references. These documents are available in the Library.

Lord Archer has been advised that the Department will release all papers identified in the Review, in line with the Freedom of Information Act. The papers will be released to Lord Archer's inquiry as quickly as possible, in monthly batches. The first set of papers were sent to the inquiry team on 15 June.

Bone Diseases: Medical Treatments

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to his answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 990W, on bone diseases: medical treatments, when he expects a final approval determination to be published following the delay in publication of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's final guidance for anti-tumour necrosis factor treatment for ankylosing spondylitis; [148497]

(2) whether the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's assessment of, and guidance on, anti-tumour necrosis factor treatments for ankylosing spondylitis will take into account the Department's policy of treating patients outside hospital whenever possible. [148498]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) anticipates publishing final guidance to the national health service on adalimumab, etanercept and infliximab for the treatment of ankylosing spondylitis in October 2007.

In reaching a view on the clinical and cost effectiveness of adalimumab, etanercept and infliximab for the treatment of ankylosing spondylitis, NICE's Appraisal Committee will consider all relevant information.

Further information is available on NICE's website at:

guidance.nice.org.uk/page.aspx?o=98339

Care Homes: Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many beds funded by his Department were provided in social services care homes in (a) England and (b) Shropshire in (i) 1997, (ii) 2000, (iii) 2005 and (iv) 2007; [147705]

(2)how much his Department spent (a) in total and (b) per bed provided on social care home facilities in Shropshire in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; and what spending has been forecast for 2007-08. [147707]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not directly fund places in care homes, with the exception of people receiving continuing care, whose care is funded by the national health service. Information on the numbers of people receiving NHS funded continuing care and nursing care in England is only available from 2003 onwards. This is shown in the following tables. Separate figures for Shropshire are not available.

NHS-funded nursing care in England at 31 March

	Number
2003	58,751
2004	119,081
2005	125,573
2006	117,939
2007	123,452

2004	19,723
2005	20,842
2006	25,008

Care may be funded in a variety of ways. Depending on their financial circumstances, residents may pay for their own care, or be partly or wholly supported by local council social services, or organisations such as charities or previous employers. Local council social services pay for care using funding allocations they receive from the Department for Communities and Local Government.

The following tables show the information for the number of supported residents aged 18 and over funded wholly or in part by local council social services and the gross expenditure for 1997, 2000, and 2005 in England and Shropshire.

Number of adults supported in residential care in England and Shropshire in 1997, 2000, and 2005

Of which:
Shropshire (remaining)	—	1,600	1,600
Telford and the Wrekin	—	900	700

Telford and the Wrekin	—	14,400	16,200

[1] From 2000 onwards, Shropshire council was split into Shropshire and Telford and the Wrekin.
Figures have been provided on a consistent basis for comparison.

The cost per person per week for adults staying in residential care during 2005-06 in Shropshire was £424.

Information for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is not yet available and forecasts are not made.

Information about the numbers of children in care homes is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families.

Departments: European Union

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many officials in his Department are (a) involved in assisting European Council negotiations, (b) involved in assisting and advising the European Commission, (c) seconded to the European Commission, (d) involved in monitoring EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives, (e) involved in enforcing compliance with EU decisions, communications, regulations and directives and (f) involved in other work related to the European Council, Commission or Court of Justice. [146095]

Dawn Primarolo: Officials throughout the Department are involved in a full range of European Union business. Those working specifically on EU business in the international division total seven. A breakdown of the figures requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Missing People

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether (a) he and (b) Ministers or officials from his Department attended the meeting of the National Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group on 27 June; what steps his Department is taking following the meeting; whether he expects to attend the next meeting; and if he will make a statement. [148111]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Department officials attended the meeting of the National Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group (NMPSOG) on 27 June. There were no resulting action points for the Department and officials expect to attend the next meeting.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-4W, on Departments: public bodies, what the (a) whole-time equivalent numbers and (b) budget were for NHS Supply Chain in each year since its inception. [148835]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information relating to NHS Supply Chain was not provided separately in the answer of 19 June 2007 as it is not an arm's length body in its own right. NHS Supply Chain was created on 1 October 2006 and is a contract managed by NHS Business Services Authority.

As of end June 2007, NHS Supply Chain employed 1,592 whole-time equivalent members of staff.

The budget is commercially sensitive information and is not for public disclosure, as agreed by the contract established with the Department.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-4W, on Departments: public bodies, whether the figures included consultants; and how many consultants were employed by each arm's length body in each year. [148836]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The answer of 19 June 2007 related to staff employed by the Department's arm's length bodies.

Details relating to consultants contracted by the Department's arm's length bodies are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-34W, on Departments: public bodies, whether NHS Direct, for the purposes of the answer, has been subsumed into Connecting for Health. [148837]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-34W, provided the (a) budget and (b) staffing numbers for the Department's arm's length bodies for each year they were available. The information for NHS Direct was provided for 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07. NHS Direct became an NHS Trust on 1 April 2007 and ceased to be an arm's length body so no information was provided for 2007-08.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-4W, on Departments: public bodies, who administered the budget originally allocated to the NHS Modernisation Agency after 2004-05; and what that budget was in each year since 2005-06. [148838]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: For 2005-06, £135.692 million was distributed by the Department to the strategic health authorities to distribute across the national health service.

In 2006-07, £115.192 million and in 2007-08 £87.336 million were distributed to the NHS by the department as part of the NHS funding bundle.

The NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement also received funding from the money that had previously been allocated to the NHS Modernisation Agency.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the final submission setting out his Department's financial needs for the period covered by the 2002 spending review that his Department made to HM Treasury as part of the spending review process before a final settlement was agreed. [146529]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is the Government's view that publishing spending review papers would be prejudicial to the conduct of public affairs.

Health Services: Hertfordshire

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) health visitors, (b) nursery nurses, (c) support workers and (d) midwives there were in Hertfordshire in each year since 2001. [148703]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The following table shows the number of nursing, midwifery and health visiting and support staff in Hertfordshire as at 30 September for each year specified.

[1] In 2004 East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust reported a large increase in the use of bank staff.

[2] More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total workforce figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures. This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends over time.

Note:

Hertfordshire has been defined as consisting of East and North Hertfordshire PCT, West Hertfordshire PCT, East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust and West Hertfordshire Hospital Trust and based on boundaries at 1 October 2006.

Hearing Aids: Waiting Lists

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland are waiting for a hearing aid; and what the average waiting time is for such provision. [148044]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect data on waiting times for a hearing aid. However, since January 2006, the Department has been collecting data on the waiting times for audiology assessment. The latest figures, for April 2007, indicate that there are currently 7,328 people waiting over 13 weeks for an audiology assessment in the North East Strategic Health Authority.

Home Care Services: Elderly

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to review the current arrangements for home care for pensioners. [148715]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No. The provision of social care is based on the National Assistance Act 1948. Sections 21 and 29 of the Act relate to the duties and powers of local authorities to provide social care services. Following the Local Authorities Social Services Act 1970, local council social services departments were set up to provide services to a wide range of people, including children in need, people with mental health problems and learning difficulties and older people.

Local authorities are responsible for assessing the care needs of their populations and providing or arranging care services to meet those needs, including home care for pensioners.

Homeopathy: Kent

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients who live in the areas covered by West Kent Primary Care Trust will continue to be able to receive homeopathy from the Tunbridge Wells NHS Homeopathic Hospital. [147817]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for the local national health service, in partnership with strategic health authorities and other local stakeholders, to plan, develop and improve services for local people. Local solutions will meet the needs of local patients and communities. Consultation about the commissioning of homeopathy services is therefore a matter for West Kent Primary Care Trust.

Hospitals: Parking

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospitals in the Greater Manchester area have acted on his Department's recommendations to provide free or reduced price parking for patients with long-term illnesses and requiring regular treatment. [147256]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under Income Generation rules it is for each individual national health service body to manage any car parking scheme on its premises, including what charges to impose and what concessions to offer, taking into consideration all of the relevant local factors. The document 'Income Generation: Car Parking Charges—Best Practice for Implementation' is intended to provide advice and support in carrying out that function. While I would expect NHS bodies to consider and take account of the recommendations set out in the document, they are not obliged to adhere to them unconditionally.

The Estates Related Information Collection database monitors some transport and car parking related activities. However, it does not monitor implementation of any of the recommendations in this best practice document.

Human Embryo Experiments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received objecting to the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill; and what objections have been made in those representations. [148636]

Dawn Primarolo: On 17 May 2007, the Human Tissue and Embryos Bill was published in draft form and is now undergoing scrutiny by a Joint House of Commons and House of Lords Committee, concluding on 25 July. The Committee has taken a range of evidence.

Following publication of the draft Bill, a number of representations have been made to the Department. Where objections have been raised, they have primarily concerned the proposal to form the Regulatory Authority for Tissue and Embryos, the proposal to allow the creation of inter-species embryos for research, and the proposal to remove the reference to a child's need for a father when considering the welfare of the child.

Objections to these proposals have been based on a variety of moral, religious, sociological and practical grounds.

Medical Treatments: Finance

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to allocate funds to the development of photodynamic therapy. [148449]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1450-51W.

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much his Department spent in England on providing (a) additional secure psychiatric beds, (b) medical services for prisoners, (c) drug and alcohol treatment of prisoners and (d) drug and alcohol treatment for other convicted persons in each of the last six years; and what sums are budgeted for the next five years; [148383]

(2) what funding he provided for prison psychiatric care in each of the last five years; and what percentage of the prison health care budget each figure represented. [148398]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on expenditure on additional psychiatric beds is not collected centrally. Funding is allocated on the basis of individual need, as determined by local commissioners.

Expenditure on medical services for prisoners in the last six years, which includes psychiatric services, is shown in the following table.

Expenditure on prison health care in England 2002-03 to 2006-07

	Amount (£)
2002-03	117,615,000
2003-04	139,705,000

2005-06	177,511,000
2006-07	189,319,000

The figures quoted include amount spend on mental health in-reach services in both publicly and privately managed prisons.

The 2007-08 allocation currently stands at £198,999,000.

The figure for 2006-07 also includes an amount to cover the cost of implementing Agenda for Change, backdated to October 2004, for prison health care staff who have transferred to the national health service.

Drug treatment funding allocated to prisons globally over the past six years is shown in the following table.

There is currently no central funding for implementing the Alcohol Strategy for Prisoners (introduced December 2004). A number of initiatives are under way locally but such spend is not recorded centrally.

For drug and alcohol treatment for other convicted persons, the Drug Treatment and Testing Order (DTTO) and, since April 2005, the Drug Rehabilitation Requirement (DRR) of the community order, which has gradually replaced it, are the only community sentences which require the offender to attend drug treatment. Funding for DTTOs and DRRs over the last six years is shown in the following table.

Funding for DTTOs and the DRRs 2001-02 to 2005-06

Additionally, £3 million was made available in 2005-06 to the Prospects programme, a pilot which provides offenders with a history of drug misuse with seamless support from prison to the community in a residential setting.

DTTO and DRR allocations are projected to remain the same in 2006-07. The 2006-07 allocation for Prospects was £3.8 million, which has risen to £4.35 million for 2007-08.

There is no dedicated funding provided by Government to support the provision of alcohol treatment to offenders under probation supervision. Instead, each probation area determines the amount of its annual probation funding allocation to spend on alcohol treatment. Information about alcohol treatment spend by probation area is not centrally available.

Funding plans for any of these programmes and services for the next five years have not yet been finalised, although they are all ongoing.

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prisoners were reported as requiring psychiatric care in each of the last five years. [148399]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally.

A survey, "Psychiatric morbidity among prisoners in England and Wales (Office for National Statistics, 1998)" showed that 90 per cent. of prisoners have at least one significant mental health problem, including personality disorder, psychosis, neurosis, alcohol misuse and drug dependence. A copy is available in the Library.

People who are mentally too ill to remain in prison should be transferred to hospital. We have introduced tighter monitoring to identify prisoners waiting an unacceptably long period for transfer to hospital. A protocol was issued to prisons and primary care trusts in October 2005 setting out what must be done when a prisoner has been waiting for a hospital place for more than three months following acceptance by the national health service.

These measures have helped bring about positive results. In 2006, 962 prisoners, with mental illness too severe for prison, were transferred to hospital.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prisoners were transferred to hospital for psychiatric care in each of the last five years; and what the average waiting time for the transfer was over that period. [148400]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested on the numbers of prisons transferred is shown in the table.

Total number of transfers under Sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 2001-06

	Total
2001	670
2002	722
2003	785
2004	892
2005	896
2006	962

Source:
Mental Health Unit, Home Office

Information on the average length of time prisoners wait for these transfers is not collected centrally. However, there has been a significant decrease in the number of people waiting over 12 weeks for a transfer in the quarter ending March 2007, 40 prisoners were waiting, down from 51 in the same quarter in 2005.

Mentally Ill: Cannabis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 583W, on mentally ill: cannabis, how many hospital admissions on mental health grounds resulting from the use of cannabis there were in each year since 1997, broken down by strategic health authority area. [147498]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North-West Cambridgeshire (Mr. Vara) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2187W.

Mentally Ill: HM Prison Armley

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of prisoners currently in HM Prison Armley has been diagnosed as having (a) mental health, (b) alcohol-related and (c) drug-related problems; and if he will make a statement. [148647]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally. A survey, "Psychiatric morbidity among prisoners in England and Wales (Office for National Statistics, 1998)" showed that 90 per cent. of prisoners have at least one significant mental health problem, including personality disorder, psychosis, neurosis, alcohol misuse and drug dependence. A copy is available in the Library.

Mental health services for prisoners have been a key part of the government's recent reforms of health services for prisoners. The Department is now investing £20 million a year in national health service mental health in-reach services for prisoners. These are community mental health teams working within prisons and are now available in 102 prisons, with some 360 extra staff employed. Every prison in England and Wales has access to these services. Information on how many prisoners receive these services is not collected centrally.

Methylamphetamine

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent steps he has taken to prevent the sale of over-the-counter medicines for the manufacture of methylamphetamine; and what assessment he has made of whether the classification of medicines containing ephedrine and pseudoephedrine as pharmacy available plays a role in the illegal manufacture of methylamphetamine; [148031]

(2) what assessment he has made of the prevalence of the use of over-the-counter medicines to manufacture methylamphetamine. [148033]

Dawn Primarolo: The manufacture of methylamphetamine in the United Kingdom is believed to be at a low level currently, but is thought to be increasing. The reclassification of methylamphetamine to Class A under the Misuse of Drugs Act on 18 January 2007 is now enabling the collection and analysis of more specific data on methylamphetamine use in the UK. However no formal assessment has yet been made of the prevalence of the use of over the counter medicines to manufacture methylamphetamine.

On 7 March 2007, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency started a public consultation exercise on proposals to restrict the availability of medicines containing pseudoephedrine and ephedrine by a change to legal status from pharmacy to prescription only, together with a restriction in pack size. This followed advice from the Commission on Human Medicines that non-statutory measures, such as rigorous supervision of pharmacy sales of single packs, were not sufficient alone to protect public health. The consultation exercise ended on 29 June 2007 and the results are currently being evaluated. Part of that evaluation includes the effect of action to introduce restrictions on supply including reclassification, taken in other countries, on the role of these medicines in the manufacture of methylamphetamine.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) total NHS expenditure on medicines and (b) NHS spending per head on medicines has been in each year since 1997-98 (i) for England and (ii) broken down by strategic health authority area. [149489]

Dawn Primarolo: The following tables give total national health service expenditure on medicines since 1997-98 and is broken down by (a) primary care and (b) the hospital and community health service (HCHS).

Primary care medicines expenditure is the total actual cost of drugs and appliances prescribed by general practitioners/nurses within England plus any central budget expenditure or locally authorised payments.

HCHS expenditure on drugs includes medical gases.

The Department does not publish the drugs bill on a per capita basis. The per capita figures have been derived from Office of National Statistics mid-year total population estimates for England, and do not take into account age related demand for drugs.

A times-series breakdown by strategic health authority (SHA) area is not available as this data are not collated by SHA centrally.

HCHS expenditure includes drugs and medical gases.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what records are being held by his Department on the discussions with HM Treasury on changes to the resource accounting and budgeting system announced in March 2007. [147123]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department holds a range of records on the discussions between the Department and HM Treasury on the changes to the resource accounting and budgeting rules for national health service trusts announced on 28 March 2007.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on changes to the resource accounting and budgeting system. [147204]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secretary of State has regular meetings with the Chancellor of the Exchequer at which a range of issues are discussed.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to receive the detailed report relating to the final sign-off on the financial plans of NHS organisations in 2007-08 referred to on page 28 of his Department's NHS financial performance quarter four, published on 6 June 2007; if he will publish the detailed report; and if he make a statement. [147534]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is currently completing its risk assessment of the 2007-08 financial plans submitted by all national health service organisations. Information relating to these plans will be published in due course.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the capital budget was of each (a) NHS trust and (b) primary care trust in 2006-07; and what the actual capital expenditure was in 2006-07 of each. [147576]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested, based on 2006-07 unaudited draft national health service accounts, has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the likely level of top-slicing in 2007-08 of primary care trust revenue allocations in each strategic health authority area. [147577]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is currently completing its risk assessment of the 2007-08 financial plans submitted by all national health service organisations. Information relating to these plans will be published in due course.

We made clear in the 2007-08 NHS operating framework that strategic health authorities (SHAs) should not generally require the level of contribution to their reserves from primary care trust (PCT) allocations as was the case in 2006-07, because of the return of the NHS to overall financial balance by the end of the last financial year.

Where continuing contributions from PCT allocations are required by SHAs in 2007-08, they must be subject to transparent rules clearly covering the purpose of the reserves and the timescale over which each organisation can expect to recover its contribution. SHAs have been asked to ensure that financial plans for 2007-08 for individual organisations have been prepared on this basis.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the 2006-07 in-year financial position was of each (a) strategic health authority, (b) NHS trust and (c) primary care trust. [147579]

Mr. Bradshaw: A table providing the information requested has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) nurses, (b) doctors and (c) full-time equivalent (i) doctors and (ii) nurses were working in the NHS in each of the last 10 years. [147448]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is shown in the table.

1. All doctors (excluding GP retainers) also excludes hospital practitioners and clinical assistants, most of whom are GPs working part-time in hospitals.
2. More accurate validation this year means that in 2006, 9,858 duplicate records were identified and removed from the non-medical census. The impact of duplicates on FTE has been minimal with the removal of 507.

(3) what research has been conducted into the health effects of eating (a) pre-packaged, pre-prepared salads and (b) freshly made salads; and if he will make a statement. [149216]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's advice to increase fruit and vegetable consumption to five portions a day is based on a range of evidence that suggests high intakes may be beneficial in reducing the risk of chronic disease, such as heart disease.

There is no evidence to suggest that there is a difference in the health benefits of fruit, fruit juice and salads prepared in the ways identified. All these sources of fruit and vegetables count towards achieving the 5 a day recommendation, although fruit juice counts as a maximum of one portion a day, however much you consume.

Offenders: Drugs

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many offenders (a) in prisons and (b) in the community were receiving treatment for drug or alcohol problems in each of the last five years; [148395]

(2) how many prisoners are waiting to attend (a) alcohol and (b) drug management courses; and what the average waiting time is for a place on each such course. [148396]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of offenders receiving alcohol treatment in prisons or in the community is not collected centrally.

However, the 'Alcohol Needs Assessment Research Project' (ANARP) published in November 2005 provided the first ever comprehensive picture of alcohol related needs and availability of treatment in England.

ANARP found that in England 1.1 million people are alcohol dependent and estimated that 63,000 people access alcohol treatment each year.

The table shows the numbers of prisoners with a drug problem who engaged subsequently with prison drug treatment services in each of the past five years for which this information is available. Full year figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many detoxifications of prisoners took place in each of the last five years; what the average length of time for detoxification was; and what the average cost was. [148397]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The table shows the number of entrants to prison detoxification and drug maintenance programmes for the years 2001-02 to 2005-06. Full year figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Year	Entrants

2005-06	53,773

Notes:
1. These data have been extracted from the Prison Service PSimon database (Prison Service Information for Managers Online).
2. These figures aggregate detoxification and extended prescribing programmes. These two interventions will be reported separately from April 2007.
3. Information on the average length of time for detoxification, or on average cost, is not collected centrally. However, in 2006-07, a total of £77.3 million was provided for custodial drug treatment.

Reproduction: Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the (a) reference numbers and (b) titles of (i) statutory instruments, (ii) departmental circulars and (iii) other documents distributed direct to (A) primary care trusts and (B) strategic health authorities consequential to the provisions of the Abortion Act 1967 and the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 since 2005; what action was required in respect of each; and what further documents in these categories he plans to circulate in the next 12 months. [148298]

Dawn Primarolo: The available information for 1 January 2006 onwards is set out as follows:

No statutory instruments, Departmental circulars or documents have been issued by the Department to primary care trusts (PCTs) and strategic health authorities (SHAs) on the provisions of the Abortion Act.

We will be issuing best practice guidance on reproductive healthcare later this year aimed at commissioners and providers emphasising the need to develop strong links between abortion and contraceptive services.

No statutory instruments, departmental circulars or documents have been issued by the Department to PCTs and SHAs consequential to the provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act. The Department has no plans to circulate any documents in these categories in the next 12 months.

The Government have undertaken a review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act, and published the White Paper 'Review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act: Proposals for revised legislation (including establishment of the Regulatory Authority for Tissue and Embryos)' in December 2006 (Cm 6989). This was followed by publication of the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill on 17 May 2007. Both documents are available on the Department's website at:

Ritalin

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the trend in the number of Ritalin prescriptions issued; and if he will make a statement; [147501]

(2) what assessment he has made of a general practitioner's powers to increase the dosages of Ritalin for sufferers of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder once an initial prescription has been made by a specialist in child psychiatry. [147504]

Dawn Primarolo: We have no evidence that methylphenidate (Ritalin) is being inappropriately prescribed on a widespread basis. In October 2000, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) in a review of the use of methylphenidate (Ritalin) suggested that a great number of children were missing out on methylphenidate who may benefit from it.

In March 2006, NICE published guidance on the use of all drugs used to treat Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). They estimated that around 5 per cent. of school-aged children meet the diagnostic criteria for ADHD, equivalent to 366,000 children and adolescents in England and Wales, but not all these children will require medication.

NICE further recommended that drug treatment for ADHD should only be initiated by an appropriately qualified healthcare professional with expertise in ADHD and should be based on a comprehensive assessment and diagnosis. Continued prescribing and monitoring of drug treatment may be performed by general practitioners, under shared care arrangements. Drug therapy should only be part of a comprehensive treatment programme that includes advice and support to parents and teachers.

Royal Pharmaceutical Society

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew), of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 1008W, on the Royal Pharmaceutical Society, what the composition is of the Pharmacy Regulation and Leadership Oversight Group. [147464]

Dawn Primarolo: I am pleased to announce the membership of the Pharmacy Regulation and Leadership Oversight Group (PRLOG). The chair of the Group is Ken Jarrold CBE, a director of Dearden Consulting, who has made a significant contribution as a senior manager in the national health service over many years. The Chief Pharmaceutical Officers of the four United Kingdom Health Departments are members—Dr. Keith Ridge (Department of Health), Professor Bill Scott (Scottish Executive Health Department), Ms Carwen Wynne-Howell (Welsh Assembly Government) and Dr. Norman Morrow (Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, Northern Ireland). Mr. Hemant Patel, President of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, and Mr. Raymond Anderson, President of the Pharmaceutical Society of Northern Ireland, are also members. Professor Peter Noyce, who provided advice on professional matters to Lord Carter's working party on pharmacy professional regulation and leadership, will be the professional adviser to the PRLOG.

In addition, other members of the PRLOG include:

Ms Tracey Boyce, a senior hospital pharmacist in Northern Ireland.

Ms Judith Cope, Chief Pharmacist at the Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children NHS Trust and honorary senior lecturer, the School of Pharmacy, University of London.

Professor Duncan Craig, Head of Pharmacy and Chair in Pharmaceutics at the University of East Anglia School of Chemical Sciences and Pharmacy.

Mr. Robert Darracott, the Chief Executive of the Company Chemists Association.

Ms Jennifer de Val, President of the British Pharmacy Students Association, and a junior hospital pharmacist.

Mr. Stephen Griffin, Director of Personnel and Development at the County Durham and Darlington Foundation Trust.

Professor Mayur Lakhani CBE, Chairman of the Royal College of General Practitioners.

Mr. Christopher Martin, who is active as a pharmacist and as an independent community pharmacy owner in Wales.

Ms Fiona Price, a pharmacy technician, based in Cardiff, Wales.

Mr. Duncan Rudkin, the Chief Executive and Registrar of the General Dental Council, and a former solicitor.

Professor Michael Schofield CBE, a former lay member of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who also has wide experience of the NHS.

Mr. James Semple, managing director of the TLC Pharmacy Group, which provides community pharmacy services in central Scotland.

Ms Rosie Varley OBE, Acting Chairman of the Council for Healthcare Regulatory Excellence and Chairman of the General Optical Council.

I have asked the PRLOG to provide advice to Ministers on effective action to establish a new regulator, the General Pharmaceutical Council (GPhC), and to identify how leadership within the pharmacy profession can support the GPhC's regulatory role. In doing so, the group will take into account broader action for regulatory reform set out in the White Paper, "Trust, Assurance and Safety—the Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century".

Social Services: Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the adult social care budget was for (a) England and (b) Shropshire in each year since 2002-03. [147706]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the adult social care budget is not available. Data for the combined social care budget for both children and adults are shown in the following table.

Supermarkets: Labelling

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will discuss with major supermarkets labelling food packing with larger type of pricing and ingredients for the elderly and the visually impaired. [148790]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency is the Department responsible for food labelling. Label clarity is one of a range of issues on which the Agency is in regular contact with key stakeholders, including retailers.

European Union food labelling legislation, which is currently subject to review, requires that labelling information should be easy to understand, clearly legible, indelible and easily visible. In addition to legislative requirements, the Agency has produced guidance on clear food labelling, which takes into account the needs of the visually impaired by suggesting a minimum font size. This guidance is being revised and will shortly be issued for public consultation.

Price information is covered by the Price Marking Order 2004. This requires that price indications must be clearly legible, unambiguous and easily identifiable. The Agency has received no representations that consumers find such information difficult to read.

Water: Schools

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to review and access the provision of water in schools following his Department's Food in Schools Water Provision project. [148032]

Dawn Primarolo: The Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999 require that a school "shall have a wholesome supply of water for domestic purposes including a supply of drinking water". The new nutritional standards for school food require that drinking water is provided free of charge to registered pupils. Chilled water is not a requirement of the standards.

We are investing close to £500 million between 2005 and 2011 to assist authorities and schools in improving school food and drink. Ofsted will be monitoring schools' approaches to healthier eating as part of their regular inspections of schools.

Providing free drinking water and meeting the new nutritional standards are key criteria under the healthy eating theme of the National Healthy Schools Programme. We have set a target for all schools to be working towards Healthy School Status by 2009.
